EMANCIPATED WOMAN IN THE SOUTH SEAS

A BUNCH OF TARO

NATIVE WOMEN AT THEIR MEAL OF FISH AND POI

WOMAN PULLING TARO FOR POI

NATIVE POUNDING TARO TO MAKE POI

WOMAN has emancipated herself in the tropical isles of the Pacific. Once she did all the drudgery, now she makes leis of flowers for the men to wear about their heads while they do the hard work necessary to support the family. At best the Polynesian woman will only work with her husband, but never for him. The beautiful results of her industry of long ago in the South Seas, when man was master, are almost things of the past, to be found nowadays as priceless relics in the museums of the world.

In the good old days before a Hawaiian queen celebrated the death of her warrior husband by declaring nothing taboo or forbidden to her sex, the Hawaiian woman lived on a slim diet. She might make nets and catch fish for her husband, but she could not eat them, nor could she dine off the same mat, made by her hands, from which her lord and master ate, nor could she even eat in the presence of her own son whom she brought into the world.

Once the "taboo" was removed the woman became the equal of the man and the arts languished. When kings could command and kill the disobedient, rulers of Hawaii wore a robe of feathers that took many women a century to complete and thousands of men as long to gather the few feathers that each wild bird of the mountains supplied for the royal robe of yellow, valued at a million dollars, the most costly royal robe in existence, and the handiwork of savage women who have long forgotten the art that once was theirs, when their fingers created feather robes for their husband chiefs to wear.

Today when a royal personage dies in Hawaii, ancient kahilis or wands of feathers, are carefully reconstructed by those who still preserve the art of putting them together, and after the royal interment they are again taken apart and put carefully away. In days of old even queens worked on these, and even the present ex-Queen Liliuokalani worked with her own hands a feather wand that preceded to the grave poor Queen Emma, last descendant of the first American to make Hawaii his home. Again this kahili was carried before the funeral cortege of Prince David, and will in time precede Liliuokalani herself to the last resting place of Hawaiian kings and queens, the royal mausoleum.

Sometimes one may still observe a family of women in Hawaii weaving one of the old time, all but priceless mats, but it is tedious work and the over-educated college-bred girl of Hawaii does not take to it kindly. Besides the art must be learned in childhood when the fingers are supple, and nowadays the public schools have truant officers and every family a sewing machine. Every Hawaiian girl, however, is an adept at weaving wreaths and chains of flowers. The lei women are one of the sights of Honolulu. For the man she loves the Hawaiian girl will still weave a hat of native fibre around which she will make a band of feathers to express her "aloha" or love for the wearer.

As the native arts and industries in the South Seas are abandoned one by one before the onward march of civilization, the aboriginal of the tropics are left idle, quickly forget how to work and pass away. In the good old days it took a muscular cannibal full six months to chop out with primitive stone implements his log canoe. In New Zealand the most expert wood carvers were employed for years at a stretch fashioning with stone hatchets the headpiece for a war canoe. In every South Sea village the sound of the women beating out tapa cloth was heard from morning till night, but nowadays all these things are done in a twinkling by machinery in civilized lands, sold to the South Sea Islanders for the cocoanuts they pick up under the trees. There is no further incentive for them to work, so nature seems to say to them, "Then why live?" Civilization has clothed the savage and robbed him of his handicrafts, but it has not yet succeeded in making him work for the white man as the white man wishes him to work.

In the good old days of the great King Kamehameha, some ninety odd years ago, every Hawaiian man was a warrior skilled in the construction of artistic war clubs and double canoes almost as large as modern ships. The women wove some of the most wonderful feather robes ever worn by royalty, and to this day the few old natives who still preserve alive the art of beating tapa cloth turn out designs the like of which is to be found nowhere else in the Pacific, real works of art, while the few Hawaiian mats that are still woven rank above any made in the South Seas. Modern aniline dyes have lightened the labors of the Hawaiian remnant of native cloth makers, but I have many a time come across the Fijian men and women in their forests working all day long with a will digging roots and herbs from which to extract colors. The time has not yet quite come in Fiji when all the population may sit with hands folded waiting for the end, but all over the South Seas the handicraft of the native workmen is becoming more and more a rarity to be snapped up for preservation in the world's great museums.

In New Zealand it is a penal offense to attempt to export a bit of Maori carving, no living Maori may be employed upon a bit of native art work for a foreigner, no matter what the price offered the workman may be, he must sell to the government. In the New Hebrides, wood carving is all but a lost art. Today in the native villages, in the home of a chief where the old filigree woodwork dividing the hut in two rooms still stands, only the very oldest workers in the villages can repair it properly. Where there are no old men, clumsy patchwork is made of it, and as for the young men they know nothing whatever of the art. Practically it has already died out.

I had seen the Pandanus tree growing in Hawaii, I have even sat down and watched the Hawaiians who in spite of their childhood spent in the public schools still preserve the art of mat making and seated upon the flooring of their modern piazzas, their legs under them, keep their fingers busy with the long strips of leaves that some one else has dried and cured for them. It was not until I had spent some time among the Fijians that I met those who collect their own leaves and follow the process of mat making from start to finish.

The woman's work in the South Seas is to help the man. He builds the canoe, she helps to paddle it; she creates pottery, he takes it to a market; he climbs to cut down the ripened cocoanut, she weaves the baskets that carry the dried kernel or copra to the trader. If tapa is to be made the man helps to gather the bark. And so it goes, the South Sea island woman has nearly everywhere in the Pacific achieved her emancipation, owns her own sewing machine and bids a cheerful "kofa" (farewell) to the industries at which her mother was an artist. She has attained equality with man, but the world has lost something that she might gain everything.

Our God a Jealous God

Our Time, Our Love, Our All, Must Be His—He Will Not Be Second.

"DO NOT let the dear Lord be second. He is a jealous God. If he cannot be first he will not be second." These words came from the pen of one who lives in touch with God. May they sink deep into the hearts of each one who reads them. "The Lord, thy God, is a jealous God." He wants our time, our love, our all. He wants to be first in our hearts—"he will not be second."

Let us examine our hearts: "Is Christ first in my life? Do I think of him more often than of any one else? Do I love God supremely? Do I take time to commune with him as often as I should, or am I absorbed in other things? Is my business of more importance, my success in a financial way more to be considered, my reputation among the people, my appearance?"

O dear friends, God is a jealous God; he wants our all. Since he has been so merciful as to redeem us, so long-suffering as to bear with us, so loving and so good as to care for and protect us, should we not let him be first?

Unworthy Mode of Life.

One of the saddest things on earth to my mind is to see some one professing to be a child of God, saved and sanctified, yet living so much for self, and so close to the world that one can scarcely tell whether he is a saint or not. He leans as far toward the world as he dare on the line of dress while he is among the children of God, his conversation is nearly always light and trifling, one seldom hears him speak of God, he lives this kind of life year after year, seemingly making no progress, yet still "saved and sanctified."

Beloved, should this thing be? All eyes are turned toward the church of God. The people are looking to us for an example of Christ. We tell them that God dwells in our hearts. Oh, let us then show him forth in our lives, for if they look and are disappointed they may give up hope and think, "It is all a farce. God is not in their lives." What a responsibility rests upon us that we live so close to the Lord that people may be convinced that God reigns in our hearts!

Time to Throw Down One's Idols.

If you are one who has been putting God second, I would warn you for Christ's sake to throw down your idols, for God is a jealous God and will have no other gods before him. Shame! shame on the one who would be so ungrateful as to serve God in a half hearted way since Jesus has loved him so much as to suffer and die for his eternal salvation!

How God's tender heart must bleed, as it were, how often must he grieve when he beholds men and women of his creation, even those for whom he has manifested such unfathomable love in blotting out their sins and making them his children, seemingly forget the debt of love they owe to their Saviour. Sad it is, indeed, but sadder yet is the thought that sooner or later God will "spew them out of his mouth," and in that great day when the book shall be opened, those names which were once so fair, are found to be blotted out.

God is a jealous God. Some choose not to make him first, but "he will not be second."—Agnes E. Tuttle in Sabbath Reading.

Sunshine of the Soul.

The testimony of the weak who obscurely and patiently suffer is one of the convincing credentials of Christianity. There are countless humble saints who are lights in dark places through their manifestation of the peace and joy that Christ gives them in humble surroundings and severe afflictions. The same gospel that heroic heralds preach in far-off heathen lands, they silently but effectually proclaim in lonely hamlets and in the slums of great cities, by their patience, their peace, their unselfishness. We would have liked to see the face of Stephen when it was like that of an angel; but may be grateful that we have been permitted to see more than once the faces of men and women shining like that of an angel when in great extremity of pain or sorrow and destitute of material comforts. The poor of this world who are rich in faith are everywhere, and their comfort and joy in Christ bear fruit and offsets the inconsistencies of well-to-do worldlings that hear the Christian name and worship vanity. Health and comfortable circumstances and a pleasant social environment are desirable blessings, but the indwelling of Christ in the heart can make up for the lack of all of them. "The light shineth in darkness." The sunshine of the soul is for all who realize their need of it.

The Sun Shines for All.

The sun does not shine for a few trees and flowers, but for the wide world's joy. The lonely pine upon the mountain top waves its sombre boughs, and cries, "Thou art my sun!" And the grain in a thousand fields rustles in the wind, and makes answer "Thou art my sun!" And so God sits effulgent in heaven, not for a favored few, but for the universe of life; and there is no creature so poor or low that he may not look up with childlike confidence and say: "My father! Thou art mine!"—Henry Ward Beecher.

God Is Good.

"Weeping shall endure for a season." Ask not why your grief has come; nor yet complain, for the time is not yet when you could comprehend. Ask rather that his presence may go with you, giving strength to endure, and wisdom so to set your grief in a life of sweet unembitterment that the light of his presence, blending with it, may change its blackness into the glory of a priceless jewel, before the eyes of those who may behold; that they too may learn the secret of his presence. "Then shalt thou comprehend," and know that God is good.

WOOLLY APHIDES CAUSE MUCH DAMAGE TO THE FRUIT TREES

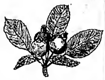
Dreaded Insects Attack Tenderest and Youngest Bark, Hence Receiving Greatest Amount of Nourishing Sap—Kerosene Emulsion Is Recommended as Efficient Remedy.

(By F. H. HILLMAN.)

Woolly aphides are degraded insects closely allied to the plant lice so common to all plants. Their mouth-parts are so constructed as to form a sharp pointed sucking beak. This is thrust through the tenderest bark and the tree's sap thus withdrawn. The very fragility of this sucking organ leads to the greatest damage to the infested tree, because it can be inserted only into or possibly partially through the outer bark; thus the nourishment is withdrawn from the stem immediately beneath the true bark, whose office is to furnish new wood on the one side and new bark on the other. This drain upon the tree's food supply and the consequent impoverishment of the growing tissue at the point of attack tends to interfere seriously with the proper development of the stem attacked. Especially is this true in a year when these pests are apt to appear in countless numbers. The withdrawal of nourishment, aided by the mechanical injury to the bark, is very apt to cause cracks to appear in the latter, which, by exposing the wood beneath, produce a wound which will greatly retard, if it does not destroy, the growth of the stem bearing it. No part of a tree is more liable to an attack, followed by a result of this nature, than young grafts. The damage to such is at once apparent.

A Colony of Aphides Clustered About the Side of a Twig.

Aphids Enlarged—One Winged Individual Is Here Shown.



Young Fruit Ready for the Third Spraying.

The parts of a tree most liable to an attack by the woolly aphis are those where the bark is youngest and tenderest and hence receiving the greatest amount of nourishing sap. The insects seek the sap and their frail beaks must needs have the tenderest bark to pierce that the desired nourishment may be reached. The required conditions are presented, as we may readily see, in recent injuries to the bark where new bark is forming, as for instance, scars where limbs have been removed, or cracks in the bark at any part of the tree; the young "sprouts" that so commonly spring from the trunk and older limbs of the tree; about the bases of the younger twigs, sometimes about the body of such twigs; and, lastly at the junction of the leaf stems with the twigs bearing them. Indeed, a tree which is badly affected will present examples of each of these cases.

A colony of these insects may be located by the mass of woolly material which usually surrounds and frequently covers them. This matter is secreted by glands in the body skin, and in developing becomes more or less fibrous. Finally it is blown away by the wind in masses of tangled fibres.

Nature makes provision for the destruction of great numbers of these aphides by providing in them a source of food supply for several different insects which thus become our friends. These natural agencies greatly reduce the number of these pests, but in dry seasons nature must be assisted if these insects are to be kept reduced to nondestructive numbers.

Kerosene emulsion—formed by adding to one part of a boiled mixture of one-half pound of common soap and a gallon of water, two parts of kerosene, thoroughly mixing, and diluted with cold water to form fifteen to twenty parts—is an efficient remedy.

A double handful of refuse tobacco, boiled in a gallon of water to form a strong tea, and diluted to form six or eight gallons, is a valuable and easily prepared remedy. Carbolic soap, such as sold in the shops for disinfecting purposes, dissolved and so diluted that a decided odor of carbolic acid still remains, is another effective remedy.

PICKED UP IN CHICKEN YARD

Several Little Hints That Will Prove of Much Assistance to Any One Keeping Poultry.

The average cockerel does not pay for his keep and he should be sent to the block as soon as he weighs four pounds unless he is to be kept for breeding.

Let a strange dog rush through the poultry yard and the excitement will affect the egg supply for that day.

While hens have no sentiment, there is no doubt they are extremely nervous at times—particularly during the breeding season—and should be so placed that they cannot be disturbed.

It does not matter so much about the breed as it does about the kind of treatment your hens receive.

Of course, if you are going in for poultry to sell on the market you must select the fowl that will produce the most meat, and if for eggs the breed that will produce more eggs than meat. Then it is "up to you" to get the most out of them, as the slang goes.

Once more, do not feed the young chicks a particle of anything for at least 36 hours after they are hatched. Early feeding means disease and death.

Do not wait a single day to order your wire and put your enclosures for the youngsters in good condition.

When a sick fowl is discovered, remove it at once. Maybe if you will attend to it then and there you can save it, whereas if allowed to wait too long, it may die.

Throw an extra lot of hay into the poultry yards. The chickens will scratch out every clover seed. There is no better way to make them work for their food.

Damp houses are the greatest promoters of disease among fowls.

It is a good plan to teach the young generation of chickens to roost on perches as soon as possible. For one thing, this will keep them out of reach of rats.

One of our poultry folk advises putting a pint of coal oil in each bucket of whitewash before going over the inside of the hen house. This for the special benefit of lice and mites.

Washed Eggs.

Washed eggs rot more readily than those not washed. The dirty eggs, if sold at all, would better be sold dirty than washed.

Peace Made The Quaker Face

What made the Quaker face? Not a broad brimmed hat or a gray bonnet, as the flippant assert. Costume will not make it, as you may prove for yourself at the next masquerade. In part, it was the mysticism, the reserve and the self-reliance of the Quaker mind. These things were the very essence of the society, and they led to a subconscious command to be silent, to be calm, to hide the emotions of the too often rebellious heart, which in turn helped to mold the faces one sees in the portraits and among the Friends still left who belong to the old rule.

It used to be said in our Quaker town that one could tell by their manners the children who had been sent to the Friends' school, because once a week in meeting they had to sit for an hour in perfect quiet. Think of a family, of a community, where the heart was put under discipline for life!

But this is not all, for I have left out the causes which were chiefly responsible for the most charming element of the features of the old Friends—an enduring peace. There have been unpeaceful Quakers and unpeaceful Quakeresses. More than one member of our meeting, so I am told, stamped out of First Day service and slammed the door behind them when the unorthodox Hicksites began their preaching. I have heard that one of our ancestresses was a scold, and there was Cousin Amelia, who used to shake her finger at an obstinate driver when he refused to uncheck his horse, and say: "Just wait till thee gets to the next world. Then thee'll see what will happen!"

As I have remarked, the Quaker project was not always successful. But for once popular opinion is quite right—the Quaker face, particularly the Quaker woman's face, was transfused with peace. Is it not natural? Where could be found "the world's sweet inn from pain and wearisome turmoil," if not in the older communities of Friends—communities in which prudence and self-control kept away poverty, where not only war but strife also, and civil and domestic discord, were banned so explicitly that it was forbidden to decide by majorities at meeting, where rivalry in dress and in station were restrained as far as fallible human nature would permit? How could peace fail to be resident in a society which believed that God was not in his heaven, but among us, and that so long as one lived without affectation, did the daily task, kept the heart tender and the body pure, all was right with the world? Henry Seidel Canby, in the Century Magazine.

Bad for Her Child.

"Yes."

"But why doesn't your own son go with him? Doesn't he like to carry his father's clubs?"

"Yes, but I put a stop to it when I found out what terrible language my husband uses when he foozles. I made him get another boy or drop the game."

Lazy Little Prue.

Sue—Wouldn't you just like to be as happy as a lark?

Prue—No, indeed. Think of the time they have to get up.—Lippincott's.

Compensation.

Tailor—The last suit I made for you was a little tight, so I am making this one loose. I give every one a square deal.—Pele Mele.

Explained.

Ascum—Tell me, which is proper? Would you say, "It is possible for two to live on $10 a week" or "on $10 weekly"?

Wise—Well, I'd say "It is possible for two to live on $10 a week weakly."—Catholic Standard and Times.

Warning Off.

Impecunious Nobleman—Sir, I understand you have a peerless daughter.

Old Moneybags—Yes, and you might as well understand first as last that she is going to stay peerless as far as you fortune hunters are concerned.

A Roland for An Oliver.

"Would you promise me, sir, to support her in the way to which she has been accustomed?"

"Oh, no, sir, I wouldn't be that mean to her."

RAJAH'S THEFT-PROOF SAFE

Some years ago a famous firm of British lockmakers received an order that taxed all the ingenuity of their experts. It being a point of honor with the firm that no order, however seemingly ingenious, shall baffle the inventive faculty of their designers, or the technical skill of their workmen, it was determined that the customer should have what he wanted.

Now this order came from an Indian rajah. After the manner of dusky potentates, he suffered from the dual possession of dishonest servants and magnificent gems. The gems had been disappearing at an alarming rate, and although only seven servants had access to the box containing them, it had been found impossible to discover the culprit. Whether the rajah dismissed his retinue or put them to death on suspicion, the thefts continued with unbroken regularity.

In his perplexity and distress the rajah thought of the famous firm in London. He wanted to catch the thief besides preserving his jewels.

The rajah's order was for an exceedingly complicated lock. He wanted a safe fitted with eight different keys, one for each of his servants and one for himself. A piece of glass about eight inches square was to be let into the front of the safe.

To carry out his wishes the lock must be so constructed that upon the opening of the safe by any particular key the photograph of the opener should appear immediately in front of the glass, to remain there until another key had been inserted. Thus it would always be possible to tell who had opened the safe.

Whether this unique lock answered its purpose is not a matter of history, but it was a clever device.—Sunday Illustrated Magazine.

COAL TAR FOR INSIDE OF SILO

Coal tar is quite generally used for painting the inside of silos, especially where they are made of staves. It not only acts as a preservative, but it is quite helpful in closing up the small cracks and excluding the air. It is usually applied while hot. The hotter the tar is the more it will penetrate. The usual practice is to heat the coal tar in a kettle. Care should be taken to keep it some distance from the building, as the tar, ignited, makes a dangerous fire. Hot coal tar gives off fumes that will ignite when exposed to a flame. Therefore, while applying the tar to the inside of silo one should, by all means, dispense with smoking.

A very good plan is to have a fire for heating the coal tar some distance from the building, and then apply it to the inside of the silo with a broom. This can be done while the silo is being filled.

Excellent Lice Powder.

An excellent lice powder which any one may make for his flock is as follows: Put two and one-half pounds of plaster of paris into a pan. Then mix three-fourths of a pint of gasoline and one-fourth of a pint of cresol. Stir the liquid. When ready the mixture should be rather crumbly. After drying it should be sifted, when it will be ready for use.

Fruit for Market.

The commercial fruit grower restricts his selection to the really profitable sorts, which is a lesser number than the average home fruit garden requires in order to supply the needs for family use. He selects sorts that combine the vigor of the tree and attractive color, large size, etc., but above all long carrying capacity.

SYNOPSIS.

Dan Blair, the 22-year-old son of the fifty-million-dollar copper king of Blairtown, Mont., is a guest at the English home of Lady Galorey. Dan's father had been courteous to Lord Galorey during his visit to the United States and the courtesy is now being returned to the young man. The youth has an ideal girl in his mind. He meets Lily, Duchess of Breakwater, a beautiful widow, who is attracted by his immense fortune and takes a liking to her. When Dan was a boy, a girl sang a solo at a church, and he had never forgotten her. The Galoreys, Lily and Dan attend a London theater where one Letty Lane is the star. Dan recognizes her as the girl from his town, and going behind the scenes introduces himself and she remembers him. He learns that Prince Poniatowsky is suitor and escort to Letty. Lord Galorey and a friend named Ruggles determine to protect the westerner from Lily and other fortune hunters. Young Blair goes to see Lily, he can talk of nothing but Letty and this angers the Duchess. The westerner finds Letty ill from hard work, but she recovers and Ruggles and Dan invite her to supper. She asks Dan to build a home for disappointed theatrical people. Dan visits Lily, for the time forgetting Letty, and later announces his engagement to the duchess. Letty refuses to sing for an entertainment given by Lily. Galorey tells Dan that all Lily cares for is his money, and it is disclosed that he and the duchess have been mutually in love for years. Letty sings at an aristocratic function, Dan escorting her home. Dan confronts Galorey and Lily together. Later he informs Letty that his engagement with Lily is broken, asks the singer to marry him, and they become engaged. Ruggles thinks the westerner should not marry a public singer.

CHAPTER XXIV.—Continued.

He wanted to tell her that the girl Dan married should be the kind of woman his mother was, but Ruggles couldn't bring himself to say the words. Now, as he sat near her, he was growing so complex that his brain was turning round. He heard her murmur:

"I told you I knew your set, Mr. Ruggles. It isn't any use."

This brought him back to his position and once more he leaned toward her and, in a different tone from the one he had intended to use, murmured:

"You don't know. You haven't any idea. I do ask you to let Dan go, that's a fact. I have got something else to propose in its place. It ain't quite the same, but it is clear—marry me!"

"Laugh," he said humbly; "don't keep in. I know I am old fashioned as the deuce, and me and Dan is quite a contrast, but I mean just what I say, my dear."

She controlled her amusement, if it was that. It almost made her cry with mirth, and she couldn't help it. Between laughing breaths she said to him:

"Oh, is it all for Dan's sake, Mr. Ruggles? Is it?" And then, biting her lips and looking at him out of her beautiful eyes, she said: "I know it is—I know it is—I beg your pardon."

"I asked a girl once when I was poor—too poor. Now this is the second time in my life. I mean just what I say. I'll make you a kind husband. I am fifty-five, hale as a nut. I dare say you have had many better offers."

"Oh, dear," she breathed; "oh, dear, please—please stop!"

"But I don't expect you to marry me for anything but my money."

Ruggles put his cigar down on the edge of the table. He looked at his chair meditatively, he took out his silk handkerchief, polished up his glasses, readjusted them, put them on and then looked at her.

"Now," he said, "I am going to trust you with something, and I know you will keep my secret for me. This shows you a little bit of what I think about you. Dan Blair hasn't got a red cent. He has nothing but what I give him. There's a false title to all that land on the Bentley claim. The whole thing came up when I was home and the original company, of which I own three-quarters of the stock, holds the clear titles to the Blairtown mines. It all belongs now to me, if I choose to present my documents. Dan knows nothing about this—not a word."

The actress had never come up to such a dramatic point in any of her plays. With her hands folded in her lap she looked at him steadily, and he could not understand the expression that crossed her face. He heard her exclamation: "Oh, gracious!"

"I've brought the papers back with me," said the westerner, "and it is between you and me how we act. If Dan marries you I will be bound to do what old Blair would have done—cut him off—let him feel his feet on the ground, and the result of his own folly."

He had taken his glasses off while he made this assertion. Now he put them on again.

"If you give him up I'll divide with the boy and be rich enough still to hand over to my wife all she wants to spend."

She turned her face away from him and leaned her head once more upon her hands. He heard her softly murmuring under her breath, with an absent look on her face, accompanied by a still more incomprehensible smile.

"That's how it stands," he concluded.

She seemed to have forgotten him entirely, and he caught his breath when she turned about abruptly and said:

"My goodness, how Dan will hate being poor! He will have to sell all his stickpins and his motor cars and all the things he has given me. It will be quite a little to start on, but he will hate it, he is so very smart."

"Why, you don't mean to say—" Ruggles gasped.

And with a charming smile as she rose to put their conversation at an end, she said:

"Why, you don't mean to say that you thought I wouldn't stand by him?" She seemed, as she put her hands upon her hips with something of a defiant look at the elder man, as though she just then stood by her pauperized lover.

"I thought you cared some for the boy," Ruggles said.

"Well, I am showing it."

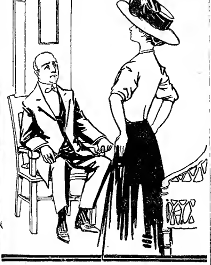
"You want to ruin him to show it, do you?"

As though he thought the subject dismissed he walked heavily toward the door.

"You know how it stands. I have nothing more to say." He knew that he had signally failed, and as a sudden resentment rose in him he exclaimed, almost brutally:

"I am darned glad the old man is dead; I am glad his mother's dead, and I am glad I have got no son."

The next moment she was at his side, and he felt that she clung to his arm. Her sensitive, beautiful face, all drawn with emotion, was raised to his.



"Why, You Don't Mean to Say That You Thought I Wouldn't Stand by Him?"

"Oh, you'll kill me—you'll kill me! Just look how very ill I am; you are making me crazy. I just worship him."

"Give him up, then," said Ruggles steadily.

She faltered: "I can't—I can't—it won't be for long"—with a terrible pathos in her voice. "You don't know how different I can be; you don't know what a new life we were going to lead."

Stammering, and with intense meaning, Ruggles, looking down at her, said: "My dear child—my dear child."

In his few words something perhaps made her see in a flash her past and what the question really was. She dropped Ruggles' arm. She stood for a moment with her arms folded across her breast, her head bent down, and the man at the door waited, feeling that Dan's whole life was in the balance of the moment. When she spoke again her voice was hard and entirely devoid of the lovely appealing quality which brought her so much admiration from the public.

"If I give him up," she said slowly, "what will you do?"

"Why," he answered, "I'll divide with Dan and let things stand just as they are."

She thought again for a moment and then as if she did not want him to witness—to detect the struggle she was going through, she turned away and walked over toward the window and dismissed him from there. "Please go, will you? I want very much to be alone and to think."

CHAPTER XXV.

Letty Lane Runs Away.

He had not got upstairs to his rooms at the Carlton before a note was handed him from the actress, bidding him to return at once to the Savoy, and Ruggles, his heart hammering like a trip hammer, rushed up to his rooms, made an evening toilet, for it was then half-past seven, threw his cravats and collars all around the place, cursed like a miner as he got into his clothes, and red almost to apoplexy, nervous and full of emotion, he returned to the rooms he had left not three hours before.

The three hours had been busy ones at the actress' apartment. Letty Lane's sitting-room was full of trunks, dressing bags and traveling paraphernalia. She came forward out of what seemed a world of confusion, dressed as though for a journey, even her veil and her gloves denoting her departure. She spoke hurriedly and almost without politeness.

"I have sent for you to come and see me here. Not a soul in London knows I am going away. There will be a dreadful row at the theater, but that's none of your affairs. Now, I want you to tell me before I go just what you are going to do for Dan."

"Who are you going with?" Ruggles asked shortly, and she flashed at him:

"Well, really, I don't think that is any of your business. When you drive a woman as you have driven me, she will go far."

He interrupted her vehemently, not daring to take her hand. "I couldn't do more. I have asked you to marry me. I couldn't do more. I stand by what I have said. Will you?" he stammered.

She knew men. She looked at him keenly. Her veil was lifted above her eyes and its shadow framed her small pale face on which there were marks of utter disenchantment, of great ennui. She said languidly: "What I want to know is, what you are going to do for Dan?"

"I told you I would share with him."

"Then he will be nearly as rich?"

"He'll have more than is good for him."

That satisfied her. Then she pursued, "I want you to stand by him. He will need you."

Ruggles lifted the hand he held and kissed it reverently. "I'll do anything you say—anything you say."

Down-stairs in the Savoy, as Dan had done countless times, Ruggles waited until he saw her motor car carry her and her small luggage and Higgins away.

In their sitting-room in the Carlton a half-hour later the door was thrown open and Dan Blair came in like a madman. Without preamble he seized Ruggles by the arm.

"Look here," he cried, "what have you been doing? Tell me now, and tell me the truth, or, by God, I don't know what I'll do. You went to the Savoy. You went there twice. Anyhow, where is she?"

Dan, slender as he was beside Ruggles' great frame, shook the elder man as though he had been a terrier. "Speak to me. Where has she gone?"

He stared in the Westerner's face, his eyes bloodshot. "Why in thunder don't you say something?"

And Ruggles prayed for some power to unloose his thickening tongue.

UNCLE HIRAM TO HIS NEPHEW

He Hopes the Boy Will Turn Out to Be Good Judge of Men, When His Turn Comes.

"Stevey, my boy," said Uncle Hiram to his hopeful nephew, "I hope it will turn out that you are a good judge of men, for by virtue of that quality a man is able in effect to multiply his own power.

"It is a common thing to hear people say that the more pay a man gets the less work he does, and as to the doing of actual labor this may be true, somebody else saws the wood while he sits by the fire.

"As a matter of fact there are plenty of men high up who still work hard, and all of them certainly worked hard when they were younger, and if they are doing less actual labor now it is because they are good judges of men, able to pick out for the business under their direction just the right men to do the work and carry it forward successfully.

"Really it is in the exercise of this gift that we find the greatest value in a manager. It is just this that makes him worth his high pay. We want him to sit around and take things easy and give himself time to think and keep his head clear. We don't want him to get out and chop down trees; we want him to be able to select men who can do that work to the greatest advantage and with the greatest economy.

"Some of us know men on sight and some don't. I hope, Stevey, that you will turn out to be a good judge of men."

An Ideal.

I will strive to raise my own body and soul daily into higher powers of duty and happiness; not in rivalship of contention with others, but for the help, delight, honor of others, and for the joy and peace of my own life.—John Ruskin.

Health & Beauty Hints

by Katherine Morton

Girls of sixteen and even younger often write me for complexion formulas and I always feel like saying the same thing to them all:

"My dear children, you have it in your own hands to possess not only a good, but very likely a beautiful complexion."

Now let us consider the complexion defects which afflict so many girls between the ages of twelve and eighteen. Pimples, oily skin and large pores are the chiefest ones, and these are largely attributable to unhygienic habits. The proof of the statement is that girls who are looked after very carefully and who are warned by their mothers against mental excitement, rarely have them. Left to their own judgments about their health, the girls with complexion worries have neglected their bowels, ignored the importance of the hot bath, been lazy about exercise, have eaten coarse or highly seasoned foods, have drunk too much ice water, have slept in close rooms and done everything else they ought not to have done. Of what benefit to these young ostriches would cosmetics be? Their heads are buried in the sand of ignorance as to the needs of their own little bodies and there is nothing to do but wake up their understanding as to the operations of nature herself.

There is that much abused organ, the liver, to which is intrusted so many of the chemical processes of the body. If it is clogged through having too much work thrown upon it as in gormandizing or when deprived of the mechanical action needed to stimulate the flow of its juices, as in a sedentary life, it is not ordinary waste matter which is thrown back into the blood but foreign products which no organ knows what to do with. It is this condition, the existence of poisonous matter which gives rise to so many complexion defects, and, when the liver is so clogged there is nothing to do but give the system a complete clearing out. An innocent little dose of castor oil, bought at the drug store for ten cents and doctored with five drops of brandy to keep it from griping, will start the liver to a better action through freely moving the bowels. The oil must be taken on an empty stomach on going to bed, and the next morning it is wise to take a bottle of citrate of magnesia to start the movement of the intestines and further clear them.

A diet of laxative foods after this will continue the good work of keeping the bowels in easy order, all fresh fruits, cooked rhubarb, cooked and raw prunes, spinach and greens coming under this head. As a beautifier to the skin, and a gentle laxative, molasses too is unequaled, but it is necessary to get the very dark rich kind and eat it with coarse bread, such as graham and rye, whose rough grain is very beneficial in clearing the bowels. A sufficient quantity of pure drinking water between meals, this taken hot or cold, is required, and if a squeeze of lemon juice is added to the hot water at least once a day the complexion is further cleared. Other drinks of a freshening sort to the skin might be sassafras and spearmint tea. The sassafras is prepared by steeping the roots in boiling water, and the infusion may be taken hot or cold.

This getting of the bowels in good order and keeping them so with fresh foods and drinking water is required for the preliminary treatment of every skin trouble—pimples, large pores, oily condition, discolorations and sallowness. Even freckles, those teasing little skin sprites which are so hard to banish, are more easily dispersed and dimmed if the bowels are cleared first.

As to other foods useful for clearing the complexion, milk, sweet and sour, is undoubtedly beautifying, milk possessing the lactic acid which bleaches the skin, and being about the most natural of all foods to the stomach. Sweet butter is also preferable to salt, while a liberal diet of green salads prepared with olive oil and lemon juice, through the help they give in the digesting of heavier foods, is certainly to be recommended. The anaemic girl who needs all the nourishment she can get should, however, take her salad with mayonnaise, which is in a way quite solid food and easily digested as well. In fact, the more olive oil the thin, pale girl takes the better, and it would do her far more good than harm if she consumed besides four raw eggs a day.

Social Forms and Entertainments

"Ignorant" Asks Questions.

Am going to entertain a young ladies dorcas. Can you tell me something new to serve—only four things. One of the guests will bring a friend whom none of us ever met. Am I supposed to introduce her to the guests, or is her hostess? Will you kindly tell me how a girl's name "Adelaide" is pronounced, also "Adele?"—Ignorant.

Try this for your menu; it may not be new, but is a happy combination: First, halves of chilled canteloupe, then creamed sweetbreads and mushrooms (canned), green peas, rolls; cherry sherbet. If you can work in a salad course, have halves of pears with mayonnaise.

Either you or the hostess of the stranger may make the introductions; either is proper.

Pronounce "Adelaide" this way, "Ad-e-laid," and "Adele" with the mark over the first "e" is "Ad-da-lee," without the mark over the "e" it is generally called "Adell."

Better Not.

How should a boy ask a girl if he wants to kiss her? On parting at night should he ask her if he can kiss her?—Billy.

Never, never, Billy boy, ask a girl to kiss you unless you're a man grown and you feel very sure that "she" is the girl of all girls whom you wish to make your wife. Let this be your rule: Do not ask a girl to do anything for you that you would not want your sister to do. Girls are perfectly delightful chums and comrades, but treat them as such, don't take the bloom of the rosebud or the blush from the peach, but treat your girl friends with all the reverence and protection that is their due and your privilege to give. Don't kiss, and don't hug. I wish I could write all this in capitals so as to attract the attention of every boy and every girl who are good enough to read our department.

From "Sunshine."

I have been reading the questions and have noticed many useful answers. Do you think there is harm in two young girl friends of sixteen spending a day at a park in their home town without their parents? And is there harm in having a gentleman friend of your own age at your home?—Sunshine.

I see no harm in going quietly to the park together and behaving like young girls should, nor in having a man visitor at your home with the permission of your parents. Men are not ogres, and I regret to say that it is often because girls are so very careless with themselves that we are forced to be on guard. If girls realized that they must act so as to preserve their dignity, men would soon get over attempting to take any liberties.

Farewell Surprise Party.

I have planned to have a party for a friend who is to move to another town. There are to be about twelve girls about thirteen or fourteen years old. Could you suggest some games and a menu for a light lunch? This is to be a surprise.—Topsy.

I feel sure, my dear, that with all the suggestions in today's paper that you will find just what you want for your party. All you will have to do is to explain to your guests that it is to be a surprise, so I would give the invitations verbally. If you want to get up a jolly present for the going away friend, that could easily be arranged when you ask them.

When to Wear Them.

I enjoy your hints to the needy so much that I thought I would come to you for advice and also to settle an argument. On what occasions are silk hose (all colors) worn? I contend that they are to be worn with "dressed up" dresses and not with a street suit. Am I wrong? Please answer this plainly, so I may show your answer to the other party.—Lettie.

With most people silk stockings are a question of cost and not propriety. They may be worn on every occasion with street suits and boudoir gowns and with the simplest morning gowns in the kitchen.

MME. MERRI.

Peignoirs and Boudoir Caps.

The fashionable peignoir of this season is a very elaborate creation indeed. There is very little to distinguish it from the orthodox evening gown except for its absence of waist line, for the peignoir is generally a loose garment, quite comfortable and appropriate for the five o'clock tea ceremonial.

Although some women have elected to return to the old time nightcap, the fashion in this direction has very much changed of late and the boudoir cap is quite a fascinating finish to the negligee costume.

Needle Work Bit.

A little piece of needle work that a woman who embroiders can finish in a couple of hours or so is in linen of flat bow shape stamped around the edge for scalloping and at each side the center for two big eyelets. The rabat, that falls below this piece is also stamped for scalloping and with a small pattern on the end. The eyelets are to be threaded with a velvet ribbon bow.

Dotted Stockings.

The latest novelty in silk hosiery bearing the approval of Paris is stockings embroidered with dots.

These may easily be done at home, and many who cannot afford to pay the exorbitant price asked for a pair of these pretty stockings may enjoy the luxury of owning several pairs.

Embroider the dots in a triangular shape upon the instep, placing them a uniform distance apart, carefully following the outside line of the triangle which you have basted on the stocking.

Slips of String-Colored Lace.

Among the lovely laces of the season and the dainty robes of the broderie anglaise, there is a novelty that will make a special appeal to those of slender purse. After all a summer wardrobe could have nothing prettier to offer than one of the pretty slips of string-colored fisherman's net and lace.

WASN'T A FIVE O'CLOCK TEA

Two elderly chess fanatics were absorbed in a game at the Merchants institute in San Francisco recently. Both were experts and rigid followers of all the rules of the game, written and otherwise. For nearly five hours neither had spoken a word. Backward and forward, moving and countermoving the game swung, with no perceptible advantage to either player. Finally one of the old fellows made a fatal break. Quick as a flash his opponent moved his knight into position, and softly murmured "Check!"

"What's the matter?" demanded his friend. "Going to quit?"

"I certainly am. I'll be banged if I can play chess with a darned old chatterbox!"—Saturday Evening Post.

ALMOST FRANTIC WITH ITCHING ECZEMA

"Eight years ago I got eczema all over my hands. My fingers fairly bled and it itched until it almost drove me frantic. The eruption began with itching under the skin. It spread fast from between the fingers around the nails and all over the whole hands. I got a pair of rubber gloves in order to wash dishes. Then it spread all over the left side of my chest. A fine doctor treated the trouble two weeks, but did me no good. I cried night and day. Then I decided to try Cuticura Soap and Ointment but without much hope as I had gone so long. There was a marked change the second day, and so on until I was entirely cured. The Cuticura Soap we have always kept in our home, and we decided after that lesson that it is a cheap soap in price and the very best in quality. My husband will use no other soap in his shaving mug." (Signed) Mrs. G. A. Selby, Redondo Beach, Cal., Jan. 15, 1911. Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold by druggists and dealers everywhere, a sample of each, with 32-page book, will be mailed free on application to "Cuticura," Dept. L, Boston.

Man's Usefulness.

Mrs. Edward R. Hewitt, president of the Women's Municipal league, was discussing in New York the movement for cleaner streets.

"Now that women have gone in for cleaner streets," she said, "we'll probably get them. Don't mistrust woman's influence. It is everywhere at work."

"Few are the men who would have reached the top of the ladder if their wives hadn't steadied it for them."

Many a man hides his wife's coffin with roses who never gave her a five dollar bill to do as she pleased with.

Suspicious.

"My father talked me into taking this course in domestic science."

"And how do you like domestic science?"

"Well, it looks like ordinary kitchen work to me. If my suspicions are confirmed, I shall drop the course and make father buy me a $50 hat."—Washington Herald.

A WONDERFUL DISCOVERY.
In this age of research and experiment, all nature is ransacked by the scientist for the comfort and happiness of man. Science has indeed made giant strides in the past century, and among the—by no means least important—discoveries in medicine is that of Therapion, which has been used with great success in French Hospitals and that it is worthy the attention of those who suffer from kidney, bladder, nervous diseases, chronic weaknesses, ulcers, skin eruptions, piles, &c., there is no doubt. In fact it seems evident from the big stir created amongst specialists, that THERAPION is destined to cast into oblivion all those questionable remedies that were formerly the sole reliance of medical men. It is of course impossible to tell sufferers all we should like to tell them in this short article, but those who would like to know more about this remedy that has effected so many—we might almost say, miraculous cures, should send addressed envelope for FREE book to Dr. LeClerc Med. Co., Haverstock Road, Hampstead, London, Eng. and decide for themselves whether the New French Remedy "THERAPION" No. 1, No. 2 or No. 3 is what they require and have been seeking in vain during a life of misery, suffering, ill health and unhappiness. Therapion is sold by druggists or mail $1.00. Fougera Co., 90 Beekman St., New York.

OHIO REPUBLICANS

Nominate State Ticket With Taft Men In Control.

Columbus, July 2.—The reactionaries in the Ohio Republican convention today massed their strength back of Judge E. B. Dillon, of Columbus, a "dark horse" as a candidate for governor after they had tried to defeat Arthur L. Garford, of Elyria, progressive candidate, first with Lawrence K. Langdon and then with B. H. Kroger, and nominated Dillon after five ballots.

Dillon will run on a Taft platform.

Balance of the ticket is as follows:

Lieut. Governor—R. B. Brown, Muskingum county.

Congressman-at-Large—Lawrence K. Langdon, Warren county.

Treasurer of State—Rudolph W. Archer, Belmont county.

Attorney General—Freeman T. Eagleson, Guernsey county.

School Commissioner—John W. Zeller, Hancock county.

Supreme Court Clerk—Thomas I. Edwards, Allen county.

Supreme Court Judge (short term)

Supreme Court Judge (long term)—Louis W. Winch, Cuyahoga county, and James I. Allread, Darke county.

McCombs to Manage Wilson's Campaign.

Baltimore, July 2.—William F. McCombs of New York, thirty-six years old, a lawyer, and graduate of Princeton and Harvard, will in all probability be chosen as chairman of the Democratic National Committee, or as chairman of the campaign committee, to direct the political fortunes of Woodrow Wilson for President of the United States.

WILLOUGHBY.

Mr. J. Olney Manville and little daughter Martha, left Monday to spend a few days with Mrs. Manville at Ottawa, Ill.

A fire alarm was turned Tuesday from a boarding car occupied by the men who work on the Nickelplate railroad. The car, with a coal shed that was full of coal, burned.

Mrs. L. C. Strock of N. Geneva, and mother, Mrs. Olnung, spent Sunday at C. W. Olnung's.

Miss Florence Stocking, telephone operator, had the misfortune to lose her pocketbook and watch. Sunday afternoon a young man came in to use the long distance phone and as Miss Stocking had left them lying on the table, he evidently thought they were for him, or at least concluded he could use them in his business, for soon after his departure Miss Stocking discovered her loss. She is making every effort to locate the young man.

Mrs. W. B. Wheeler spent Thursday with friends in Collinwood.

W. H. Wheeler has purchased a Maxwell roadster.

H. G. St. John spent Friday and Saturday in Cleveland.

R. F. DeWitt was called home from Florida, where he was spending the summer with his daughter, by the serious condition of his son, Willis.

Mrs. Arthur Hickok and daughter and son are visiting her parents Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Bissell.

Master Clyde Graves is visiting his grandmother, Mrs. Esther Graves.

Mrs. N. D. Bailey entertained a number of friends Saturday in honor of Mrs. Lottie Kellogg of Oberlin.

Mrs. Dora Brotzman and Mrs. E. Graves were in Geneva Saturday.

Mr. H. M. Bond is the owner of a new Everitt auto.

Buy it now. Chamberlain's Cholic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy is almost certain to be needed before the summer is over. Buy it now and be prepared for such an emergency. For sale by all dealers.

Church Information Wanted.

Why are there so many churches in New York without a sign to know their denomination or who preaches, or any sign of anything except the abode of the sexton and undertaker? Nobody is anxious for the undertaker, and everybody, as a rule, scolds the sexton. Give denomination of the church, time of service and name of pastor.—From a Letter to the Editor of the New York Press.

Native Struggle.

It was ... that N... was able to control himself, as the two mosquitoes of the ark waxed red and corpulent on the back of his hand, gorging themselves to repletion. "If it wasn't for the grudge I have against my posterity," he rasped through his clenched teeth, "I'd smash your infernal carcasses!"—Puck.

The Divine Law.

And what is the divine law to a man? To hold fast that which is his own, and to claim nothing that is another's; to use what is given him, and not to covet what is not given; to yield up easily and willingly what is taken away, giving thanks for the time he has had it in his service.—Epictetus.

Too Literal a Change.

One night when Viola Allen was playing Parthenia in "Ingomar," she once leaned pensively against a set piece and soliloquized sadly: "What sudden change has come upon the world!" On the instant the set piece overturned with the actress, leaving only one sandaled foot projecting to sight of the amused spectators.

A Girl's Wild Midnight Ride.

To warn people of a fearful forest fire in the Catskills a young girl rode horseback at midnight and saved many lives. Her deed was glorious but lives are often saved by Dr. King's New Discovery in curing lung trouble, coughs and colds, which might have ended in consumption or pneumonia. "It cured me of a dreadful cough and lung disease," writes W. R. Patterson, Wellington, Tex., "after four in our family had died of consumption, and I gained 87 pounds." Nothing so sure and safe for all lung troubles. Price 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by Barnes' Pharmacy.

Squirrel Was the Messenger.

The occupants of a house at West Medway, in Norfolk county, Virginia, were astonished at finding continually in the fireplace small pieces of paper that had been dropped down the chimney from some mysterious source. When the owner began watching outside the house he saw a squirrel run up the roof and enter the chimney. It was concluded that the messages had been sent down by the squirrel.

New York's Greatest Borough.

Manhattan, one of the five boroughs comprising greater New York and its most important borough, is approximately fifteen miles in length, from the Battery to the city line, and about five miles at its greatest width. Its frontage on the water, together with the shipping facilities of the entire city, is 444 miles, or equal to the distance between the city and Buffalo on Lake Erie.

Has to Scratch.

Hotel Clerks' Chance.

A remarkable piece of quartz formation is on exhibition in a Biddeford store window. It is half of a large round stone about six inches in diameter and is deeply hollowed. Looking into the hollow, one sees innumerable brilliant crystals. It is a very fine specimen. The rock was found in Saco in Common street 12 feet underground.—Kennebec (Me.) Journal.

A Hero in a Lighthouse.

For years J. S. Donahue, So. Haven, Mich., a civil war captain, as a lighthouse keeper, averted awful wrecks, but a queer fact is, he might have been a wreck himself, if Electric Bitters had not prevented. "They cured me of kidney trouble and chills," he writes, "after I had taken other so-called cures for years, without benefit and they also improved my sight. Now, at seventy, I am feeling fine." For dyspepsia, indigestion, all stomach, liver and kidney troubles, they're without equal. Try them. Only 50c at Barnes' Pharmacy.

MARSHALL

MAN OF FIRM CONVICTIONS AND GREAT EXECUTIVE ABILITY

Is Truly a Progressive as Long List of Progressive Enacted During His Terms of Office Will Show.

Thomas Riley Marshall, chosen to be Wilson's running mate on the Democratic presidential ticket, is a progressive who does not take a pessimistic view of things political or otherwise. He has been Indiana's governor since 1908, receiving a majority of 15,000 at the same time that the Hoosier state went for Taft by 10,000. His election was all the more noteworthy inasmuch as in 1904 Indiana had gone Republican by more than 85,000.

Marshall is a short, slender, wiry man of 58, says the New York Post, with a keen eye and a lively interest in public affairs. There is little of the politician about him. In fact, from the moment he became the nominee for governor, he was the despair of the party leaders throughout the state. He did his campaigning in his own way, journeying from town to town with Mrs. Marshall—she went to every meeting at which he spoke—and calmly telling the voters what they might expect if they elected him.

Some of the more important pieces of legislation enacted during his second term were: Ratification of the income tax amendment to the federal constitution, a resolution for the popular election of United States senators, a corrupt practices and campaign contribution publicity statute, an employers' liability law on liberal lines, abolishing a workman's waiver and the fellow-servant rule, a bill authorizing the railroad commission to fix rates, child labor laws, cold storage rates, child labor laws, cold storage limitations, standardization of weights and measures, sanitary inspection of school houses, industrial inspection for safety of factories, mines, and railroads, a law making block signals obligatory on all steam and electric railways, and a bill for making uniform the accounting of all public offices in the state.

Marshall appears to possess at least two traits in common with Mayor Gaynor. He likes long walks and enjoys reading the literature of the ancients. Although the last man to boast of being a scholar, in the strict sense of the word, he prides himself on knowing some Latin and Greek, even though it be little of the former and less of the latter. Reading is his chief diversion.

JAMES M. COX

DEMOCRATIC CANDIDATE FOR GOVERNOR IS PROGRESSIVE

Good Word from Senator La Follette About the Man Whose Work in Congress is Commended

When Senator La Follette came into Ohio some time ago and made his series of speeches, he endorsed, in a way, three Democrats—William Jennings Bryan, Joseph W. Folk and "Jimmy" Cox. At Dayton he said if he were a voter in the district he would vote for him—and the audience of course applauded. Every Dayton audience applauds when his name is mentioned.

La Follette has found out since Cox has been in congress that Cox is progressive. Everybody who knows him in Dayton or his district has known all along that he was a progressive. He built a successful newspaper on progressive lines, he was elected to congress because his newspaper was progressive, and he was re-elected, because, after he got into congress, he was progressive every minute of the day and far into the night.

For soreness of the muscles, whether induced by violent exercise or injury, there is nothing better than Chamberlain's Liniment. This liniment also relieves rheumatic pains. For sale by all dealers.

WARNING

Given to Automobile Drivers That Should be Heeded.

Unless local automobile drivers obey the city laws there will be a serious accident in the near future. Nine out of ten drivers take no precautions in turning corners on Main street, but cut the corners in any way to the intersecting street. A sharp corner should always be turned by the driver, keeping to the right until across the street and then turning on the right side of the road. On Friday morning within a space of five minutes seven local machines turned from Main street onto St. Clair and not one of the drivers made the corner according to law. If they drove in Cleveland the way they do here they would soon be arrested.—Telegraph-Republican.

Another matter in this same connection should be kept in mind by every driver of machines, and that is to pass street cars that have stopped to let passengers off, at such a speed that the machine can be brought to a stop instantly. Any automobile owner or driver who rushes at a high rate of speed by a street car from which passengers are alighting is guilty of criminal conduct and should be arrested at once. It seems strange that any one can be so thoughtless, be so careless, and hold human life in such contempt as to do a thing like that. People leaving street cars are usually in a hurry, often they have no chance to look ahead or behind, often there are children or aged people. Under these circumstances a man who will come charging up at full speed must be totally deficient in regard to the rights of others. It may be a case of exaggerated ego. Possibly the owner of the automobile thinks that because he owns a machine he is lord of the road. "Get out of the road or be killed," may be his motto. The chances are, however, that he is a rattle-headed fool who never thinks about anything. He should rest in jail. He will never learn anything, but he can not run an automobile over anyone while he is in jail.

Frightful Polar Winds

blow with terrific force at the far north and play havoc with the skin, causing red, rough or sore and chapped hands and lips, that need Bucklen's Arnica Salve to heal them. It makes the skin soft and smooth. Unrivaled for cold-sores, also burns, boils, sores, ulcers, cuts, bruises and piles. Only 25 cts at Barnes' Pharmacy.

The great popularity of the Frank A. Robbins circus along his regular circuit is not to be wondered at after having seen the high-class performance given in Hackensack last Monday night. Although the tent is a mammoth affair, affording seating capacity for over three thousand, it was not one bit too large for the throng which crushed for admission a the entrance. Each succeeding act of the performers seemed to be even more pleasing to the vast audience than those which had gone before, and the result was that when the final act had been given there was not a dissatisfied person in the vast throng.—Democrat, Hackensack, N. J., June 3, last. The Frank A. Robbins circus will be in Painesville, Tuesday, July 23.

ABOUT PEOPLE AND PLACES.

Medina is completing a new High school building. The building will be completed on September 1st.

—o—

Editor M. L. Harter and family have gone on an extended automobile trip through the Eastern states.

—o—

Mrs. C. F. Blackmon and Miss Margaret have gone to Dixon, Mont., to visit Mr. and Mrs. Lansing Blackmon for several weeks.

—o—

F. W. Woods of Medina county was another so-called progressive Republican who got turned down at last week's convention at Columbus.

—o—

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bacon of Rock Creek, spent two or three days last week visiting Mrs. Bacon's mother, Mrs. Mary A. Patch, of Nowell street.

—o—

"Painesville and Lake County Illustrated" will be a beautiful book of pictures, data, and features of our county. Phone The Herald for particulars.

—o—

J. J. Stern, father of L. Stern of Fairport, and well known here where he had a store for many years, lost $1200 in notes at Euclid Beach last Saturday night.

—o—

There will be an all-day grove meeting in Judge A. G. Reynolds' maple grove, near Little Mountain, July 14. Four different churches will be represented. Everyone invited.

—o—

Born—to Mr. and Mrs. Mark Webster of Painesville, on Sunday evening of this week, an eight-pound boy. Mr. and Mrs. Webster are receiving the congratulations of their many friends.

—o—

Mrs. J. L. Parmly and children, Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Barrett, Miss Laverne Harrison, Mrs. Adelaide Tuttle and Miss Vancla Ford left Friday for Lake Chautauqua, N. Y., where they will spend the summer.

—o—

The annual M. E. Sabbath school outing will occur Friday, July 26th, at Willoughbeach. The outing this year under the management of the Progressive class. Further and more definite announcement will be made later.

—o—

Gila & Co. of Cleveland, got the $36,000 bond issue for good road improvement. They paid a premium of $626.30. Willoughby township and village will soon have more miles of paved streets than any other township in the county.

—o—

Freeland T. Raymond of Willoughby was granted a divorce last Friday afternoon from Elvira Bertha Raymond. The case was uncontested and the custody of the two elder children was given to the plaintiff and the mother was allowed to keep the youngest child.

—o—

Victor House, the two-year-old son of Sam House, South street, was badly injured by a shepherd dog owned by J. L. Williams, South street, while he was playing on the lawn last Friday evening. The scalp was lacerated for about two inches. Dr. C. O. Hudson dressed the wound and no serious results are anticipated.

—o—

The Avery place, one of the elegant old landmarks of Painesville, was sold last week to Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Barnes, well known Painesville people. This place is beyond doubt the most desirable residence property in Painesville. The greater part of the land belonging to this place will be sold in allotment by Harley Barnes and associates.

—o—

Mr. E. O. Huntington while in the city of London remembers us and sends a fine picture of the London Law Courts. He sends a line or two also from which we learn that little old Painesville is still dear to Mr. Huntington's heart:

"Lives there a man with soul so dead,
Who ne'er unto himself hath said
As homeward he his footsteps turned
'This is my own, my native land?'"

—o—

The Painesville Public Library Endowment Fund continues to grow. Mrs. J. B. Morley of Cleveland, has donated $500, and this amount added to the $1000 received from Mr. W. P. Storrs and a considerable amount received from membership fees, brings the sum up towards $2050. Mrs. Morley is the widow of the late J. H. Morley, whose generous gifts to the library made the "Morley Library" a reality.

—o—

The Taft steam roller did some rough work down at Columbus last week when it turned down Hon. E. L. Lampson, of Jefferson, for congressman-at-large. Mr. Lampson is one of the most prominent Republicans in the state of Ohio, and is one of the best posted politicians in his country and took a prominent part in the constitutional convention. Last week every person in Ashtabula county thought of course, that Mr. Lampson would be the choice of the state Republican convention for that position. The state Taft Steam Roller also went over Judge Wanamaker of Akron, and the driver never even once looked back.

Farmers are divided on the question as to whether there will be only a fair potato crop this fall, a large crop, or a small one. Not for many years were seed potatoes so high in price as this spring, and the cost deterred many farmers from planting. There is an old adage that when potatoes go into the ground dear they come out cheap. Strange as it may seem, many truckers and farmers refused to plant potatoes this year because of the old proverb, or saw. As a matter of fact, all signs point to a demand for potatoes next winter that will more than equal the supply. Potatoes were scarce last winter. So scarce were they that "spuds" from Scotland and Ireland were imported and sold in great quantities.

Onion growing in Lake county has not on the whole prospered during the past two or three years. The high price at which onions sold last winter stimulated the business to some extent, and there are dozens of big growing fields along West Jackson street that are good to look at. One of the best is at A. H. Curtis' farm. He has been successful ever since he went into the business, and this year he has a five-acre field that would be hard to beat. It might be safely said that it is one of the best stands of onions ever seen in this county at this time of the year. Mr. Curtis, unlike most farmers, has a fine garden. He don't grow weeds. Hot weather does not seem to affect him and he does the greater part of his own work.

On and after July 15, ticket agents of railroads all over the United States will have to give exact change to passengers as the result of an order issued by the interstate commerce commission about a year ago, compliance with which has been several times postponed. It has been the custom of the railroads to make rates by multiplying the number of miles by the rate per mile and a sufficient number of cents added to make the total end in a cipher of five. Under the rule of the commission the fare must be figured exactly and a ticket sold on that basis. In other words, if the fare at the per mile rate multiplied by the number of miles equals 34 cents or 37 cents, for example, it cannot be made either 35 cents or 40 cents, as it is done now.

NORWALK'S LOSS.

Courthouse Burned to the Ground Tuesday Night.

Norwalk, O., July 8.—The Huron county court house was destroyed by fire tonight. Flames were discovered in the attic in the southwest corner of the building a few minutes before 10 o'clock. When the cupola collapsed it fell onto the roof of the court-house and soon the interior was a seething furnace.

The building was a two-story structure and built about forty years ago. Four years ago extensive repairs were made, $20,000 being expended to modernize the ground floor interior. The county records are thought to be safe, as each office was equipped with fire-proof vaults.

COWLES HOUSE

Now Has a New Proprietor With a Well-known Manager.

N. C. Lang, former proprietor of the Tuttle House, Geneva, has leased the Cowles House from the Gage estate and will conduct the place as a first-class hotel. R. H. Wharum will be chief clerk and manager for a time at least.

Painesville has been noted as a first-class hotel town and since the advent of the automobile the hotels here have been doing a good business.

Political Items.

The local Socialist organization has obtained the services of Joseph E. Robb, who will speak in Painesville Saturday evening, corner of Main and St. Clair streets.

The propaganda committee of the Painesville local has made arrangements for a street meeting every Saturday during the month of July. Efforts are being made to have the best Socialist orators of Ohio to visit this city during the campaign.

As a result of the steady increase in the party membership, and the growth of Socialist newspapers and magazines, the Socialists of Painesville are predicting a big vote for Debs, and the entire party ticket, and the return of Victor Berger of Milwaukee, to congress, with at least six more Socialist congressmen.

WILSON AND LABOR

GREAT INTEREST FELT AS TO CANDIDATE'S RECORD.

Legislation Secured by Labor in New Jersey Puts Candidate in Favorable Light.

The real Woodrow Wilson has been much maligned and therefore much misunderstood in Massachusetts and New England, says the Boston Globe.

The Champ Clark boomers in their reckless and inglorious campaign so concealed, distorted and misrepresented Governor Wilson and his record that many voters received an entirely false impression.

If, for instance, the true record of Governor Wilson in the matter of labor legislation had been fully known and appreciated by the Democrats of Massachusetts, Champ Clark would never have received the votes of the delegates from this state.

Woodrow Wilson as the Governor of New Jersey, has proved himself, not the talking, but the acting friend of labor. Not one of the other candidates at Baltimore is even a fair second to him in this respect. He made good his campaign promises, and he carried the demands of his conclusion.

Governor Wilson's greatest victory for labor was his obtaining the passage of the employers' liability and workingmen's compensation act. It took time and hard work to get this law enacted, but the result was the finest thing for labor that the state has ever known. It antedated the similar Massachusetts act and put New Jersey in the front rank of progressive states.

"I don't think there is any question," says Cornelius Ford, president of the New Jersey state federation of labor, "but that we would have been without this law had it not been for Governor Wilson." And then he adds: "In the first 90 days of his administration Governor Woodrow obtained for the people of New Jersey more beneficial legislation than had been passed in the preceding nine years."

Evidently labor men in his home state know what Gov. Wilson has done, and they are not afraid to tell what they know. That is getting a "character" from people who are competent to give it.

FAIRPORT'S SUCCESS

THE CELEBRATION AT THE HARBOR JULY 4TH ENJOYED BY HUNDREDS.

Fine Display of Fireworks—Illuminated Parade On Lake at Night Grand Success.

The Fourth of July celebration at Fairport was in every respect a most successful affair, and the program carried out showed that Fairport Harbor citizens, headed by Mayor August Wolff, are most patriotic and that they are working together for the betterment of the prosperous village on the lake.

Mayor Wolff delivered an address of welcome. F. G. Ball of Columbus, delivered an address that was both interesting and instructive.

The big parade in the afternoon with its fraternal societies, floats, school children, and other attractions, was half a mile long. The Fairport Citizens' Band, the Finnish Band, with the assistance of several or the Painesville Band members, made an aggregation that could be heard three miles. The school children numbered 400 and won first prize for best appearance. The Royal Neighbors' Hiawatha float took the prize for floats, which were numerous and gorgeous.

In the way of Fireworks Fairport did herself proud. The display was made from a barge in the Lake and the effect was very impressive.

Following the fireworks was an illuminated parade on the water. Many boats decorated with bright lights passed in review before the large crowd. This feature of the celebration made a very pleasing effect and will undoubtedly serve as a precedent for displays of this kind in the future.

The Fairport people had promised a good wide-awake celebration and the unanimous verdict of the many hundreds of people who attended from all parts of the county, was that the celebration was even better than promised.

Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Hilles are our representatives authorized to solicit material, photos, data, and other matter for our forthcoming publication "Painesville and Lake County Illustrated." We bespeak for them consideration from all.

PERRY.

Mrs. Brooke of Cleveland, was the guest of her mother, Mrs. Mack, over Sunday.

Mr. Frank Kennedy was in Cleveland over Sunday.

Mrs. Ernest Pancost was the guest of relatives in Cleveland and vicinity over the Fourth.

Mr. D. B. Shearer and brother Charles, were visiting relatives in Cleveland on Sunday.

Mr. James Shook is on the sick list.

The funeral service of Mr. R. E. Casler was held at his late home on the North Ridge Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. T. B. West and family, motored to Salem Saturday to visit a brother. The Misses Margaret and Florence West remained at home and entertained Miss Helen and Miss Marian Flory over Sunday.

Mrs. Frank Wood entertains the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the Baptist church Wednesday afternoon.

The Baptist Sunday school has adopted the Keystone International graded lessons, and on Friday evening Mr. Hildenbach motored to Perry with a number of the teachers and and addressed a group of Baptist teachers and their friends. He emphasized the fact that these lessons gave opportunity for a great deal of study on the part of the teacher and pupils, that it wasn't merely coming to class and hearing the teacher speak of Daniel and Noah and other heroes, but a need of studying the lives of such men as Luther, and Savonarola at libraries and at home. And the teacher should remain in the same department year after year and become expert.

Mrs. Thomas Langshaw entertained her brother and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Frank and family of Gas City, Indiana, last week.

The Ladies Guild of St. Anne's Episcopal church will be entertained Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Hecker in North Madison.

A Hero in a Lighthouse.

For years J. S. Donahue, So. Haven, Mich., a civil war captain, as a lighthouse keeper, averted awful wrecks, but a queer fact is, he might have been a wreck himself, if Electric Bitters had not prevented. "They cured me of kidney trouble and chills," he writes, "after I had taken other so-called cures for years, without benefit and they also improved my sight. Now, at seventy, I am feeling fine." For dyspepsia, indigestion, all stomach, liver and kidney troubles, they're without equal. Try them. Only 50c at Barnes' Pharmacy.

PAINESVILLE AND LAKE COUNTY ILLUSTRATED

A BEAUTIFUL AND ARTISTIC PORTFOLIO.

The publishers of The Herald have just made arrangements to issue in the near future a beautifully illustrated book or portfolio, to be known as "Painesville and Lake County Illustrated." The work will be printed on heavy enameled book paper, and the illustrations will be engraved half tone copper plates of the highest quality. Size of Pages 9 x 12, and the subject matter designed to reflect our city and county as they are today, pictorially, historically, biographically, industrially, and professionally. Data will be employed so that the book will prove a valuable souvenir, worthy of encouragement and preservation. Special features will include public buildings, churches, schools, pretty homes, street scenes, and illustrated "write-ups" of the towns and villages of the county. We ask the cooperation of all business and professional men in order that we make this work fully representative of our county's many and varied interests and a reflex of that well-known civic pride for which our citizens have always stood.

Our solicitors to assist in the work are experienced and honest. They aim to call on all, but we will be glad to have you phone or call at The Herald office for information, terms, as to space, etc.

ROBERT E. CASLER

Well-known Perry Citizen Dead at Age of 45.

Perry has lost another one of her highly respected citizens in the person of Robert E. Casler, a resident of the North Ridge, who passed away at his home on Sunday evening from paralysis. The deceased was born in Painesville 45 years ago and has been a resident of Lake county all his life. He is survived by a widow, Mrs. Elizabeth Few Casler, and a daughter, Miss Esther Casler. The late home in Perry on Wednesday funeral services were held from his afternoon at 2 o'clock.

WICKLIFFE.

Mrs. James Dempsey went to Conneaut last Saturday to visit her daughter, Mrs. Charles West, of that town, returned Sunday evening with her grandson, Howard West, who will visit in Wickliffe for about three weeks with his aunt, Mrs. John Prevero, also his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Dempsey.

Mr. William Morris arrived from Buffalo Wednesday evening at his home in Wickliffe for a brief stay, leaving the next day, for Buffalo, to resume his work on a large power house about 8 miles from that town.

Miss Bertha Graves and Mr. William Morris went to Cleveland shopping last Saturday afternoon.

Sitter With the Sweet.

Auntie (who is housekeeping during mother's enforced absence)—Now, you see, children, I have made you a pudding—(murmurs of approval)—and there won't be any trouble over getting you to take medicine tonight, for I am not going to give you any. (Loud applause.) I have, however, mixed the pills and draughts and powders up with the ingredients of the pudding. (Groans.)—Tit Bits.

Educational Pastime.

Professor George Herbert Palmer suggests that "anyone who wants to see himself grow," try a plan of adding two new words each week to his vocabulary. "It will not be long," says Professor Palmer, "before the endless and enchanting variety of the world will begin to reflect itself in his speech, and in his mind as well."

EASY TO STRENGTHEN NECK

Simple Exercises Will Go Far to Do Away With Severe Headaches That Seem Mysterious

A thin, weak neck is a frequent cause of headache. With such a neck the blood supply to the brain is poor, with the result that the latter is easily fatigued, and then you have headache.

Then, when the neck muscles are weak, the head is rarely carried in its proper position. It is allowed to droop forward, or to one side, the proper circulation of the blood being interfered with, and headache is again the consequence.

Further, when the head is not held properly, there is jar when walking or taking other exercise, and once more headache is the inevitable result.

In the former the head is bent backwards and forwards and to one side or the other, the under jaw being thrust out when bending backwards, and forced down into the chest when the head comes forward.

Brain workers who feel fatigue coming on will find that a few minutes of head bending and head lifting will clear their brains and wonderfully restore their energies.

Moon Not Round.

That the moon is not round, but oval, is the conclusion reached by Professor Castadilobo of Coimbra university, Portugal the report of whose observations during the recent total eclipse of the sun was read before the French Academy of Sciences.

He took cinematograph pictures of the whole of the eclipse and was rewarded in finding from the films that at the time of the maximum obscuration the moon, while completely blotting out the sun at top and bottom did not quite cover it on the right and left.

From this he concludes that the satellite, like the earth, is not a sphere. The difference between the greatest and least breadth is, however, estimated by him at less than three miles.

Some British Extravagances.

The British nation is generally considered to be amongst the thriftiest in the world but we are not without our little extravagances.

Every year, for instance, we spend on an average, $35,000,000 on football. A million more than that is spent on hunting. Our tobacco bill amounts to no less a sum than $180,000,000 while $125,000,000 is spent on jewelry. Gambling represents an outlay of $70,000,000, and intoxicating beverages call for $775,000,000 in our money.

On the other hand, our charitable nation gives millions a year for various missionary societies, hospitals, homes, etc. Last year alone $10,000,000 were spent on foreign missions.—Answers, London.

Wise Farmer.

In the legislature of one of the western states last winter there was a bill under discussion whether they should teach farming in the public schools. There was a young man whose business was school teaching before he became a statesman. He was an advocate of such a law being passed. An old farmer member rose from his seat and said that the law would be useless because the teachers were incompetent to teach the children farming. The young school teacher statesman asked him by what authority he made such a statement. The old farmer answered if they knew how to farm, why would they teach?—Mack's National Monthly.

Caught in the Act.

"Darling, do you really love me?" breathed the lover.

"I do—have I not sworn it many a time?" sighed the loveress.

"You have—but do you?"

"Why do you ask? What have I done to make you doubt it?"

"Ha, girl! I saw you—I caught you—"

"What did you see, love? Speak!"

"When I came in, I saw you setting the clock an hour forward!"

She could not deny it. Her affection was not burglarproof. This was the beginning of the end.

Simplified Spelling in Australia.

Simplified spelling is progressing in Australia. The education department of Victoria has issued a circular to its teachers embodying a list of words that must be taught in future on simplified principles. The "u" is to be dropped out of all such words as "honour" and "favour." "Plough" is to become "plow" and "centre" is to become "center." [illegible] want to know why "theatre" is not also Americanized.

The Other Way About.

Parson S[illegible] your husband is sick. Maybe he has been throwing himself too heavily into his work.

Mrs. Casey—No, I'm sure life has been throwing [illegible] to him. That's what's the throuble wid him. He's a hod-carrier.

Altering the Case.

"I very much fear my neighbor has got my goat."

"Well, suppose he has. Don't worry, but forget it."

"I can't. It was an Angora."

Public Service.

Margaret—Josephine has gone in for a new sort of philanthropy.

Katharine—Goodness! What?

Margaret—She has formed a society for the prevention of new forms of auction bridge.—Life.

One Ungratified.

Wife—You promised me that if I would marry you my every wish should be gratified.

Husband—Is it not?

Wife—No. I wish I hadn't married you.

ASK IMPEACHMENT OF R. W. ARCHBALD

CONGRESSIONAL PROBERS PRESENT UNANIMOUS REPORT TO NATIONAL HOUSE.

MAKE THIRTEEN ACCUSATIONS

Judge Is Referred to In Indictment as "One Whose Sense of Moral Responsibility Has Become Deadened."

Washington, D. C.—Chairman Henry D. Clayton of the committee on judiciary of the house of representatives has just presented to the house 13 articles of impeachment against Judge Robert W. Archbald of the United States court of commerce. Mr. Clayton's report was unanimous from his committee.

"The conduct of this judge has been exceedingly reprehensible and in marked contrast with the high sense of judicial ethics and probity that generally characterize the federal judiciary," the committee said in summing up its findings of misbehavior in office against Judge Archbald.

"Your committee is of opinion that Judge Archbald's sense of moral responsibility has become deadened," said the report. "He has prostituted his high office for personal profit. He has attempted by various transactions to commercialize his potentiality as judge. He has shown an overweening desire to make gainful bargains with parties having cases before him or likely to have cases before him. To accomplish this purpose he has not hesitated to use his official power and influence. He has degraded his high office and has destroyed the confidence of the public in his judicial integrity. He has forfeited the condition upon which he holds his commission and should be removed from office by impeachment."

With Chairman Clayton's report was a resolution providing for the management of the [illegible] before the senate. The full committee [illegible] Chairman Clayton, Representatives Floyd of Arkansas, Davis of West Virginia and Webb of North Carolina, Democrats, and Representatives Norris of Nebraska, Sterling of Illinois and Howland of Ohio, Republicans. ## CAMORRISTS ARE CONVICTED

Members of Bloodthirsty Band Found Guilty of Murder by Jury at Viterbo, Italy

Viterbo, Italy.—The jury which has for nearly two years been hearing the evidence against the Camorrists on the charge of murdering the Cuoccolos returned a verdict of guilty for almost all directly or indirectly implicated or responsible for the double murder. The charge of criminal association was sustained against all except five.

The reading of the verdict was attended by scenes of the utmost confusion and violence. DeMarinis, whose wife previously made votive offerings at the church of Santa Rosa and who fainted later in the court room, attempted suicide upon hearing the verdict, inflicting a ghastly wound in his throat.

The court then passed the following sentences:

Alfano and Rapi, instigators; Sortino, Salvi, Morra, Cerrato and De Marinis, plotters, 30 years at hard labor for each and three years under police surveillance.

Sixteen members of the band who were found guilty of criminal association were sentenced to five years with three years of police surveillance. DeMatteis was given 20 years. Ascritore and the priest Vitozzi, who were charged with perjury, were given nine and six years respectively. Eight were discharged.

AMERICAN ATHLETES WIN AGAIN

United States Says Come In One, Two and Three Order in 800 Meter Run at Stockholm.

Stockholm.—Next to Johnny Hayes' marathon victory in London in 1910, probably the most wonderful scene ever witnessed at any Olympic games was that enacted at the stadium during the final heat of the 800 meter run, the result of which brought for the second time at this olympiad three American flags fluttering to their masts' ends on the stadium, denoting first, second and third places for the United States.

Although the great 800 meter run was won by J. E. (Ted) Meredith of Mercersburg academy, a 19-year-old school boy, with Melvin Sheppard and Ira Davenport of Chicago in a dead heat for second place and all three breaking world's records for the distance, Meredith went on and broke the [illegible] world's record for a half mile, there being a second tape strung to officially time the distance.

Repudiate Hell Fire Theory.

Washington, D. C.—By unanimous action the International Bible Students' association adopted a resolution unreservedly repudiating as thoroughly unscriptural the teaching of a place, state or condition of hell fire and brimstone for the torment of the wicked.

At the same time the 4,000 delegates in the convention resolved that the vast majority of ministers of all protestant denominations of the United States have privately repudiated the "hell fire" theory.

Fined $10 for Crossing Legs.

New York City.—"No gentleman should sit in a public car with his legs crossed," declared Magistrate Kroner in a court in Brooklyn as he fined Richard Jaeger $10. Mrs. Anna Bromberg was the complainant.

Jaeger, who is 48 years old, is a photographer. According to Mrs. Bromberg, she was a passenger on an elevated train when Jaeger got on and took a seat beside her.

NEW PARTY HOLDS MEETING AUGUST 5

FORMAL CALL IS ISSUED BY NATIONAL PROGRESSIVE PROVISIONAL COMMITTEE.

CONVENTION IN WINDY CITY

Third Political Organization Reaffirms "Thou Shalt Not Steal" as One of the Cardinal principles of Its Campaign.

New York City.—Reaffirming "Thou shalt not steal" as one of the cardinal principles of this campaign, the national progressive provisional committee has just issued the formal call for the convention at which it is planned to name Theodore Roosevelt once again for president.

Chicago is the place and August 5 the date. Here is what Manager Joseph M. Dixon described as the "latest declaration of independence."

Invitation to Everybody.

"To the people of the United States without regard to past political differences, who, through repeated betrayals realize that today the power of the crooked political bosses and of the privileged classes behind them is so strong in the two old party organizations that no helpful movement in the real interests of our country can come [illegible]

"Who believe that the time has come for a national progressive movement—a nation-wide movement on non-sectional lines, so that the people may be served in sincerity and truth by an organization unfettered by obligations to conflicting interests.

"Who believe in the right and capacity of the people to rule themselves and effectively to control all the agencies of their government, and who hold that only through social and industrial justice thus secured can honest property find permanent protection.

"Who believe that government by the few tends to become and has in fact become government by the sordid influences that control the few.

Modern Industrial Evolution.

"Who believe that only through the [illegible] movement proposed can we obtain in the nation and the several states the legislation demanded by the modern industrial evolution, legislation which shall favor honest business and yet control the great agencies of modern business so as to insure their being used in the interest of the whole people, legislation which shall promote prosperity and at the same time secure the better and more equitable diffusion of prosperity, legislation which shall promote the economic well-being of the honest farmer, wage worker, professional man and business man alike, but which shall at the same time strike in efficient fashion—and not merely pretend to strike—at the roots of privilege in the world of industry no less than in the world of politics.

"Who believe that only this type of wise industrial evolution will avert industrial revolution.

"Who believe that wholesome party government can come only if there is wholesome party management in a spirit of service to the whole country, and who hold that the commandment delivered at Sinai, 'Thou shalt not steal,' applies to politics as well as to business.

"To all in accord with these views a call is hereby issued by the provisional committee, under the resolution of the mass meeting held in Chicago on June 22 last, to send from each state a number of delegates whose votes in the convention shall count for as many votes as the state shall have senators and representatives in congress, to meet in convention at Chicago on the fifth day of August, 1912, for the purpose of nominating candidates to be supported for the positions of president and vice president of the United States."

Five unidentified boys ranging in age from 4 to 6 years.

Latrobe, Pa.—Twenty-two persons were killed and more than 30 injured, several fatally, when a heavy freight train crashed into a passenger train comprising an engine and a coach one mile from Ligonier on the Ligonier Valley railroad. The trains came together on a sharp curve, the freight, drawn by two locomotives, completely demolishing the passenger engine and coach and hurling the passengers in all directions. Many bodies were found a hundred feet from the track. Every person in the coach was either killed or injured.

About one-half of the passengers were picknickers returning to Wilpen from the fair grounds near Ligonier. Most of the children who were killed were taking the outing as the guests of George Senft, president of the Ligonier railroad, and were in charge of Miss Mathews, a nurse employed in his home.

Although the accident occurred at 4 o'clock in the afternoon news of it did not reach here until late in the evening. The Ligonier railroad penetrates a somewhat isolated community, and facilities for communication are few. The names of the killed were learned by telephone. The list of injured was not as available.

The cause of the wreck is not known, although it is supposed to have been a misunderstanding of signals.

Provides for Two Battleships.

Washington, D. C.—The senate, by a vote of 41 to 13, passed the naval appropriation bill, carrying an expenditure of approximately $133,000,000, the largest sum ever allowed the naval establishment. It is $15,000,000 more than the bill that passed the house and $6,000,000 in excess of the estimates made by the navy department. Among other things, the senate measure provides for two first-class battleships where none are provided for in the house bill, and increases the number of submarines from four to eight.

Twenty Die on Sanest Fourth.

Dead 20: By fireworks 5, cannon [illegible], firearms 6, gunpowder 6, toy pistol 1, runaway 1.

Fire loss, $476,525.

Previous records show: Dead in country, 1911, 57; in 1910, 131; in 1909, 217.

Telephone Girl Braves Death.

Louisville, Ky.—By heroically remaining at her post until the entire town had been warned of the impending danger of a conflagration, Miss Ida Ochsner saved Pewee Valley from probable destruction by fire. The building in which the telephone exchange is located caught fire, but Miss Ochsner continued the telephone warnings until everyone had been notified. Then, finding other escape cut off, she swung from a window to a telephone pole, and thus reached the ground safely.

Human Monster Hacks Girl.

New York City.—The warm sun of a July morning, lifting itself above the hills of upper New York, cast its rays upon a group of men and boys who had come upon a child of 12 hidden away in a dry goods box and unconscious from more than 30 stab wounds. She died later.

Some human monster, some queer, twisted brain creature had had the child in his power and then had cast her away with but a little breath of life left. Her tiny body was stripped and begrimed.

Three Die in Trolley Crash.

Marion, Ind.—George Deigouffee of Upland, William Lucas and Benjamin Silvers, both of Marion, were killed, seven others were fatally hurt and 20 were more or less seriously injured in a collision between two traction cars on the Marion, Bluffton & Eastern line in this city. One of the cars plied between the city and Goldthwaite park and the other was a regular car coming from Bluffton. They came together at a point beyond a switch midway between the city and the park on a straight track.

CHARLES D. HILLES

Charles D. Hilles has just been selected chairman of the Republican national committee and will manage President Taft's campaign.

HILLES NAMED CHAIRMAN

WILL RUN THE CAMPAIGN FOR PRESIDENT TAFT.

James B. Reynolds of Massachusetts Is Chosen Secretary of Republican National Committee.

James B. Reynolds of Massachusetts, a member of the tariff board, was chosen secretary.

These selections were made by the nine members of the national committee acting as a subcommittee, after conferences with President Taft.

Chairman Hilles and the full national committee will meet on Friday, July 19, at the Waldorf-Astoria in New York to appoint a treasurer, other officers, an executive committee and an advisory committee.

Mr. Hilles will resign his office as secretary to the president on Saturday night.

The choice of Hilles was due to the fact that he was preferred by President Taft and to the further and probably more potential fact that there were so many conflicting ambitions among leaders of the national committee and other prominent party men. William Barnes of New York wanted the chairmanship. Senator Saunders of Tennessee wanted it. Former Senator Hemenway and Mr. Kealing of Indiana wanted it. Harry Daugherty of Columbus had his eye on it. Three or four committeemen who did not get out into the open as aspirants sought it, but, under the circumstances, the only man they could agree upon was the outsider, Hilles.

President Taft made no direct request of the committee to name Hilles. He told the members individually that Hilles was his personal choice, but said that he would not explicitly request his election. That was sufficient, however, to turn the scales in Hilles' favor.

69 DIE IN DOUBLE MINE BLAST

Explosion Is Supposed to Have Been Caused by Accumulation of Gas, Ignited by Firing a Shot.

London, Eng.—Sixty-nine miners were killed in a double explosion in the Cadeby colliery in the Conisborough district.

Others are missing and the mining officers fear that the death roll will reach at least 80.

Among the victims are three government mine inspectors.

Many of the victims met death while attempting to rescue their comrades, who were already cut off from escape by the first explosion. While they were being searched for, a second and more terrific explosion occurred which killed most of the rescuing party.

Several minor explosions followed the two hard ones.

An accumulation of gas, ignited by the firing of a shot, is supposed to have caused the explosion.

The Cadeby mine was on July 8 reported to King George as the "safest colliery in England," when the king was visiting a colliery adjacent to the one in which the explosion occurred. The presence of his majesty in the mining district doubtless minimized the fatalities, as half of the shift of miners were on holiday. Instead of the 120 usually at work in that part of the Cadeby colliery where the explosion occurred, only 22 were at work.

Fire Sweeps Thousand Island Park.

The fire started in Haller's department store from an unknown cause. A strong wind forced the flames with astonishing rapidity, and in a short time all the buildings in the vicinity were ablaze. Immediately following the destruction of the business section, the fire spread throughout practically every section of the park, destroying about 200 cottages.

Would Be G. O. P. Nominee.

Washington, D. C.—James P. Hawkins has announced his candidacy for the presidency on the Republican ticket. He recently gave up his position in the Louisville, Ky., postoffice so that he could be free to make the race and came here to get President Taft and Colonel Roosevelt to smooth out their differences and agree on him as a compromise candidate. He hasn't been successful. Anyone interested in aiding Hawkins in his task can communicate with him at the Washington asylum hospital.

Minister's Wages

Pressing Need of More Concern for the Comfort of the Pastor.

ONE subject, at least, treated in the reports read at the New England Southern Methodist Episcopal conference, should find sympathetic, intelligent appreciation by those within and without the denomination and the ecclesiastical calling. The matter of ministers' salaries was presented by District Superintendent Coultas of the New Bedford district. Mr. Coultas finds that 88 churches of his denomination in the Southern New England conference pay their ministers "hardly a living wage, and many of them less than a living wage." As to the speaker's standard of a living wage let it be known that 42 churches pay from $500 to $700 salary, including parsonage, and 46 pay less than $500, including parsonage. The district superintendent says truly that "here are wages almost as low as those of the striking operatives at Lawrence and less than those of the street laborer."

Surely Worthy of His Hire.

The Methodists are not alone among the denominations, probably, in underpaying their ministry. When the costly educational preparation and the social and cultured requirements for the modern Christian ministry are considered, it must be conceded that the operative and manual laborer is better off than the great majority of preachers and pastors. It is no defense for laymen to say that clergymen are doing their work for higher considerations than the material. The Master "had not where to lay his head," but to him was freely extended the hospitality of the people of his land and time. He lived as did the average of the plain people to whom he preached—neither better nor worse. But is this true of the minister, say, in the smaller southern New England Methodist parishes? The minister does not enjoy the freedom from financial pinch that his average parishioner does. The inclusion of the parsonage rent as the equivalent of so much wages is actually a considerable reduction from the figures given. Men in most callings receiving $300, $400 or $500 a year do not pay the rentals at which parsonages are appraised. These, like the church edifices, being visible evidences of the degree of liberality of the parishioners, are seldom shabby. There is more willingness to put shingles on the roof than clothing on the occupants.

Reproach to the Church.

Men of education, ability, influence, of "power in the community," serving the community, feeding its intellectual, cultured and spiritual flames, upholding the standard of the homes—men of family, often with their own education to pay for and their children's to plan for, giving all their time, their soul, with less personal liberty and privilege than any other worker, all for a dollar or so a day and perhaps a furnished house! Now these are conditions existing in populous, prosperous southern New England, not in a new land, among a struggling pioneer people. It is in an old and great and influential denomination whose preachers and laymen are strong men, not in a new and scattered sect with mere handfuls of adherents here and there.

In the same report from which these facts are taken there are numerous evidences of the devotion and liberality of the churches in other matters. The church strives generously for the cause of better conditions for humanity, for charity, education, for the dissemination of good cheer to the distressed, for the kingdom of heaven on earth. Why not more concern for the pastor's comfort, to assure his cheerful view of life, the education of himself and his children, material sunshine for himself and his helpmate? "The church pays the lowest wages possible," says Mr. Coultas. The church member who in his business "pays the lowest wages possible," would be charged with falling far short of the standard for human brotherliness that is expected of the professing children of God. The moral principle that it is the generous giver who receives generously doubtless would find demonstration in a church better served if its servants were better paid.—Providence Bulletin.

Constraining Love.

Everything becomes possible to those who love. The commands of the Lord are no longer grievous, for the soul that loves is gifted by that love with fresh energies. It discovers in itself unsuspected possibilities, and is supplied with over flowing currents of new vigor. We shall be enabled to do so much if only we love. We live by loving, and the more we love, the more we live, and therefore, when you feel dull and the spirits are low, turn and love God, love your neighbor, and you will be healed of your wound. Love Christ, the dear master, look at his face, listen to his words, and love will waken, and you will do all things through Christ who strengthens you. For, "the love of Christ constraineth us."

Now Is the Time.

We cannot call back yesterday. We cannot rectify the errors, undo the wrongs or gather up the wasted opportunities of the days that are gone; nor can we reach into the days to come and pluck from them those fruits which we desire. Our only day is today; we must make the most of it. Our only time is now; we must improve it. The swiftly-flying moments hurry from us; it is for us to stamp them with a record of duties done, work accomplished, services rendered, blessings bestowed. If they pass, unheeded and uncared for, neglected and mis-spent; if they are given over to folly and frivolity, to emptiness and idleness, what account shall we render to him who gives us length of days? How shall we prepare ourselves for the future—unless by faithfully fulfilling the duties of the present hour? Misspending today fits us for misusing tomorrow; faithfulness today is our best guarantee for faithfulness in the days to come.

SEVEN YEARS OF MISERY

How Mrs. Bethune was Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Sikeston, Mo.—"For seven years I suffered everything. I was in bed for four or five days at a time every month, and so weak I could hardly walk. I had cramps, backache and headache, and was so nervous and weak that I dreaded to see anyone or have anyone move in the room. The doctors gave me medicine to ease me at those times, and said that I ought to have an operation. I would not listen to that, and when a friend of my husband's told him about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and what it had done for his wife, I was willing to take it. Now I look the picture of health and feel like it, too. I can do all my own housework, work in the garden and entertain company and enjoy them, and can walk as far as any ordinary woman, any day in the week. I wish I could talk to every suffering woman and girl, and tell them what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me."—Mrs. DEMA BETHUNE, Sikeston, Mo.

Remember, the remedy which did this was Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

It has helped thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing down feeling, indigestion, and nervous prostration, after all other means have failed. Why don't you try it?

Your working power depends upon your health. Garfield Tea helps toward keeping it.

When in need of a good laxative give Garfield Tea a trial and be convinced of its merits. It is made entirely from pure herbs.

Love may find the way—but it isn't always able to pay the freight.

Baby Cried Day and Night with Colic till she was 3 months old, then we got Kopp's Baby's Friend and that cured her. Used it also when she was teething and cannot speak too highly of it, so writes Mrs. L. P. Plummer, Rockland, Me. Sold by druggists, 10c, 25c and 50c, or sent direct by Kopp's Baby's Friend Co., York, Pa. Sample by mail on request.

Modern Miracle.

"Do you believe in miracles?" asked Dobkins.

"You bet I do," said Snobkins. Why, only the other day my wife bought me a box of cigars, and by George, Dobky, I could smoke 'em."—Harper's Weekly.

AN APT SCHOLAR.

Mrs. Beacon Streete—I'm glad your uncle left you some money, but please, Norah, don't call it a legacy. Say limbacy. It is very improper to say leg; always say limb!

Norah—Yis, ma'am, an' shall I warrum oop thot limb o' motton for dinner, or will yez hov it cowld?

GOOD NIGHT'S SLEEP

No Medicine So Beneficial to Brain and Nerves.

Lying awake nights makes it hard to keep awake and do things in day time. To take "tonics and stimulants" under such circumstances is like setting the house on fire to see if you can put it out.

"For about three years I had been a great sufferer from indigestion. After trying several kinds of medicine, the doctor would ask me to drop off potatoes, then meat, and so on, but in a few days that craving, gnawing feeling would start up, and I would vomit everything I ate and drank.

"When I started on Grape-Nuts, vomiting stopped, and the bloating feeling which was so distressing disappeared entirely.

"My mother was very much bothered with diarrhoea before commencing the Grape-Nuts, because her stomach was so weak she could not digest her food. Since using Grape-Nuts food she is well, and says she don't think she could do without it.

"It is a great brain restorer and nerve builder, for I can sleep as sound and undisturbed after a supper of Grape-Nuts as in the old days when I could not realize what they meant by a 'bad stomach.' There is no medicine so beneficial to nerves and brain as a good night's sleep, such as you can enjoy after eating Grape-Nuts." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

TO HAVE FEDERAL DAY

PRESIDENT TAFT WILL BE INVITED TO DELIVER ADDRESS.

Lawyers Are Planning Big Time—Bar Association Will Be Asked to Co-operate.

Columbus.—Announcement was made by a committee of Columbus attorneys, headed by Harry M. Daugherty as chairman, that August 29 will be "federal day" of the Columbus centennial celebration, which is to be held in connection with Ohio state fair. Lawyers and judges are to be the principal actors on the day's program.

One of the features of the day's events will be a sort of exposition of the merits of the legal profession and an answer to the criticisms that have been made of the judiciary in general. The program has not been definitely framed, but the two ideals enumerated seem to be among those that will prevail. The State Bar Association, which holds its meeting this month is to be invited to take part through a special committee.

The principal guest will be President Taft, who is to deliver a speech at the fair grounds on the morning of August 29, and an effort will be made to secure the presence of one of the judges of the United States supreme court, Chief Justice White, if possible. Federal and state judges are to be among the guests.

The plan of the lawyers, if it suits President Taft, is to hold a big banquet in the evening. Gov. Harmon probably will be toastmaster. Other speakers have not been selected.

The entire plan has the backing of the centennial commission, which has given its most hearty indorsement. Another part of the program will be a meeting at Memorial Hall in the afternoon, at which President Taft will be the chief speaker.

Ohio Incorporations.

The Farmers' Agricultural Machinery Co., Mason, implements and machinery, $10,000; L. W. Witham, J. Lee Thompson, J. W. Buck, Freeman Williamson and J. A. Rebold.

The Brooks Coal Co., Flushing, mining, $[illegible]; D. B. Brooks, Marvelin Brooks, [illegible] M. Wyrick, Ada Wyrick and William Massey.

The American Water Motor Co., Columbus, water motors, hydraulic engines and appliances, $20,000; Lloyd Lewis, John Lewis, E. A. Lewis, M. F. Lewis and S. J. Lewis.

The Imperial Coal Co., Toledo, reduction from $300,000 to $100,000.

The Mesco Oil and Gas Co., Lancaster; $25,000; William H. Carmon, Lou Eyman, C. A. Young, F. A. Rold and W. T. Young.

Find Interesting Relic.

After a search running for eight years the broken point of an Indian spear head has been plowed up by a farmer on the ground of Fort Ancient, Warren county. The two pieces have been joined and show a spear head seven and one-quarter inches long, of glistening white quartzite, the largest one of that material ever discovered. It lies on a plush cushion in the state archaeological museum on the campus of Ohio State University.

W. C. Mills, curator of the museum, is proud of the oddly shaped piece of crystal. "More than eight years ago one part of it was found," he said. "At that time I told the searchers to hunt for the complement of it. They tried and all these years have kept on the alert for the broken point. As restored, it has no equal for size in any museum of the country."

Reduce Blind Fund.

The apportionments to blind persons will have to be diminished by the Franklin county blind relief commission, in order to abide by the Smith 1-cent tax law, said Attorney General Hogan in an opinion to the commission. Reliefs for November, December, January and February have not been paid, because of lack of funds as a levy of 24-100 mills instead of 3-10 mills, as allowed, was made last year.

Under the existing tax laws, an increase in the tax levy is impossible, so the reduction in apportionments was recommended.

In an opinion to the firemen's pension trustees of Toledo, Mr. Hogan held that volunteer firemen are ineligible to pension benefits.

Holiday Gift Delayed.

Through some one's neglect, Morgan Seals, a Hamilton county prisoner, loses his parole from the penitentiary granted in honor of July 4, by the state board of administration. The neglect was in failure to advertise for three weeks, as provided by law. When the board of administration was apprised of the absence of the publication the parole was revoked and Seals will have to stay at least three more weeks. The publication has been started.

Columbus men are completing arrangements for the construction of a railroad into the virgin coal fields of Pike county, Kentucky. For this purpose a company has been organized by William Ritter, James L. Hamill, C. B. Weakley, J. J. Devine, H. P. Moore, C. Burlingame and J. W. Mayhew, as the Knox Creek Railroad Co. The articles of incorporation of the company have been filed with the Kentucky state railroad commission. The road will be constructed along Knox Creek, which is on the state line between West Virginia and Kentucky.

A Great Map.

In 1900 the state of Ohio and the United States Geological Survey, working in co-operation, began a topographic survey of the state. The work has been carried on from year to year by units of area known as quadrangles—four-sided areas, bounded by meridians and parallels, regardless of political boundaries—each containing about 230 square miles. Thus far about four-fifths of the state has been surveyed and the corresponding maps published by the geological survey, and at the present annual rate of progress the entire state will be covered in three or four years.

The map of Ohio resulting from this work, when completed will be by far the largest and most complete map of the state ever published—about 20 feet wide. The expense of this survey is borne partly by the federal and partly by the state government. The cost of engraving the maps on copper plates and printing from lithographic stones is borne by the geological survey.

The area of the state is 41,040 square miles and from the cost of past and present surveys it is estimated that the finally completed map of Ohio will cost more than half a million dollars. This seems a large sum of money to put into a map, but it should be remembered that such a map can be used as the base for every sort of engineering project in the state and is worth in the present and future development of Ohio many times its cost. State Inspector C. E. Sherman has shown himself keenly alive to the value of an adequate topographic survey, and through him Ohio has offered to co-operate with the federal survey to the full extent which the government appropriation will permit.

Sunday-school Statistics.

About 80,000 babies who are too young to make weekly trips to Sunday school belong to the cradle roll, according to statistics compiled recently by F. W. Shinn, general secretary of the Ohio Sunday school Association since the resignation of Dr. Joseph Clark. This means that one in every 20 enrolled Sunday school members is too small even to sit in the tiny red chairs of primary departments.

Total membership of Sunday schools in the state is estimated at 1,500,000. The population of Ohio is 4,767,121. Nearly one-third are members of Sunday schools, therefore.

Home department members, who are included in these figures, number 18,000. These are either ill or for some other reason unable to attend services Sunday morning, but study the lessons at home. There are [illegible] officers and teachers.

During the last year [illegible] pupils have united with their respective churches and 75,000 have signed the pledge against the use of intoxicating liquor.

Ohio Sunday-schools contributed $1,200 to the international organization in the last year.

Ohio Fifth Clothing State.

Ohio ranks fifth in the men clothing industry of the United States, according to statistics issued by Director Durand of the bureau of census. The industry itself is in eighth place among those of this county. In the average number of wage earners the order of the five leading states is: New York, 91,363; Illinois, 30,152; Pennsylvania, 23,623; Maryland, 19,784 and Ohio, 9,950. In the value of products, the rank is: New York, $266,075,427; Illinois, $89,472,755; Pennsylvania, $39,681,760; Maryland, $38,821,294 and Ohio, $24,885,437. In the value of the manufacturer, the order follows: New York, $130,748,784; Illinois, $33,244,475; Pennsylvania, $19,818,626; Maryland, $15,955,219 and Ohio, $11,949,357. The entire industry in this country employs 271,437 persons and represents an invested capital of $275,320,003. The value of products is $568,076,635, while value added by manufacture, which is the difference between the value of products and the cost of materials, is $270,561,189.

Ore Shipments Approach Record.

July is expected to eclipse all previous records, both in receipts and shipments of ore at Ohio ports. The ore receipts at Ashtabula in June were 1,220,827 tons, a decrease of about 300,000 tons from those of June, 1911. Coal shipments at this port were 287,892 tons. Ore receipts at Cleveland totaled 1,336,666 tons. The June receipts were substantially larger than those for May. The receipts also came very near beating all previous records.

Fifth in Shoes.

The Thirteenth Census Statistics show that Ohio ranks fifth in the value of boots and shoes. The average number of wage earners in the state is given as 16,026. The value of the products is $21,550,957. The value added by manufacture (value of products less cost of materials) is $12,678,930. Massachusetts leads all of the states in the above respects.

Convicts to Clean Capital.

City Service Director Kinnear was given permission by the State Board of Administration to use penitentiary prisoners in the work of cleaning up the city for the Ohio-Columbus centennial, which is to be held the first week in August. About 50 prisoners will be placed at work cleaning the parks, streets and vacant lots. The city is to pay the cost of transporting the prisoners to and from work, and the cost of guarding them. It will take but a few days.

Recent Appointments.

State Bank Superintendent Frank E. Baxter, of Lima, has been reappointed for a second term of two years by Gov. Harmon. Mr. Baxter has been connected with the department since it was created. He was first an assistant. Upon resignation of E. B. Seymour, of Ashtabula, as superintendent some three years ago, Gov. Harmon appointed Mr. Baxter his successor. The governor has reappointed Geo. Hilow, of Akron, member of the state embalming board.

BANQUET IS SILENT

DEAF AND DUMB ENJOY SPREAD AT CLOSE OF CONVENTION.

Columbus, O.—Eloquent fingers orated at the banquet held at the Southern hotel by 160 delegates of the National Fraternal Society of the Deaf, whose convention continued through last week. As expressive as words were the gesture of the toasters who stood on a table opposite the dais, and the dactylological signs were conveyed as rapid as a speaking person could talk.

Fred G. Schwartz, of Columbus, was toastmaster and in charge of the festivities. Toasts responded to were: "Onward and Upward," by Louis H. Cohen, New York; "Expansion," by Rev. James H. Cloud, St. Louis; "What Fraternity Is," H. Lorraine Tracy, Baton Rouge, La.; "The Goat," Harry C. Anderson, Indianapolis; "Where the Trail Divides," Lyman M. Hunt, Kaskonong, Mo.; "Non-Frats," William H. Zorn, Columbus.

Save for the slight clatter of dishes, there was not a sound in the banquet hall, but the expansive smile on the face of each person signified that all were enjoying themselves. Each "speaker" was applauded, but the plaudits were noiseless. While some lightly clapped their hands the majority waved their right arms in the air.

The National Fraternal Society of the Deaf held services Sunday morning in the convention hall of the Southern hotel, at which sermons were preached by Rev. J. W. Michaels, of Louisville, Ky., and Rev. J. H. Cloud, of St. Louis, Mo.

ENGINEER INJURED

Three Others Are Hurt When Collision of His Locomotive and Three Switch Engines Occurred.

Dayton, O.—Joe Dando, of this city, a veteran locomotive engineer on the Erie railway, whose boast has been that he had never been in a serious wreck in his more than a third of a century service, was seriously injured in a collision in the Erie yards here, when his locomotive and three switch engines coupled together.

His fireman, Frank Noggio, of Dayton; John Gray, of Dayton, a call boy, and Engineer F. E. Gould, of Dayton, were also injured. Engineer Dando was bringing in a light engine from Tallon. He was running extra and was unable to see the three engines that were being taken from the freight yards in the East End roundhouse owing to a sharp curve at that point.

The three engines were attached to each other and were being backed from the freight house to the roundhouse. Engineer Dando was also backing his engine and the speed of neither had been greatly decreased when the collision took place. Dando's engine and the three which received the direct force of the impact were demolished. Engineer Dando sustained a severe wound on his right shoulder, a badly sprained back and two fractured ribs. He was taken to the Miami Valley hospital.

Fireman Noggio sustained a fracture of the left leg. He was taken to the Miami Valley hospital, as was John Gray, the call boy, who was seriously scalded.

BRINGS DAMAGE SUIT.

Dayton, O.—Suit for $10,000 damages on account of the death of his son in the wreck near Middletown two years ago was filed by William O. Dunlevy, father of Thomas J. Dunlevy, against the Big Four Railroad Co. and Judson Harmon, then receiver of the C., H. & D. Railroad Co. Young Dunlevy was 17 years old. His father is administrator of his estate, and as such brought the suit.

TO MUZZLE DOGS.

Troy, O.—By action of the Troy council all dogs in Troy hereafter must either be muzzled or confined in some building until the present mad dog scare is over. A resolution was unanimously adopted, requesting Mayor McClain to issue the necessary proclamation in accordance with an ordinance passed a number of years ago. The question was presented by Chief of Police John Headley.

SHOOTS SELF WITH RELIC.

Bellefontaine, O.—Charles McHargh, of Champaign county, owner of one of the largest private collections of historical relics in Central Ohio, accidentally shot himself through the right foot while exhibiting a pistol made in 1812 to a friend. Mr. McHargh did not know the weapon was loaded.

STRUCK BY LIGHTNING.

Sidney, O.—Mildred Kaser, nine-year-old daughter of Frank Kaser, was killed by a stroke of lightning while playing ball with several other children in a vacant field across from the Woodwell residence in Brooklyn avenue. Lena Wooddell, Ruth Critten, Kramer Brandt, Ralph Kag, Louie Williams, Fred Troester, and Tillie Hemtner were all seriously injured. It is said that the children were playing near a steel scraper, at the time of the lightning.

BOY IS SHOT.

Portsmouth, O.—Death exacted as the toll of the Fourth of July celebration in Scioto county, the life of Floyd Cook, aged 12, who was shot and mortally wounded by an 11-year-old companion, Robert Ferguson, of Portsmouth. The proverbial "unloaded gun" was responsible for the killing. A bullet from a 32 caliber revolver in the hands of Ferguson entered Cook's chest, just to the right of the breastbone, severing an artery.

THE SEALERS WILL MEET

To Discuss Ways and Means of Securing Honest Weights and Measures.

Columbus, O.—A convention that means much to the people of the state by way of reducing the high cost of living will be held in Columbus Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, July 17, 18 and 19, 1912. This will be the third annual convention of the state, county and city sealers and deputy sealers of weights and measures.

In just one year since the state department of weights and measures has been provided with funds to carry out the work of the department, sixty-five counties have already secured standards, which have been tested and sealed by the state department, and deputy sealers in these counties are now at work inspecting and sealing scales, weights and measures, wherever they are used or maintained for use. Thousands of scales, weights and measures have been found to be incorrect. In some few instances the dealer was the loser, but in nearly all cases the purchaser was the loser. In some instances measuring devices were constructed with the intention of defrauding the purchaser.

Conditions met with by the sealers in their work will be one of the features of this convention and some method of speedily wiping out fraudulent measures will be devised, if possible.

YOUNG MAN DROWNED

Columbus, O.—Paul Weese, aged 29, a baker, got beyond his depth in a deep hole near the west bank of the Scioto river above the Greenlawn avenue bridge and was drowned. He was unable to swim.

The drowning occurred near the slaughter house of Herman Falter. Several young men who were bathing at the same place ran to the slaughter house and told Joe Falter, who was working there. Young Mr. Falter plunged in and recovered the body by diving. It had been in the water two minutes. A police auto rushed the body to Mt. Carmel hospital but life was extinct.

Mr. Weese lived at the home of Charles Wenger, 78 Park [illegible]. They had gone to the river together.

WILL HOLD OUTING

Springfield, O.—The annual outing of the Clark County Medical society will be held at the Neff grounds Saturday, July 11, and a large number of the members will spend the afternoon at the pleasure resort. The trip will be made in automobiles leaving the city some time before the noon hour. A big dinner will be served by Caterer Arthur J. Riggs for the members.

The outing will be a joint one of Clark and Greene counties, while a number of physicians from Columbus will be present. In the afternoon Dr. Harvey Wiley, of Columbus, food expert, will speak at the Chautauqua and the members of the society will attend in a body.

TWENTY-FIFTH ANNIVERSARY.

Springfield, O.—Services in honor of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the organization of the Third Lutheran church, were held at the new edifice, situated at Center and Liberty streets. One of the features was the reading of letters of congratulation from former pastors of the church. The address was delivered by Rev. L. S. Keyser, of Hamma Divinity school, second pastor of the church. Rev. Keyser was in charge between 1880 and 1895. Music was furnished by the Glee club of the church.

BOXWELL COMMENCEMENT.

Ironton, O.—The commencement exercises of the Boxwell graduates were held in the auditorium at the courthouse and were largely attended by the parents, relatives and friends of the bright youthful graduates. There were 80 graduates, representatives of the best families in Lawrence county. Rev. W. H. Hampton, rector of Christ Episcopal, delivered the commencement oration and it was a gem in every way.

WOMAN LOST BIG SUM.

Portsmouth, O.—Mrs. George Hubbard, a Blue Creek farmer's wife, had the great misfortune to lose $250 a few days ago. Mrs. Hubbard and a young daughter went to West Union to pay off a mortgage on their home. After reaching West Union she went to a livery barn and neglected to remove her pocketbook from the buggy. A short time later she discovered her loss and no trace of the money has been found.

YOUTH SAVES TWO LIVES

Aberdeen, O.—Ward Poe, 2[illegible], living at this place, saved two persons from drowning in the Ohio river. Russell Cooper, 6, accompanied by his [illegible] and Mrs. Jacob Gunter, went down to the river to wade in the water. The boy got in over his depth and was drowning when Mrs. Gunter went to his aid. Getting out too far she began to sink. The screams of Mrs. Cooper brought Poe to the scene, who swam out to where Mrs. Gunter and the boy were and rescued them.

MINISTER RESIGNS POSITION.

Springfield, O.—The Rev. Harvey S. Lawrence, pastor of the Fifth Lutheran church here and prominent in the church councils, has resigned to accept a call to Peabody, Kan.

ASLEEP ON TRACK.

Ironton, O.—Charles Moore, of Oak Hill, was run over by a C., H. & D. train while asleep on the track. He lost an arm and is probably fatally injured.

PITTSBURG EXPECTS MUCH OF ART HOFMAN

Artie Holman, Former Cub, With the Pirates.

Artie Hofman, once the idol of Chicago Cub fans and considered by many as the best all-round player in the major leagues, is expected to strengthen the Pittsburg Pirates materially by the enthusiastic fans of that city. Manager Fred Clark, also is optimistic and expects his team to climb rapidly toward the head.

Hofman was the property of the Pittsburg club once before. Fred Clarke tells how in 1904 he couldn't use Hofman, and placed him with the Des Moines club. The understanding was that Hofman was to come back to Pittsburg but the Des Moines club sold him during the season and the owners didn't abide by the verbal agreement. While with the Chicago Cubs Hofman filled almost every position on the diamond, being available anywhere.

STORIES OF THE DIAMOND

The American league race is getting tighter and tighter each day.

Any time that Hank O'Day wants to beat the Phillies he should "let George (Suggs) do it."

Another shakeup in the White Sox may be expected any day if the slump does not come to a sudden end.

With Patience playing second base and Leisure pitching, one would expect East Liverpool, Ohio, to play a rather sleepy game.

Young Groh of the Giants will not go after the bad ones. Pitchers have got to put the ball over the plate before he will offer at it.

Jake Stahl of the Red Sox says he does not think it will be necessary for the team that wins the flag this year to win over ninety games.

George Stovall, the new Browns' manager, made his big league debut in 1904. And after all these years he has sunk to his present low station.

There may be a race to the National league this year, but it will be between Frank Schulte's and Christy Mathewson's high-powered automobiles.

Ernie Lush, who has been playing in the outfield for Montreal, has been let out and will try to get on with the Springfield team of the Connecticut league.

Catcher Fred Mitchell is back in the game for Buffalo after a trip to Bonesetter Reese.

Player Free of Auburn in the Mink league is a free hitter. He leads the league at bat with an average above 400. Nebraska City as a team leads in batting, with four men batting 300 or better.

MAKES GAMES MORE EXCITING

Hitting the Ball Safely Is Most Interesting Feature at Contests for Enthusiastic Fans

The so-called "inside" baseball playing is all right and results in many successful plays on the diamond. Strong and consistent playing, however, is the mainstay of any club.

When a player approaches the plate the uppermost thought in the minds of spectators is: "Will he hit the ball?" If the ball is struck and hit safely the spectators are happy. Hitting the ball safely is the most interesting feature of the game, says the Boston Globe.

It is noticeable this season that the players are hitting the ball well. They seem to have made up their minds that free and easy hitting is preferable to bunting. This free hitting makes the games more exciting. To be sure it may mean a larger score, but that is not to be deplored. When there is free hitting there are more chances for brilliant catching, skillful fielding and fast running. The scene is more animated and fascinating. The more batting there is the better pleased patrons will be all during the season.

Wagner Still in Game.

You don't see the name of that estimable old German, Hans Wagner, in the papers so often these days, but the old lad continues to wallop the ball better than .300 and to field like a fiend.

Griffith's Method.

Clarke Griffith studies the details of games which other teams in the American league play, finds the weakness of the young players and then roasts them when they are playing against Washington.

$7,000 IS PAID FOR KEATING

That Sum Is Given by New York Highlanders for Crack Twirler of the Lawrence Team.

The Highlanders have bought the release of Ray Keating, the brilliant young pitcher of the Lawrence club of the New England League.

Word was received from Lawrence recently that Louis Pieper, manager of the Lawrence team, had announced that the New York Americans paid $7,000 for Keating, a larger sum than ever was paid for a New England League player.

This deal has been hanging fire for some time. It was said that Keating will not join the New York club until the end of the New England League season, but after paying this sum for the youngster the Highlanders may request immediate delivery.

Keating is only nineteen years old, and until last season was content to play on a high school nine. Jim O'Rourke dug him up in the spring of 1911, and he had a brief trial with Bridgeport. From Bridgeport, Keating drifted to Lawrence, which club turned him over to the Hamilton team of the Canadian League, where he was a star. He was recalled by Lawrence and has been doing wonderful work all season.

His first noteworthy feat was to hold the Providence International team to two hits in a practice game. Since the New England season opened, the youngster has not met with a defeat. His greatest triumph was scored on May 25, when he shut out Worcester, 1 to 0, without a hit.

GIANTS RELEASE A PITCHER

Louis Drucke, Who Gave Much Promise as Twirler, Is Turned Over to Toronto Club.

Louis Drucke, the pitcher of the Giants, has been released to the Toronto club of the International league. Drucke has been a Giant for three years and gave splendid promise when he joined McGraw's team. He gained the title of "the second Mathewson," so good was his work. He injured his back two years ago in a subway accident and has done little for the New York club since. Drucke came from Waco, Texas, and was bought from the Dallas club.

Louis Drucke

Knows Batter's Weakness.

Much of the success of the Reds is said to be due to the fact that Hank O'Day, who has been umpiring since the war of 1812, knows the weakness of virtually every batter in the league.

Dubuc Lauds Griffith.

Dubuc, the little Frenchman that is pitching so well for the Tigers, gives Clark Griffith credit for telling him to perfect his slow ball and make himself a great pitcher. Griff has also taught Walter Johnson how to throw a slow ball.

PLANK IS "LITTLE OLD FOX"

Does Not Possess Burst of Speed Enjoyed by Others, but Is Master of Art of Pitching.

Clarke Griffith bears the title of the "Little Old Fox of Baseball."

Connie Mack rests in the name of "Wily Connie."

To Plank, and Plank alone, belongs the credit for the Athletics' victory over the Tigers in the opening game of the series.

Time and again when a hit would have meant a run Plank stood in the center of the road to victory and turned back Jennings' players. He forced such players as Crawford and Gainer and Moriarty to drop back when thousands cheered them on.

In the eighth inning, with one run in, Cobb on third, one man up and Crawford at bat, Plank seemed the least concerned. Occasionally he would bluff to hold Cobb at third, and when he did pitch he didn't use speed, he used nothing but a slow bending curve over the outside of the plate.

Instead of giving Crawford a ball that Sam was likely to hit far into the outfield, Plank, cool to the point of extreme self-confidence in his position, would carefully measure Crawford with his eye and then pitch.

The games are few and far between when a man like Crawford will fall in the wake of an opposing pitcher's curves. Sam can, at least, be depended upon to send out a sacrifice fly, but Thursday, in the pinches, he could do nothing but pop weakly to Collins.

Plank is an old master at the art of pitching. He hasn't the speed of a score of other pitchers in the league. He hasn't the curves of as many more.

But he has the head. He knows the batters. And he utilizes every speck of his knowledge.

He didn't know Vitt. He had never seen him in an actual game.

The Athletics' twirler involuntarily, perhaps glanced towards the bench, where his leader, Connie Mack, was sitting. Then he straightened and sent a low, nasty curve over the outside of the plate. Vitt didn't move.

Eddie Plank.

"You don't know that boy," yelled a spectator.

Plank worked about, then sent across a strike. And still Vitt didn't move.

Vitt was out.

Then came Louden. Plank knew, or thought he knew, more of Louden than of Vitt, and he shot across a high straight one.

And Louden didn't move.

Then Plank resorted to his famous cross-fire and Louden singled.

With Bush at bat and Louden on first, Plank shot across a straight ball. Bush met it and lined to Barry.

And Plank's strategy had won it.

It wasn't his support, because Athletic errors let in two of the Tigers' three runs.

Yingling Is Promising.

Critics all around the National league circuit are picking Earl Yingling of the Dodgers as one of the most promising young southpaws picked up in the 1912 crop. Earl is a stockily built youngster and has loads of smoke on the ball. He learned the rudiments of baseball on town lots in Dayton, Ohio, later played with the high school team of that place and his first real engagement was with the Toledo Mud Hens. He soon attracted the attention of major league scouts and now seems anchored with Brooklyn. He is the son of a clergyman and has a brother in professional baseball.

The [illegible] always ready and willing [illegible] the man who is entitled [illegible] to lend an op[illegible] "Hank" O'Day, for [illegible] a year ago [illegible] umpire.—Detroit [illegible]

Vinson Goes Insane.

Ernest Vinson, who led the Eastern league in batting while a member of the Providence club in 1904, went violently insane at his home in Chester, Pa., recently. Vinson once played with Cleveland.

Pitcher's Record.

New York writers claim that 16 straight victories is the record for a major league pitcher. Not so. Jack Luby, when with Chicago in 1890, won 20 in a row. Give the "old 'uns" the credit they deserve.

Controller Needed.

A New York genius has invented a suction-cup arrangement for pitchers to wear on their fingers, which, he says, will curve a ball. The greatest need of pitchers, however, is not a curver, but a controller.

WOODROW WILSON THE CANDIDATE OF THE PEOPLE.

The nomination of Woodrow Wilson at Baltimore Monday afternoon is a victory for the people which will be only second to that victory the people will win over the interests and lords of privilege next November.

Clark, with a strong personal following, failed to measure up to the standard required at this particular time, and besides, his candidacy was supported by many who are not awake to the progressive spirit of the times. Clark might have defeated Mr. Taft, but the defeat of Taft is not all that the Democracy hoped for. It hoped that by nominating a progressive candidate for presidency it might bring together under one banner all of those people of no matter what party, who believe that the time has come to stay the hand of the interests. But there were forces at work in the Democratic convention who did not wish a change in conditions; who aimed rather to continue them for their own selfish reasons.

The fight for progress was a hard one. The forces which sought to keep the Democracy in the rut were well entrenched. With methods which would not stand the light of day they sought to defeat the will of the people. Under cover and in the dark they sought to debauch the Democracy.

Fortunately for the Democracy there were at Baltimore men who, led by William Jennings Bryan, had the interests of the party and of the whole people at heart. They fought the interests. They persisted in their opposition to the reactionaries. Despite the calumny heaped upon them, despite the slanderous lies, despite the venom, they battled for the right!

And they won!

In Woodrow Wilson the Democracy has a candidate who will truly be the representative of the people!

And Mr. Wilson will most surely be the next president of the United States.

FRAUD.

Never in the history of political parties in this country has there been made more serious charges against a party by a member of that same party, than that made by Senator Works of California, in a speech delivered in the U. S. senate a few days ago:

"As conditions now present themselves to my mind I cannot join a new party movement, but Mr. President, I do not want to be misunderstood by the senate or by the country. It does not follow from what I have said that I shall support the alleged nomination of the Republican convention. I believe he secured his nomination by unjust and illegal means. I do not believe he is the nominee of the party in any just or proper sense. I hope he does not realize, in accepting such a nomination, what thousands of his party believe to be the fact, that is was procured for him by compromising with fraud and corruption and the violation of an express statute of a state.

"But the alleged nominee is not the Republican party. He does not represent its principles or its sentiments. His title to the nomination is tainted and questioned by the great mass of the party. Neither I nor any other Republican who views the situation as I do owe him personally any allegiance or support. If any good Republican representing the real sentiments of the party were to become an independent candidate running on a progressive platform, that he could conscientiously stand upon, the voters of the party would sustain him, but in my judgment the man who attempts to form a new party as conditions now are will not be serving the interests of the people. Better far to see the great Republican party go down to temporary defeat now for the sins its leaders have committed than attempt the uncertain and dangerous remedy of forming a new party."

THE DEMOCRATIC PLATFORM

The platform adopted at Baltimore is one that cannot help but appeal to the voters in a year when unrest among the people is plainly in evidence. It is a progressive, aggressive platform, taking positive stands on issues which are the subject of discussion throughout the country. It deals with the tariff, the cost of living, the trusts, pure food, the right of labor, supervision and regulation of railroads and many other live subjects.

The veto by President Taft of bills which would have reduced the tariff is denounced by the platform. Attention is called to the fact that the Republican platform of four years ago declared for a revision of the tariff downward, as did Mr. Taft himself. There was no revision of the tariff downward, as had been promised.

There is one man in Ohio by the name of Woolsey, living somewhere around Upper Sandusky, who thinks women are too good to vote. He thinks God made woman man's superior, and that the way she shows this superiority is by paying taxes and letting men vote the appropriations! He says further that man feels stronger than woman and that he will permit "no wrong" to come to her, and that he will go to the ends of the earth and shed his heart's blood for her. It seems pitiful that women would prefer such a trifle as voting on their taxes to ordering Sir Launcelot Woolsey to go to equal suffrage China and shed his heart's blood for them. But such is the feminine mind. It wants variety. Men have been "protecting" and "shedding" and "going to the ends of the earth" so many chivalrous centuries. Times have changed, Sir Launcelot. Guinevere has got tired of queening it. She thinks her state and country are her home as well as your palatial kitchen. It's too bad, but you'll have to invent a new roundelay.

The declaration by Mr. Roosevelt that he intends going ahead with his plans for the formation of a new party will not meet with the approval of the people. If Mr. Roosevelt really has the interests of the country at heart he will abandon his third party movement so that there will be no question as to the election of Woodrow Wilson in November. If Mr. Roosevelt persists in his course and inaugurates a third party then it will convince the people of the country that he is not for the people as he has declared, but first, last and all the time for Theodore Roosevelt. Mr. Roosevelt makes the mistake of thinking the handsome vote he received in Pennsylvania, Illinois, Ohio, New Jersey and other states was a personal tribute. It was not a tribute to Theodore Roosevelt. Instead it was the natural course of a people who had tired of the reign of the interests and who by voting for the Roosevelt delegates to the national convention sought to register their protests against existing conditions.

The Geauga Republican says in its last issue: "It would be a pity to progress beyond prosperity." A little further on in the editorial comments it has this to say: "The Columbus convention for the nomination of a state ticket, was unbossed, and there were no combinations between the big city delegates. The platform declarations are as progressive as the friends of Roosevelt desired." Most anything suits the good old Geauga Republican if it is only branded with that dear word "Republican."

There was a prompt echo of the halving of the duty on cement entering Canada. Within one week over one million barrels of cement were sold in the United States for export to Canada, and the leading Canadian producer has reduced his price 10 cents a barrel. An object lesson like this leaves nothing but fragments of the protectionist theory that the foreigner pays the duty to get admission to the protected market.

Here is the way the Boston Globe sums up the qualifications of Mr. Wilson for the presidency: "Woodrow Wilson fits the era. No better choice could have been made. He was the logical selection. His opinions are well known, his qualifications are explicit, his character is unassailable, and his achievements such as to warrant his promotion to the office of president of the United States."

We should all remember that voters will soon be called upon to express themselves upon the adoption or rejection of of the proposed new constitution for the great state of Ohio.

RANDOM THOUGHTS

By Tom, Dick and Harry.

This is a strange year. Go where you may you will find the people discussing important issues of the day and giving voice to sentiments which would have sounded very odd and very queer and very much out of place twenty years ago. It has taken a long while to arouse the voters of America. But they are awakening very fast. They know at last who are their friends. They know now upon whom to depend. They know who is against them.

The interests won at Chicago. The will of the people was expressed throughout the country prior to the Republican convention, but when the time came to choose a candidate for president the powers that have the g. o. p. by the throat disregarded the wishes of the voters, throttled progressivism and named as a candidate a man who stands for all that is reactionary and who is the creature of the vested interests.

At Baltimore the same kind of a crowd which had swayed the Republican convention sought to prostitute the Democracy.

Will a third party be the proverbial crowd? Is it going to be superfluity or is Roosevelt right in his contention more than a progressive as a candidate—that it needs a thoroughly progressive party behind a progressive man?

Bryan made the fight of his life in Baltimore trying to make the Democratic party leaders concede to the popular demand. A glorious fight but did he win? Did he also make the mistake of his life in not stepping out and throwing his influence to a new party? What does this great country need most—a new party or house cleaning?

We would like to be progressive so that it will count next November. How can we do it? Two ways are inviting and once more the progressive vote is divided.

The funniest—or the saddest, you can take your choice—thing we have yet observed is a woman trying to get on a street car while wear one of those skin-tight skirts, which shows all the world how she is hung together—how much like a little girl's doll before it is dressed she looks.

---

What is more dangerous than a party man? One of those fellows who says "My party right or wrong." Everyone knows him. He is the fellow who goes about after a nomination wherein the people have been deliberately robbed by the bosses and tells the men of his precinct to forget it, to stick to the grand old party, to uphold the traditions of the organization, etc., ad nauseam. He is more dangerous to government than an anarchist. Himself an unthinking tool of an unscrupulous organization, he seeks to bring others into his own slavish condition of mind and frequently, indeed almost always, he is able or has been able to do it. The result is corruption, extending from a man's blunted political conscience to that man's home and business life. No man who is a partizan first and a citizen afterward can help being traitorous to his own better nature. He is a blind—when not a vicious—leader of the blind.

Will some one kindly inform us, through the medium of this column, as to the reason for a Socialist party at this particular time? With a new constitution for Ohio which will undoubtedly provide for the initiative and referendum, with one of the candidates for the presidency advocating the same, what more can the Socialist ask? What can the Socialist party accomplish unless it is accomplished through the medium of the initiative? What other way of stamping out bad acts of legislation, unless through the referendum? Why the Socialist party? Why should not the members of the Socialist party help to promote the interests of of a party that is progressive enough to provide a way by which the people can directly control the affairs of government? We are not asking why should there be Socialists, but are asking, why a Socialist party? Do they want reforms, or do they want a party? Will they accept reforms only through the medium of their party? To make the matter a little plainer, suppose we all become Socialists, would any one then advocate a Socialist party?

Why is a chicken? Last week either Tom, Dick, or Harry complained that a low-down dog came into his yard and ate a dollar's worth of chicken. He propounded the unanswerable question of "Why is a dog?" This week a half dozen long-legged, hairless, brainless chickens walked into our garden and chose a menu fit for your best girl. We propose to propound the propounder of the dog question by asking "Why is a gosh darned chicken?"

On the bill of fare was lettuce salad, young green beets, ripe currents, a whole row of cauliflower. Darn a chicken anyhow! And the worst part of it is that we know exactly to whom those chickens belong. We can't collect damages because you can't collect where there is nothing to collect, and the fellow is a husky chap—more so than we are, so there we are. Darn a chicken!

Some Virtues Ever Present.

There is scarcely a hearth in the lowest slum of a big city where you will not find beautiful private virtues.

HELD HILL FIVE WEEKS

MEMORIAL COMMEMORATES BRAVE ACT OF PIONEER.

Early Colorado Settler, With His Family, Held War Party of Indians at Bay on Spot Now Known as "Simpson's Rest."

Prominent among the rocky, mesa-like hills that surround Denver, is a rugged, gray point, within the outskirts of the town, known as "Simpson's Rest." Recently there was erected on this hill a monument commemorating the brave fight put up at this spot by John Simpson, one of the earliest settlers of Colorado, against a war party of Utes and Cheyennes in 1855. The Indian fighter and his wife are buried on top of the hill.

The Utes and Cheyennes made the foothills and the plains adjoining the Rockies their hunting ground, but they rarely gave trouble to settlers. Consequently, one May morning in 1855, when Simpson's children, Bob and Nora, aged 15 and 13, were making their way to a small stream near their home, they were surprised to see a large party of Indians riding toward them at a terrific pace, shaking their lances and uttering blood-thirsty cries. At the same time they heard a cry from the direction of the cabin, and saw their father running toward them with his rifle in his hand.

Simpson had just returned from an expedition. He had heard that the Cheyennes and Utes had gone on the warpath, and he had hastened home just in time to rescue his family. Seeing the trapper, the Indians hesitated, for Simpson's fame as a shot had spread throughout the frontier, and the redskins knew that several among them would meet death if they persisted in their attempt to capture the children.

Two burros were packed with provisions, a keg of water and all the ammunition the trapper possessed. Driving the burros ahead of them the members of the little family set out from the house. Simpson covered the Indians with his rifle when they approached too near, and the family was unmolested. The hill which appealed to the trapper as a good place for defense was accessible only by a single narrow, rocky path, up which one must climb today in reaching the summit of "Simpson's Rest." The summit of the hill is flat, about half an acre in extent and surrounded by a high rocky wall. It would be impossible to storm such a natural fortress except by over-powering the defenders at the narrow defile which served as an entrance.

The Indians saw that it was hopeless to attempt to storm the natural fortress, so they surrounded the hill and began a siege in the endeavor to "starve out" the defenders. The siege has no parallel in the history of the west. For five weeks the plucky pioneer and his family held their fortress. They killed their burros when provisions ran low. Fortunately, there had been heavy rains, and depressions in the rocks at the top of the hill were filled with water, giving an ample supply. At the end of the fifth week, when hope was nearly abandoned, the Indians suddenly brought in their ponies and rode away with shrill cries. A troop of cavalry from Fort Lyon, 150 miles distant, which had been sent out to render aid to any settlers who might have escaped the marauding Indians, soon came in view, and Simpson and his family were rescued.

Women's Chances.

The plan of the Brooklyn priest who suggests a fine of $100 for every young man who reaches his twenty-fifth birthday unmarried, and a legal requirement that every unmarried woman must propose at least three times each leap year, recalls an interesting table which was once compiled.

Reckoning a woman's entire chance of marrying at 100, the table purports to give her varying chances at different times of life. For example, between the ages of 15 and 20 her chance is 14½ per cent. Between 20 and 25 it jumps to 52 per cent. falling between 25 and 30 to 18, and to 15 per cent. between 30 and 35. After 40 it is only 2 per cent., and after 60 she has only one chance in 1,000.

The priest thinks that "training, tradition and the natural bashfulness of the American girl" keep her from speaking first. Undoubtedly they do, and it is to be hoped they will continue so to do. "Natural bashfulness," as the father calls it, will go farther and faster in getting a good husband than any amount of cultivated boldness.

Wanted It, and Got It.

Here is a story that will be as pleasing to a true American as it will be obnoxious to a European. Arthur Gleason tells it of Joseph Fels in the World's Work. It is about Mr. Fels' invasion of London.

"I'll take it," he said to the owner.

"But that is not customary. To whom will you refer me? To your solicitor?"

"Got friends of yours in London?"

"I came here yesterday, haven't got acquainted with anybody yet. Here's the rental money for the first six months. Take it or leave it."

"But won't tomorrow be more satisfactory for coming to a settlement?"

He got his office.

ORDINANCE No. 218

An Ordinance to Amend and Supplement Section 96 of the Codified Ordinances of the Village of Fairport, Ohio.

Section 96. It shall be unlawful for any person, other than a village contractor, village officer, or employe in the regular course of his business or employment, to dig up, remove or carry away, or cause the same to be done, any stone, earth, sand or ground from any street, alley or public ground in said village or make any opening or excavation in any street, alley or public ground without first obtaining from the Mayor, or in his absence, the Clerk, of said village as hereinafter provided, a permit so to do.

Sec. 96A. Any person desiring to make any opening or excavation in any street, alley or public ground of said village shall make written or printed application to the Mayor, or in his absence, the Clerk, which shall specify the location, size and purpose of the opening or excavation to be made. Upon the making of such application, the applicant shall deposit with the Mayor or Clerk the sum of two ($2.00) dollars to insure said opening or excavation being properly refilled and said street, alley or public ground being restored to its former condition of repair and usefulness. Thereupon the Mayor or Clerk shall issue a permit to make such opening or excavation which permit shall contain a stipulation that the person to whom the same is issued shall indemnify and save harmless said village from loss or claim for damages because of any act or omission of the holder of said permit in doing the work authorized to be done. It shall be the duty of the holder of said permit to properly guard and light any opening or excavation made under such permit. When the holder of such permit is ready to refill such opening or excavation he shall notify the commissioner of streets whose duty it shall be to inspect the filling of such opening or excavation. If the commissioner of streets finds that such opening or excavation has been properly filled and said street, alley or public ground restored to its former condition of usefulness and repair he shall so certify upon such permit and sign the same. Upon the return of such permit with said endorsement thereon by the person to whom it was issued he shall be entitled to receive said sum of two ($2.00) dollars deposited to secure the same.

Sec. 96B. The Mayor or Clerk issuing such permit shall be entitled to receive therefore a fee of Twenty five cents from the person securing the same.

Sec. 96C. Any person violating any provision of section 96 hereof shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be fined in any sum not exceeding fifty dollars.

Sec. 2. Said original section 96 of the codified ordinance of said village as codified and passed Nov. 14, 1888 be and the same is hereby repealed.

Sec. 3. This ordinance shall be in force and take effect from and after its passage and legal publication.

Passed June 27, 1912.

AUGUST WOLFF,
Mayor.

Attest:
J. O. KOSKI, Clerk.

NOTICE.

Hetty B. Hart, the unknown heirs of Hetty B. Hart, deceased, the unknown devisees of Hettie B. Hart, deceased, the unknown executors of Hetty B. Hart, deceased, the unknown administrators of Hetty B. Hart, deceased, the names and residences of all of whom are unknown to the plaintiff, will take notice that on the 6th day of July, 1912, Martha White, Mary Victoria Davis, Lillia A. Grover, and Agnes Baker, filed their petition in the Common Pleas Court of Lake County, Ohio, in Cause No. 4481 against the above named parties, claiming that plaintiffs are in the actual possession of and the owners in fee simple of the premises hereinafter described, and praying that the above named parties be compelled to show their interest, if any, in the premises hereinafter described, and that such interest may be adjudged to be null and void, and that plaintiff's title may be quieted against them.

The defendants, Hetty B. Hart, the unknown heirs of Hetty B. Hart, deceased, the unknown devisees of Hetty B. Hart, deceased, the unknown executors of Hetty B. Hart, deceased, and the unknown administrators of Hetty B. Hart, deceased, claim an estate or interest in the above described premises adverse to plaintiff's rights by reason of the fact that on and prior to April 1st, 1862, the defendant, Hetty B. Hart, was seized in fee simple of the above described premises; that on or about the 19th day of June, 1861, said Hetty B. Hart executed to one Richard H. W. Jarvis, a certain Power of Attorney granting unto said Jarvis, power to grant, sell, release and convey any lands belonging to her situated in the Western Reserve in the State of Ohio, and to make deeds therefor, which Power of Attorney is recorded in Book 8 page 37, Lake County, Ohio, Records; that on the 1st day of April, 1862, one R. W. H. Jarvis, as Agent for said Hetty B. Hart executed and delivered to Ansel White, from who the plaintiffs have derived their title to the above described premises, a deed covering said above described premises, which is recorded in Book 8, page 585, Lake County, Ohio Records.

Said Premises are described as follows: Situated in the Township of Willoughby, County of Lake, and State of Ohio, being in township No. Nine (9) in the Tenth (10) Range of Townships in the Connecticut Western Reserve, (so-called), being known and designated as the East part of Lot Number Four (4) and the West part of Lot No. Five (5), in Tract Number Sixteen (16) in said Township of Willoughby and is bounded as follows, viz: North by Lake Erie, East by the East half of Lot No. Five (5) heretofore sold to Joseph Lamoreau, south by Lot Number Eight (8) and West by a Fifty-acre tract in said Lot Number Four (4) heretofore sold to Andrew J. Heeman, containing One Hundred and Twenty-six and Seventy-three Hundredths (126.73) acres of which Sixty-six and Eighty-eight Hundredths (66.88) acres are in Lot Four (4), and Fifty-nine and Eighty-five (59.85) acres are in Lot Five (5).

Plaintiffs further say that they and their immediate predecessors in title have held the actual, open, continuous, undisputed and exclusive adverse possession of the above premises for more than Twenty-one (21) years last past, to-wit, from April 1st, 1862, as to all of the above named defendants and as to all other persons.

Plaintiffs deny that any of the above named have any interest in any of the above described property.

Said parties are required to answer on or before the 7th day of September, 1912.

OSCAR J. HORN,
Attorney for Plaintiffs.

MENTOR.

The weather has behaved finely this past week; a couple of thunder storms thrown in with the heat and the chill of evening has someway seemed to strike a balance. Many people have remarked about the cold nights when the mercury had climbed up to the nineties during the day—and no one could account for it, not even the Hick almanac man.

The glorious Fourth passed away without any broken necks, hearts or limbs, so far as we have heard, many of our people going away for the day, while others picnicked with congenial friends; some of them off in the cool woods, some on their own lawns, others at the Lake.

Miss Luella Kerr has been some better for a week or two now, even being able to sit up for a few minutes at a time, and most of our sick ones are on the gain since warmer weather set in.

Mr. and Mrs. Welcome Hardendorf of Cleveland, were down here over Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Clark Bradway.

The Ladies' Home and Foreign Missionary society meeting is to be held this week at the home of Mrs. N. W. Morley on "Morley Hill," when a lady from Willoughby is expected to address the members, and Mrs. Kendall is also expected out from Painesville. A picnic supper is to be eaten out of doors, we understand.

Since Dr. James Gray of the Moody Institute, and many other distinguished clergymen will not permit themselves to be addressed as "Rev." declaring that there is no authority for it in the scriptures, we have decided to refer to our young men preachers after this as just plain "Mister" and hope no one will feel badly about it, as it is a matter of conscience, really.

Mrs. Ada Laird of Cleveland, one of our teachers there, has been the honored guest at "Echo Hill Farm" this past week. Mrs. Frost and Mrs. Laird were classmates at school when Lake Erie College was just Lake Erie Seminary.

And here comes another "innovation." It is often seen in print that the word "Mrs." is attached to the maiden name of ladies, and so no one is able to tell who is a widow, and who is not! We have been told recently that it is very incorrect and only widows should ever be spoken of by their maiden names, but should be addressed by the name or initial of their husbands'. Since we are coming into the days of women's rights, we must be careful to be exact and always say and do the proper thing or we shall not be able to show ourselves so superior as we of course, really are.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Church and children, of Lorain, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Church during the week of the Fourth.

Mrs. Sue Barden of Knoxville, Tenn., is visiting her sister, Mrs. Spencer Munson and other friends for a week or two.

Miss Frances Cleveland, the Mentor Librarian, is taking her vacation at date, and putting in the same at Chautauqua, where she is taking the Librarian's Course, the work here is being carried on in the meantime by her assistant, Miss Ruth Bradway.

The extra days when the library was to be open, ended with the school year. Just as soon, however, as a meeting of the Library Board can be held, it is expected that some permanent arrangement will be made by which books can be drawn oftener than at present, and due notice will be given in the newspapers.

Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Barber and their family were out here for the Painesville for the day of the Fourth.

Several of the Mentor folks planned to attend the "Country Life Institute" held in Chardon last week, and were much disappointed that haying and other troubles prevented.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Sanborn, together with their daughter Dorothea and their son Wilson, have gone to Silver Lake for the summer, where we are told they will have charge of the hotel. The many friends of the family are all hoping that this will not be anything permanent, to take them away from home and the old Mentor associations.

Miss Holden of Ashtabula, one of the choir members here, has resigned her position with the Knitting Mill people, we understand and accepted a much better place at home to the regret of friends here.

Mrs. May Irwin and daughter Bessie, have moved into rooms in the pleasant cottage owned by Mrs. Sarah Green.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Sawyer are moved into their new possessions and are about to build on quite an addition to the cottage, finding themselves in need of more room.

The old friends of Mrs. William Mills, nee Miss Lizzie Corning, were glad to learn that Mr. Mills is in better health, and that they are at Watkins' Glen, a beautiful place in New York state, for the present.

The Rexford sisters entertained over Sunday the families of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lewis and Mr. and Mrs. William Clother of Painesville.

The Disciple and Methodist churches have decided to combine forces during July and August and hold union services, the minister of the other church being speaker every time. Last evening the experiment was inaugurated, and Mr. Schaffner had to preach down at the Disciple church, where, really, more people turned out than one would have expected, as it was rather—warm!

The word was sped 'round our village one day last week that Mrs. Likens had fallen and broken her right hip. She was at once taken to the home of her daughter, Mrs. Carrie Cass, who lives across the street, where she will have every care, but she suffers greatly and at the advanced age of 82, her recovery is considered very doubtful.

Mr. and Mrs. Schaffner were the recipients of many presents at the reception given them by the Methodist church at the Plains last week, where Mr. Schaffner is a much beloved as up here "on the road."

The members of Mentor Relief Corps and their friends had a very delightful picnic dinner on the grounds of Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Dickey a few days ago. As the summers are so short here, it is a pity that there are not more meals taken out in the open air with friends, really there might be less call for medicine later on.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Munson of Detroit, were here over the Fourth, and Mrs. Munson returned home Monday.

Three young men in our village were run over by automobiles last week, but only one was injured beyond a good shaking up. Mr. Morley Nutling of Cleveland, was spending his vacation down here with relatives. He was knocked from a bicycle and badly hurt, having his lip cut and teeth knocked out, to say nothing of other minor bruises. Some of our people think that all bicycles should be confined to the road. Others feel that there would be many more accidents there, as there is a constant rush of automobile or motorcycles, and it would be almost impossible to get out of their way.

During the summer months mothers of young children should watch for any unnatural looseness of the bowels. When given prompt attention at this time serious trouble may be avoided. Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy can always be depended upon. For sale by all dealers.

Why Bayona Played Badly.

Juan Antonio Bayona played the trombone badly the other night at the performance in a Madrid theater. The soprano was singing and Bayona's discordant notes disturbed her and the audience as well. Disturbed most of all was the conductor of the orchestra. He demanded an explanation and got it.

As Bayona was entering the theater that evening his cigar fell from its holder. In stooping to pick up the cigar his eye fell on a newspaper clipping. He picked that up also, and this is what he read:

A rich Spanish merchant has just died in California, leaving a fortune of $200,000,000. In his will he appoints his brother, Juan Antonio Bayona, sole executor. Inquiries made at the consulate only prove that Juan Antonio Bayona lived in Valencia until 1852 and married in Madrid in 1884, where he died in 1901."

Juan A. Bayona, the trombonist is the son of Juan A. Bayona, who answered the description in the clipping. Hence the agitation that produced the trouble with the trombone.

Educational Progress.

In the decade 1900-1910 greater progress was made in educational conditions in the United States than in any previous 10 years in the country's history. The report of the Federal bureau of education shows that the annual expenditures for public schools increased from $220,000,000 to $425,000,000, appropriations for Normal schools from $2,769,000 to $6,620,000 and the value of school property from $550,000,000 to over $1,000,000,000. Public High schools increased from 6,000 to 10,213, their teachers from about 20,000 to over 41,000 and enrolled High school pupils from 520,000 to 900,000.

The average length of the common school term increased from 144 to 156 days, and the average attendance of pupils from 99 to 114 days.

An advance from $166,175,000 to $273,425,000 was made in the productive fund of universities, colleges and technical schools and from $28,500,000 to $77,800,000 in their annual income outside of endowments.

Yet Man Boasts of His Brain.

Just think, even according to the Bible chronology it took men 6,000 years to learn that the wheel of a car on a hard smooth rail would run easier than a wheel six inches in the mud. Instead of 6,000 years it probably took man 50,000,000 years to learn this.—Exchange.

Woman Suffrage Column

By Miss Lucy Buell

Mrs. Harriet Taylor Upton, president of the Ohio Woman Suffrage Association, makes the following statement:

"Since an amendment to the Ohio constitution giving the vote to women is to be voted on September 3rd, it is fitting that a brief statement should be made to the public of the long agitation which has preceded the present movement, and of the great change in public sentiment which has taken place in regard to the question.

"In 1850 the second woman suffrage convention in the world was held in Salem, Ohio. Ohio had been a pioneer in equal educational rights for women, but there was strong sentiment for woman suffrage at that early time, but the question of abolition soon crowded out all other issues, woman suffrage included. Then the war came on, with the following years of recuperation, during which the suffrage association became inactive. In 1885 Frances N. Casement, now honorary president of the Ohio Woman Suffrage Association, with other interested women, reorganized the association, which is now conducting the amendment campaign.

"When Ohio women have become real citizens this fall, people who have helped in this final battle should know that before they were born, women more courageous than we have been called upon to be, were talking woman suffrage to the few who would listen, accepting the insults of the antis in those days, which were more brutal if not more degrading than those offered today. Then, the antis were a great majority, today they are a trifling minority. Then, they were the leading men of the country, today they are a few satisfied women of leisure, ignorant of the world and backed by the interests whose unconscious tools they are. When the suffragists memorialized the constitutional convention in 1851, only two men, one of them Mr. Gray of Painesville, the last survivor of that body, were in favor. The discussion on our question was of so low a nature that it was afterward expunged from the minutes. In the convention of 1874 the question was treated more fairly, a number of able men speaking for it. Hon. Martin Foran introduced the question into the convention. The action of the present convention is fresh in all minds. From the beginning there was hope. The hearing before the committee was attended by a larger number of committeemen than any other hearing. Twenty men voted for us and one against. The question when brought to a second reading had a vote of 76 to 34, on third reading 74 to 37, on fourth reading only 24 voted against it. At the close of the convention, our bitterest enemy admitted openly that we had been absolutely fair throughout the whole consideration, and many delegates promised to speak for us this summer.

The Ohio Woman Suffrage Association has little money, has had little money, and will have little money. No Ohio woman is receiving any salary for any work, and some are devoting all spare time to the campaign. We have had no alliances. No body of men are contributing to our expenses, and yet we will win in spite of obstacles, in spite of the activity of evil forces and the indifference of up-to-date Pharisees, and goo-goos, because at last the majority of men begin to long for honest dealings, for justice, for an equal chance for all in this great free country.

Homely Old English Rhymes.

"God speed the plow and bless the corn mow" goes back to the 15th century days. A genuine custom rhyme from Suffolk runs thus: "Here's a health to the barley mow. Here's a health to the man who very well can both harrow and plow and sow." Such a good old toast ought not to be allowed to languish.—London Mail.

Success Means Constant Effort.

Success is only for those who are willing to stand by their standards—who are ready to endure the siege of misjudgment who are prepared to face the fire of criticism and to accept defeat until they become vaccinated against it. Most men who gave up would have arrived if they had kept up.—Herbert Kaufman.

A Girl's Wild Midnight Ride.

To warn people of a fearful forest fire in the Catskills a young girl rode horseback at midnight and saved many lives. Her deed was glorious but lives are often saved by Dr. King's New Discovery in curing lung trouble, coughs and colds, which might have ended in consumption or pneumonia. "It cured me of a dreadful cough and lung disease," writes W. R. Patterson, Wellington, Tex., "after four in our family had died of consumption, and I gained 87 pounds." Nothing so sure and safe for all lung troubles. Price 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by Barnes' Pharmacy.

The IVORY POACHERS of the LADO ENCLAVE

by W. ROBERT FORAN

COPYRIGHT BY THE RIDGWAY COMPANY

There's a legion that never was 'listed,
That carries no colors or crest,
But, split in a thousand detachments,
Is breaking the road for the rest.
—Kipling

I WAS trailing ex-President Theodore Roosevelt through Uganda on the last stages of his year's hunting trip in Central Africa, being the only newspaper correspondent to remain in the field out of the small army of them who had set out with him from New York in March, 1909, when my travels took me to the shores of the Albert Nyanza, from which the White Nile obtains its source. Here are the headquarters of the small body of men who are braving all manner of dangers to make a fortune by elephant hunting in "No Man's Land," as the Lado Enclave territory on the Belgian Congo, bordering on the great River Nile, has been termed.

Many of these men were personally known to me during my residence in British East Africa as a government official. I had [illegible] these hardy and intrepid tamers of the uncivilized sections of the great equatorial hinterland of Central Africa, and what I saw and heard of them at the Albert Nyanza and on the banks of the Nile did not lessen my regard for them as men. Perhaps their calling as elephant poachers may not have been regular in the eyes of the law, but then there was such an element of danger connected with their work that the offenses of which they were guilty paled before all other considerations, and one is forced to concede to them the possession of the acme of pluck. The freebooter or soldier of fortune is ever a picturesque figure and the Congo poachers amply fill this role.

I had marched one hundred and sixty-five miles across the dreary, swelteringly hot Uganda country, and it was with feelings of extreme relief that I saw the shimmering expanse of the waters of the Albert Nyanza from the rugged hilltops overlooking Butiaba, the small port on the sandy shore of the lake.

I had heard from natives that one of the Congo poachers was in camp at Butiaba, but none of them seemed to know his name and I was at a loss to know who he might be. I remembered that there were a number of men whom I knew intimately poaching in this district, and I wondered whether perchance I was to be given an opportunity of renewing my acquaintance with one of them. Perhaps it might be John Boyes, nicknamed "King of the Kikuyu," or "Karamoja" Bell, the mightiest of elephant-hunters, the Honorable Rupert Craven, brother of Earl Craven; young Quentin Grogan, brother of Captain Ewart S. Grogan of Cape-to-Cairo fame; Pickering, a noted elephant-hunter; Bennett, an ex-engineer of the Nile launches, W. Buckley, a partner of Pickering's, or Pearson, to say nothing of many others whom I had met from time to time. I mention them by their correct names, for they made no secret of their calling and I feel sure that I am not committing any indiscretion by so doing.

Each one of these men has a history, and each and every one of them can tell thrilling tales of his experiences not only in the Congo but also in every other part of Africa.

My interested conjectures as to who the man at Butiaba might be were soon set at rest. It is the custom for all white men in Africa to call on any other white man who may camp in their vicinity, and so it was not long before the "poacher" came to my camp to see me. It proved to be Bennett, the ex-engineer of the Uganda Nile fleet, who had abandoned his professional calling for the more thrilling and lucrative work of shooting elephants for their ivory. For many years he had been in charge of the small steam launch plying between Butiaba and Nimule on the Nile, and during these years he had done much shooting on the banks of the river. His haul of ivory added each year to his small income as a launch engineer, so that it was a bad year indeed when he did not double, nay treble, his paltry salary. He had been with Winston Churchill, when the latter made his trip up the Nile on the government flotilla when [illegible] East Africa and Uganda in his official capacity as [illegible] secretary of state for the colonies.

This is the story of a man as told to me on my first night in camp at Butiaba, sitting in my tent [illegible] off the attack of greedy mosquitoes while [illegible] the aid of my limited supply of whisky. The story was so startling that often I had to pinch myself during its recital to satisfy myself that I [illegible] days of Emin Pasha and Stanley [illegible]

I noticed that his hands were badly lacerated, in fact in a fearful state, and all the time we conversed about generalities I was wondering what had been the cause. Presently the conversation turned to the subject of elephant shooting, and I asked him how he was progressing with his quest for ivory. I had got him interested now and leaned back in my easy camp-chair to listen.

He said he had just returned from the Congo where he had been shooting elephants for some months at the back of Mahagi, and that he had been very successful up to a certain point, but then had lost all his hard-gotten ivory and all his effects owing to an attack from the natives. His subsequent narrative was an enthralling one, and I wish that it were possible for me to reproduce it exactly as he told it to me on that still African night.

"I got on very well with the natives and had got some very fine tusks," he continued. "One day I was out after some elephants, which had been located by the natives for me, and came across four huge tuskers. I fired at the biggest, but only succeeded in mortally wounding it. He charged through the tall elephant grass toward me with his huge ears outspread and his trunk raised high above its head. He screamed fearfully with rage and pain and the sight was indeed a terrifying one. I fired at point-blank range and again hit him mortally. The elephant continued his charge and one of my native servants failed to get out of his way. The elephant pushed the native to one side with his tusk in passing and the boy fell to the ground without a sound. The elephant fell down dead a short distance away.

"The three remaining elephants were wild with rage and rushed hither and thither tearing down the trees in all directions as if they had been made of paper, screaming shrilly all the time. It was an anxious moment for me, for I was within fifty feet of them at the time of my first shot. At last they made off across country toward the lake and I followed them up and succeeded in bagging all three of them in three shots at close range.

"I returned to look for my native servant, thinking that he would be watching over my first tusker. To my astonishment I found the boy lying dead where he had fallen when the elephant bowled him over. I examined him carefully and found that no bones had been fractured nor was there a mark on his body. He must have died from shock at the terrifying experience.

"On or about December 10th I moved off farther inland after a big herd and camped, leaving my main camp two days behind me. Within a radius of twenty miles of me there were four other white poachers, namely, Pearson, Dickinson, Boyes and Knowles. The natives appeared perfectly friendly to me. On my first night in camp they visited me dancing and singing round my camp fire. I suspected no treachery from them; on the contrary they appeared willing to keep me informed of the movements of the elephants and of the Belgian military patrol, which was operating in the district endeavoring to capture us poachers.

"Next day the same thing happened and I was asked to attend to the leg of one of the tribesmen who had been injured badly in a native brawl. I bathed the wound and was winding a bandage round the wounded leg when I suddenly felt my wrists seized. A rope was quickly cast round my neck, other ropes were fastened round my legs and arms and I was jerked roughly off the camp stool on which I was sitting. Then the natives seized my guns and all my camp equipment was deliberately destroyed before my eyes. A native seized my helmet and insolently paraded before me with it on his own head. I was then beaten savagely across the back of the hands and on the body with sticks. My hands burst open, hurting frightfully, and the sun beat down upon my head with terrific force.

"I was made to march with my captors jeering at me and subjecting me to awful indignities, for four whole days through the broiling sun until their powerful chief's village was reached. Here the chief came forward and shook me by my wounded and manacled hands, bidding his followers release me. He was a fine-looking old savage, with a very intelligent face, standing over six feet high.

"On the orders of the chief I was offered milk to drink and given a native hut to live in as a prisoner under a strong guard. My food during this time consisted of raw meat and very little of that. After some days of torture wondering what they intended to do with me, I was haled before the chief and given a public trial. I could understand what they were saying and it appeared that all, except the chief, were in favor of my death. Fortunately for me the chief's wishes prevailed and I was released and allowed to return to Mahagi, on my giving a guaranty that I would never again hunt in this district. I was threatened with instant death and torture if I was caught again by them.

"Then began six days' journey through the blazing African sun with all my clothes in rags, no helmet and no hat, no water, and no food except what I could find by the way, which was very little, seeing that I had no rifle. All my camp equipment, stores and rifles had been taken away from me and I had lost all my ivory, the result of many months' arduous work in the Congo.

"At last, after days of infinite torture, I reached the camp of a Belgian official near Mahagi, who clothed and fed me, promising me that the natives would be punished. This was indeed kind of him, for it must be remembered that I was a poacher in the Belgian territory and liable to ten years' imprisonment if captured by the Belgians in the act of poaching ivory. I have came to Butiaba to try to get together another outfit and return to the Mahagi district to replace my losses. I am determined to make up my lost time and feel confident that I can do so."

I wish that I could tell the tale with the unaffected simplicity and nothing-out-of-the-ordinary manner in which Bennett told it to me.

The next day I left by launch for Koba, the first government post on the Nile. Here I found a small village of white elephant-poachers, but all of them were away after ivory in the Congo at the time of my visit. They live on the British side of the Nile and make periodical excursions into the Congo after ivory. The British government allows Congo ivory to pass through its territory on payment of twenty-five per cent custom duty, and in a way this encourages the poachers, for they are allowed to shoot only two, or at most three, elephants each year in East Africa or Uganda, on payment of a $250 license. In the Congo no license is necessary and they may shoot as many tuskers as they can, without a license, if they can evade being captured by the Belgians or the natives.

Each man takes untold risks when he follows this calling. Not only does he chance ten years' imprisonment in a chain-gang in the interior of the Congo, if caught by the Belgians, but he also takes his life in his hands every time he shoots an elephant, for he crawls into a herd through the fifteen or twenty-foot grass, selects the biggest bull and then shoots it at a range of from ten to fifteen yards. No one who has not tried elephant shooting can realize the terrifying aspect of a herd of elephants when you are close to them. They move so silently, and yet each one is capable of crushing the life out of any man who dares disturb their peace.

At Koba I found the houses, made of grass and mud, of John Boyes, the Honorable Rupert Craven, and of Pickering and Buckley. "Karamoja" Bell had given up poaching for the time being, as he had made more than sufficient out of it to satisfy all his desires. Bell is a young Englishman, who has a big estate in England and an annual rent-roll of some $15,000. He came out to Central Africa seeking adventure in 1902, when only eighteen years of age, and at once turned his attention to elephant hunting.

I am told that in the last eight years Bell has spent $100,000 in seeking ivory and has made $200,000, so that he has cleared one hundred per cent.

John Boyes, alias "King of the Kikuyu," was, unfortunately, poaching in the Congo. I should have liked to renew my acquaintance with him, for he is a remarkable character. Boyes was at one time an able-bodied seaman on a merchant vessel and was wrecked, or deserted, I know not which, at Zanzibar, many years previous to my first meeting with him in 1901. He had spent all his time cattle-trading and ivory-hunting in the wilds, and for many years made the territory of the Akikuyu tribe his headquarters. He had become blood-brother to their king, Kinanjui, and then had made himself virtually their king.

Found Comfort in Books

Great Writers Have Borne Testimony to the Enjoyment of the Printed Volumes.

The opportunity offered for cultivating acquaintance with good books is not the least reason for spending four years in a college atmosphere. In the year 1700 when William and Mary were on the throne of England, James Pierpont selected 11 trustees, nine of whom were graduates of Harvard, who, it is recorded, met at Branford, Conn. Each of these 11 brought a number of books, and, laying them on the table, said, "I give these books for the foundation of a college in this colony."

This was the early foundation of Yale. The influence of such foundations upon the ideals of American students has been considerable. Many a men has discovered in college what Thackeray meant when he wrote to his mother in 1852, "I used, you know, to hanker after parliament, police magistracies, and so forth; but no occupation I can devise is so profitable as that which I have at my hand in that old inkstand." Robert Louis Stevenson—and who can forget him in thinking of books?—said 30 years after his schooldays, "I have really enjoyed this book as I—almost as I used to enjoy books when I was going twenty to twenty-three; and these are the years for reading. Books," he continued, "were the proper remedy: books of vivid human import, forcing upon the minds of young men the issues, pleasures, business importance and immediacy of that life in which they stand; books of smiling or heroic temper, to excite or to console."—C. S. Cooper in Century.

PROPAGATION OF THE ROSE NOT VERY DIFFICULT TASK

Many Growers Start Flowers on Their Own Roots, but the Majority Prefer the Budded Plants—No Garden Is Complete Without Them and Should Be Grown Abundantly.

(By H. ERICHSEN.)

Nothing can be said in praise of the rose that has not been said before. Universally recognized as the most beautiful flower, it is the one child of Flora around which a wealth of sentiment, history and poetry clusters. The maidens of ancient Greece and Rome adorned themselves with chaplets and garlands of roses, as does the maiden of today, and then as now the rose was regarded as the emblem of beauty and true worth, fit to crown a queen. No wonder, then, that it is so highly esteemed that even the orchid, so often regarded as its rival, will never supersede it in popular estimation.

Of late the beauty of the rose has been so widely appreciated that the popularity it now enjoys and the demand for hardy garden roses are annually increasing. No garden is complete without roses and every family ought to grow them in abundance, for never have roses been so cheap and beautiful as now. Moreover, the cultivation of the flower is so simple that no excuse can be offered for its neglect.

The first requisite for success in rose growing is the selection of good healthy plants. Weak, sickly roses are dear at any price. Many of these plants lack vigor because they are stunted by remaining too long in the cutting bed or in small pots, before they are set out. In order to obtain the best results therefore it is advisable to restrict one's patronage to first-class nurserymen only; firms that are prepared to furnish strong, well-rooted plants, such as will make a showing the first season and develop into vigorous specimens.

In selecting roses for the garden, it is well to know that these plants are grown in two ways, that is to say on their own roots or budded low on the Manetti, a brier-rose that has largely superseded the Dog-rose and other stocks in this country.

Experts are divided on the question as to which should receive the preference, and the beginner is liable to be in a quandary because growers are apt to argue for their own method of propagation. But of late years many eminent rosarians have pronounced themselves in favor of budded plants. A prominent firm of rose-growers at Rochester, N. Y., that is known the world over for the excellence of its roses, concretely expressed this conviction as follows:

We find many varieties of roses grown on this stock (Manetti) adapt themselves to a greater range of climate and soil, bloom more profusely, endure better the heat of the summer and make far stronger plants than if grown from their own roots. Many object to budded roses on account of the suckers they sometimes throw out; but if proper attention is paid to the planting this will rarely be an annoyance. Budded roses should be planted sufficiently deep, so that the junction of the bud with the stock is from two to three inches below the surface of the earth. If despite this precaution, a wild shoot should happen to start from the base, the growth and foliage of the stock are so distinct that it is readily recognized by the most inexperienced amateur and is easily removed.

Another authority on this subject goes even further and contends that many fine varieties of the queenly flower are utterly worthless unless they are budded. My own experience coincides with that referred to above.

Moreover, I found that it is possible as a rule, to replace budded roses more cheaply than those grown on their own roots, which is another point in their favor, particularly in localities where many roses are liable to be winter killed.

Roses must be grown to perfection in ordinary garden soil provided they are planted in a sunny sheltered location away from the roots of large trees, for these will absorb all the life-sustaining nutrition of the soil, whereas young trees and dwarf shrubbery do no harm.

DEVICE KEEPS A STALL CLEAN

The main feature of the fastener here represented is the bar L which is intended to prevent the cow from crowding forward so that the droppings fall on the platform. The other parts can be modified to suit individual tastes.

A A A are the divisions between the mangers, the bottom being 16 inches long and the top 30 inches.

B is a strip 1 by 4 inches, 3 feet long, one to be nailed on each side of the partition A, as shown in the drawing.

C is the side of the manger next to the feeding alley.

F is a 1 by 8 inch board, 4 feet long, with a slot 3 feet long by 2 inch wide in lower end to allow its being slipped over partition A, between strip B and board D, and should be securely nailed to it and D.

H and I are 1 by 2 inch strips, 8 inches long between F and J. The upper edge of I should be 31 or 32 inches from the standing floor.

J is a 1 by 8 inch board, 4 feet long, nailed on D and bolted through H and I to F. This leaves a slot one inch wide between F and J for bar L to play in from I to H.

K K are blocks securely fastened to J to hang swinging partitions to. The upper one should be 2½ inches thick and the lower one 2 inches.

L is a bar 2 by 2 inches extending across the stall with a tenon 4 inches long on each end to work loosely in the slot between the boards F and J.

When standing at rest the cow has her head over the bar L. When eating she puts her head under the bar. If she wishes to raise her head while eating she can do so, as the bar will raise to strip H.

For partitions between the cows use 1 by 4 inch strips 6 feet long, and braces of the same material. These partitions are hung by ordinary T hinges to the blocks KK, so they will swing both ways. At the gutter provide chains with a snap on one end, and of proper length to reach from one partition to the next. These chains hold the partitions in place and keep the cows in the stall.

INDIAN RUNNER BREED OF DUCKS

They Are Not Particularly Large, But Make Excellent Eating, Especially as Broilers.

There never was a breed of poultry that has sprung to the front as fast as the Indian Runner duck. If there is such a thing as a double purpose fowl, the Indian Runners fill the bill. They are not large, but make excellent eating, especially as broilers. They are veritable egg machines and the advantage they have over all other breeds of ducks is that their eggs are fit for the table; they are as delicate as hens' eggs, having no unpleasant flavor or appearance. The color of this breed is fawn and white, the bill greenish. Some of these ducks have made wonderful egg records, but the records in this country rest entirely on the word of those who make them, which we cannot doubt. However, authentic records come from Australia, at the agricultural college of New South Wales, where egg-laying contests have been carried on for eight years. Professor Thompson, who has charge of these tests, says: "Whatever the question is in regard to heavier ducks, it appears as though Indian Runners can beat any other variety of poultry." It is claimed that the birds of this breed lay as well in the fourth year as they do in the first. There is a lively market for Indian Runners and it is believed they will help solve the problem of egg production in this country.

Why the Hog Roots.

Hogs do not dig in the earth altogether for the fun of it. They get a lot to eat that way—grass roots, worms, bits of stuff of different kinds, that help to make bone and muscle.

Brains in Farming.

It does not follow that the farmer, in order to be prosperous, must be a drudge. Brains count as well as muscle.

The GIRL from His Town

SYNOPSIS.

Dan Blair, the 22-year-old son of the fifty-million-dollar copper king of Blairtown, Mont., is a guest at the English home of Lady Galorey. Dan's father had been courteous to Lord Galorey during his visit to the United States and the courtesy is now being returned to the young man. The youth has an ideal girl in his mind. He meets Lily, Duchess of Breakwater, a beautiful widow, who is attracted by his immense fortune and takes a liking to her. When Dan was a boy, a girl sang a solo at a church and he had never forgotten her. The Galoreys, Lily and Dan attend a London theater where one Letty Lane is the star. Dan recognizes her as the girl from his town, and going behind the scenes introduces himself and she remembers him. He learns that Prince Poniatowsky is suitor and escort to Letty. Lord Galorey and a friend named Ruggles determine to protect the westerner from Lily and other fortune hunters. Young Blair goes to see Lily; he can talk of nothing but Letty and this angers the Duchess. The westerner finds Letty ill from hard work, but she recovers and Ruggles and Dan invite her to supper. She asks Dan to build a home for disappointed theatrical people. Dan visits Lily, for the time forgetting Letty, and later announces his engagement to the duchess. Letty refuses to sing for an entertainment given by Lily. Galorey tells Dan that all Lily cares for is his money and it is disclosed that he and the duchess have been mutually in love for years. Letty sings at an aristocratic function, Dan escorting her home. Dan confronts Galorey and Lily together. Later he informs Letty that his engagement with Lily is broken, asks the singer to marry him and they become engaged. Ruggles [illegible] the westerner should not marry a public singer, and endeavors to induce Letty to give him up. She runs away, fearing she is not good enough for Dan.

"You say she's gone?" he questioned.

"I say," said the boy, "that you've been meddling in my affairs with the woman I love. I don't know what you have said to her, but it's only your age that keeps me from striking you. Don't you know," he cried, "that you are spoiling my life? Don't you know that?" A torrent of feeling coming to his lips, his eyes suffused, the tears rolled down his face. He walked away into his own room, remained there a few moments, and when he came out again he carried in his hand his valise, which he put down with a bang on the table. More calmly, but still in great anger, he said to his father's friend:

"Now, can you tell me what you've done or not?"

"Dan," said Ruggles with difficulty, "if you will sit down a moment we —"

The boy laughed in his face. "Sit down!" he cried. "Why, I think you must have lost your reason. I have chartered a motor car out there and the damned thing has burst a tire and they are fixing it up for me. It will be ready in about two minutes and then I am going to follow wherever she has gone. She crossed to Paris, but I can get there before she can even with this damned accident. But, before I go, I want you to tell me what you said."

"Why," said Ruggles quietly, "I told her you were poor, and she turned you down."

His words were faint.

"God!" said the boy under his breath. "That's the way you think about truth. Lie to a woman to save my precious soul! But I expect," he said; "you think she is so immoral and so bad that she will hurt me. Well," he said, with great emphasis, "she has never done anything in her life that comes up to what you've done. Never! And nothing has ever hurt me so."

His lips trembled. "I have lost my respect for you, for my father's friend, and as far as she is concerned, I don't care what she marries me for. She has got to marry me, and if she doesn't"—he had no idea, in his passion, what he was saying or how—"why, I think I'll kill you first and then blow my own brains out!" And with these mad words he grabbed up his valise and bolted from the room, and Ruggles could hear his running feet tearing down the corridor.

CHAPTER XXVI.

White and Coral.

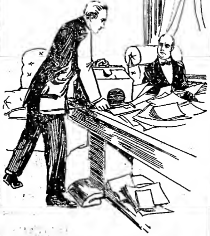
Spring in Paris, which comes in a fashion so divine that even the most callous and indifferent are impressed by its beauty, awakened no answering response in the heart of the young man who, from his hotel window, looked out on the desecrated gardens of the Tuileries—on the distant spires of churches whose names he did not know—on the square block of old palaces. He had missed the boat across the channel taken by Letty Lane, and the delay had made him lose what little trace of her he had. In the early hours of the morning he had flung himself in at the St. James, taken the indifferent room they could give him in the crowded season, and excited as he was he slept and did not waken until noon. Blair thought it would be a matter of a few hours only to find the whereabouts of the celebrated actress, but it was not such an easy job. He had not guessed that she might be traveling incognito, and at none of the hotels could he hear news of her, nor did he pass her in the crowded, noisy, rustling, crying streets, though he searched motors for her with eager eyes, and haunted restaurants and cafes, and went everywhere that he thought she might be likely to be.

At the end of the third day, unsuccessful and in despair, having hardly slept and scarcely eaten, the unhappy young lover found himself taking a slight luncheon in the little restaurant known as the Perouse down on the Quais. His head on his hand, for the present moment the joy of life gone from him, he looked out through the windows at the Seine, at the bridge and the lines of flowering trees. He was the only occupant of the upper room where, of late, he had ordered his luncheon.

The tide of life rolled slowly in this quieter part of the city, and as Blair sat there under the window there passed a piper playing a shrill, sweet tune. It was so different from any of the loud metropolitan clamors, with which his ears were full, that he got up, walked to the window, and leaned out. It was a pastoral that met his eyes. A man piping, followed by little pattering goats; the primitive, unlooked-for picture caught his tired attention, and, just then, opposite the Quais, two women passed—flower sellers, their baskets bright with crocuses and giroflées. The bright picture touched him and something of the spring-like beauty that the day wore and that dwelt in the May light, soothed him as nothing had for many hours.

He paid his bill, took courage, picked up his hat and gloves and stick and walked out briskly, crossing the bridge to the Rue de Rivoli, determined that night should not fall until he found the woman he sought. Nor did it, though the afternoon wore on and Dan, pursuing his old trails, wandered from worldly [illegible] worldly meeting place. Finally, toward six o'clock, he saw the lengthening shadows steal into the woods of the Bois de Boulogne, and in one of the smaller alleys, where the green-trunked trees of the forests were full of purple shadows and yellow sun discs, flickering down, he picked up a small iron chair and sat himself down, with a long sigh, to rest.

While he sat there watching the end of the allee as it gave out into the broader road, a beautiful red motor rolled up to the conjunction of the two ways and Letty Lane, in a summer frock, got out alone. She had a flowing white veil around her head and a flowing white scarf around her shoulders. As the day on the Thames, she was all in white—like a dove. But this time her costume was made vivid and picturesque by the coral parasol she carried, a pair of coral-colored kid shoes, around her neck and falling on their long chain, she wore his coral beads. He saw that he observed her face before she did him. All this Dan saw before he dashed into the road, came up to her with something like a cry on his lips, bareheaded, for his hat and his stick and his gloves were by his chair in the woods.



"Why," Said Ruggles Quietly, "I Told Her You Were Poor, and She Turned You Down."

Letty Lane's hands went to her heart and her face took on a deadly pallor. She did not seem glad to see him. Out of his passionate description of the hours that he had been through, of how he had looked for her, of what he thought and wanted and felt, the actress made what she could, listening to him as they both stood there under the shadows of the green trees. Scanning her face for some clew that she loved him, for it was all he cared for, Dan saw no such indication there. He finished with:

"You know what Ruggles told you was a lie. Of course, I've got money enough to give you everything you want. He's a lunatic and ought to be shut up."

"It may have been a lie, all right," she said with forced indifference; "I've had time to think it over. You are too young. You don't know what you want." She stopped his protestations: "Well, then, I am too old and I don't want to be tied down."

When he pressed her to tell him whether or not she had ceased to care for him, she shook her head slowly, marking on the ground fine tracery with the end of her coral parasol. He had been obliged to take her back to the red motor, but before they were in earshot of her servants, he said:

"Now, you know just what you have done to me, you and Ruggles between you! For my father's sake and the things I believed in I've kept pretty straight, as things go." He nodded at her with boyish egotism, throwing all the blame on her. "I want you to understand that from now, right now, I'm going to the dogs just as fast as I can get there, and it won't be a very gratifying result to anybody that ever cared."

She saw the determination on his fine young face, worn by his sleepless nights, already matured and changed, and she believed him.

"Paris," he nodded toward the gate of the woods which opened upon Paris, "is the place to begin in—right here. A man," he went on, and his lips trembled, "can only feel like this once in his life. You know all the talk there is about young love and first love. Well, that's what I've got for you, and I'm going to turn it now—right now—into what older people warn men from, and do their best to prevent. I have seen enough of Paris," he went on, "these days. I have been looking for you, to know where to go and what to do, and I am setting off for it now."

She touched his arm.

"No," she murmured. "No, boy, you are not going to do any such thing!"

This much from her was enough for him. He caught her hand and cried: "Then you marry me. What do we care for anybody else in the world?"

"Go back and get your hat and stick and gloves," she commanded, keeping down the tears.

"No, no, you come with me, Letty; I'm not going to let you run to your motor and escape me again."

As he snatched up the inanimate objects from the leaf-strewn ground where he had thrown them in despair, he thought how things can change in a quarter of an hour.

Jubilant to have overcome the fate which had tried to keep her hidden from him in Paris, he could hardly believe [illegible] them again, and, as the motor rolled into the Avenue des Acacias, he asked her the question uppermost in his mind:

"Are you alone in Paris, Letty?"

"Don't you count?"

"No—no—honestly, you know what I mean."

"You haven't any right to ask me that."

"I have—I have. You gave me a right. You're engaged to me, aren't you? Gosh, you haven't forgotten, have you."

"Don't make me conspicuous in the Bois, Dan," she said; "I only let you come with me because you were so terribly desperate, so ridiculous."

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

THAT CLINGING REST HABIT

Hard to Break, but It Can Be Done, Says the Amiable Mr. Glimmerton.

"For that don't feel like work feeling with which," said Mr. Glimmerton, "I fancy we are all of us more or less likely to be afflicted, I would in some cases prescribe rest, though in most cases no doubt the proper prescription would be exertion.

"The trouble with the rest cure is that it is like taking opiates, the more you take the more you want. The rest habit is easy to acquire and hard to break.

"The habit of exertion, on the contrary, is one that commonly we do not take to so kindly. It does not, as it were, spontaneously permeate us as the rest habit does; it may in fact require assiduous cultivation, and it takes quite a man to acquire this habit in a completely saturating and permanent form so that he is proof against attacks of the rest habit, which if he has a trace of it left in him is sure to develop on the slightest provocation.

"Exertion is the only real cure. It may be hard to take at first, but you'll come to like it. Persist and you'll find it vastly strengthening and then delightful, and then, while in taking the rest cure you are all the time paying money out, in taking this one you have money all the time coming in.

"Try work, continuous, steady, hard work. Once get the habit of work embedded in your system and you won't be troubled any more by that tired feeling."

Finland Appeals to Tourist.

Finland, with its thousand lakes, is now considered attractive enough to be on the general tourist's list.

Health & Beauty Hints

By Katherine Morton

Freckles must be treated in the same way as tan, with hot water packs, massage, cold cream and a freckle or bleaching lotion. Steaming the face at once when coming in from a sea bath, or from a boating or yachting trip, and a gentle and systematic course of massage will be very helpful in warding off any serious hurt to the skin.

Buttermilk and cucumber juice—mixed together—make a simple bleacher anybody can afford, and if nothing else is handy rubbing the skin with the cut side of a fresh cucumber will undoubtedly be beneficial.

An excellent cucumber milk, which is said to be a specific with sensitive skins for sunburn or freckles, and which is most useful for the roughness following skin injuries at the seashore or in the country, is made in this way:

| | |
|---|---|
| Oil of sweet almonds | 4 ounces |
| Fresh cucumber juice | 10 ounces |
| Essence of cucumbers | 3 ounces |
| Powdered castile soap (white) | ¼ ounce |
| Tincture of benzoin | 2-3 dram |

The cucumber juice is obtained by boiling the vegetables in a very little water. Slice these, skin and all, and let them cook in a double boiler until mushy, strain through a fine sieve and then through [illegible]. Make the essence by putting an ounce and a half of the cucumber juice into the same quantity of high proof alcohol. Put the essence and the soap in a large preserve jar with tight top and shake the mixture a good deal. After some hours the soap will be dissolved, when it is time to put in the cucumber juice. Shake the jar until the two mixtures thoroughly blend, then pour out into a crockery bowl and add the oil and benzoin, beating with a silver fork until the liquid is creamy. The cucumber juice must be strong, for it is the arsenic in the vegetable which gives it a bleaching power.

Put the milk in small bottles, corking them tightly and keeping them in the dark. Shake always before using. This mixture is immediately absorbed by the skin and so it is very grateful after new sunburn.

To Make Bust Firm.—At night bathe the bust with warm water, then massage gently with the cream given below. In the morning bathe the bust with very cold water and a few drops of tincture of benzoin. Practice deep breathing before an open window for ten minutes every morning.

MASSAGE CREAM.

| Almond oil | 30 grammes |
| Benzoin | 12 drops |
| Oil of rose | 4 drops |

Chicken Pox Pittings.—Chicken pox pittings can be removed only by one who thoroughly understands that work. The face should have been kept greased from the time the pustules first appeared and they would not likely have left any scars.

MADAME and her TOILET

Cucumber cream will whiten the skin.

Elder flower water is a pleasant lotion to apply to the skin.

Never use very hot water to wash the face; it will dry and wrinkle the skin.

Scars which are not deep may be removed by the daily rubbing with cocoa butter.

Never scrape the finger nails; it will thicken and make them uneven and full of ridges.

To keep the finger nails clean when polishing the stove put lard underneath the edges and around the nails, and the blacking will not disfigure them.

A good lotion to contract enlarged pores and one that will also whiten the skin is made by shaking together one ounce of tincture of camphor, one-half ounce of tincture benzoin and three ounces of rosewater.

Ribbon Favorites

Moire ribbons in great variety continue in an excellent position, says the Dry Goods Economist. Changeable moire in narrow widths with fancy black cable or cord edges are particularly prominent. Narrow cord-edged taffetas are also meeting with marked favor. In millinery these ribbons are chiefly employed as box pleatings to encircle crowns or outline brims. The [illegible] ribbons with handsome wide moire stripes extending down the center are being featured with decided success. These are shown principally in pastel shades, suitable for use as sashes and girdles for summer gowns.

Astringent Hair Lotion.

When the hair is falling out by the roots, as the saying is, an astringent lotion will be found very beneficial. This may be composed of ten ounces of witch hazel and one dram of tannic acid; shake well together and strain. It is then ready for use, and may be applied to the roots of the hair, rubbing it well with the finger tips.

To Make Money.

Your department has often helped me, so I come to you again. Our Sunday school class of about twenty girls, from fifteen to eighteen years of age, has pledged $35, to be paid by Christmas, for the hospital which is to be built soon. Only two or three of the girls are rich, our teacher is in poor health, the scholars are not very enthusiastic and things seem to be in a deplorable condition. Please suggest some idea to make money. We have tried markets, but I think they are better for fall. Lawn parties have been suggested, but do not seem suitable. What do you think of a play?
C. H. S.

My dear, only $35 and between now and the holidays to make it—I am surprised that you girls even think of being discouraged—and for such a worthy object as a hospital. A play would be good if you have talent to make it a success. I know a bunch of youngsters, none over thirteen, that in a week's time got up a vaudeville which they gave in a private house and made $23. Now, you get right to work, have a lawn fete with a "circus," your play, [illegible] ments. The details you must work out yourselves, but watch the department. I put every idea I can beg, borrow or steal right into it, and before the winter comes I hope you will have made far more than the stated sum.

A Farewell Lawn Party.

Having been interested in your paper I thought I would ask you a few questions.

My cousin, who has lived in this town many years, is going to move away. I like her very much and want to give a farewell party for her. Would it be all right to have both boys and girls? What should I serve? Would it be all right to give a lawn party? What games should we play (being girls of 16 years)? Would it be all right to have tables on the lawn and have Japanese lanterns hung around the lawn?
D. E.

By all means have a lawn party, they are just the right thing for this season. Make the grounds gay with lanterns, [illegible] festivity. Yes, ask both boys and girls, and can't you possibly have a platform for dancing? All you need serve is ice cream and small cakes, with a bowl of fruit lemonade or punch conveniently placed where all may help themselves during the evening. You can arrange guessing contests and—if well lighted—you could have croquet.

From Marie.

I read your part of the paper every Sunday and enjoy it very much, and think if we would abide by your kind advice we would always be on the safe side.

A young lady chanced to meet a young man on the street with whom she had worked in a store and he asked her to go in the drug store and get some cold drinks with him. After they had finished he did not leave the store with her, but made some careless remark to her about his having to go to work. Should he have gone out with her, or was it perfectly right for him to act as he did?
MARIE.

Under ordinary circumstances the young man would have been more polite had he gone out with the young woman, but if he was on his way to his work and just meeting her accidentally and asking her to have some refreshments, I do not think he should be blamed for his conduct.

Puzzling Questions.

I enjoy your department so much. It is very helpful to me. Now I want you to please give me a little advice. Is it wrong for a girl to allow her escort to hold her hand while in a confidential conversation? Is it wrong for a girl to kiss the man she is engaged to?
ANXIOUS GIRL.

I do not see that either of the things you ask me are wrong. I only want my young girl readers to do a little thinking beforehand and not so much afterward. One cannot be too careful and the right sort of a man thinks a lot more of the girl who holds herself a bit in reserve.
MADAME MERRI.

Tailor Made Jewelry

Harness or trunk buckles of silver and copper are most artistic looking when used on the leather belts which girls wear with their sports skirts and shirts, and if there is a chatelaine watch it may be suspended by a fob of silver or copper to match. The new shirts have cuffs fitted with odd fashioned links, which should of course agree with the ornaments on the belt. But most women prefer the wristlet watch for sports purposes.

Mother-of-pearl [illegible] is specially in request for girls' wear, and in it are to be found charming little lace jabots and hatpins with short stems, as well as buckles and links mounted with either gold or silver.

New Hat Bows

Paul Poiret is displaying large flat hats of finely woven straw, trimmed only with a huge bow of tulle or lace. These are finely plaited and wired with the finest hat wire.

Sometimes they are butterfly bows, and again they are compressed into the shape of an aigrette.

Blessed Sympathy.

Sympathy with animals blesses and humanizes men and women. To get into real relations with an animal is a liberal education. It is something to be really interested even in a plant and to observe the working of life in any sphere not our own. How much more when that life is directing a personality which consciously looks up to us and will love us if we will let it!—Christian Register.

SKIN ERUPTION ON CHEEK
Kingsley, Mich.—"Last May my thirteen months-old baby had a sore come on her cheek. It started in four or five small pimples and in two or three hours' time spread to the size of a silver dollar. It spread to her eye. Then water would run from the pimples and wherever that touched it caused more sores until nearly all one [illegible] solid sore. She was very fretful. She certainly was a terrible looking child and nothing seemed to be of any use.
"Then I got some Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment. She tried to rub off everything we put on so that we would sit and hold her hands for two hours at a time, trying to give the medicine a chance to help her, but after I washed it with Cuticura Soap and then put on the Cuticura Ointment they seemed to soothe her and she did not try to rub them off. It was only a few days before her face was all healed up and there has been no return of the trouble since. We thought that baby's face would surely be scarred, but it is not." (Signed) Mrs. W. J. Cleland, Jan. 5, 1913.

Ruling Spirit Still Strong.

Mrs. J. L. Story, who has just published a volume of reminiscences, tells of a lady relative who had all her life been afraid of damp sheets. When she was dying Mrs. Story entered the room, to find the fireplace barricaded with a large assortment of bed linen. She was having her winding sheet warmed.

"I never have lain in damp bed clothes while I was alive," said the old lady in a feeble whisper, "and I'm not going to do it when I'm dead."

CIRCUS STAR BOUNCES DOWN STAIRS ON HEAD.

Did you ever see a man walk down stairs on his head? Hillary Long, who will appear in Painesville on Tuesday, July 23rd, with the Frank A. Robbins All Feature Shows, goes down a flight of stairs on his head twice a day, with as much ease as the average person walks down on his feet. He is the only person in the country today performing this act, and he has been secured by Mr. Robbins at great expense as the greatest feature of the greatest show that this veteran showman, whose name has been known to the public for thirty-two years, has ever put on the road. The show this year has been entirely rebuilt, with many new star acts and will give two performances here on the date mentioned, the first at 2 p. m. and the second at eight in the evening. The doors will open an hour earlier in order to allow those who attend plenty of time to view the animals prior to each exhibition. The menagerie has been doubled in size over that of last year.

HAS AMUSED SHOW PUBLIC FOR THIRTY-TWO YEARS.

Thirty-two years of success as an amusement purveyor to the American public is a record of which any man might well be proud, and that is the record of Frank A. Robbins, who will bring his "All-Feature Show" to Painesville this year on July 23. Starting while yet a very young man, with the smallest kind of a wagon show, he has gradually developed his business until today he is putting on the road a show, which, while not the largest, is fully up to any in the features presented. Every year for thirty-two he has improved his equipment, and searched all over the country for star acts, and those which will be seen this year are said to eclipse any in the past. It has always been the custom of this successful circus man to give the public just what he advertises that he will, and his reputation for keeping his word has become so great that he is able to return to the same town year after year, a thing which has been found next to impossible by other circuses. In addition to strengthening his show he has increased his menagerie and parade this year at great expense. Two performances will be given, at 2 and 8 o'clock, preceded by band concerts for one hour.

Few cities are said to have been besieged and taken so many times as Constantinople. Since the middle of the sixth century it has undergone 25 sieges and has been captured eight times. But its worst experience was in 1204, when it was captured by the Crusaders. The city was given up to pillage, and the so-called Christian warriors are said to have acted more barbarously than Turkish invaders have ever done.

Try This.

"It's so long since you called upon me," said the girl as she came down to the young man in the parlor, "that I was beginning to think you were forgetting me." "I am for getting you," replied the smart youth, "and that's why I've called tonight. Can I have you?"

Medicine in Early Greece.

Hippocrates, a Greek, is known as the father of the present-day medical science. He taught the need of studying thoroughly the symptoms of a disease before attempting to cure it. The king of Persia offered him large rewards to come to Persia, but Hippocrates refused to leave Greece.

PERSIAN LORE ABOUT ROSE

Nightingale Sings His Frenzied Love for that Flower and Dies Beneath Rosebush.

Persian legendary lore tells some fanciful stories about the rose which have great poetic charm. For example, the poet Attar wrote "The Book of the Nightingale," telling how all the other birds appeared in anger before the throne of Solomon, asking him to destroy the nightingale, which would not allow them to rest by night, but poured forth its lays when peaceful silence should reign all over the earth. After prolonged argument the bird was acquitted, for it explained with such pathos that its untimely melody could not be restrained because of its frenzied love for the rose, a passion so hopeless and undying that it could never be made voiceless. Another Persian belief is that nightingales always die beneath rose bushes, stupefied by the scent. Jamie, a Persian poet, wrote of how "the first rose appeared in Gulistan at the time the flowers demanded a new sovereign from Allah, because the drowsy lotus would slumber at night. At first the maiden queen blossom was shown white, and encircled with a protecting guard of thorns, but the poor nightingale fell into such an ecstasy of love over her charms, and so recklessly pressed his lovelorn heart against those cruel thorns, that his blood, so far as it could trickle into the flower's bosom, dyed it crimson."

Another fancy states that the perfume of the rose was gained from a cup of nectar thrown over it by the little god Cupid, while its thorns were those stings of bees used by him as arrows in his wrath at finding some roses scentless after all his trouble.

The beds of the Shahs of Persia in ancient times were filled with rose petals, which had to be often scattered lest they become uncomfortable. This must surely have been the origin of the saying: "He would complain of a bed of roses." It was also claimed that a rose liquor would "by one glassful make the sternest monarch merciful or the sickliest mortal slumber amid his pains."

The rose is emblematical of joy and love, and was consecrated to Venus, the goddess of beauty, from whose path it was said to have first sprung. Crimson roses, "gemmed with dewdrops," formed the crowning garland of the Romans' youthful Comus, god of feasting, and the Turks believed it absolutely wicked to step on a rose petal or leave it lying on the ground.—Pall Mall Gazette.

LORD RUSSELL'S BLUNDER

Manchester Cabmen Refused to Stand for the Ill Nature of the Famous Judge.

The bluntness and impetuosity of Lord Russell of Killowen often caused him to do and say things for which he was afterwards genuinely sorry, and sometimes led him to get, quite unexpectedly, a Roland for his Oliver. This happened on one occasion in Manchester. He and a junior started for an appointment one afternoon when Russell was in a very disagreeable mood. Things had not been going well during the day. The cabman was a big, powerful, athletic-looking fellow. On approaching the cab, Russell, as was his wont, closely scanned the horse and the man. "Why," said he, "a big, powerful fellow like you ought not to be driving a cab; you ought to be doing something else."

"What the deuce is it to you," said the cabman, "what I do! Get into the cab, and mind your own business."

Russell, Barry O'Brien tells us, in his "Life" of the famous judge, read little. He was too much a man of action to be a man of books, but wherever he went he always carried two books in his bag—Locke "On the Human Understanding" and the "Imitation of Christ." He liked novels of excitement: "Monte Cristo" was a special favorite. He read Gaboriau's books, dipped into Tolstoi and Tourguenieff, and once, when he was ill at Leeds, he got his chief clerk, Mr. Block, to read the "Adventures of Sherlock Holmes" to him. But Russell made a bad blunder through lack of literary knowledge. On one occasion, when he was introduced to Mr. Stanley Weyman, he wished to be civil to that distinguished author, so he said: "My young people, Mr. Weyman, speak constantly of your books, and tell me I ought to read them. I have read your 'Prisoner of Zenda' with much pleasure."

"Oh! That's the other man," said Stanley Weyman.

Ships That Made History.

It is surely the very irony of circumstance which couples the names of the Alabama and the Kearsarge among the twelve American battleships which the secretary of the navy has reported to congress as no longer to be regarded as available for the first line of battle, and necessary to be replaced by 1920. Not far short of half a century has passed since that famous Sunday morning in June—almost as famous in its assistance to the making of history as another June Sunday of close upon half a century before which witnessed Waterloo—when the Federal war steamer Kearsarge fought and sank the Confederate cruiser Alabama in the roads off Cherbourg. The thrilling story of the fight was in all men's mouths for years afterward; and the Alabama, though under the waves, proved as perilous a craft for this country for long subsequently as she had done, when afloat, to the northern states. The only good that resulted from her existence, indeed, was to afford the first effective chance of proving the value of international arbitration.—Westminster Gazette.

Off With the Old.

The latest fashion in New York, we are told, is for an engaged girl to wear the portrait of her sweetheart on her slipper. An ingenious bootmaker, we understand, has invented a contrivance by which the portrait can be frequently changed without injuring the shoe.—Punch.

Solved.

Little Sam's father was asleep in the library and was giving evidence of it in stentorian fashion. After listening for a moment little Sam said inquiringly, "Choo-choo?" Not quite satisfied with his own explanation, he listened again. Then his face brightened. "Cow!" he said triumphantly.

Persian Nomenclature.

Every Persian who can read and write calls himself "Khan." If he has been to Mecca he calls himself Hadji. If he claims descent from the Prophet he is Sayed, Said or Syed.

His Luncheons.

"Perseverance, pluck, self-denial," said Mr. Pulsifer, "those are the qualities that bring Maine boys success.

"It was a Maine boy in Paris—he is a successful sculptor today—who was sought out in his garret in the Rue Boissonade by a rich friend who wished to invite him to a New Year's luncheon.

"The rich friend, who hadn't yet decided on the hour for the luncheon said:

"'I don't know whether to set it for 12 o'clock or 1. By the way, old chap when do you lunch as a rule?'

"'Thursdays,' said the Maine boy."

Unsatisfying Comfort.

STRONG WORDS

ARE THE WORDS OF MR. R. A. TUTTLE IN PAYING TRIBUTE TO PARTY LEADERS

As a Delegate to the Democratic Convention He Had Chance To Observe Work of the Great Commoner at Close Range.

As a delegate to the Democratic National Convention Mr. Tuttle had a rare chance to measure many of the great men of this country. He saw giants pitted against giants in one of the greatest forensic battles of modern times. There were men who for years have been moving factors in the political and financial affairs of the nation, and there were new men, like Mayor Baker of Cleveland, who gave promise of becoming leaders in the political thought of the future.

Mr. Tuttle expressed great admiration for Wm. Gordon, Democratic candidate from this district for congress. Mr. Gordon, fully as much as any man, has helped to shape the progressive sentiment of northeastern Ohio, and at Baltimore he put forward his best effort to make the Democratic party stand out for all that is just and right in government. He is a relentless enemy of those who would make law, or apply the law, in favor of the few as against the interest of the many.

Mr. Tuttle says that Mr. Bryan was the great dominating force of the convention. He kept his head during telling crises. He used sarcasm and biting language, but he, however angry, did not stoop to billingsgate and his poise and dignity frequently routed his enemies.

Mr. Tuttle in a more formal statement has this to say of the great Commoner:

"Mr. Bryan in fact rose to his greatest heights in his magnificent contest against the giants of finance who held coignes of vantage in the New York, the Illinois, the Georgia, the Virginia and other delegations. No man ever before faced such a force as he fronted there and no other American could have overwhelmed it as he did by his courage, his skill and his moral purpose. He was greater at Baltimore than he had ever been before and I do not expect to see him losing any of the hold he now has and has long had upon the affections of the American people."

After the convention, Mr. Tuttle was in different states whose delegates at the convention were in opposition to Mr. Bryan and who did not favor the nomination of Woodrow Wilson, but he found, by numerous talks with the people, that they almost without exception were very grateful to Mr. Bryan for his good work, and that the nomination was a most popular one, and this explains why Mr. Tuttle should say: "I do not expect to see Mr. Bryan losing any of the hold he now has, and has long had, upon the affections of the American people."

YOU NEED THAT VACATION

A D. & C. Coast Line Trip to Mackinac Is Most Delightful Now

You see it's like this—you've hammered away at your work all season and now you feel the need of that vacation which you've been denying yourself. The D. & C. Line offers the best transportation facilities to Mackinac and the north country, where every inch of scenery is interesting and where every little lake contains the fish that bite.

Reunion

The sixth annual reunion of the teachers and scholars of Judd's Corners, will be held in the grove of Clinton R. Winchell, on July 24th, 1912. May W. Hayden, Sec'y.

During the summer months mothers of young children should watch for any unnatural looseness of the bowels. When given prompt attention at this time serious trouble may be avoided. Chamberlain's Cholic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy can always be depended upon. For sale by all dealers.

The great popularity of the Frank A. Robbins circus along its regular circuit is not to be wondered at after having seen the high-class performance given in Hackensack last Monday night. Although the tent is a mammoth affair, affording seating capacity for over three thousand, it was not one bit too large for the throng which crushed for admission at the entrance. Each succeeding act of the performers seemed to be even more pleasing to the vast audience than those which had gone before, and the result was that when the final act had been given there was not a dissatisfied person in the vast throng.—Democrat, Hackensack, N. J., June 2, last.

The Frank A. Robbins circus will be in Painesville, Tuesday, July 23.

COUNCIL MEETING

TALK ABOUT SUBWAY AND ASK FOR MONEY

Permit "Vote For Women" Banner and Bar Cows From Streets.

At the council meeting last Monday night an ordinance was passed which provides for extending the water main further south on Liberty street and the laying of a four inch main on Stockwell and Hoyt streets.

A resolution was passed requesting the county auditor and county treasurer to advance the city $1,500 for the safety fund; $500 for the general fund and $150 for the health fund.

The request that pool rooms might be kept open until 11.30 P. M. was denied, and the proposition to keep cows off the sidewalks inside city limits was approved.

It was brought out at the meeting that the proposed Lake Shore subway on State street will cost about $225,000 and that it might require a vote of the people on the question of issuing bonds for the city's part of the expense. If the estimate is correct the city's part will be about $40000.

BETTER ROADS

THE OHIO GOOD ROADS FEDERATION MAKE STRONG APPEAL FOR BETTERMENT

Ask For Support To Constitutional Amendment Which Will Provide Funds For The Work

Publishers of the Herald
Dear Sir

To construct, rebuild, improve and repair an inter-county system of wagon roads throughout the State of Ohio, as proposed by the Good Roads Amendment submitted to the voters of the State by the Constitutional Convention, will advance progress and prosperity, bring pleasure to the people who live in the cities and towns and comfort to the people who live in the country.

It will make habitation along the roads more desirable, enhance the value of farm lands, cheapen and facilitate transportation, add untold wealth to the producers and consumers, economize time, give labor a lift, beautify the State, aid social, religious, educational and industrial progress; bind the people of the city and country in thrift, industry, intelligence and patriotism, increase the happiness of the producing masses, lessen the cost of living, give employment to idle workmen and make the people of the State broader and brighter.

Are you content to apply from year to year such amounts of the ordinary revenues of the counties and townships as can be spared to build or rebuild a little here and a little there? Or, will you provide, as is proposed by the amendment, such an amount as will enable the State without assessments on the abutting lands or levies upon counties and townships to construct all the main traveled or inter-county roads to the end that you of today, as well as those who come after, may enjoy improved roads?

Inform yourself and instruct your friends and neighbors how and why they should support this amendment.

Interest in the improvement of roads is the duty of every citizen, but in this campaign we urge upon you the importance of making it your special duty to rally the voters in your locality in the support of the Good Roads Amendment.

The Ohio Good Roads Federation.
Jesse Taylor, Sec'y.
Archibald H. Huston, Pres.

GREAT DAMAGE

Storm of Saturday Night Was Destruction.

Two buildings, a creamery and ice house, at the Brown farm Mentor, a barn on the J. P. Glazier farm Mentor, and a barn on the Truman Palmer farm Leroy, were struck by lightning and burned to the ground during the severe storm of last Saturday evening. It required lively work at all these places to save other buildings.

Mr. Palmer lost three horses and a calf in the fire. Mr. Glazier saved his live stock. Mr. J. J. Baylis of Concord had a valuable horse struck and killed during the same storm.

While the rain was greatly needed and did much good to growing crops, the severe wind which accompanied the rain done a great deal of damage to corn and oats in different places in the county.

Frightful Polar Winds

Meredith Nicholson is a close friend of Gov. Thomas A. Marshall, the democratic candidate for vice-president. In dedicating one of his recent stories, "The Siege of the Seven Suitors," to Gov. Marshall, Mr. Nicholson wrote: "My dear governor: It was ordered by the franchises of destiny that you become the chief executive of a state in which the telling of tales brightened the hunter's campfire and cheered the lonely pioneer's cabin before our people learned the uses of ink; and the supreme fitness of this lies in the fact that you are yourself the best of story tellers, and entitled, for your excellence in this particular, as well as for weightier reasons, to sit at the head of the table in that commonwealth to which we are both bound by many and dear ties." Mr. Nicholson's latest novel, "A Hoosier Chronicle," is listed in the July Bookman as one of the three best-selling books throughout the country.

Did you ever hear it said that women do not need the ballot because they already have great political influence though it is indirect? Here is what John Stewart Mills said in answer to this objection: "It is said that women do not need direct political power because they have so much indirect through the influence they possess over their male relatives and connections. Sir, I should like to try this argument in other cases. Rich people have a great deal of indirect influence. Is this a reason for denying them a vote? Did any one ever propose a rating qualification the wrong way and bring in a reform bill to disfranchise everybody who lives in a (500 pounds) house, or pays 100 pounds a year in direct taxes. Unless this rate for distributing the franchise is to be reversed for the exclusive benefit of women, the legitimate consequences of it would be that persons above a certain amount of fortune should be allowed to bribe, but should not be allowed to vote."

CIRCUS STAR BOUNCES DOWN STAIRS ON HEAD.

Did you ever see a man walk down stairs on his head? Hillary Long, who will appear in Painesville on Tuesday, July 23rd, with the Frank A. Robbins All Feature Shows, goes down a flight of stairs on his head twice a day, with as much ease as the average person walks down on his feet. He is the only person in the country today performing this act, and he has been secured by Mr. Robbins at great expense as the greatest feature of the greatest show that this veteran showman, whose name has been known to the public for thirty-two years, has ever put on the road. The show this year has been entirely rebuilt, with many new star acts and will give two performances here on the date mentioned, the first at 2 p. m. and the second at eight in the evening. The doors will open an hour earlier in order to allow those who attend plenty of time to view the animals prior to each exhibition. The menagerie has been doubled in size over that of last year.

OFFICIAL REPORT

OHIO DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE REPORT ON CROPS AND LIVE STOCK

The July Report Is Unfavorable For Wheat, Better For Oats and Potatoes

Wheat—Prospect compared with normal yield, 43 per cent.

Barley—Prospect compared with normal yield, 85 per cent.

Rye—Prospect compared with normal yield, 78 per cent.

Oats—Prospect compared with normal yield, 98 per cent.

Potatoes—Condition compared with an average, 93 per cent.

Tobacco—Area compared with last year, 81 per cent.

Timothy—Prospect compared with normal yield, 79 per cent.

The present wheat prospect shows no material difference from the June report being now estimated at 43 per cent. Slight damage to crop is noted by joint worms. Ohio can not now hope to produce a harvest that will equal an average of seven bushels per acre, and, as stated in previous report, the total production for the state will not exceed seven million bushels. This will be about one-fifth of the 1911 production.

Oats show an improvement during the past month, the harvest prospect being now estimated at 98 per cent., based upon an average production of 30 bushels per acre being represented by 100 per cent in the report. The estimated area seeded was 1,877,921 acres. From present prospect this should produce [illegible],210,887 bushels. The estimated production of the 1911 harvest was 16,412,712 bushels. The present oats area exceeds by 470,[illegible] acres the area of last year.

The area planted to corn shows an increase of 5 per cent over the 1911 acreage. The total area is estimated at 3,197,884 acres as against 3,048,194 acres last year. The crop is growing very irregularly, due to the backward season poor seed and difference in time of planting. The general growing condition of the crop is poor, being estimated at 77 per cent compared with an average. Damage by cut and grub worm is estimated at [illegible] per cent.

Democratic Platform

Declares for a tariff for revenue only; denounces the high Republican tariff as the principal cause of the unequal distribution of wealth. Favors immediate downward revision of present duties, especially upon necessaries of life. Also favors gradual reduction so as not to interfere with or destroy legitimate industries.

Takes issue with the Republican platform as to the high cost of living, contending it is largely due to high tariff laws.

Favors vigorous enforcement of the criminal features of the anti-trust law. Demands such additional legislation as may be necessary to crush private monopoly.

Urges people to support proposed constitutional amendments, providing for an income tax and election of United States senators by direct vote of the people.

Declares for presidential preference primaries.

Pledges party to enactment of law prohibiting campaign contributions by corporations and unreasonable campaign contributions by individuals.

Favors efficient supervision and rate regulation of railroads, express companies, telegraph and telephone lines and a valuation of these companies by the interstate commerce commission.

In connection with a demand for such a revision of the banking laws as will give temporary relief in case of financial distress there is a denunciation of the Aldrich bill prepared by the monetary commission.

Recommends investigation of agricultural credit societies in Europe to ascertain whether a system of rural credits may be devised suitable to conditions in the United States.

Pledges party to enactment of legislation to prevent devastation of lower Mississippi valley by floods.

Favors national aid regarding post roads.

Repeats party's declaration of the platform of 1908 as to rights of labor and pledges the party to an employes' compensation law.

Declares the unnecessary withdrawal of public lands tends to retard development and bring reproach upon policy of conservation; declares for immediate action to make available Alaskan coal lands.

Believes in fostering growth of a merchant marine.

Reaffirms previous declarations regarding pure food and public health.

Favors reorganization of the civil service.

Recommends law reform legislation.

Reaffirms position against "policy of imperialism and colonial exploitation" in Philippines.

Favors parcels post and extension of rural delivery.

Woman Suffrage Column

By Miss Lucy Buell

Woman Suffrage is a world wide movement. Here are a few indications of that.

Dr. De Gi, the Chinese delegate to the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, says it was the men who were the first to advocate the movement to enfranchise the women of China. "And," he added, "a consistent and perfect republic must accord to woman the same rights it accords to man. It demands the same loyalty and obedience to its laws from her and she should have the same share as the man in enacting those laws."

The last Labor Union Congress at Padua, Italy, unanimously passed a resolution favoring the economic and political organization of working women; and universal suffrage irrespective of sex.

Cables from Wales report that the Independent Labor Party in annual conference on May 27 adopted resolutions strongly declaring for equal suffrage and favoring legislation to that effect. The Independent Labor Party being very powerful in Wales, this action is regarded as an unusual victory for woman suffrage.

On June 1 suffragists from all parts of Ireland met in Dublin to demand that votes for women be included in the new Constitution. It was a thoroughly representative gathering of men and women divided in political opinions but united in the conviction that Ireland will never be true to her best traditions until she stands for the political equality of the sexes. Among the delegates were town councilors, university graduates, poor law guardians, industrial workers, teachers, and women representing all the professions. Cablegrams were received from suffrage societies all over the world.

The late King of Denmark in 1908 signed the bill giving equal municipal rights to Danish women. He was also in favor of full suffrage for women for which they have petitioned and which it is hoped will soon be granted.

It is just fifty years since the women of Sweden were given the municipal franchise, and there is every prospect that the present Parliament will pass the universal suffrage bill now under discussion in the Lower House.

DOCTORS INSPECT

Cleveland Physicians See Process of Certified Milk at Novelty Farm

Manicured, barbered and shampooed cows, standing peacefully in sterilized stalls and milked by antiseptic milkers in germ-proof white suits and caps held the attention of 125 Cleveland physicians at the Walker-Gordon certified farm at Novelty, a few days ago, says Geauga County Record.

The physicians, their wives and children formed a party which journeyed to Novelty by special cars under the personal direction of Oscar Heatgen, manager of the Walker-Gordon laboratory department, as guests of the department.

The physicians visited the cow houses where the certified milk producers spend their days of luxury. They watched the germ proof process of milking and commented on the personal appearance of the cows themselves.

The physicians visited the cases which were as white and clean as hospital interior, the physicians were shown how each cow is washed before milking, how the amount of milk produced by each cow is credited to her and how it is strained into large cans ready for the bottling department. The cans were placed in a tackle on an overhead trolley and conveyed 150 yards to the bottling house.

In the bottling department the physicians saw the milk strained again and placed in bottles by machinery after having been cooled to 35 degrees.

Prof. F. W. Howe of the Massachusetts Normal School of Boston, scientific director of the Walker-Gordon laboratories, explained the various modifications of the certified milk as used for infants' food. He declared that the milk should be higher in price.

Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Hillies are our representatives authorized to solicit material, photos, data, and other matter for our forthcoming publication "Painesville and Lake County Illustrated." We bespeak for them consideration from all.

Come Out Even.

Two Atchison men bantered each other to trade a couple of four-dollar accounts sight unseen. When the accounts were handed over it was found that each one was an account against the same man. It was one trade where neither man got the worst of it.—Topeka Capital.

A Girl's Wild Midnight Ride.

To warn people of a fearful forest fire in the Catskills a young girl rode horseback at midnight and saved many lives. Her deed was glorious but lives are often saved by Dr. King's New Discovery in curing lung trouble, coughs and colds, which might have ended in consumption or pneumonia. "It cured me of a dreadful cough and lung disease," writes W. R. Patterson, Wellington, Tex., "after four in our family had died of consumption, and I gained 87 pounds." Nothing so sure and safe for all lung troubles. Price 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by Barnes' Pharmacy.

Don't forget to see our representatives, Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Hillies, in regard to space in "Painesville and Lake County Illustrated."

RICH LAND IN DISMAL SWAMP

Not More Than One-Third of Immensely Fertile District Under Cultivation.

The Great Dismal Swamp is but a day's journey from New York city and less than that from Washington and Baltimore. Much of its primeval wilderness untrodden by human foot. It begins a little south of Norfolk, Va., and extends into North Carolina.

Some estimates make it thirty miles from north to south and ten miles from east to west. Others give its area as about two thousand square miles. Most of this great tract is covered with trees, and the undergrowth, springing from the oozy soil, is so dense as to be almost impenetrable.

A little of the swamp has been drained and cleared and is devoted to agriculture. Some say as much as one-third of it has been reclaimed; others put the cleared portion at a much smaller fraction.

Ages ago the Dismal Swamp was a part of the ocean floor. The upheaval that lifted it to the surface left it lying level without slope or drainage. George Washington headed the first project for draining the Dismal Swamp, and organized a company for that purpose shortly after the close of the Revolution. A narrow canal was dug to Lake Drummond, and is still known as "Washington's Ditch." Later another canal was cut from the Elizabeth river at Deep Creek, Va., to the Pasquotank river in North Carolina.

This has been widened and deepened of late years and now gives a continuous passage for vessels from Norfolk to Albemarle sound. Owing to the way the earth from this canal was disposed of, a strip of the land to the east of it was drained while that on the other side remained as marshy as ever.

Other portions of the swamp, principally around the edges, have been reclaimed, but the rest of it is still as impenetrable as ever. It has been asserted that if the swamp were drained it would yield the almost incredible sum of $160,000,000 in farm products each year.

Hold Your Racket Firmly.

The racket should be gripped near the end in order not to sacrifice leverage, but not so near that room is not left for a generous uncramped hold. The hold should be firm, and in the matter of firmness a sharp distinction must be drawn between firmness and stiffness. The latter quality does not leave the wrist and forearm muscles free play, while the former does.

The racket must be held so that there is no danger of twisting when the ball is met squarely and solidly. The racket should meet the ball unfalteringly and yet every movement that brings about this meeting should be free and untrammeled by any feeling of stiffness.—Forbes Watson, in Outing.

Not All Its History Tragic.

Chios, recently bombarded by the Italians, and one of the many birthplaces of Homer, is the scene of one of the most terrible of Turkish outrages. During the Greek war of independence the island rebelled against the sultan, and his fleet and an army descended upon Chios. Over 20,000 Chiotes were murdered and 40,000 sold into slavery. Even now the island suffers from that far off barbarity. But Chios has pleasanter memories—memories of the wine that made glad the heart of the sailors who manned the 100 ships that fought against the Persians. Famous as the Chian wine—still excellent—were the figs and the pottery.

Feat of Expert Golfers.

How many golfers would care to send a ball over the weathercock of St. Giles', Edinburgh? It has been done, however. In virtue of a bet of 1798 Mr. Scales of Leith and Mr. Smellie, a printer, were selected to perform the curious feat of driving a ball from the southwest corner of Parliament square over the weathercock of the famous church (161 feet from the base of the building). They were allowed the use of six balls each. These all went considerably higher than the vane, and were found in the advocate's close, on the north side of the High street.

Fisherman Hooks Octopus.

The combined efforts of six men were necessary to loosen the tentacles of a 12-foot devil fish from the hull of the launch of Mike Marincovinch who hooked the monster while fishing for grouper off Catalina Island. The octopus is the largest ever captured at the island and was so unwieldy none of the acquarium tanks would contain it.—Avalon Cor. San Francisco Chronicle.

Stockholm, Sweden.—The Olympic games were completed here on July 15 with the United States once more a winner. The total score of the Americans was far ahead of the nearest rivals, Sweden, though the latter made good gains on the final day, scoring 19 points to 8 for the Yankees. The United States victories were confined to three events: The decathlon, which was taken by James Thorpe of the Carlisle Indian school, who proved his superiority as an all-around performer, the 1,600 meter relay race, in which the American team finished first, and the 800-meter swimming final, where the Yanks were second.

King Gustave at 5 o'clock in the afternoon presented the prizes to the winners of gold, silver and bronze medals won in the various competitions. The scene was a very brilliant one as the thousand athletes from many different nationalities gathered in front of the stand.

All the winners of first, second and third prizes marched into the stadium and assembled, according to their respective rank, before three handsome stands erected on the greensward. The athletes and gymnasts were in uniform. The officers of the various nations in full dress uniform, while the women winners were variously attired. The king conferred upon winners of first position prizes consisting of an oak wreath, a gold medal and a challenge cup to each. Crown Prince Adolph presented a silver medal to each man who had finished second, while Prince Charles, a brother of the king, handed bronze medals to the third group.

The most striking spectacle of the entire meeting perhaps was the procession of victors into the arena. The Americans headed the parade. In the front rank, silk-hatted, marched Col. Robert M. Thompson, president of the New York A. C. The Americans wore blue jackets, white trousers and straw hats and presented a very neat appearance.

King Gustave, in gray frock, amid absolute silence, mounted the main rostrum behind which were the tables loaded with trophies, wreaths and medals for the victors.

HETTY GREEN IS BAPTIZED

Wealthy Woman, Who Is in Her Seventy-seventh Year, Prepares for Confirmation.

New York City.—Mrs. Hetty Green, who is in her seventy-eighth year, was baptized in the Episcopal faith in order to prepare for confirmation as a member of the church. The ceremony was performed in Jersey City by Rev. Augustine Elmendorf, rector of Holy Cross Episcopal church, in the presence of Col. Edward Howland Robinson Green, on whose shoulders have fallen much of his mother's great business responsibilities.

Father Elmendorf, as the clergyman is called by his parishioners, is distantly related to Mrs. Green and for five or six years he has been endeavoring to induce her to think less of things earthly.

Mrs. Green will now prepare herself for confirmation, a ceremony that will be conducted by Bishop Edwin S. Lines of the Newark diocese.

Gives Employes Raise in Wages.

Pittsburgh, Pa.—It has just been announced here by the Jones & Laughlin Steel Co. that an increase of 10 per cent had been granted to all employes who work by the day or hour system of pay.

The increase directly affects 6,000 employes. An officer of the company said:

"This increase affects all laborers and all workmen paid on the hourly basis and includes several thousand men. Day labor is advanced to 17½ cents an hour."

Boy Admits Taking $722,000.

Buffalo, N. Y.—Seventeen-year-old James Killen, arrested at the New York Central station in the morning, confessed to the Buffalo police, after some searching questions, that he is the boy who made off last week in New York with a bag containing about $500,000 in checks and $222,000 in cash, the property of the United Cigar Stores Co.

Killen described his leaving a New York Central train at Albany to abandon the bag and checks, first extracting the cash.

AVIATOR GORED TO DEATH

HUBERT LATHAM IS KILLED BY WILD BUFFALO.

One of World's Pioneer Airmen Meets Horrible End While on Hunting Trip in French Sudan.

Paris, France.—Hubert Latham, the famous Anglo-French airman and one of the pioneers of heavier than air aviation, was killed by a wild buffalo on July 7, during a hunt in the French Sudan. The governor general of French Equatorial Africa, Martial Henri Merlin, in telegraphing the news to the minister of the colonies, says Latham was out with a number of natives in the forest when he shot and wounded a buffalo, which immediately charged him and gored and trampled him to death. Latham's death occurred in the Chari river near the Bahr Es Salomat, practically in the center of the French Sudan, in the direction of Lake Chad.

Hubert Latham, who was the first aviator to make any notable flights in a monoplane, the Antoinette, acquired fame as a very young man. In February, 1905, in company with his cousin, Jacques Faure, he made a balloon trip across the English channel, voyaging from the Crystal palace, London, to the gates of Paris in six hours. On July 19, 1909, he made an unsuccessful attempt to cross the channel in a monoplane, which was considered a most daring feat at that time. He fell into the sea, owing to his motor breaking down, and on his second attempt in the same month a similar fate met him.

He was a splendid shot, and in 1907 went elephant hunting in the Sudan. In 1906 he made a trip from Khartoum to Abyssinia, then passed through British East Africa and visited India and French Indo-China.

In October, 1910, Latham arrived in New York from Europe with the French team which was to participate in the aviation meet at Belmont park.

SAYS SON ADMITTED MURDER

Father Tells District Attorney That Offspring Confessed to Him That He Brutally Slew Little Girl.

New York City.—A little group of detectives, police and lawyers in the office of Assistant District Attorney Nott heard the statement of an aged man that will probably send his son to the electric chair. The father is Samuel Swartz, the son is Nathan Swartz, and the mystery surrounding the fiendish murder of little Julia Connors recently is cleared up. Nathan Swartz, the murderer, is still at large. Clews gathered by the police lead to Newark, N. J., to Wilkesbarre, Pa., and Poughkeepsie, N. Y., but none of them is definite.

The police, believing that they were correct in their surmise that young Swartz had killed the girl, ordered the Swartz family to appear in the district attorney's office for an investigation. The women of the family were being interrogated without result when Samuel Swartz, a bearded Roumanian of perhaps 60, entered the room and insisted that he be heard. His request was granted, and in broken English he told of being summoned to an underground coffee house in the Bowery a week ago, where he met his son and from his lips gained the confession that the boy had taken the little girl's life.

The father, after hearing the boy's almost incredible story, gave him all the money he had—$1—and ordered him away. "Take it," the old man said, "and go. There is blood upon your hands; I cannot, will not help you more nor can your mother. You are no longer of us—go in the river with your dollar. Throw yourself in and end your miserable life. Let us see you no more."

SLAYING BLAMED ON POLICE

Murder of Rosenthal Is Said by Gamblers to Attempt to Prevent Exposure of Alleged Graft.

New York City.—The police department of New York is on trial as the result of the murder of Herman Rosenthal, a gambler, who had charged the police with having been partners in his gaming house and with having accepted bribes for protection.

He was slain early in the morning in front of the Hotel Metropole by an automobile gang of assassins. The police have made three arrests and have learned some of the facts, but the whole department is on trial before the public to determine whether the Rosenthal charges were true, whether the police had anything to do with his murder and whether they are capable of running to earth a gang of murderers who do their work in the sight of everybody, on a crowded street.

Smith Quits Federal Job.

Washington, D. C.—In answer to the call of the "Bull Moose," Herbert Knox Smith resigned as commissioner of corporations of the department of commerce and labor to join Roosevelt and the progressives.

Mr. Smith has been in the service for several years, and was of great assistance to the department of justice in framing dissolution suits against several large corporations. His resignation takes effect immediately. Mr. Smith will take an active part in building up the new party.

Railroad Puts Ban on "Booze."

Philadelphia, Pa.—No longer will the pressure of an electric button and the softly given command of the dusky porter who answers the summons bring liquid refreshments to passengers on trains of the Pennsylvania railroad east of Pittsburgh. The days of drinking anything stronger than lemonade on Pennsylvania trains are over.

Orders have been issued by the railroad that no more liquor is to be sold on cars operated on its lines east

JUDGE R. W. ARCHBALD

The case against Judge Robert W. Archbald of the commerce court is now up to the senate, the house having adopted articles of impeachment against him by a vote of 222 to 1.

STATE SENATOR SENTENCED TO PRISON IN OHIO LEGISLATIVE BRIBERY SCANDAL.

BUCKEYE SOLON WILL APPEAL

Declares He Is Innocent and That He Has Spent Every Dollar He Possessed in Fighting Charges Against Him.

Columbus, O.—Senator Isaac E. Huffman of Butler county was sentenced by Judge Rathmell to three years in the penitentiary for accepting a bribe. The judge passed sentence immediately after overruling Huffman's motion for a new trial.

A stay of execution of 20 days was granted.

In overruling the motion for a new trial, Judge Rathmell made an exhaustive review of the case, denying the defendant's contention on all points.

Huffman, when asked what he had to say before sentence was passed, protested his innocence, and declared he had served 11 years in the legislature without a dishonorable act.

He declared that he cared more for the good opinion of his wife and mother, who, he said, believe in his innocence, than he did for the opinion of the entire public of Ohio.

Huffman said he had spent every dollar he had in the world in fighting the charges against him, and his wife would have to go to work while he was in the penitentiary. He was at the recent Democratic state and national conventions.

Huffman is the third convicted as the result of the 1911 legislative bribery scandal.

CHAFIN HEADS DRY TICKET

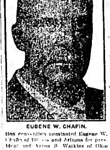
Nominated for President by the Prohibitionists—Watkins of Ohio Is Named for Second Place.

Atlantic City, N. J.—After a three-day session, marked by tumultuous scenes and factional strife that threatened to split the party in twain, the delegates of the national Prohibition convention nominated Eugene W. Chafin of Illinois and Arizona for president and Aaron S. Watkins of Ohio for vice president.



EUGENE W. CHAFIN.

Taggart Changes His Mind.

Indianapolis, Ind.—Thomas Taggart has agreed to remain as national committeeman from Indiana. Several days ago he sent his resignation to Bernard Korbly, state chairman, but on July 12 he withdrew the resignation. Korbly had called the state committee in session to consider the resignation and it was the unanimous sentiment of the members that an effort should be made to induce Taggart to change his mind. Korbly communicated with Taggart and the resignation was withdrawn.

Man and Wife on Ticket.

Stamford, Conn.—Upon a platform which provides for home rule, municipal apartments to be rented at cost, public wood, coal and ice houses, municipal ownership of public utilities, abolition of the contract system on public works, municipal work for the unemployed, the initiative, referendum and recall, James Graham Phelps Stokes was nominated for mayor by the Socialist party. At the same time Rose Harriet Pastor Stokes, his wife, was nominated for the school committee.

HITS 13 EXPRESS CO'S.

CUT IN RATES IS DEMANDED BY COMMERCE COMMISSION.

Drastic Reforms in Regulations and Practices Are Prescribed in Report of Its Investigation.

Washington, D. C.—Sweeping reductions in express rates, in general, approximately 15 per cent; drastic reforms in regulations and practices, and comprehensive changes in the methods of operation are prescribed in a report just made public by the interstate commerce commission of its investigation into the business of the 13 great express companies of the United States.

By the terms of the commission's order the changes in the regulations, methods and practices of the express companies; the reclassification of express matter, the changes in the billing of packages, and other administrative reforms are required to be put into effect practically immediately. The rates proposed, however, will not become effective before some time next autumn. The commission has fixed October 9 as the date for the beginning of a hearing of the representatives of express companies and shippers as to why the rates prescribed by the commission should not go into effect.

On every question except that of rates a substantial agreement has been reached between the commission and the companies.

SEVENTEEN DIE IN RAIL CRASH

Forty Are Injured When Mail Train Running at Rate of Sixty Miles an Hour Bumps Into Passenger.

Chicago, Ill.—Fifteen persons met almost instant death, two died while being rushed to hospitals, and 40 persons were injured when the Omaha mail train on the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railroad, going at a speed close to 60 miles an hour, crashed into the rear end of the Overland Limited passenger train No. 2 at Western Springs, Ill.

Passenger train No. 2, from Denver, due in Chicago at 7 a. m., stopped at Western Springs because of a "hot box" on one of the rear Pullman coaches. At Western Springs, which is about 18 miles west of Chicago, train No. 2 and the mail train No. 8, run about nine minutes apart. Because of the heavy fog it is believed by some that the engineer on train No. 8 failed to see the signal at Hinsdale, a mile and a half west of the point where the collision occurred.

Without warning to passengers, save the popping of three torpedoes placed several hundred feet in the rear of the passenger train by the flagman, the heavy mail train crashed into the rear of the passenger.

WILSON PICKS HIS GENERALS

Nominee for President on Democratic Ticket Selects Officers for National Committee.

Seagirt, N. J.—Woodrow Wilson's selection of officers and plan of organization for the Democratic national committee and the campaign which was made known in Chicago are:

Joseph E. Davies of Milwaukee, national secretary.

Campaign committee—Senator James O'Gorman of New York, Judge Robert R. Hudspeth of New Jersey, Josephus Daniels of North Carolina, Senator Thomas P. Gore of Oklahoma, A. Mitchell Palmer, the new national committeeman from Pennsylvania, Willard Saulsbury of Delaware and Congressman Albert Burleson, Texas.

The national committee later elected McCombs, chairman; Davies, secretary; J. I. Martin, sergeant-at-arms.

LORIMER NOT THRU FIGHTING

Ousted Senator Intends to Wage Fight to Come Back to Congress From Sixth Illinois District.

Washington, D. C.—William Lorimer, whose seat as a senator from Illinois was declared vacant by the United States senate, is not through fighting.

His campaign to rehabilitate himself will be fought along the following lines:

He will go back to Chicago and continue his banking business and at the same time endeavor to strengthen his political machinery.

Two years from now he will make a fight to come back to congress from the Sixth Illinois district, which he represented for 14 years in the house.

Ultimately—if the passage of years has lessened his disgrace and he has been able to build up his machine—he will try to come back to the senate.

Will Sue for Billion.

Washington, D. C.—Attorneys for the department of justice will file at Los Angeles the first of a series of lawsuits involving the right to title of millions of dollars' worth of oil and mineral lands in California. The gross value of the properties involved is estimated in some quarters at a billion dollars. There are about 300 litigants.

In the suits about to be filed, the government contends that the present occupants of the lands are holding them illegally.

Four Drown in Cloudburst.

St. Louis, Mo.—Four people were drowned in a cloudburst at Alton, Ill., when a nine-foot wall of water from the Piasa valley raced down Belle and Piasa streets, deluging two homes.

Mrs. Frances Maguire and her 3-year-old daughter Goldie were drowned in their home on Belle street and Mrs. Hester Moss and Arthur Boyce, negroes, lost their lives when the water reached their home, a block away. The storm did great damage in St. Louis and surrounding cities.

Principles More Than Life

Pathway of American History Written in Blood and Sacrifice

LIFE is dear to all of us, and the Almighty meant it to be; but principle, and, especially religious principles, are a greater treasure than life. Somehow or other it seems that all great principles have made their way up over the sacrificed lives of martyrs in the right. The pathway of American history is written in the blood and sacrifice of the fathers from Plymouth Rock to now; so of the Church. The torture and the stake have been the steps to the freedom of religion from the shackles of religious tyranny. What a wonderful path the path of history is! When a man or a woman loves principle more than self or life, there will be an effort to establish it. Had not the founders of our State and Church stood for the principles of free government and conscientious action in religion, neither our present glorious State or Christian civilization would ever have been attained.

Religion is nothing without the truth. Ancient history shows that all teaching, philosophy and worship were false and vain without revelation. All the progress of modern times in the greatest notions of the world is due to the presence and spirit and influence of the truth of revelation and of the Gospel of Jesus Christ. So, when this is committed to us with this injunction, "Go ye into all the world," it is not for us to question expense, labor or results. Our work and mission is to act. This refers to women as well as to men. And, indeed, this experience is essential to the development of a true discipleship in each individual man or woman. Hence we urge upon laymen and laywomen to identify themselves with this noble cause. First, for the sake of the truth, for the sake of the kingdom of God that it may be spread abroad upon the whole earth. And then, second, for the reflex influence upon yourself. This kind of work is necessary for the development of the truest kind of a religious spirit. If we are not working for others or for the kingdom, we grow selfish and diminish our personal enjoyment of religion.

Barriers to Success.

Activity is as essential in religion as in physical and mental growth. Loving life and loving self is our greatest barrier to success in all undertakings, and as well in religion. Had our fathers and mothers in the life of the Christian church or of the State loved their lives more than the principles for which they stood, what would have become of civil and religious liberty? Now we can look all the way back to Abraham, Moses, the prophets, and apostles, and coming down through centuries we find along the pages of history the lives of saints, patriots and martyrs that went out on the altar of principle. Men and women of the twentieth century, the principle is the same. We must take an active part in the development of character, patriotism, church work, and the spread of the Gospel if we are to save the nations, the Christian church, and even our own lives. Principle must be elevated over life.

This is the greatest and most momentous age in history. If we are ever going to save the world, it must be now. Over the graves of patriots, heroes, prophets, martyrs, apostles and missionaries may be written these words: "They loved not their lives unto death. Patriots bleeding, wounded, suffering and thirsty and faint lay all day and night on the battlefield or behind prison walls that you might enjoy a goodly country and a prosperous and happy life and home. Saints and martyrs have gone to death with songs and prayers on their lips that you and I and coming generations might have the truth."

Shall we not be true to these things? Shall we not maintain this noble character as a sacred heritage? This is the measure of heroes and saints. These are the men and women who have made history. They are the ancestors other nations and ages worship as deity. Shall not we stand, then, where they stood and for the same thing for which they stood? Shall not we join the great Christian forces, and start on in this splendid life? Will we let all of this burden fall on others? Shall the work cease, or will we rally to the rescue? What is your response today? Morals, truth, religion and the world need the missionary spirit more than anything else. We need it in society, politics, the world and the church. And perhaps more than all in the individual heart and in the home. We must quicken the Christian church and its members until they reach the spirit of sacrifice and of forgetting of self. Men and women who will represent great religious interests and stand for them in the great moral and religious issues of this century, are needed.—Rev. J. M. Reimensnyder, D. D.

The Measure of Man.

In the kingdom of Christ greatness is not measured by size, but by usefulness. The greatest man in the kingdom of God is the man who does the greatest amount of good in the world. The first man to whom the arms of Christ are outstretched is the man who gives a cup of cold water to his neighbor and not the man who possesses talents, but keeps his hands off the world and never stoops to lift his fallen brother. This is the Christian sentiment. It is also a universal sentiment.—Rev. E. T. Baroody, Presbyterian, Savanna, Ill.

Messengers of Grace.

"I will send an angel before thee."—Ex. 23:2. Tarry here just a minute to recollect that the angels also are, according to your measure and degree, at your call. You have but to pray to God, and angels shall bear you up in their hands lest you dash your foot against a stone. We do not think enough of these heavenly beings; yet are they all ministering spirits sent forth to minister to those who are heirs of salvation.—Spurgeon.

"Father," asked the beautiful girl, "did you bring home that material for my new skirt?"

"Yes."

RASH ALMOST COVERED FACE

Warrenville, O.—"I have felt the effects of blood poisoning for eighteen years. I was never without some eruptions on my body. The terrible itching caused me much suffering and discomfort, while the rubbing and scratching made it worse. Last spring I had a terrible breaking out of blistery sores on my arms and limbs. My face and arms were almost covered with rash. I could not sleep and lost nineteen pounds in five weeks. My face was terribly red and sore, and felt as if my skin was on fire. At last I tried a sample of Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment and I found them so cool, soothing and healing, that I got some Cuticura Soap, Cuticura Ointment, and Resolvent. I bathed with hot water and Cuticura Soap, then I applied the Cuticura Ointment every night for two months, and I am cured of all skin eruptions." (Signed) Mrs. Kathryn Krafft, Nov. 28, 1911.

The Heirloom.

A Pittsburg drummer in a small town dropped into a place to get a bite to eat. The place looked familiar, but he didn't know the proprietor.

"No, I just inherited it from my father."

"Ah, yes. I knew him. I recognize this old cheese sandwich on the counter."

Simple Explanation.

To illustrate a point that he was making—that his was the race with a future and not a race with a past—Booker T. Washington told this little story the other day.

He was standing by his door one morning when old Aunt Caroline went by.

"Good morning, Aunt Caroline," he said. "Where are you going this morning?"

"Lawzee, Misto' Wash'ton," she replied. "I'se done been whar I'se gwine."—Kansas City Star.

SALLOW FACES

Often Caused by Tea and Coffee Drinking.

How many persons realize that tea and coffee so disturb digestion that they produce a muddy, yellow complexion?

A ten days' trial of Postum has proven a means, in thousands of cases, of clearing up a bad complexion.

A Wash. young lady tells her experience:

"All of us—father, mother, sister and brother—had used tea and coffee for many years until finally we all had stomach troubles, more or less.

"We all were sallow and troubled with pimples, bad breath, disagreeable taste in the mouth, and all of us simply so many bundles of nerves.

"We didn't realize that tea and coffee caused the trouble until one day we ran out of coffee and went to borrow some from a neighbor. She gave us some Postum and told us to try that.

"Although we started to make it, we all felt sure that we would be sick if we missed our strong coffee, but we tried Postum and were surprised to find it delicious.

"We read the statements on the pkg., got more and in a month and a half you wouldn't have known us. We all were able to digest our food without any trouble, each one's skin became clear, tongues cleared off, and nerves in fine condition. We never use anything now but Postum. There is nothing like it." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

"There's a reason," and it is explained in the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

OIL WELLS PROPERTY

IN OHIO WILL GO ON THE TAX DUPLICATE IN THE FUTURE.

Will Be Listed at Their Market Value If the New Taxation Clause Is Adopted By the Voters.

Columbus, O.—Anticipating the action of the people of the state next September in amending the constitution so as to provide a production tax upon oil and minerals, the state tax commission is now engaged in reaching out for the immense values of oil property which are now sequestered from the tax gatherer. For months its experts have been at work gathering information relating to the value of oil and gas wells and of the amount of royalties paid by producers to owners of oil lands. In many counties no effort has ever been made to get at these values and to secure from them a just share of the support of the cost of government, while in others only a nominal value was placed upon the pumping plants. The anomalous condition has been often created of the tax value of a horse grazing on property covering oil being greater than that of a flowing well worth a king's ransom. Oil wells have a fixed and definite value and for many years the commercial unit of value of an oil well has been fixed at $1,000 per barrel production per day. That is, if a well with settled production supplies 10 barrels per day, in oil circles it is rated at $10,000.

Results Announced.

Eugene F. McCampbell, of Columbus, secretary of the state board of health, is one of the 183 who successfully have passed the examination for the practice of medicine in Ohio, according to announcement made by the state medical board. Examinations were taken several weeks ago.

Prof. Thomas H. Haines of the psychology department of Ohio State University is another successful applicant. He has been studying medicine at Starling, Ohio, Medical College for the last several years and holds a degree of doctor of Philosophy from the University of Chicago. Dr. McCampbell is professor in the department of bacteriology at Ohio State University.

Certificates were granted to nine osteopaths and 31 midwives. Reciprocity certificates were given to 23 physicians who expect to practice in Ohio but who now are practicing in some other state with which Ohio has reciprocity relations. The hearing of three cases of revocation of certificates was deferred to the next meeting, which will be held in October.

Sunday Schools Will Pay Debts.

Debts amounting to $6,500 will be cleared by the Ohio Sunday School Association during the next year, according to plans formulated at the annual meeting of the state executive committee at the Neil House. A budget for the coming year amounting to $16,200 was adopted and receipts of $18,000 from regular sources were anticipated. Money will be raised in special ways to equal the balance of the standing debt.

Twenty of the 30 members attended the meeting. V. A. Eudaly of Middletown was re-elected chairman of the committee and Edmund F. Arras of Columbus was given the position of secretary for the third year. Professor W. W. Boyd of Columbus was chosen to fill one of the vacancies on the committee.

C. W. Shinn, the new general secretary of the Ohio Sunday School Association, made his first report. Commenting on it, one of the members said: "We are assured that we have an efficient man in Mr. Shinn, in business as well as spiritual ways."

Ohio Oats Crop Is Good.

Ohio has a banner crop of oats to partially offset a very deficient wheat crop. According to a report just made by the department of agriculture, showing the condition of Ohio crops on July 1, the Ohio crop is rated at 92, as against 71 on July 1, 1911, and a ten-year average of 86. The Ohio corn crop is rated at 77, as against 89 on July 1, 1911, and a ten-year average of 84. The government report on the Ohio wheat crop tells a sad tale. It is rated at only 41, as against 81 on July 1, 1911, and a ten-year average of 80, showing it is only about one-half of a normal crop. The acreage planted to corn in Ohio this year is 5 per cent greater than last year's acreage, according to the report.

Benefit Fete a Success.

The lawn fete given at Indianola park by Ross Guild for the benefit of the baby camp and the Columbus Society for the Prevention and Cure of Tuberculosis was largely attended and a rough estimate placed the net proceeds at $300 or more.

Seeks Old Cavalrymen.

Colonel W. L. Curry, who has been appointed by the centennial commission to muster several platoons of civil war cavalrymen, has received letters from veterans accepting the general invitation to appear here for the centennial. Many more are wanted and Colonel Curry is trying to locate the cavalrymen.

If a sufficient number send their names and addresses to him, he will arrange for mounts and uniforms of the same design as was used in the war.

Nicklas Baumgartner Dead.

Nicklas Baumgartner, aged 65, a retired farmer, died at his home in Worthington from a complication of diseases. He had been ill three weeks. Mr. Baumgartner was born in Switzerland and came to Columbus in 1870. He was married the following year to Miss Elizabeth Sauer of Circleville, who survives him. The children surviving are Earl and Alma, of Worthington; Mrs. C. M. Waldorf, Delaware; Mrs. [illegible], Worthington, and Mrs. [illegible], Columbus.

Taxi Fiend Again Put Behind Bars.

Elmer Sharp, the young colored taxicab fiend, celebrated his release from the workhouse, where he had been serving time on two counts for defrauding an auto liveryman, by hiring a taxi from the Sitgraves Co. His bill was $45. When time came to pay he tendered a check for the exact amount, signed by J. Broadside, whom he represented was his employer. As it was believed that the check is worthless, the colored youth, who lives at 1170 North Grant avenue, was locked up. He said he hoped he would be sent to the Home for the Feeble-minded, because he could not overcome his mania for riding in taxis. He told the driver whom he victimized that he was hiring the machine for Mr. Broadside. Rosie Mitchell, a colored girl employed at the Normandie hotel, shared the car with him during part of the day. When searched a bill of a livery company made out to J. Broada was found in his possession.

Political Bee Will Buzz at Cedar Point.

Such a gathering of politicians as Ohio seldom has seen will be the reunion of the legislature and the constitutional convention which is to be held here from July 29 to August 3. Besides members of both houses of the general assembly and of the constitutional convention, it is expected that about every candidate for state office, whatever may be his politics, will be on hand. A program of entertainment has been arranged. It includes a reception and ball, a trip to Canada, a fishing trip to Lake Erie islands and a banquet. At the banquet Gov. Harmon and Lieut. Gov. Nichols are to speak.

Pretty Girls Wanted.

The Ohio-Columbus Centennial commission is on the lookout for 15 girls, if they chance to be exceptionally pretty. They want them to take part in the auto carnival which will be held the first night of the centennial, August 26, which will be known as Columbus day.

One of the lucky 15 will be chosen as Miss Columbus, who will ride in a special float. She will be surrounded by maids of honor, representing Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan and Wisconsin, states of the Northwest Territory. Nine girlies will act as attendants.

Service Body Frowns on Competition.

In the exercise of its authority to withhold a certificate of public necessity, the public service commission will prevent the establishment of a dual telephone system in the village of New Washington in Crawford county. The case is the first of its kind that has come before the commission. Application to start a new telephone system was made by the Cranberry Home Telephone Co. and resisted by the Local Telephone Co., which alleged the telephone system served the community well and that establishment of a competing system would work hardship.

Asks for an Aeroplane.

The O. N. G. signal corps is urging the need of an aeroplane as part of the new equipment. Officers of the signal division were in conference with Adjutant General Weybrecht and urged the plan. It was suggested that the signal corps camp at Plymouth in Richland and Huron counties be called Camp Wilbur Wright.

The organization now has a real aviator in the person of Victor H. Mayfield, a pupil of Arch Hoxsey.

Saloon Safe Is Blown.

In an unsuccessful attempt to get at the inside of an empty safe, yeggmen blew the outer door from the safe in the saloon of George Dean, 327 West Broad street. The explosion aroused the saloonkeeper, who lives above the saloon, and he ran to the window in time to get two shots at the fleeing men. He thinks he did not hit them. Mr. Dean told the police there was nothing of value in the safe.

Ohio's Fires.

The state fire marshall's bulletin shows that there were 340 fires in the state during the month of May, causing a money loss of $221,444. The property destroyed was covered by insurance aggregating $1,173,988. Five of the fires were of incendiary origin, causing losses aggregating $4,051. There were twenty-two fires of unknown origin, causing losses aggregating $19,445.

Heads State Embalming Board.

H. H. Shaw, Columbus undertaker, was elected president and W. F. Cary of Millersburg, Holmes county, was elected secretary-treasurer at a meeting of the Ohio state board of embalming examiners, held at the Southern Hotel. Captain George Billow of Akron was renamed a member of the board. The date for examinations was set for August 13 and 14.

Railroad Brotherhoods Plan Big Social.

Final arrangements for the first union lawn fete ever held in Columbus by the different railroad organizations were completed at a meeting of the committee on arrangements at the Railway Y. M. C. A. The committee, whose chairman is Mrs. John Castle, is composed of representatives of the ladies' auxiliaries of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, Order of Railroad Conductors and Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen.

Milk Thieves Caught.

With the sentencing of Peter Bob Reynolds and Earl Huff, two negro boys, 18 years old, to 10 days in the city prison, residents of the East Side who have been missing milk from the doorsteps may rest assured that, for a time at least, they will find the morning bottle in its accustomed place. Patrolmen Cruzen and Kemp caught Peter Bob with a quart bottle of milk before daylight at Champion and Long streets. He confessed he had been stealing milk almost every morning, and implicated Earl Huff.

STATE INSTITUTIONS

COST THE TAXPAYERS $9,030,946.69 DURING THE PAST YEAR

According to a Report Made to the Board of Charities—Many Recommendations Made.

Columbus, O.—The total cost to the state for the operation of its 19 penal, correctional and benevolent institutions during the two years ending November 15, 1911, was $9,030,946.69. This is shown by the biennial report of the Board of State Charities made to Gov. Harmon.

The total number of inmates in 1910 was 11,836, and in 1911, 11,906. The daily average attendance in 1911 was 35.5 per cent greater than it was in 1903. The per capita cost in 1910 was $160.02, while in 1911 it was $154.16.

In the last six years no provision has been made for the growth in population of the institutions. The completion of the Lima State Hospital for Criminal Insane will relieve the congested condition.

The board recommends additions for the Dayton and Cleveland State hospitals. An additional farm colony for Cleveland is also recommended. It also recommends that some 200 epileptics be transferred from other state hospitals to the Gallipolis State hospital and that an addition be made there for that purpose.

The new pay patient law yielded the state $121,951.24 from August 15, 1910, to November 15, 1911. The board recommends that the butter law be repealed, so that good substitutes for butter may be used at the institutions.

Since May 8, 1908, 1,030 suspended sentences were allowed under the Pollock law. Of these 165 were revoked and the convicted persons went to prison.

It cost $255,652.35 to run the Cleveland State hospital in 1910, and $281,508 in 1911. The per capita cost was $158.14 in 1910, and $156 in 1911.

The Madisonville, Lake county, for soldiers and sailors, their wives and widows and army nurses, contained 38 inmates in 1910, and the per capita cost of these was $328.88. In 1911 there were 29 inmates, with a per capita cost of $402.20. This is high.

The per capita cost at the Mt. Vernon Sanitarium is $887.39. This was due to the fact that it includes the large sum expended for erection of buildings. The cost of operation of the institution during the period covered by the report was $73,823.54.

The figures for the three other Columbus institutions are:

Penitentiary—Cost of operation in 1910, $400,036; in 1911, $582,276. (This includes expenditures for new cell blocks and other improvements.) Per capita, $181.86 and $154.39.

School For Deaf—Cost of operation, 1910, $131,804; 1911, $142,517. Per capita, $292.09 and $280.

School For Blind—Cost of operation, 1910, $107,741; 1911, $101,570. Per capita, $339.36 and $284.71.

Institution For Feeble-Minded—Cost of operation, 1910, $251,859; 1911, $279,243. Per capita, $132.87 and $132.04.

FOR THIRTY-EIGHT HOURS

Pianist Plays and Breaks World's Record, It Is Said.

Portsmouth, O.—Leroy Bittner, a local pianist, is believed to have broken the world's record for continuous piano playing, by playing thirty-eight and one-half hours at a local theater. Bittner showed no ill effects at the end of the endurance contest.

BIG IRON FURNACE MERGER.

Ironton, O.—The stockholders of the Marting Iron and Steel Co., the Ironton Iron Co., and the Lawrence Iron Co., three of the largest iron industries in this section of the country, met here Tuesday and consolidated their interests. Col. H. A. Marting, of this city, was elected president of the joint company. The first two furnaces are located here, and the other at Lawrence, this county.

SCOFFER IS INSTANTLY KILLED.

Washington C. H.—"It will be a long time before they get me in one of these boxes," said Frederick McDougal, aged 30, an employe of the Robinson Carnival shows, as he sat on a casket box at a local undertaker's office. At an early hour this morning he was almost instantly killed when a section of the Ferris wheel fell upon him. His home was in Milwaukee, Wis.

FARMER STRUCK BY BOLT.

Springfield, Ohio.—Charles Petree, 46, a farmer, was instantly killed by lightning during a storm. He was standing in his home talking with Dr. C. B. Hamma, when there was a blinding flash of lightning and he fell over. There were no marks on his body. Hamma was slightly shocked.

BONDHOLDERS BUY SHOP.

Hamilton, Ohio.—The plant of Hamilton Gas and Electric company was sold by the receiver to the bondholders of the company through a committee representing them.

The plant was appraised at $740,647, and the bondholders' committee bid $550,000. The sale will be submitted to United States District Judge Hollister in Cincinnati, who had ordered that should the bid be less than the appraised value, it should be submitted to him.

KOEHLER SUES FOR $15,000.

Hamilton, Ohio.—Henry F. C. Koehler, the cement contractor who was injured by flying glass in an Ohio Electric Co. street car on Main street June 1, when the car hit a wagon, sued the company for $15,000 damages. He says the glass cut the tendons of his left eye, rendering him partly blind. He also sets out his hearing has been rendered defective by the collision and he was otherwise permanently injured. He has employed W. S. Dowers to prosecute the case.

SAVES BOY'S LIFE

Fisherman Dives to Bottom and Rescues Eight-Year-Old Child.

Columbus, Ohio.—By heroic efforts of a fisherman near by, the waters of Olentangy river were cheated of a life and Robert Lewis Webb, 8-year-old son of Lewis Webb, 443 West Poplar avenue, is safe with his parents. The rescuer was Charles Williams, 169 West Long street.

The Webb lad had gone down for the third time, but Williams, who was attracted to the scene by the boy's cries, plunged into the river where he had seen him sink, and diving to the bottom, rescued him. Hauling him to the shore unconscious, he enforced artificial respiration in the prostrate body until it was again aglow with life. He then assisted the lad to his home.

HERO TRIES TO SAVE

Little Child From Drowning and Both Lives Are Lost

Middletown, Ohio.—In spite of the bravery of Walter Smith, 30 years old, clerk in the revenue service in this city and Cincinnati, both he and Frederick, the four-year-old child of Alfred Vorhies, paperhanger, were drowned at the Peasttown bridge, three miles north of this city.

The child fell in the river at the father's camp above the bridge and as it passed under the structure Smith, who was passing on a bicycle, dived in after the boy.

The bridge is thirty feet above the water and the fact that Smith was unable to swim makes his act all the more heroic.

He was a prominent member of both the Elk and K. of P. lodges and leaves a widow and child. Both bodies were found half an hour after the accident.

NUMBER OF REMOVALS

By Death From Roll of Ohio Pensioners Is 5,330.

Columbus, O.—The total number of removals by death from the roll of pensioners paid from the Ohio agency for the year ending June 30, 1912, was 5,330.

The total number of pensioners on the Ohio list at the beginning of the current year, July 1, 1912, was 48,777. The total amount disbursed by Col. W. L. Curry, the Ohio pension agent, during the year ending June 30 was $15,[illegible].

TEN DOLLARS PRICE OF HARDIN COURTHOUSE

Will Raze Old Building For New $235,000 Structure at Kenton.

Kenton, O.—Ten dollars was the price paid for the old courthouse here. The building, which has stood for years, is to be torn down to make room for a modern structure. Bonds to the amount of $235,000 for the erection of the new building, were sold at par to a Toledo firm.

YOUTH OF 12 YEARS KILLS SELF

So Father Can Not Whip Him For Not Hoeing Enough Corn.

Ashtabula, O.—"Mother, I shot myself so I can have rest and father can not lick me any more for not hoeing enough corn. It was 10:30 when I had a collision with the bullet." Freddie, the twelve-year-old and only son of Peter Miller, left that message when he killed himself with a shotgun.

HER WARNING LURES SON TO HIS DEATH.

Mansfield, O.—"Mother is waving to tell us supper is ready," said twelve-year-old Fred Eberhardt to his grandmother as they were walking along a railroad track to their home near Perrysville just before a train approached from behind and instantly killed him. The mother was waving frantically to warn them of their danger and saw her son killed.

PASTOR RESIGNS.

Piqua, O.—Rev. Enos Pemberton, after an almost continuous service as a minister of the gospel for 41 years, has tendered his resignation as pastor of the Friends' church at Ludlow Falls to take effect August 1. Rev. Pemberton gives his long service and failing health as a reason for desiring to be released from active work, which no doubt will be granted.

A BOLD SAFE BLOWER

Lima, Ohio.—A yegg blew a safe in a local haberdashery here and escaped with $75. The store is in the same building as the Norval hotel, and while scores of persons were passing through the hotel lobby the cracksman did his work. He then unlocked a door leading into the hotel and walked coolly through the lobby.

LIMA WOMAN HONORED

Lima, Ohio.—Mrs. Charles Scott of Lima at Cleveland, was elected president of the Federated Colored Women's clubs of Ohio. This is the first time any of the federation honors have come to a Lima woman, so that the election comes as a particular distinction to Mrs. Scott.

The federation was in Cleveland for five days. The delegate from here is Mrs. Charles Hamilton, Spring street. Mrs. Scott was also in attendance at the convention.

CHILD FALLS FROM BRIDGE.

West Carrollton, Ohio.—The fact that four-year-old Margaret Humerick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sanford Humerick, who live about half a mile below West California, had a slight birthmark on her arm, brought about her quick identification, when her body was hauled from the Miami and Erie canal in Miamisburg. The child had gone out with her grandfather, John S. Sanford, to feed some hogs. She wandered away unnoticed, got upon the C., H. & D. railroad tracks and fell off a bridge into the canal.

BOSTON TRADES "DOC" MILLER FOR TITUS.

Outfielder Miller in New Berth.

The even up trade of John Titus of the Phillies for Doc Miller of the Braves, opens another interesting argument as to which club gets the "best" of the trade. Recent averages show Titus hitting .272 and Miller .230 and neither living up to past reputations.

J. KLING MAY QUIT BOSTONS

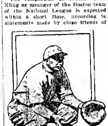
Resignation as Manager of Famous Backstop Is Expected Within Very Short Time.

The resignation of Catcher John Kling as manager of the Boston team of the National League is expected within a short time, according to statements made by close friends of the backstop. These men declare that Johnny has repeatedly told them of his dissatisfaction with the way he is compelled to run the Braves and has frequently expressed his disgust with what he terms the old-fashioned ideas of John Montgomery Ward, president of the club.



Manager Johnny Kling.

While no verification of this rumor could be obtained from either Kling or President Ward, Boston fans have noticed the frequent absence of Kling's name from Boston box scores during the past few weeks and have wondered what the trouble was. Rariden and Gowdy have donned the big mitt in the majority of contests of late, although Kling is in condition to play his usual game of ball.

Callahan Has Oddities.

One of them has to do with Shibe Park, the home lot of the Athletics. Jimmy looks upon Connie Mack as the real founder of the American league in Philadelphia.

The Shibes, he says, didn't invest their money until it was plain the club was sure to be a winner. Therefore Jimmy insists on calling the park "Mack Park."

A Philadelphia baseball writer besought Cal for an interview one day last season. Jimmy complied, but imposed a condition that the Athletics' park be called "Mack Park" throughout the story. The newspaper man agreed, and for once at least Connie got all the credit that Cal thought due him.

Illuminating Lead.

The lead for a recent Houston-Waco game supplied by Sporting Editor Jones of the Waco News is illuminating, especially to fans in San Antonio, where they are "waiting for the Buffs to break" and over in Beaumont, where they call John Henry's team the "Bluffs." It follows:

"Waco almost beat Houston today. The only things that kept them from it were Boss's tightness and the perfect support given him and some two-baggers and three-baggers by Whiteman and Newman and we'll answer Waco on [illegible] no tallies of winning. One fan summed it up for the whole crowd when he said: 'Let's not play Houston any more.'"

Chase Divorce Suit.

Hal Chase of the Yankees has brought suit against his pretty young wife, Nellie H. Chase, for divorce. The couple had a romantic courtship while Chase was playing with Jersey City in the summer of 1907. In her denial of the charges made Mrs. Chase says her husband's salary is $8,000 a year and she asks $1,000 counsel fees and $300 a month.

George Rohe Released.

The release of George Rohe by Mobile marks for another chapter in the changing fortunes of the hero of the world's series of 1906. Rohe, wherever he may go, will long be remembered as the substitute put in for the series who won it with his hitting.

BETTING ON NATIONAL GAME

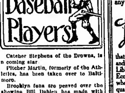
Regular Bookmaking Establishments Opened for Placing Wagers on Outcome of Contests.

The gamblers and the bookmakers have at last begun a real attack on baseball. It was bad enough when friends bet with each other as to the outcome of games. Now, we are informed, regular bookmaking establishments have been opened. Odds are posted, based on the assumption of certain pitchers working. Bets may be made on the results of games, on the result of the league race, on the number of runs that will be made, or on almost any event of the game. In addition, tipsters have begun to ply their trade, offering to give inside information, sure winners, etc.

The great national game cannot stand long under an incubus of this kind, says the Charleston News and Courier. Once let the gambling feature predominate and all belief in the honesty of the games will at once disappear. Any player who makes an error at a critical time will be subjected to the charge that he has been bought. Managers and all others connected officially with the different teams will find themselves in a most unpleasant situation, pending the final ending of the sport as a national pastime.



Among the Baseball Players

Catcher Stephens of the Browns is a coming star.

Vincent Campbell, formerly an uncertain and clumsy outfielder, has improved marvelously.

The Pittsburg club has been cut to 22 players. Mickey Keliher and Harry Gardner were the last to go.

There are very few batters, who get away with a bunt toward third base while Herzog is on the job.

Snodgrass not only plays the initial bag in good shape, but is also of assistance in steadying a pitcher.

Del Howard, ex-manager of the Louisville club, now with St. Paul, has been re-elected Mayor of Kenney, Ill.

By the way he is stealing bases it doesn't look as if Sam Crawford of the Tigers is slowing down this year.

Joe Wood and Walter Johnson are having a close race to see which can win the most games in the American league.

McGraw put every man on his payroll into the joke game against Boston, which the leaders won by a score of 21 to 12.

It is the opinion of many that Clark Griffith provided the balance necessary to make Washington a pennant contender.

Ed Walsh is fast losing his title of life-saver. Instead of doing the saving act himself others have had to come to his rescue.

George Rohe, the former White Sox third baseman and hero of the world's series of 1906, has been released by the Mobile Southern league club.

William O'Rourke, father of Tim O'Rourke, scout for the Boston Nationals, died recently in Chicago. The dead man formerly played ball with Ted Sullivan and Charles Comiskey on the Dubuque team in the early '80's.

The Danville franchise of the Virginia league is to be transferred to Bluefields, W. Va., provided that city will put up a guarantee to finish the season, and thus the Virginia circuit of eight clubs will be maintained.

Also Mr. Bryan will visit Sea Girt "sometime this summer."

The Outlook "rejoices" in Gov. Wilson's nomination, but it doesn't rejoice enough to abandon its contributing editor.

---

Col. Harvey runs up the Wilson flag again this week, but Col. Watterson was ahead of him, although the Kentuckian was in a less amiable temper.

---

Asking Gov. Wilson to resign his present office because he has been nominated for the presidency is quite as sensible as asking Mr. Taft to resign his.

---

The way to fight bossism is to abrogate the unit rule, to adopt fair and simple primary laws, to abolish conventions and modernize political machinery.

---

As a result of the recent decision of the Interstate Commerce commission there is prospect of a war between the various coal interests. And this is a case where the people's voice is not for peace.

---

Mayor Brand Whitlock of Toledo, O., is to stump for Woodrow Wilson during September and October. It occurs to the Washington Post to remark that "every time T. R.'s elevator stops somebody gets off." Mayor Whitlock represents in the West about what Louis D. Brandeis does in the East.

Louis D. Brandeis, in a statement given out a short time ago at Boston, calls upon both republicans and democrats to give Woodrow Wilson, the nominee of the democratic party, enthusiastic support. Gov. Wilson's nomination, he thinks, ranks among the most encouraging events in American history. This will a little more than offset the loss of Hearst.

---

Senator Bristow, Progressive Republican, says: "And if we could eliminate partisan affiliations, entanglements and their attending embarrassments, and have a frank open statement of views from Woodrow Wilson and Theodore Roosevelt, we would find only slight differences between them. The same can be said of Mr. Bryan and Senator La Follette."

The Nebraska colonel was welcomed home like a conquering hero, with the Republican governor on the reception committee. Bryan may have indirectly sought the nomination for himself, but he stands better with "the home folks" for having actually paved the way for the nomination of another man. The other colonel faces a sea of political troubles and no end of obstacles through being a candidate—for a third term himself.—Ex.

Suffrage is making great gains on the Pacific coast, but Spokane is torn with dissension over the question whether it is proper for a wife to search her husband's pockets for small change. The women are for the most part against it, perhaps feeling that no small change should be allowed to accumulate there, but the other side is taken by a pastor, though he confesses that a minister knows little about small change or large from actual experience.

The above sentence was taken from the advertisement of the Farmers State bank of Newkirk, Okla., of July 5, 1912. After nearly five years of trial it seems to be worth the while for state banks in Oklahoma to let the people know that they are Guaranteed banks. Maybe the people of Oklahoma like Guaranteed banks. We have not heard of any protest from the people of that state.

A park in New York city named in their honor will be a fitting tribute to the memory of Mr. and Mrs. Isador Straus, whose lives meant so much for the welfare of the people of their adopted city. Park Commissioner Stover has approved the plan to give the name Straus park to the triangle at Broadway, West End Ave. and One Hundred and Sixth street, and it is proposed to spend $10,000 in beautifying. The subscription list contains many well-known names, including those of not a few "gentiles." Could any one conceive of a better plan to perpetuate the memory of noted men and women, that this idea of setting aside that which can be enjoyed by many people, and permitting the place to bear the name of those whose memory should be retained. A much better plan than piling up stone in the shape of monuments.

A CHANGE NEEDED

Business men who have had occasion to experiment with the product of the average High school of America, says the Akron Beacon Journal, will be inclined to agree with the conclusions of a report to be submitted to the National Council of Education, which meets in Chicago today and which brands High school education throughout the United States as "generally bookish, scholastic, abstract and inadequate to meet the practical problems of life."

The report, based on investigations conducted in twenty-five states, declared that the system of high school teaching is just where it was thirty years ago, and that this backwardness is due to the plan of high schools to prepare pupils "for colleges and universities rather than for life."

"The whole trouble with our high school education," declared one educator after reading the report, "is that it is regarded too much as merely a preparation for the university instead of dealing with the problems of life today the students are taught to deal with the language, politics and customs of fifteen centuries ago. Nearly all the high school teachers are college graduates who have no adequate knowledge of affairs outside of colleges. Their teaching is, therefore, bookish, scholastic and abstract.

"We need a change of aim in high school teaching, a look in the direction of the farm, shop and home."

NEW ALIGNMENT OF PARTIES

There is no need now for the third party which Mr. Roosevelt is organizing. There would have been a real need for it if the progressive cause had been defeated at Baltimore, but the issue is now clearly drawn. Mr. Taft is a very good representative of the reactionary cause, in his temperament and point of view and political acts. Mr. Wilson is likewise not only a good, but a brilliant representative of the progressive cause. He is his own platform. The democratic party both in its platform and candidate represents emphatically and exactly the very principles for which Mr. Roosevelt is working. His only logical place is in the democratic party. It is worse than a mistake for men who hold the same political faith to defeat each other by dividing their forces. If Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. La Follette will join forces with Mr. Bryan and Mr. Wilson they can help to make the democratic party as Mr. Bryan has long worked hard to do, the new party of progress.

A realignment of the old parties has been a long-felt and commonly-expressed need. I call attention to the fact that such a realignment of the parties has already taken place. At Chicago the republican party emphatically declared itself the party of reaction. At Baltimore the democratic party emphatically declared itself the party of progress. Within two weeks the names, republican and democrat, have acquired a new and distinct meaning. In view of this fact a third party would be a decided hindrance to the progressive cause. The time has come for men to take sides on political questions because the issue before the American people is fundamentally a moral issue. The issue at stake is so important that the true friends of moral progress ought to be united, not divided. Since the new democratic party so completely represents the principles for which Mr. Roosevelt has fought, he cannot escape the suspicion of personal ambition if he refuses to join it and seeks an election through a third party. But if Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. La Follette, with all their splendid abilities, would lay aside all personal feelings and ambitions and seek the triumph of progressive principles by joining forces with the able and noble leaders of the new democracy, Mr. Bryan and Mr. Wilson, they would render a patriotic service of the highest value in this crisis of our history.—Rev. Henry E. Jackson, of [illegible] Record.

RANDOM THOUGHTS

By Tom, Dick and Harry.

The Tyranny of the Majority

Many men high in the nation's political and judicial life have recently been deploring "the tyranny of the majority." Men prominent in almost every department of governmental activity have given as a reason for their opposition to the initiative and referendum their fear that should a majority of the people come to impose their will upon the country, then the minority would be made to suffer in some way not explained.

It seems to me that the essence of foolishness exists in sentiments of that kind, if, indeed it is not the utterance of those who benefit directly by the "rule of the minority." Space will not permit going into detail as to the impossibility of a majority under our form of government ever oppressing a minority, but some thoughts on the subject may here be given.

Under popular government, a democratic government, there can be no such thing as oppression of a minority, for the simple reason that no minority can have any rights not enjoyed by the majority. The idea is absurd. It is true that now the majority is not only oppressed, it is robbed, enslaved, degraded—when viewed by that "minority" which fears its "rights" are to be taken away from it.

When a judge begins to yell about the oppression of the minority by the majority, you can almost certainly name him as one of those whom "privilege" dearly loves. He is the child of their age and the darling of their hearts for well they know that the "common people" will never receive justice at his hands. He believes God not man made him a judge. He's dead wrong, of course. Man made him and in this after next September man is going to unmake him, too.

The minority has no rights in a democratic government, and the instant you set up any you inaugurate Privilege.

"Why a Socialist party?" The above question was asked last week by one of the Herald writers who also asked for an answer. We are inclined to believe that the answer was asked for because the writer believed the question to be unanswerable. Nevertheless the question showed a broadness of view and an insight into politics not always to be found in socialistic critics. It is for this reason that we would like to point out one or two facts that may not have occured to our political friend. Not in the hope of convincing him but to gratify his love for argument.

The writer of this letter is not a Yankee nor yet of the Socratic school of philosophers but will answer the question by asking another merely as a means to an expedient end. The question we would ask is this: Has the Socialist party justified its existence up to the present time? We are going to answer the question for our friend by saying that it has. He is compelled to answer in the affirmative because he says that he is not asking "why socialists" but why a "Socialist party." He of course recognizes that had there been no Socialist party, socialists today would still be confined to France and England. And since he does not decry socialists he must, of course, justify the cause of their existence.

Admitting then that the Socialist party has justified its existence up to this time, the question of our political friend is answered. He is not a Daniel to state the day and hour that a worthy thing ceases to be worthy.

Besides this the peculiar circumstances which he points out as making a Socialist party unnecessary are merely shadows of future events. Everyone yet to materialize. Do world movements stop when a ship is seen on the horizon?

Dear political friend, ask your question in six months from now and we shall hand you a volume on "Why a Socialist party?"

HAS AMUSED SHOW PUBLIC FOR THIRTY-TWO YEARS

Thirty-two years of success as an amusement purveyor to the American public is a record of which any man might well be proud, and that is the record of Frank A. Robbins, who will bring his "All-Feature Show" to Painesville this year on July 23. Starting while yet a very young man, with the smallest kind of a wagon show, he has gradually developed his business until today he is putting on the road a show, which, while not the largest, is fully up to any in the features presented. Every year for thirty-two he has improved his equipment, and searched all over the country for star acts, and those which will be seen this year are said to eclipse any in the past. It has always been the custom of this successful circus man to give the public just what he advertises that he will, and his reputation for keeping his word has become so great that he is able to return to the same town year after year, a thing which has been found next to impossible by other circuses. In addition to strengthening his show he has increased his menagerie and parade this year at great expense. Two performances will be given, at 2 and 8 o'clock, preceded by a band concerts for one hour.

Tribute to Amazons.

The magnificent example of the women of Dahomey should be made widely known wherever their more civilized sisters are to be found struggling for their rights. Frederick Martyn of the French foreign legion, who fought in the recent Dahomey campaign, tells us emphatically that "the female of the species is more deadly than the male." The Senegalese tirailleurs were attacked by the Amazons, and Mr. Martyn says that "any one inclined to sympathize with the Amazons on account of their sex and to look upon the combat between them and our men as unequal, may take it from me that their sympathy would be misplaced. These young women were far and away the best men in the Dahomeyan army, and woman to man were quite a match for any of us. They fought like unchained demons, and if driven into a corner, did not disdain to use their teeth and nails." It may be an error of policy to make these facts known, and thus to stimulate a militancy already vigorous enough.

Unseen Universe.

In the vicinity of the star S. Coronae Australis Innes and Worsell have found a patch of sky 95 minutes of arc in diameter where no star can be seen with a 9-inch refracting telescope.

According to Innes, who discusses the subject in "Transvaal Observatory Circular No. 5," the apparent absence of stars in this region is due to the occurrence of some absorbing medium, interposed between us and distant parts of the universe.

Stars in the neighborhood of the dark region are enveloped in nebulæ; while just on the border of it there is a star which has been observed to fluctuate in magnitude between 11.6 and 12.2, and which was invisible during the years 1899-1901.

The latter fact is accounted for on the supposition that the absorbing medium was for a time in front of the star, but has since withdrawn from it.

Virtue in Silence.

Silence is one great art of conversation. He is not a fool who knows when to hold his tongue, and a person may gain credit for sense, eloquence, wit, who merely says nothing to lessen the opinion which others have of these qualities in themselves.—William Hazlitt.

Hetty B. Hart, the unknown heirs of Hetty B. Hart, deceased, the unknown devisees of Hetty B. Hart, deceased, the unknown executors of Hetty B. Hart, deceased, the unknown administrators of Hetty B. Hart, deceased, the names and residences of all of whom are unknown to the plaintiff, will take notice that on the 5th day of July, 1912, Martha White, Mary Victoria Davis, Lillie A. Grover, and Agnes Baker filed their petition in the Common Pleas Court of Lake County, Ohio, in Cause No. 4121 against the above named parties claiming that plaintiffs are in the actual possession of and the owners in fee simple of the premises hereinafter described, and praying that the above named parties be compelled to show their interest, if any, in the premises hereinafter described, and that such interest may be adjudged to be null and void, and that plaintiff's title may be quieted against them.

The defendants, Hetty B. Hart, the unknown heirs of Hetty B. Hart, deceased, the unknown devisees of Hetty B. Hart, deceased, the unknown executors of Hetty B. Hart, deceased, and the unknown administrators of Hetty B. Hart, deceased, claim an estate or interest in the above described premises adverse to plaintiff's rights by reason of the fact that on and prior to April 1st, 1862, the defendant, Hetty B. Hart, was seized in fee simple of the above described premises, that on or about the 19th day of June, 1861, said Hetty B. Hart executed to one Richard H. W. Jarvis, a certain Power of Attorney granting unto said Jarvis, power to grant, sell, release and convey any lands belonging to her situated in the Western Reserve in the State of Ohio, and to make deeds therefor, which Power of Attorney is recorded in Book 8, page 37, Lake County, Ohio Records, that on the 1st day of April, 1862, one R. W. H. Jarvis, as Agent for said Hetty B. Hart executed and delivered to Ansel White, from who the plaintiffs have derived their title to the above described premises, a deed covering said above described premises, which deed is recorded in Book 8, page 596, Lake County, Ohio Records.

Said Premises are described as follows:

Situated in the Township of Willoughby, County of Lake, and State of Ohio, being in township No. Nine (9) in the Tenth (10) Range of Townships in the Connecticut Western Reserve, (so-called), being known and designated as the East part of Lot Number Four (4) and the West part of Lot No. Five (5), in Tract Number Sixteen (16) in said Township of Willoughby, and is bounded as follows, viz: North by Lake Erie, East by the East half of Lot No. Five (5), heretofore sold to Jacob Tamoreau, south by Lot Number Eight (8), and West by a Fifty-acre tract in said Lot Number Four (4) heretofore sold to Andrew J. Beeman, containing One Hundred and Twenty-six and Seventy-three Hundredths (126.73) acres of which Sixty-six and Eighty-eight Hundredths (66.88) acres are in Lot Four (4), and Fifty-nine and Eighty-five (59.85) acres are in Lot Five (5).

Plaintiffs further say that they and their immediate predecessors in title have held the actual, open, continuous, undisputed and exclusive adverse possession of the above premises for more than Twenty-one (21) years last past, to-wit, from April 1st, 1862, as to all of the above named defendants and as to all other persons.

Plaintiffs deny that any of the above named defendants have any interest in any of the above described property.

Said parties are required to answer on or before the 7th day of September, 1912.

OSCAR J. HORN,
Attorney for Plaintiffs

ORDINANCE No. 218

An Ordinance to Amend and Supplement Section 96 of the Codified Ordinances of the Village of Fairport, Ohio.

Section 96. It shall be unlawful for any person, other than a village contractor, village officer or employe in the regular course of his business or employment, to dig up, remove or carry away or cause the same to be done, any stone, earth, sand or ground from any street, alley or public ground in said village or make any opening or excavation in any street, alley or public ground without first obtaining from the Mayor, or in his absence the Clerk, of said village as hereinafter provided, a permit so to do.

Sec. 96A. Any person desiring to make any opening or excavation in any street, alley or public ground of said village shall make written or printed application to the Mayor, or in his absence, the Clerk, which shall specify the location, size and purpose of the opening or excavation to be made. Upon the making of such application the applicant shall deposit with the Mayor or Clerk the sum of two ($2.00) dollars to insure said opening or excavation being properly refilled and said street, alley or public ground being restored to its former condition of repair and usefulness. Thereupon the Mayor or Clerk shall issue a permit to make such opening or excavation which permit shall contain a stipulation that the person to whom the same is issued shall indemnify and save harmless said village from loss or claim for damages because of any act or omission of the holder of said permit in doing the work authorized to be done. It shall be the duty of the holder of said permit to properly guard and light any opening or excavation made under such permit. When the holder of such permit is ready to refill such opening or excavation he shall notify the commissioner of streets whose duty it shall be to inspect the filling of such opening or excavation. If the commissioner of streets finds that such opening or excavation has been properly filled and said street, alley or public ground restored to its former condition of usefulness and repair he shall so certify upon such permit and sign the same. Upon the return of such permit with said endorsement thereon by the person to whom it was issued he shall be entitled to receive said sum of two ($2.00) dollars deposited to secure the same.

Sec. 96B. The Mayor or Clerk issuing such permit shall be entitled to receive therefore a fee of Twenty-five cents from the person securing the same.

Sec. 96C. Any person violating any provision of section 96 hereof shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be fined in any sum not exceeding fifty dollars.

Sec. 2. Said original section 96 of the codified ordinance of said village as codified and passed Nov 14, 1899, be and the same is hereby repealed.

Sec. 3. This ordinance shall be in force and take effect from and after its passage and legal publication.

Passed June 27, 1912.

AUGUST WOLFF
Mayor

Attest,
J. O. KOSKI, Clerk

MENTOR.

The worst electrical storm struck here about six o'clock on Saturday that we have ever seen. The rain came down by the barrel full, so that it was impossible to see across the street, which in a moment or two was a river of flowing water. The sky was a yellow hue, and there was a blaze of lightning, and a constant roar of thunder, reminding those of us who have seen similar storms on the prairies of the west, of the wonderful displays out there. Several buildings were struck by lightning and burned to the ground, one being a barn on the James Glozier farm in West Mentor, another in south Mentor, but the owner we have not been able to learn. Two or three small buildings were struck and burned on the Van Cleve place, which is now occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Henry Brown of Cleveland. Fortunately, there was not much wind; so that while the electric lights were put out of commission in the village here, the telephone wires were kept hot—asking and answering questions, there not seeming to have been much of any damage done to the telephone system.

These are picnic days, and the Ladies Aid are to go off on Wednesday and together with their friends, spend the day at Willoughbeach, while the Methodist Sunday School have decided to hold their annual picnic down at our own Mentor Park on Saturday the 27th, and all friends of the church and school are cordially invited to go and carry eatables.

Mr. and Mrs. John Code have been very busy this past week in moving to Willoughby, where they are to make their home; Mrs. Frank Corning of course helping her daughter in the moving process.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Johnson, Jr., of Cleveland, were down with their two little children for over Sunday with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Johnson, Sr., at the Center.

Miss Anna Johnson has completed her visit here with her parents and will return on Tuesday to her work in New York City where she as a trained nurse has charge of a ward in one of the city hospitals.

Mr. Schauffner has inaugurated open air meetings on the grounds in front of the Methodist meeting house which will be appreciated this warm weather.

Mrs. Delle Corning has been in Mentor for some days with her brother, Mr. John Tyler, and other friends, while her youngest daughter, Mrs. Earl Woodruff with whom she makes her home in Collinwood, is away on a trip to the Pacific Coast.

Mr. George Hinsdale of Cleveland, together with his daughter, Miss Josephine, old neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. Harry King when they lived in the city, were down here a part of the day on Sunday, guests at Southwood.

Mrs. George Hoose and her sisters the Misses Freeman are now enjoying a visit from their niece, Miss Bessie Vannerman of Ill.

Those of the Mentor folks who wish to indulge in a good glass of ice cream soda when out to Painesville, will find a Mentor boy, Wells Clother, dispensing same, at the new drug store of Mr. Oebring.

The automobile craze has struck Mentor good and hard, and what is good about it, those of our men who are now getting them, are the ones who really need them most in their business; some of them never having kept a horse. Several of the Mentor boys are getting motorcycles and more are expected we understand.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Dye are up in Cleveland spending some little time with their daughter, Mrs. Moffet and her family.

Mrs. N. C. Frost entertained her cousin, Mrs. Charles Johnson and her family at Echo Hill Farm all day on Wednesday.

Miss Sarah Armstrong was one of the few ladies from here who were invited down to Mentor Plains last week to attend their Missionary meeting at the pleasant home of Mrs. Edgar Gunn.

Miss Luella Kerr seems to be slowly improving, is sitting up a little now, spending much time out of doors.

The program committee of the Miscellany Club have gotten out some very nice new programs, and fully a month earlier than usual. The ladies are to study Canada this next year, and of course miscellaneous subjects as usual. The officers for the ensuing year are President, Mrs. Harry King; First Vice Pres., Mrs. Lyman Ferry; Second Vice Pres., Miss Elsie Harford, Sec'y, Mrs. T. D. Morley, Treas. Miss Merkle. The first meeting is to be held Sept. 18th, and the last May 14th. The Literary Committee are Mrs. Gilbert, Miss Hayford, Mrs. Robert Case; and the Social Committee who will have charge of the six or seven social afternoons, are Mrs. Charles Justus, Mrs. Ben Warren, Mrs. A. D. Carleton, and Mrs. Spindle.

Miss Laura Randall is spending the summer vacation up in Michigan, we understand, with relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Knight have recently moved out of the Presley house and into the cottage just vacated by W. [illegible] Sawyer and family at the Center, same being owned by Mrs. Jennie Pratt Bostwick. Why some one doesn't snap up her suite of rooms over the new block, is a great mystery, for they are lovely rooms, and very convenient in every way.

The Mentor High School Alumnae Association will hold their annual reunion sometime in September after the return of the President of the Association, Miss Frances Cleveland, from her outing at Chautauqua.

Mrs. Edward S. Sawyer is visiting her sister, Mrs. Edward Parchall down in Akron for a few days at present writing.

The Mentor village council have at last taken vigorous steps to put a stop to speeding through the incorporation limits, and quite a number of automobilists and motorcyclists have already been arrested. As result, there were fewer Sabbath-breakers tearing through our otherwise quiet streets yesterday, and those few drove along at a much reduced rate of speed. There seems to be a growing feeling that all bicycle riders ought to be compelled to go in the road, and leave the sidewalk for people on foot. As most of the bicycle folks have no lamps on their wheels at night, and many do not trouble to ring their bells, and several persons have really been knocked down and hurt, it does seem as though there might be two sides to the question.

Since beginning to look up property for sale, we have found quite a number of desirable pieces and several very desirable building lots especially on Center street. The house of eight rooms, a fairly good barn and one acre of land with considerable fruit on it, all within two minutes walk of school, post office and car line, at the small price of two thousand dollars, seems the best bargain now to be had. This is the old Nelson Corning place at the Center.

Mrs. Joseph Stanley-Brown has completed her visit here with her mother, Mrs. Lucretia Garfield, and leaves for her Long Island home sometime tomorrow, when her daughters will come on for their outing at their much beloved "Lawnfield." Prof. Harry Garfield will not open his house here this summer on account of health, but will visit his old home sometime next month, if all goes well—that being the plan now.

The reception held by the Disciple church people at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Lowe last week, was largely attended in spite of the very hot weather, so that the house was crowded. Mr. and Mrs. Schaffner stood up with Mr. and Mrs. Clark, and a thoroughly pleasant time was enjoyed by all present, we are told.

Mr. Ed Barber has gone to Dakota for a two weeks vacation, which will be spent with his mother and brother at Wahpeton.

We understand that Miss Murray of Painesville has been engaged by the Mentor Village school board, to take the position resigned by Miss Jessie Ooff, but no High School Supt. has been hired as yet.

In spite of the fact that Mr. Chas. Norton has charge of the village lighting now, does not prevent the lightning from playing all sorts of freaks and putting our houses into darkness whenever there is a storm, as an excuse. And so, our people are learning from dark and sad experience to have a good old-fashioned coal oil lamp or two all ready in case of an emergency.

Mrs. Florence Woodford Northcut has bought a lot near the telephone exchange (forget the name of the street—there are so many) and is already negotiating with her cousin, Mr. Charles Pierce, to build a house thereon and have it ready to get into by time old winter comes again.

The Misses King have recently been entertaining their friend, Mrs. John Woodberry, of Shanghai, China, and her two daughters, who have just graduated from eastern colleges, and are all to sail for China in a week or so, to resume their missionary work there. Mr. and Mrs. Woodberry were among the early missionary teachers, and having been in Shanghai some thirteen years, have many interesting experiences to relate, and express the greatest satisfaction at the passing of the "queue."

At the Monday evening conference held by the Methodist Sunday school Board, the plan to visit every house in the village and find out how people stood on the church and Sunday school question was carried, and the committees got right to work the next day. Some folks said they believed in the church, always had but never went! Others believed it doing a good work and helped it on in every way possible! Still others, complained because church folks were so clannish and never came to call on strangers, etc. Taking the canvas as a whole, it proved satisfactory, and results are expected.

The Missionary out-door meeting held on the lawn of Mrs. N. W. Morley on Thursday afternoon of last week, was largely attended some sixty or more being present all afternoon and remaining for supper. Mrs. Beach of Willoughby gave a very interesting talk, as also did Mrs. Kendall of Painesville. Miss Jeannette Manson gave a very interesting account of the volunteer movement in connection with the Peking University, and the necessary amount (fifteen dollars) was raised to keep one student going.

Mr. Lyman [illegible] is having a good run of trade in his ice cream and soda water parlor at the Center, and all the other industries of the village are booming.

The recent showers came just in the nick of time to save the corn as well as the vegetable garden, and our farmers are wearing a smile all over their faces, as the hay was all in, and everybody ready for rain.

Mr. Henry Johnson has returned from his trip down to the Old Dominion where he sold his farm, and now expects to end his days in little old Lake County, we understand.

Heavy Grief.

As a specimen of heavy grief we have seen nothing more heart-rending than the following obituary notice, published in a German paper:

"Today red, tomorrow dead. So it was with my wife, who only seven days ago 'was springing over bench and table,' and was buried yesterday. During her life she was a live woman, who did not easily mistake an X for a U. For that reason everybody can tell the extent of my sorrow; so young and so merry, and now buried. What is human life? I have said to myself repeatedly within the past few days, and also yesterday in the church yard when I paid the sexton, who will also keep the grave mound in order. So cheerful a wife I shall certainly never, never, find again, and therefore, my sorrow is a righteous one. I wish that heaven preserve any man from a similar sad fate, and thank for the flowers, as well as the Herr Cantor, the music master of the choir, for the grove-hymn, which went through and through me, but was very well sung.—Ackerman, Master-Locksmith."—From the Narrator.

Her Rule With Husbands.

Miss Kate Riverton Byles, one of the suffragist leaders of Colorado, said at a recent suffragist dinner in Cripple Creek:

"Opponents of woman's suffrage would have you believe that a vote turns a woman into a monster. Yet, when a young man, arriving at the age of twenty-one, gets the vote, does he, or does he not, become a monster?

"But to hear the anti-suffragists talk you'd think that every voting woman was like that lady, rich in her own right, to whom her husband said:

"'My suspicions are at last confirmed. We part forever from this moment.'

"But the guilty lady retorted haughtily:

"'Not at all, sir. Not at all. It's my invariable rule to require a month's notice from every husband.'"

Encouraging.

"Diggins' friendship seems to flatter you."

"It doesn't flatter me," said the cynical statesman, "but it encourages me. He is one of those people who never trouble themselves to be affable except to those who are regarded as liable to have some pull."

Light Raiment in Nassau.

Mrs. Young, the hostess, who, by the way, was sweetly gowned, by her very pleasant manner added very much to the enjoyment of the occasion; and all present retired to pleasant dreams at 1:30 a. m.—Nassau (Bahamas) Tribune.

Hawaii's Bird Reservation

COLONY of BIRDS on LAYSAN

IN the leeward chain of islands of the Hawaiian group the Pacific possesses not only one of the great natural wonders of the western world, but a cruising, camping, fishing and outing park reservation that is in every sense unique.

Few even of the best informed people in the Hawaiian Islands, or out of them for that matter, appreciate this important possession at its real worth. This, however, is not so difficult to understand as it might at first seem, since hardly one in a thousand of the limited number who have desired to make the journey among them has ever been permitted to visit these floating bits of coral sand that apparently bob aimlessly about, adrift on the bosom of the great wide ocean. Few indeed have a first hand knowledge of what these possessions really are and know of the fascination they and their inhabitants possess as objects of natural interest. Then, too, the idea of utilizing the distant islands in any way that would suggest a natural park is so novel and out of the ordinary that it has not yet taken root in the mind of the man in the street.

Though all put together the exposed dry land and reefs of the reservation would hardly have an area of ten miles square it literally teems with fish and bird life. The sea bird population alone probably cannot be equaled in any other part of the world. Tens of millions of feathered fowl make their home on these lonely specks of land, repairing thither each year in countless flocks to establish rookeries and to rear their young. The reefs and waters about the islands fairly swarm with fish and other forms of life, so that they really form a densely populated natural zoological garden.

MARKETING THE EGGS

To the naturalist, the out-of-door enthusiast, the nature study photographer or the man who simply loves out-of-the-way places and the unusual and novel, these islands leave little to be desired. A chance to run down along this chain is the opportunity of a lifetime and bound to result in a really worth while experience—one that will live fresh in the memory long after the details of other trips and experiences have been mingled with the commonplace of life.

Unfortunately, at present, visiting the islands in the reservation is not the simple matter that it should be, nor that it is hoped it may be made in time. In former years the operations of a guano company, then engaged in exploiting the guano or bird lime deposits on the islands, made it possible by invitation to make the journey to Laysan island from Honolulu during the summer months in one of the company's sailing vessels.

While the islands of the chain are all different from each other and all intensely interesting, Laysan is in a certain sense typical of most of them. It is a raised coral atoll approximately two miles across that in general form has been compared to a broad, shallow platter composed entirely of sand or raised coral reef not more than 40 feet above the sea at the highest point on the sand rim which completely surrounds the salt water lagoon that occupies the central part of the island. This lagoon is of special interest, since its water contains more salt than does that of the open sea. This interesting fact tells much of the geological history of the island and points unmistakably to the origin of the land. It shows it to be a circular coral atoll that at the time of its elevation above the sea carried the water of the lagoon up to its present level. Since that time, and it must have been very long ago, the waters have evaporated to some extent and left that which remains more concentrated and salty than it was when the island was first made. About the edge of the lagoon the boggy earth is covered with crystals of salt mixed with chips of guano. This shell-like substance sparkles in the sun and suggests a band of silver at the water's edge. About this barren ring is a narrow band covered with low creeping vines. Back of this again is a growth of juncus which is backed up in turn by a ring of low bushes. The prevailing plant of the island, however, is a kind of coarse bunch grass that grows three or four feet high. More than a score of plants have found a footing there during the long period that has elapsed since the dry land first rose, so that at the time of its discovery, and, indeed, on the occasion of my first visit, for a sand island it was well supplied with a low growth of hardy vines, grass and shrubs. Unfortunately the introduction of rabbits on the island has marked a sad change since then.

Of the many things which interest the visitor at Laysan the great number of birds and their absolute fearlessness are perhaps the most striking. Dr. Fisher of the Albatross expedition, writing of his impression of the enormous number of birds, has very truly said:

"The effect of this at first was nearly overpowering. Where we made our way through the populous colony of sooty terns we had to exercise great care to avoid crushing their eggs and treading on the birds which struggled panic-stricken before us with the old ruse of a broken wing, and then, taking flight, swarming over our heads. If we would converse, it was necessary to shout.

"Turning toward the center of the island, we were obliged to cross a wide area with tall grass and completely honeycombed with the burrows of petrels. Through the roofs of these tunnels the pedestrian is continuously breaking, sinking in the soft soil up to the knee. From out of the shadows of the tussocks young albatross, uncouth and awkward, snapped their beaks at us, and occasionally losing their balance from overhaste fell forward on their chins. This proceeding usually made them actually sick.

"Few of the adult birds, however, seemed frightened and with the exercise of a little care we were able to approach most species as close as we wished. It was certainly gratifying to walk up to an albatross or a booby and watch it feed its young and to record this domestic duty with the camera."

More than two dozen species of sea, land and shore birds frequent this island in great numbers during the year. They do not all breed at the same time; in fact, some of them, as the plover, the curlew and the turnstone, do not breed on the island at all. Nevertheless, the island was literally covered from center to sea with breeding birds, mating birds, and young half-grown fledglings of a dozen or more species.

With such an astonishing population, numbering perhaps twice the inhabitants of Greater New York, it was to be expected that a study of the situation would reveal a method in their distribution. Generally speaking, the various species were grouped in more or less well defined colonies. As a rule, these colonies had settled on certain localities that seemed to suit their fancy or convenience. There is a constant coming and going at Laysan, so that the visitor arriving there at different seasons of the year would find different species predominating in the bird population, while other species that at another season would be equally as abundant might not be found there at all. But visit this island or any one of the chain when you will, enough interesting material for a volume on birds can be gathered in an hour or two on shore.

One of the many curious birds of the island, the albatross, of which there are two species, is of the most general interest. This is due in part to their splendid size and part to their unusual domestic habits.

The Laysan albatross, or white-breasted gony, is distributed all over the island, with the possible exception of the sea beach, which is especially popular with their brown-breasted, black-footed cousins. In certain places, as at the ends of the lagoon, they are or rather were, more congested than in other localities. The dense colony shown in the illustration was at the east end of the lagoon. To the progenitors of these birds is due the exceedingly valuable deposit of bird lime or guano, the accumulation of ages, which has been removed in years past and utilized as phosphate rock in chemical fertilizers.

The old birds do not mind the presence of man, often walking up to the visitor, evidently intending to welcome him among them. Once in a while an individual will take hold of the visitor's finger or gently pull at his shoe strings or leggins, but once ordinary curiosity is satisfied and the freedom of the place extended to the visitor they take up their former occupation or go on with their amusements in utter disregard of everything and everybody. Friendly as they are, they will not allow themselves to be handled, avoiding any attempt to touch their persons, evidently resenting such approaches as undignified.

Some years ago a company of Japanese were landed on the island to kill and cure birds for millinery purposes. That they were rudely interrupted in their spoliation by the United States revenue cutter Thetis, is a truth well known, but the result of their poaching is everywhere too apparent.

MURDERER EXILED BY HIS CONSCIENCE

Midway island, now one of the most important stations on the Pacific cable, was the scene of many wrecks and unsolved mysteries in the days when the sailing vessels roved the seven seas.

Not the least of these strange events says the San Francisco Chronicle involved the old bark Wandering Minstrel, which was wrecked on Midway in 1888, while on a shark fishing cruise out of Hongkong. All hands succeeded in reaching shore safely, where they found an old building erected thirty years before by a party of surveyors and here the luckless survivors of the ill fated Wandering Minstrel were marooned for 14 long months, subsisting on fish and the eggs of the countless sea birds, which wheeled and screamed over the flashing coral reefs, until rescued by the Japanese schooner Norma and taken to Honolulu.

The Wandering Minstrel's company found many marks of wrecks on the island, including a broken hull marked General Siegel, and on one of the smaller islands close to the main island they stumbled across two mounds of sand over which wooden crosses, made from drift wood, had been erected, backed with the inscription "1886."

A little distance beyond, upon the sand, was the form of a man lying on his back with his head resting in his hands. As the exploring shipwrecked sailors approached the man opened his eyes and without apparent emotion said: "How are you?" Then he arose and with no more apparent concern than as if he had had companionship constantly, told them that he was the sole survivor of the Siegel and that the two graves were those of the captain and mate, whom he had buried. His name, he said, was Jorgensen, and he had lived alone there for two years.

Jorgensen joined the Wandering Minstrel's party and as time wore along his manner became noticeably strange. He avoided conversation and especially evaded inquiry concerning his ship and the details of its loss until it became the general opinion that there was a mystery about the affair which he could dissipate.

The man clung to his secret despite the constant efforts of the others to get him to disclose it. After six months he fell ill and when dying told the Wandering Minstrel's men that he had murdered the skipper and mate successively after they landed in revenge for previous ill treatment, and buried them where the crosses stood.

When at last the attention of the Norma had been attracted and the marooned sailors prepared to leave, Jorgensen refused to go with them. He said he felt that he must remain on the island—the little white spot of desolation it was then—to watch and wait at the graves of his victims.

Child Has Seen the World

Daughter of United States Army Officer a Constant Traveler Since Her Birth.

The United States army can now probably claim the world's traveling record by virtue of the globe trotting of Miss Julia D. Kitts, daughter of Lieutenant William P. Kitts, Twenty-first United States Infantry. Incidentally her record sheds a strong light upon the mutations of the army officer and the frequent recurrence of "moving day," says the Army and Navy Journal.

The child was born at Fort Lincoln, N. D., April 20, 1906, and was the first baby born at that post. Within three weeks she had traveled 453 miles; within two months, 1,240 miles; within six months, 3,710 miles, and within one year, 12,300 miles. In this short time the baby had traveled from North Dakota to Minnesota, to the Atlantic Coast, to San Francisco, and thence across the Pacific to the Philippines.

It took her only two years more to add 27,000 miles to her record, making the total distance covered in three years 32,000 miles, or an average of more than 10,000 miles a year. She has kept on going, and at present has more than 46,000 miles to her credit. This youthful tourist, who could put to shame Phineas Fogg, Jules Verne's traveling hero, has nearly completed her second tour of foreign service with the regiment.

Inconsistency of Man.

"Your husband seems to be very impatient lately."

"Yes, he is, very."

"What is the matter with him?"

"He is getting tired waiting for a chance to get out where he can sit patiently hour after hour waiting for a fish to nibble at his bait."

Health & Beauty Hints

By Katherine Morton

The most scrupulous cleanliness is needed for the health and beauty of the feet, and so a daily bath and a comfortable supply of stockings are required. The best results are obtained by putting on a fresh pair of stockings every day, and in case of profuse perspiration they should be changed at least twice a day. If the stockings are washed out immediately upon being taken off, six pairs would make an adequate summer supply. Silk is undoubtedly the best stocking material for hot weather, this being cooler to the feet than cotton and permitting the shoes to slip on more easily. Gauze cotton is the next best thing in point of softness to the foot, and three pairs of quite fine stockings in this material can be had for one dollar. Lisle, even in the finest qualities, is to a certain degree rasping to the foot, causing often, besides, a most disagreeable burning.

Women in the smart set go to the pedicure for the removal of corns and callouses, but these afflictions can be treated at home and there are special baths for softening the horny places and for resting all the feet. One is made with ordinary washing soda—about a half cupful to a gallon of water—this being for softening the callouses preparatory to their removal with a knife or file or pumicestone, for all of these tools are used. A bath with a pound of sea salt will harden and strengthen the feet. Camphor is useful for massaging, thus reducing swelling, while massaging the feet and ankles every night with olive oil, will, as the beauty saying is, keep them young. All care lavished upon the feet tends to keep them in good condition, even if the work consists only of a dainty polishing of the toe nails. When these are neglected they harden and coarsen, sometimes changing their nature and shape entirely.

Before ministering to tormenting corns, bunions and callouses the feet must always be soaked in a softening bath, after which they should be scrupulously dried at every point—particularly between the toes—and then powdered. A good and cooling foot powder, by the way, is one of the greatest comforts one can have in summer, and there is scarcely a drug store that does not keep several brands of it. A foot powder which can also be used to advantage on perspiring hands, and which is very convenient for gloves, is made after this formula:

|---|---|
| Phenic acid | 10 grams |
| Alcohol | 20 grams |
| Starch | 200 grams |
| Florentine orris | 150 grams |
| Essence of violet | 2 grams |

Dissolve the acid in alcohol; add the violet essence, then the starch and orris root.

A special powder for perspiring feet is made of one ounce of alum, two ounces of powdered orris root and five ounces of rice powder. Where the perspiration has an unpleasant odor, however, a powder with lycopodium is better than any other, and such sorts are kept at all drug stores of any size, this condition being recognized as something of a disease.

After the bath, attend to the corns or callouses at once, trimming the nails only as often as is needed. They should be cut square across and left a little longer than the flesh. If there are soft corns, several foot baths a day are needed, also larger shoes, and in extreme cases it may be necessary to place bits of absorbent cotton wet with some healing lotion or salve between the toes. For relief from blisters the excessive pain of corns and other callosities, this simple pomade is highly recommended:

|---|---|
| Mugwort, freshly gathered and bruised | 3 drams |

Mix thoroughly and rub the whole foot with it, massaging it well into the skin.

A good bunion lotion is made of two drams each of carbolic acid, glycerin and tincture of iodine.

Flatfoot is a condition much recognized just now, and in severe cases it is as deforming as lameness. It is not always recognizable at first, only the pain and difficulty in walking being perceptible; but after a while the arch of the foot breaks down and then the beauty of it is gone. So when feeling a definite pain in the instep it is wise to wear strong-soled shoes with a stiff spring in the instep, as these will counteract the weak tendency of the arch. Inner soles with high arches are also sold for the purpose, while doctors recommended foot exercises for strengthening the muscles of the arch and its supports.

But, to go back to the mere comfort of summer time, the simple things one may do to have more ease with feet whose only failing, maybe, comes with hot weather, extreme cleanliness and proper dressing are the things of vital importance. All exercise upon the feet, too, will improve their condition and beauty, while the mere heat of the hands, while massaging with some unguent or other, will be an immediate relief to strained and tired muscles.

Queries From "a Young Wife."

I am very interested in your page and will be thankful to you for answering my questions.

I am going to give a linen shower for a girl friend of mine and would like to get a few suggestions on house decoration.

I have a reception hall, living room, dining room and music room. How should I decorate each room, and which will be the best for the bride to be in when she is receiving her gifts? As I expect to have from forty to fifty guests, I can not seat them at the table. Should cards of any kind be used when passing the refreshments?

What would be a pretty way in bringing the gifts to the bride? I have a little girl two years of age, with long golden curls, whom I thought could help in this, or is she too small? If not, how should I have her dressed? These are many questions, but I have another one which has puzzled me.

When you have been introduced to a friend and when you or they are ready to part and they say, "I am glad I met you," what is the correct answer to give them? I hope you will have my answers in the paper soon.

A Young Wife.

You need no decoration save the flowers in season, and if you have potted plants place them where they show the best. Arrange the flowers simply, in vases, bowls and baskets; place them on the mantels, in front of fireplaces, on the piano and on the porches. I should say that the living room would be the best place for the bride and the guests, as it is doubtless the largest. You do not need place cards unless you seat the guests at small tables and serve all at once. I am afraid the little two-year-old will be too young to assist. When you wish to reply to the remark mentioned, just say, "I am sure the pleasure is mutual; I'm glad I met you, too." There are no set phrases for certain occasions; just be your own natural self. Perhaps you could place all the parcels in a flower and ribboned basket and let the wee daughter drag it in by white ribbons to the bride-elect.

For a Lawn Party.

Will you suggest something entertaining for a lawn party for boys and girls between the ages of twelve and fifteen? Our club of seven wishes to entertain as many boys. The decorations are pink and green; flower, pink carnation. We have small funds to work with, but will be ever so much obliged for any help.

Secretary.

I am sure you can arrange a beautiful time. Have the ice cream in pink and green, with small cakes frosted in the same colors. Give each one a pink carnation to wear. Then have a match game of croquet, and if you are very good, won't "mother" see to having a prize ready for the winners? Perhaps you have a tennis court; if so, a game could be arranged. All outdoor sports are in favor, including the good old game of archery.

Soup Course at Dinner.

I have the soup course in a "progressive" dinner party. Kindly tell me if soup is the only thing included in this course or if celery, olives or bread is served with it?

A Reader.

Serve wafers or bread sticks or the little dinner biscuit with the soup, also olives, radishes and celery if you can get it small and tender.

MME. MERRI.

Baby Accessory.

Infant washstand sets recently imported from Germany and arranged upon small sized stands of white enameled iron similar to those used in hospital wards are of glazed surfaced cream-tinted pottery fetchingly decorated with Dutch babies in various attitudes. The six pieces in these sets include a novel wash basin of oblong shape and very unusual depth, and this is divided into two equal sized compartments, one for the cold and the other for the tepid water. Attached by a nickel chain to one arm of the stand is a small thermometer with which to test the heat of the warm water.

Right Way With Rugs.

The right way to lay down an Oriental rug is the Oriental way, with the pile toward the light, because that helps to bring out the beauty and "bloom" of its coloring. An eastern dealer, when he sells a rug, sees that the buyer shall get the play of light and shade upon the pile. When a rug comes home the buyer frequently complains that it has not the same depth of coloring as when he or she was shown it in the shop. Shift the rug's position—i. e., with the pile toward the light—and the defect will be remedied.

Apropos of Oriental rugs, it may be told that the successful way to clean one is to wash it, a square foot at a time, with a soft brush and olive oil soap; then to rinse off the soap, first with clear warm water, and then clear cold, and lastly, to rub it softly until it is quite dry with a cloth.

Advantage in Flat Brims.

Flat brims have not been readily thrown from their pinnacle of popularity, and women past their first youth gladly accept the discretion of their shelter, for the brim which upturns from the face is too candid. The middle way of brim upturned from the brow to the back of the head at one side should be given the preference, and, by the bye, these have been speedily of the elect, and they lend themselves either to an outlining of hat wings, or osprey, or a cluster of flowers.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS

A WONDERFUL DISCOVERY.

In this age of research and experiment, all nature is ransacked by the scientist for the comfort and happiness of man. Science has indeed made giant strides in the past century, and among the—by no means least important—discoveries in medicine is that of Therapion which has been used with great success in French Hospitals and that it is worthy the attention of those who suffer from kidney, bladder, nervous diseases, chronic weaknesses, ulcers, skin eruptions, piles, &c., there is no doubt. In fact it seems evident from the big stir created amongst specialists, that THERAPION is destined to cast into oblivion all those questionable remedies that were formerly the sole reliance of medical men. It is of course impossible to tell sufferers all we should like to tell them in this short article, but those who would like to know more about this remedy that has effected so many—we might almost say, miraculous cures, should send addressed envelope for FREE book to Dr. Le Clerc Med. Co., Haverstock Road, Hampstead, London, Eng. and decide for themselves whether the New French Remedy "THERAPION" No. 1, No. 2 or No. 3 is what they require and have been seeking in vain during a life of misery, suffering, ill health and unhappiness. Therapion is sold by druggists or mail $1.00. Fougera Co., 90 Beekman St., New York.

SYNOPSIS.

Dan Blair, the 22-year-old son of the fifty-million-dollar copper king of Blairtown, Mont., is a guest at the English home of Lady Galorey. Dan's father had been courteous to Lord Galorey during his visit to the United States and the [illegible] young man. The youth has an ideal girl in his mind. He meets Lily, Duchess of Breakwater, a beautiful widow, who is attracted by his immense fortune and takes a liking to him. When Dan was a boy, a girl sang a solo at a church, and he had never forgotten her. The Galoreys, Lily and Dan attend a London theater where one Letty Lane is the star. Dan recognizes her as the girl from his town, and going behind the scenes introduces himself and she remembers him. He learns that Prince Poniatowsky is suitor and escort to Letty. Lord Galorey and a friend named Ruggles determine to protect the westerner from Lily and other fortune hunters. Young Blair goes to see Lily; he can talk of nothing but Letty and this angers the Duchess. The westerner finds Letty ill from hard work, but she recovers and Ruggles and Dan invite her to supper. She asks Dan to build a home for disappointed theatrical people. Dan visits Lily, for the time forgetting Letty, and later an[illegible]. Letty refuses to sing for an entertainment given by Lily. Galorey tells Dan that all Lily cares for is his money, and it is disclosed that he and the duchess have been mutually in love for years. Letty sings at an aristocratic function, Dan escorting her home. Dan confronts Galorey and Lily together. Later he informs Letty that his engagement with Lily is broken, asks the singer to marry him and they become engaged. Ruggles thinks the westerner should not marry a public singer, and endeavors to induce Letty to give him up. She runs away, fearing she is not good enough for Dan, and Ruggles makes the latter believe she has abandoned his love. Finally Dan finds Letty in Paris.

"Are you alone?" he persisted. "I have got to know."

"Higgins is with me."

"Oh, God," he cried wildly, "how can you joke with me? Don't you understand you're breaking my heart?"

But she did not dare to be kind to him, knowing it would unnerve her for the part she had promised to play.

He sat gripping his hands tightly together, his lips white. "When I leave you now," he said brokenly, "I am going to find that devil of a Hungarian and do him up. Then I am going to tackle Ruggles."

"Why, what's poor Mr. Ruggles got to do with it?"

Dan cried scornfully: "For God's sake, don't keep this up! You know the rot he told you? I made him confess. He has had this mania all along about money being a handicap. He was bent on trying this game with some girl to see how it worked." He continued more passionately: "I don't care a rap what you marry me for, Letty, or what you have done or been. I think you're perfect and I'll make you the happiest woman in the world."

She said: "Hush, hush. Listen, dear, listen, little boy. I am awfully sorry, but it won't do. I never thought it would. You'll get over it all right, though you don't, you can't believe me now. I can't be poor, you know; I really couldn't be poor."

He interrupted roughly: "Who says you'll be? What are you talking about? Why, I'll cover you with jewels, sweetheart, if I have to rip the earth open to get them out."

She understood that Dan believed Ruggles' story to have been a cock-and-bull one.

"You talk as though you could buy me, Dan. Wait, listen." She put him back from her. "Now, if you won't be quiet, I'm going to stop my car."

He repeated: "Tell me, are you alone in Paris? Tell me. For three days I have wandered and searched for you everywhere; I have hardly eaten a thing, I don't believe I have slept a wink." And he told her of his weary search.

She listened to him, part of the time her white-gloved hand giving itself up to the boy; part of the time both hands folded together and away from him, her arms crossed on her breast, her small shoes of coral kid tapping the floor of the car. Thus they rolled leisurely along the road by the Bois.

"Are you alone in Paris, Letty?"

And she said: "Oh, what a bore you are! You're the most obstinate creature. Well, I am alone, but that has nothing to do with you."

"Oh, thank God!" he breathed.

"Poniatowsky"—and she said his name with difficulty—"is coming tonight from Carlsbad."

The boy threw back his bright head and laughed wildly.

"Curse him! The very name makes me want to commit a crime. He will go over my body to you. You hear me, Letty. I mean what I say."

People had already remarked them as they passed. The actress was too well known to pass unobserved, but she was indifferent to their curiosity or to the existence of anyone but this excited boy.

Blair, who had not opened a paper since he came to Paris, did not know that Letty Lane's flight from London had created a scandal in the theatrical world, that her manager was suing her, and that to be seen with her driving in the Bois was a conspicuous thing indeed. She thought of it, however.

"I am going to tell the man to drive you to the gate on the other side of the park where it's quieter, we won't be stared at, and I want you to leave me and let me go to the Meurice alone. You must, Dan, you must let me go to the hotel alone."

He laughed again in the same strained fashion and forced her hand to remain in his.

"Look here. You don't suppose I am going to let you go like this, now that I have seen you again. You don't suppose I am going to give you up to that infamous scoundrel? You have [illegible]"

[illegible] all her strength of character to bear, she [illegible]: "I expect you think you are the only person who has asked me to marry him, Dan. I am going to marry Prince Poniatowsky. He is perfectly crazy about me."

Until that moment she had not made him think that she was indifferent to him, and the idea that such a thing was possible, was too much for his overstrained heart to bear. Dan cried her name in a voice whose appeal was like a hurt creature's and as the hurt creature in its suffering sometimes springs upon its torturer, he flung his arms around her as she sat in the motor, held her and kissed her, then set her free, and as the motor flew along, tore open the door to spring out or to throw himself out, but clinging to him she prevented his mad act. She stopped the car along the edge of the quiet, wooded allee. Blair saw that he had terrified her. [illegible] her hands and gasped at him that he was "crazy, crazy," and perhaps a little late his dignity and self-possession returned.

"I am mad," he acknowledged more calmly, "and I am sorry that I frightened you. But you drive me mad."

Without further word he got out and left her agitated, leaning toward him and Blair, less pale and thoroughly the man, lifted his hat to her and, with unusual grace, bowed good night and good by. Then, rushing as he had come, he walked off down through the allee, his gray figure to his gray clothes disappearing through the vista of sleeping trees.

For a moment she stared after him, her eyes fastened on the tall, slender, beautiful young man. Blair's fire and ardor, his fresh youthfulness, his protection and his chivalry, his ardent devotion, touched her profoundly. Tears fell, and one splashed on her white glove. Was he really going to ruin his life? The old ballad, "The Earl of Moray," ran through her head:

"And long may his lady look from the castle wall."

Dan had neither title nor, according to Ruggles, had he any money, and she could marry the prince, but Dan, as he walked so fast away, misery snapping at his heels as he went, stamping through the woods, seemed glorious to Letty Lane and the only one she wanted in the world. What if anything should happen to him really? What if he should really start out to do the town according to the fashion of his Anglo-Saxon brothers, but more desperately still? She took a card from the case in the corner of the car, scribbled a few words, told the man to drive around the curve and meet the outlet of the path by which Dan had gone. When she saw him within reaching distance she sent the chauffeur across the woods to give Mr. Blair her scribbled word and consoled herself with the belief that Dan wouldn't "go to the dogs or throw himself in the river until he had seen her again."

CHAPTER XXVII.

At Maxim's

At the Meurice, Miss Lane gave strict orders to admit only Mr. Blair to her apartments. She described him. No sooner had she drunk her cup of tea, which Higgins gave her, than she began to expect Dan.

He didn't come.

Her dinner, without much appetite, she ate alone in her salon; saw a doctor and made him prescribe something for the cough that racked her chest; looked out to the warm, bright gardens of the Tuileries fading into the pallid loveliness of sunset, indifferent to everything in the world—except Dan Blair. She believed she would soon be indifferent to him, too; then everything would be done with. Now she wondered had he really gone—had he done what he threatened? Why didn't he come? At twelve o'clock that night, as she lay among the cushions of her sofa, dozing, the door of her parlor was pushed in. She sprang up with a cry of delight; but when Poniatowsky came up to her she exclaimed: "Oh, you!" And the languor and boredom with which she said his name made the prince laugh shortly.

"Yes, I. Who did you think it was?" Cynically and rather cruelly he looked down at Letty Lane and admired the picture she made; small, exquisite, her blond head against the dark velvet of the lounge, her gray eyes intensified by the fatigue under them.

"Just got in from Carlsbad; came directly here. How-de-do? You look, you know—" he scrutinized her through his single eye-glass—"most frightfully seedy."

"No, no, sit down, please, will you? I want to know why you sent to Carlsbad for me? Have you come to your senses?"

He was as mad about the beautiful creature as a man of his temperament could be. Exhausted by excess and bored with life, one charmed and amused him, and in order to have her [illegible] caprices, he was willing to make any sacrifice.

"Have you sent off that imbecile boy?" And at her look he stopped and shrugged. "You need a rest, my child," he murmured practically, "you're neurasthenic and very ill. I've wired to have the yacht at Cherbourg—it'll reach there by noon tomorrow."

She was standing listlessly by the table. A mass of letters sent by special messenger from London after her, telegrams and cards lay there in a pile. Looking down at the lot, she murmured: "All right, I don't care."

He concealed his triumph, but be[illegible] she saw it and exclaimed sharply:

"Don't be crazy about it, you know. You'll have to pay high for me; you know what I mean."

He answered gallantly: "My dear child, I've told you that you would be the most charming princess in Hungary."

Once more she accepted indifferently: "All right, all right, I don't care tuppence—not tuppence"—and she snapped her fingers; "but I like to see you pay, Frederigo. Take me to Maxim's."

He demurred, saying she was far too ill, but she turned from him to call Higgins, determined to go if she had to go alone, and said to him violently: "Don't think I'll make your life easy for you, Frederigo. I'll make it wretched; as wretched—" and she held out her fragile arms, and the sleeves fell back, leaving them bare—"as wretched as I am myself."

But she was lovely, and he said harshly: "Get yourself dressed. I'll go change and meet you at the lift."

TIP QUESTION IS SERIOUS

Gratuities of the Season Give a Severe Jolt to Man of Small Income.

"This tip business," said a man of small income, "has come to be a serious matter.

"Every summer I send my wife and daughter to the country, to a modest hotel in a quiet place—does them good and doesn't cost us much more than it would to have them stay home, or didn't use to.

"Years ago we gave some small tips, a little to the waitress and a little to the chambermaid, amounts not great, but now we have to give more to them and we have to give also to the chef and to the housekeeper and so on, something to everybody that does something for us. It seems to be the custom, and it all counts up.

"This year, for instance, I sent the folks along weekly the little check for their board and their other moderate expenses—and they are always careful about those—and everything is going along very pleasantly and I see us settling the financial problem very nicely, and then a week or two before they are coming home we get down a little memorandum of the tips to give when they come away, and do you know that this year these amounted to $30.

"Thirty dollars! and that gives me—just as it does every year—quite a little jolt. I know it's coming, but I never realize it till it comes.

"You know what Lincoln said about paying bills? that it was easier to pay a big bill if you had the money than a little bill if you hadn't, and that sum up on the tips hits me in something that way. We pay 'em, but it does sort of put the kibosh on our nice little financial schedule."

Where Women Rule.

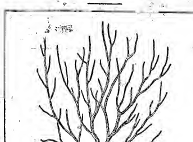
Suffragists will be interested to know that women fulfil every public function in the French village of Froissy—from barber, postman and town crier to stationmaster and sign-nailer, each post is filled by a woman.

TWO IMPORTANT REQUISITES IN PROFITABLE PEAR ORCHARD

Objects to be Obtained in Pruning and Training are to Secure Symmetrical, Evenly Balanced Heads; Admission of Sunlight and Air and Foliage for Shade.



Intermediate or Natural Form.

(By G. B. BRACKETT, Pomologist, United States Department of Agriculture.)

Pruning and training are important requisites in the successful management of a pear orchard. The objects to be attained are: (1) Symmetrical, evenly balanced heads; (2) the admission of sunlight and free circulation of air into all parts of the tree tops, and (3) the maintenance of sufficient foliage to protect the trunks and branches from the intense heat of the sun's rays, which would otherwise be likely to scald and injure both tree and fruit.

Pruning should begin as soon as the trees have been planted by cutting back the young tree at the time of planting to the height from the ground it is proposed to start the branches to form the head of the tree, which should not be over 12 to 15 inches, as shown in figure 3. This cutting back will cause several of the upper buds to break and grow, thus starting the top or head at the proper height. The starting branches should be watched and only such left to grow as are to form the main branches. The strongest shoots should be left at equal distances apart around the stem and should tend obliquely outward so as to spread and make an open head. The second year these shoots should be shortened back to the extent of about half of the growth, as shown in figure 4. The same plan should be continued the third and fourth years.

In all pruning, to give the desired form to the head and especially while the tree is young, the orchardist should keep clearly fixed in his mind the form of the tree as it is to be when old, for what may seem to be an open head when the tree is young may prove to be too dense and crowded when the tree is older. The branches should not be too close together for convenience in gathering the fruit.

and all branches which are likely to interfere with adjoining ones should be cut out and the centers of dense growth thinned out, side branches which are making a stronger growth than the others should be checked by shortening in, so as to maintain an evenly balanced head. Some varieties have an upright habit of growth and some make a slender, straggling growth. All need attention each year. In cutting back the last year's growth the top bud should be left on the side of the branch facing the direction in which the growth needs to be diverted. By this method there will be no difficulty in shaping the tree into any desired form.

All pruning and training possible should be done while the trees are young and the growth of wood is tender. At such time the healing over is more rapid and complete, and the tree suffers less injury.

Old trees that have been neglected may be renewed by severe pruning, cutting back all the branches that are not in a healthy condition. This pruning will cause new, vigorous shoots to grow. The new growth will need to be cut back as occasion requires. By persistent pruning an entire new top may be formed in a few years.

When the removal of a large branch is necessary, the wound should be covered with grafting wax, paint, or some other substance that will prevent evaporation and keep the wood from checking and consequent decay.

The intermediate form is probably the best for training the pear. It is a compromise between the vase and the pyramidal forms and its outlines are not so conventional. The tree is allowed to grow more in accord with its natural habit, but it must be checked more or less in its growth so as to conform to the ideas of the planter. Different varieties of the pear vary greatly in their habits of growth. Some trees are upright and some are of a drooping habit. Both of these forms should be modified. Upright branches are shortened back and induced to spread out, and the limbs of the tree inclined to droop are encouraged to grow more nearly upright.

Pasture for Hogs.

Solve Labor Problem.

The best solution of the labor problem on the farm is crop rotation because labor can then be used to best advantage by giving it employment all the year round.

RAISING BELGIAN HARES PROFITABLE

Care in Selection of Stock Is First Important Consideration in Starting in the Business.

The so-called Belgian hare is a domesticated form of the wild rabbit of Europe, being bred with reference to its value as a food animal, and its flesh is now generally considered better for food than that of the ordinary hutch rabbit.

Rabbits may be propagated without costly investment in land and buildings, and possess the further advantage that they contribute another animal to the farm stock that may be killed and prepared for the table at short notice. As a rule, the same treatment applies to all forms of rabbits, except the lop-eared variety, which require heated quarters in winter.

Care in the selection of stock is the first important consideration upon entering upon the raising of rabbits and for the rest of the enterprise only observation and judgment are essential.

While not affording large profits the raising of rabbits in a small way may be made interesting and fairly remunerative as well as affording an agreeable change in the family diet where ordinary meats are high priced or difficult to obtain.

Feeding Hogs.

It is rarely best, and especially so when feed is high to feed hogs beyond the stage when they are in good marketable condition hoping for a rise in price. After a certain condition has been reached animals gain less rapidly in proportion to the amount of food consumed and when condition with the risk of loss is taken into consideration the risk of profit is much increased.

Separate Ailing Chick.

At the first sign of droopiness in a chick separate it from the rest of the flock and if it does not quickly recover use the ax and burn the body.

Satisfies

There never was a thirst that Coca-Cola couldn't satisfy. It goes, straight as an arrow, to the dry spot. And besides this,

We Lead You To Fortune and Happy Life in California

Messrs. J. S. & W. S. Kuhn, the Pittsburgh bankers, are doing in the Sacramento Valley what the U. S. Government is doing elsewhere for the people.

There is ten times more net profit per acre in California irrigated land than in the East and with less labor.

Let us take you where there is comfort and happiness besides profit, climate equal to that of Southern Italy, no frosts nor snow, no thunderstorms nor sunstrokes.

Let us take you where big money is now being made, markets are near, demand for products great and income is sure.

Let us take you where railroad and river transportation is near, where there are denominational churches and graded schools.

Now is the time to buy this land—get in with the winners, the great Panama Canal will soon be ready and you can share in its triumphs; farms are selling rapidly, and we strongly urge you to purchase as soon as possible.

You can buy this land on very easy terms—$15.00 an acre now and the balance in ten yearly payments.

Give us an opportunity to take up all details with you—write us now.

Let us send you our fine illustrated printed matter telling all about it. Write for it at once—it gives you absolute proofs.

Living Up to Its Name.

"How do people seem to like your new song, 'The Aeroplane'?"

"Just carried away by it."

The Moon's Offspring.

Looking out of the window one evening, little Marie saw the bright, full moon in the eastern sky, and, apparently only a few inches from it, the beautiful Jupiter, shining almost as brightly as the moon itself. Marie gazed intently at the spectacle for a moment, and then turning to her mother exclaimed:

"Oh, mother, look! The moon has laid an egg!"

They Are Overworked Now.

Four year old Dick had made an important discovery that his hair would pull out if enough force was exerted, and was absorbed in proving the fascinating fad on his forelock. His sister—aged seven—noted the proceedings with round-eyed horror.

"Dickie! Dickie!" she cried, "you mustn't do that!"

"Why?" demanded Dickie, with the cynicism of childhood.

"Because the Bible says that all your hairs are numbered—and if you pull any out you'll make a lot of extra bookkeeping for the angels."

Making Cheese in Olden Days.

Cheese was made by the old time farmers in the summer on the co-operative plan by which four cattle owners owning say 14 milch cows received all the milk night and morning according to the daily yield of their little herd. Thus given two families having five cows each, one with three and one with one, supposing that the average yield per cow was the same, in two weeks two owners would make five cheeses each, one would press three, and one only one cheese, but this one would be as good and as large as any of the rest.—[illegible] of the Trades—The Farmer. Charles Winslow Hall, in National Magazine.

Shock for a Brother.

"John," said an eminent [illegible] wearily, [illegible] his [illegible] after a hard day's work, "John [illegible] excuse [illegible]."

"Yes, sah," agreed John, [illegible] old family [illegible].

"Just say," [illegible] the doctor, "that [illegible]."

A little later [illegible] a brother called [illegible] and received the shock of his life.

"I want to see the doctor at once," said he.

"Yuh can't do it, sah," solemnly announced the old darkey, turning up his eyes till the whites alone showed. "Yuh can't do it, sah. The doctor, sah, [illegible] em wid de Messiah."—New York Evening Sun.

Its Advantages.

"I think the pillory ought to be revived as punishment for this frenzied financing."

"Why so?"

"Because it provided a fitting penalty in stocks and bonds."

She Was a Ouster.

Mrs. Sutton advertised for a woman to do general housework, and in answer a colored girl called, announcing that she had come for the position.

"Are you a good cook?" asked Mrs. Sutton.

"No, indeed, I don't cook," was the reply.

"Are you a good laundress?"

"Can you sweep?" asked Mrs. Sutton.

"No," was the positive answer, "I'm not strong enough."

"Well," said the lady of the house, quite exasperated, "may I ask what you can do?"

"I dusts," came the placid reply.—Everybody's.

A Question of Names.

In some of the country districts of Ireland it is not an uncommon thing to see carts with the owners' names chalked on to save the expense of painting. Practical jokers delight in rubbing out these signs to annoy the owners.

A constabulary sergeant one day accosted a countryman whose name had been thus wiped out unknown to him.

"Is this your cart, my good man?"

"Of course it is!" was the reply. "Do you see anything the matter wid it?"

"I observe," said the pompous policeman, "that your name is o-blitherated."

"Then ye're wrong," quoth the countryman, who had never come across the long word before, "for me name's O'Flaherty, and I don't care who knows it."—Youth's Companion.

CHARDON

CENTENNIAL CELEBRATION TO BE AN EVENT OF IMPORTANCE

Program Arranged That Calls For Three Days of Display, Speaking and Music

Thursday, July 25, the opening day, has been designated as Merchants' Day, when there will be displayed in a mammoth parade, and in other attractive ways, the work of the Chardon merchants. The parade will be a large one, a comprehensive, bewildering pageant. The first day visitors will view a fairy city, all in gala attire, decorated by master hands; and this, in itself, will be a sight not to be soon forgotten. There will be numerous prizes for the best, and also grotesque costumes, either masked or unmasked, and in the evening the Carnival parade will be one of splendor, and unquestionably one of the most attractive features of the entire celebration. Two hundred people are expected to compete for the big prizes, and when formed into a nocturnal parade with various other features, will present a spectacle seldom seen during a lifetime.

Hon Hiram Starkey of Jefferson, and Hon E P Gilmer of Warren, will address the crowds Friday forenoon, and in the afternoon the Chagrin Valley Hunt Club will exhibit their 50 English foxhounds and hurdling horses, a feature never put on by this Club anywhere. This will be a distinct innovation. There will also be a number of races.

Saturday will be Automobile Day. A large and spectacular parade of decorated autos will be formed this day. Prizes worth working for are offered for the best decorations, and spectators will be given an opportunity to review a gorgeous array of autos in all types of dress conceivable.

Five brass bands will furnish music: Parkman Band, Burton Band, Painesville Band, West Chardon Band and Chardon Band. Music all the time, with grand concerts every day.

"Chardon is going to outdo anything of the kind ever seen, and the prospects for a large attendance are most favorable," says the Geauga Republican.

Luman Winchell and family of Lane spent Sunday at Sidney Winchell's.

Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Warren were recent visitors at George Teacheuts in Madison.

Mr. and Mrs Ralph Curtiss have moved into the parsonage.

Clifton Adams is on the sick list.

Mrs. Wallace Landphere has been seriously ill but is reported better.

The storm of Saturday evening was very severe but no damage is reported and farmers are rejoicing over the much needed rain.

The Judd's Corners school reunion will be held Wednesday, July 24, in Clinton Winchell's maple grove. Every one who is interested in this reunion is invited to attend. A picnic dinner will be served at noon. Plates and hot coffee will be furnished, but otherwise each family is requested to furnish their own dishes and dinner. Everyone come and enjoy a pleasant day.

Unless there is more caution taken by auto drivers over the narrow places and steep hills in this township there is going to be some serious accident happen here. There has been several near accidents already and farmers are commenting on the way the law allows any one who has the price, whether they have the brains or not, to run one of those machines at such a reckless speed.

The Socialist Party and "Reform Parties."

The Lake County Weekly Herald requests some one to inform them through the medium of their columns as to the reason for a Socialist Party at this time.

Taking it for granted that the question and accompanying article was written in all sincerity, I think it is deserving of an earnest reply.

It is quite evident that the editor is much confused as to the mission of the Socialist Party and so-called reform parties.

The Socialist party is a revolutionary party and not a "reform" party.

The object of the Socialist Party is to establish a cooperative commonwealth, whereby all of the people will own and control all of the great socialized means of production and distribution.

We propose to abolish the capitalist system which creates a parasitic capitalist class, and performs no other labor, than to accept under the name of profit, that which they have exploited from the working class.

The editor asks the question, "Why should not the members of the Socialist Party help to promote the interest of a party that is progressive enough to provide a way by which the people can directly control the affairs of government.

That question is easily answered. The editor refers us to the Democratic Party.

The Democratic party, like its twin brother, the Republican Party, is a capitalist class party. It is financed by that class. Its campaign expenses are paid by the capitalists and petit politicians who are seeking office under the Democratic administration. It must do the bidding of those who pay the bills.

We have had the Democratic and Republican parties in power, both posing as reform parties, but the rich are still adding to their fabulous fortunes. The machinery of production and distribution is with each passing day becoming concentrated faster and faster into the hands of a few men.

As a result of the private ownership of the worlds productive forces, men have become multi-millionaires. Women who have never created a pennies worth of wealth in all their lives have accumulated vast fortunes, while on the other hand a great army of wage slaves is toilin, sweating, bleeding and dying in their efforts to create wealth that they may keep a small part for themselves and turn over to the stock gamblers on Wall St the fruit of their labor.

There is not one plank in the platform of the Democratic Party which could serve to abolish the exploitation of the working class by the capitalist class.

The editor writes of the Initiative and Referendum. In so far as that measure is concerned, let it be known that the Socialist Party has always fought to bring about that inalienable right of the people. The initiative and referendum has been in force in all of the Socialist party conventions and councils and on all important questions. And now after the great mass of the people have fought for it and would no longer be denied, the so-called reform parties have adopted it.

The Initiative and Referendum is a very good measure. It may serve to eliminate the graft and corruption in our legislative bodies and to force progressive legislation.

But the money used to corrupt politicians is just a drop in the ocean when compared to the total sum that is extracted from the wages of the workers by the capitalists.

It is self evident that there is no connecting link between the philosophy of scientific socialism and the doctrines advanced by the Democratic and Republican parties.

Year after year the people have voted for these so-called reform parties, but with each passing year they have been robbed of a greater percent of the wealth they have produced.

The Socialist party demands that all of the people shall own the mines, mills, factories, steamships, wharfs, telegraph and telephone lines, and railroads, and that they shall be operated in the interest of all the people.

The Socialist party is the only working class party. It is financed by the dues paying members of the working class and therefore it is controlled by the workers.

Its mission is to free the workers from the degradation of the capitalist system.

That, Mr. Editor, is the reason the Socialist party is in this fight and will not be led into the enemies camp to be cut to pieces. You will find us on the firing line until the whole civilized world has established the socialist cooperative commonwealth.

Yours most respectfully,
George Levengood

A Hero in a Lighthouse.

For years J. S. Donahue, So. Haven, Mich., a civil war captain, as a lighthouse keeper, averted awful wrecks, but a queer fact is, he might have been a wreck himself, if Electric Bitters had not prevented. "They cured me of kidney trouble and chills," he writes, "after I had taken other so-called cures for years, without benefit and they also improved my sight. Now, at seventy, I am feeling fine." For dyspepsia, indigestion, all stomach, liver and kidney troubles, they're without equal. Try them. Only 50c at Darnes' Pharmacy.

Dysentery is always serious and often a dangerous disease, but it can be cured. Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy has cured it even when malignant and epidemic. For sale by all dealers.

FREE TRIP

THE OHIO STATE BOARD OF AGRICULTURE MAKES GOOD OFFER.

Each County in the State Can Send Two Boys to the State Fair, to be Held Aug. 26 to 31, at Columbus.

The State Board of Agriculture will pay the expenses of two boys from each county to the Ohio State Fair, to be held in Columbus during the week of Aug. 26 to 31. Expenses mean railroad fare, board and bed from time of leaving home until return. Boys must be between the ages of 15 and 20 years. Boys who won the trip last year not eligible to compete in 1912. The great success and educational value of sending one boy from each county last year induced the State board to have two boys this year.

In counties where one or more offers have been made to send boys on the free trip to Washington for the growing of best acres of corn, only those boys who are entered in the corn growing contest will be eligible to be candidates for the free trip to the State fair. In counties where no free trip is offered, the competition is open to all boys of the right age.

Other states have taken up the Ohio plan of paying the expenses of farm boys to the Big Exposition. Illinois and New York have adopted it and other states will follow. The boys will visit all state institutions at Columbus, and attend church at the penitentiary on the Sunday preceding the Fair, after which the Warden will escort them through every part of the big prison. Lectures will be given on various farm topics by competent instructors. Boys should send for application blanks and rules at once. The election of these two boys will occur at the court house in each county on Saturday, August 17 at 10 A. M. The following persons shall be delegates and have one vote each, but no proxies: County commissioners, county school examiners, president and secretary of county and independent fairs, president and secretary of county teachers' institute, Masters of Granges, president and secretary of county Sunday school convention, president and secretary of each regular and independent farmer institute, president and secretary of farmer picnics that have been organized for two years or more, each newspaper, and the president of any of the following: Corn Improvement Associations, County Horticultural Societies, Pomona Granges, Pioneer Associations and Farmers' Mutual Insurance Companies.

The State Fair in connection with the Columbus Centennial, and the visit of President Taft, will be the greatest in its history. Exhibit space is practically all sold in advance of the opening day.

Write for blanks and information at once to Columbus, and address

A. P. SANDLES, Secretary.

OLD SOLDIER DEAD.

An Old and Highly Respected Citizen Passes On.

H. Burr Treat, aged 80 years, died last Sunday morning at his home on Richmond street. The cause of death was apoplexy.

Mr. Treat was a veteran of the Civil War and had received a medal of honor from the government for acts of bravery on the field of battle. As a citizen he has always been held in high esteem by all who knew him.

Early in life Mr Treat was identified with Houghton & Gould, hardware merchants. Later he was the silent partner with Pormly, Bacon & Co, and several years before his retirement from active business life he was in partnership with J. A. Baldwin, under the firm name of Treat & Baldwin. Mr Treat was born at West Hartland, Conn., March 31, 1832. He married Miss Eliza E. Ellas, in this city, May 19, 1869. Mrs. Treat passed away a short time ago. Two sons survive, F. E. Treat, of this city, and W. B. Treat of Cleveland. Edwin Treat of Cleveland, and Mrs Catharine Collister of Charlotte, Mich., are brother and sister.

The funeral services were held at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon.

WILLOUGHBEACH

BUSINESS MENS' ANNUAL PICNIC TO BE HELD THERE AUG. 22

Band Reunion Will be Held at Same Place and Date—Ten Bands Expected to Attend.

The picnic this year will be held at Willoughbeach park. The date is Thursday, Aug. 22. The contract with the Willoughbeach park people was signed Monday afternoon. Thus the Business Mens' Picnic Association returns to their first love. The first picnic was held at the beach. Since then they have been held at Silver Lake and Conneaut Lake. The band reunion, including ten bands, will be held in connection.

CLASS REUNION

CLASS OF 1911 PAINESVILLE HIGH SCHOOL MEET AT WILLOUGHBY.

Class Roll Shows No Deaths or Marriages, but Many are Scattered —Over Half Class Present

The class of 1911 of Painesville High school held their second annual reunion at Willoughbeach park on Thursday evening, July 18th. At 7 o'clock a very delectable picnic supper was enjoyed by all, after which a short business meeting was held to appoint the General committee for the next reunion.

Dancing was the next thing for the evening's enjoyment.

The reunion was a decided success in every way and the committee deserve much credit for their work. The class is the same in number as it was on commencement, no deaths and no marriages having taken place. The class has become slightly scattered. Alfred King is at West Point, Stewart Hazen is working on the Lakes, John Reynolds is at the North Chicago U. S. Naval Training Station. Others have entered business or are college students or teachers.

Out of a total membership of 51 29 were present, and also two guests.

Those present were as follows: Cora Binan, Evelyn Blackmore, Ruth Brodway, Doris Buck, Irving Burt, Clifford Carruthers, Arthur Craig, Mildred Cummings, Marie Dayton, Leila Edwards, Claribel Fredabaugh, Evelyn Gage, Florence Gage, George Goff, Mabel Gordon, Wayne Grover, Helen Hayward, Clyde Hoose, Wayne Horton, Gertrude Hughes, Philip Moore, Ernest Moseley, Agnes Pierson, Marshall Pierson, Violet Proctor, Hellen Sullivan, Grace Warren, Mabel Warren and Helen Wheeler.

The Kirtland Hotel.

Kirtland now boasts of a modern hotel in charge of Mrs William Liston, whose cooking and variety of fresh viands with which her table abounds, are attracting tourists and week-end visitors. Home cooking, fresh vegetables, real butter and cow cream elicit praises from all. Auto tourists will find this an ideal place. Phone 480.

To Meet at Willoughby.

The former teachers and students of of Willough college and Willoughby Female Seminary, will hold their annual reunion at Willoughby, Wednesday, Aug 7. It is expected that there will be a large attendance. S S Wilson and Lottie Markell are president and secretary, respectively, of the association.

We have the best of evidence at hand that Esquire Huntington has been taking lessons in France from one of the champion chess players of that country, and that immediately upon his return to his native land he will challenge his old enemy Esquire Wyman. If Wyman has heard anything of Huntington's intentions, he shows not the slightest concern. He refuses to be interviewed upon the subject. When the reporter put the question point-blank to Esquire Wyman, "Will you meet Huntington in a chess contest?" he replied that he would make no statements whatever for publication. It is suspected, however, that Esquire Wyman shares the belief of the local editor of the Herald, that while Huntington might make a noted statesman, a gifted judge, or possibly a celebrated poet, that it will take all the champion players of France, Germany, and Russia combined to make a good chess player of him. Huntington is one good fellow, but one poor chess player.

MRS. FRENCH DEAD.

A Prominent and Respected Lady of Leroy Passes Away.

Mrs Elizabeth French, a well known and respected resident of Leroy, passed away on Friday morning. The deceased was born in Leroy 74 years ago and had been a life long resident of that township. # NARROW ESCAPE

YOUNG BOY RESCUED FROM FIRE IN NICK OF TIME

Fourteen-Year-Old Son of Thomas Newman Becomes a Hero in Trying Moment.

Four-year-old Jack Hackett, grandson of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Francis of Newell street, while playing in the second story of his grand parents' house last Monday afternoon, accidentally set fire to a bed in one of the sleeping rooms. The accident happened by the explosion of a match-head in a toy pistol.

Mrs Francis, thinking the boy was asleep, had stepped across the street to a neighbor's. It seems that the little fellow never once thought of his own escape, but called with all his might for help, and when the smoke became stifling, he put his head out of a window and continued to call for help. Strange as it may seem, neighbors heard his call, but thought it only a childish prank.

It was at this time that Caesar Newman, a boy 14 years old, son of Thomas Newman, became the hero of the hour, and at the same time a candidate for a Carnegie medal. He was the first to understand the boy's feeble call for help. Young Caesar never stopped to call for help, he did not hesitate for one minute, he rushed into the house, found the stairway, felt his way through the dense smoke in the chamber till he found the boy, and then as best he could, he brought the little fellow to safety. Young Caesar did not realize that he had done a brave act. He did not seem to like to have people make a fuss over him.

Tom Newman, another boy, was one of the first to fight the fire. Other neighbors soon gather but none seemed to care to venture into the chamber where the fire was, but Mrs Francis finally succeeded in making her way to the burning bed and gathered up the bedding and threw it out of the window. Her hands and arms were badly burned. A feather pillow and wool-top mattress had made the smoke and this explains why the fire did not make more headway.

All in all it was a narrow escape for little Jack Hackett who is a great favorite in the neighborhood, and the occasion proved that Caesar Newman can take good care of that big name of his.

PERRY

July 23. Rev O. W. Hearn conducted a baptism at the Lake last Sunday afternoon. As a baptismal font Lake Erie presented a striking contrast to the peaceful Jordan, the waves rolled high and it was difficult to stand ceremoniously before the breakers.

Mr Webb, a photographer of Cleveland will take the picture of the Christian Sunday school and its various classes next Sunday.

Last Tuesday evening Mr. Settle, the State superintendent, addressed the first graduating class in Training for Service ever held in Perry. This work covers a two-year study of the Bible and its relation to Sunday school work, and the graduates must pass a state examination in it. There were four graduates, Miss Cora Whitney, Mrs W. G. Leith, Miss Jessie Golding, and Mr. Henry Winters. In his address Mr. Settle mentioned the need of trained Sunday school teachers in every worldly business of the day. Training is a necessity, and is it plausible to believe that in teaching a Sunday school class no knowledge of the Bible is necessary? After the address a new class was formed and fourteen names were enrolled.

The Township Sunday school convention was held at the Christian church Sunday evening. Mrs. Landphair, the county president, gave an address and Miss Osborne, a delegate to the convention, also addressed the people. Special music was rendered by the Misses Helen and Marion Flory. New officers were elected for the township as follows: Mrs. W. E. Salkeld, pres.; Mrs Sarah Salkeld, missionary supt.; Mrs Jessie Manchester, intermediate supt.; A. M. Thompson, teachers' training supt.; Hubert Wright, sec.; Mrs. Durfee, supt. of Home dept.; Jane Golding, supt. of primary dept., Mrs. Stinchcomb, supt of visiting dept.

F. W. Langshaw has started a movement for the benefit of clerks and storekeepers, viz., the closing of his store every evening at 6:30. In cities all stores save soda fountains and drug stores are closed at 6:30, and why should the town store remain open to accommodate the occasional lounger? Clerks are not machines: they think, feel, work, like other people, and are even capable of resting when opportunity offers.

The entire Imperial force motored to Barberton Tuesday. Mr G. H. Salkeld, George Salkeld and T. B. West took the party to the rubber establishment in their autos.

An accident occurred on the South Ridge Friday afternoon when Mr. Burnett's auto was struck by a Cleveland touring car. Mr Burnett's car was smashed and he was thrown to the ground, but was not seriously injured.

Bishop Leonard will conduct a confirmation service at St. Anne's Sunday evening.

July 17—Miss Alice West entertained a party of young friends Tuesday evening. The grounds were prettily decorated with flowers and Japanese lanterns, so the place looked like fairyland, or, as one of the little ones put it, "Luna Park at night." Lawn to the accompaniment of phonograph music.

Miss Esther Wood returned from Austinburg Tuesday.

Mrs. Frank Wood entertained the Ladies' Sewing Society of the Baptist church last Wednesday. Delicious refreshments were served and a short program was rendered fascinating by Miss Lea Lutz's solos. Miss Lutz left for Port Clinton Thursday.

Mrs Sarah Salkeld and daughter Bessie, accompanied by Eldridge, expect to make a visit at her daughter, Mrs David Hallsback's home in Granville soon.

Mr Buckles will start for Tennessee on Thursday and will preach his first sermon in Knoxville Sunday.

Mr. Paul Brown is taking a vacation in Toronto and vicinity. The vacation trip is a gift of his uncle, John Brown.

Miss Hazel Kirk was in Painesville Tuesday.

British Consumption of Fish.

It is a question whether John Bull is not more deserving of the name of fish eater than he is of beef eater, for during the past year fish valued at $35,000,000 was landed on his shores for food.

Change of Residence.

The minister's wife who testified in court that she had 30 homes in eight years is competent to sympathize with that preacher's daughter who used to tell her friends that she was born all along the South Shore.—Boston Transcript.

Deception.

There are persons who continue to insist that they would rather have their teeth pulled than sit before a camera; but they are generally the ones who are most impatient to see the proofs.

Ship's Pet.

Reading that divers at work at Cowes had found the ram of the cruiser Hawke, weighing several tons, a dear old lady, says London Punch, remarked that she did not know that ships as well as regiments had pets.

Kind Words Last Longest.

FEEL NEED OF EDUCATION

Schoolhouse Conditions in China Pictured by a Chinese Lad, Who Deplores Crowded Schools.

Li Hong, a young boy, who is studying in a Christian mission school in Kityang, 25 miles above Swatow, China, has written a pathetic letter to American friends of his country, appealing for aid to the poor children who are longing for an education, and giving a vivid picture of the contrast between them and the pupils in the schools of the United States. In part his letter is as follows:

"Did you ever hear of anything like this in your fine country—56 growing, active boys, huddled into one small house of eight rooms, eating, sleeping and living in these rooms—and worse yet, 30 other small boys for whom there is no room studying in the chapel and sleeping on the hard benches on which they sit all day? Would your boys and girls care to go to school and endure such discomfort?

"Because of your fine public school system you think you are more appreciative of learning than any other people in the world. But for real devotion to education for learning's sake, you cannot find China's equal.

"You think you are sacrificing to give your children an education when you do without a few luxuries and your children go without a few pleasures; but you never go without rice and your children do not have to sleep on wooden benches.

"Our white teacher, with tears pouring down his cheeks, begged some of us older boys to go home and make room for the new boys who were coming. But we told him we wanted to be educated and learn about Christianity, and we promised to study hard and sleep in the chapel. Now more boys are coming from the primary school and there is no room for them.

"It is so everywhere. At Chaoyang, the second largest city in South China, where 300,000 people live, the teacher there says they used to have to advertise for pupils but now they have to keep as still as mice about the school, because they have not room for all the children that want to come."

When the Fork Was New

If fingers were made before forks, forks were made before spoons. Tom Coryat, when passing through Italy in the year 1611, "observed a custom that is not used in any other country that I saw in my travels, neither do I think that any other nation in Christendom doth use it but only Italy. The Italian, and also most strangers that are commorant in Italy, do always at their meals use a little fork when they cut their meat. For while with their knife, which they hold in one hand, they cut out the meat of the dish, they fasten their fork, which they hold in their other hand, upon the same dish, so that whatsoever he be that sitting in the company of any other at meal should unadvisedly touch the dish of meat with his fingers from which all at the table do cut, he will give occasion of offense unto the company as having transgressed the laws of good manners in so much that for his error he shall be at the least browbeaten if not reprehended in words."

Where?

A lady who gave herself great airs of importance, on being introduced to a gentleman, said with a show of much indifference: "I think I have seen you somewhere."

"Very likely," replied the gentleman, with equal sang froid. "I have been there frequently."

Incubators in Eastern Lands

Hatching the eggs by means of artificial heat has been practiced in China and Egypt from prehistoric times. In the latter country there still exist ancient egg hatcheries or "mamals" that have been in continuous use in the same family for many generations. These incubators consist of large brick ovens that will hold about thirty thousand to sixty thousand eggs at a time. The fire is built inside the oven and is watched carefully for ten days, after which no additional heat is necessary. The method of building the fires and maintaining them so as to preserve the right temperature is a trade secret that is jealously guarded and usually kept in the family.

Disobliging Porter

Senator John W. Kern says he recently chanced upon the most unobliging Pullman porter that he has ever seen in his travels. He inquired of the porter who was passing: "What town's this we're getting near?"

"Don't know, sah," [illegible] the porter, without looking [illegible] from his book. [illegible] the window [illegible]

The Ready Editor

ITALIAN BOATS SUNK BY TURKS

TWO TORPEDO SHIPS ARE REPORTED DESTROYED IN ATTACK ON DARDANELLES.

SIX OTHERS BADLY DAMAGED

King Immanuel's Vessels Try to Gain Constantinople Position, but Are Driven Off by Terrific Fire From Enemy's Forts.

Constantinople.—Eight Italian torpedo boats tried to run the Dardanelles, but were driven off by a terrific fire from the Turkish forts on shore. It was reported at the time that two of the boats were sunk.

The Italian "surprise" attack was attempted under cover of darkness about 2 o'clock in the morning. The torpedo vessels had not steamed far up the strait before they were revealed by a searchlight from one of the forts. A furious cannonade immediately began. Raked from both European and Asiatic shores, the flotilla quickly turned and fled at full speed back toward the Aegean Sea.

Few details of the engagement have been reported. The first account said two of the boats were sent to the bottom with all on board.

In additional reports the six other torpedo boats were said to have been badly damaged by the hail of Turkish shells.

Constantinople in Danger.

The run through the Dardanelles is one of about 40 miles between coasts from one to four miles apart. Had the Italian flotilla effected the passage it would have had the Turkish warships in the Sea of Marmora at its mercy and a bombardment of Constantinople, at the eastern end of the sea, would certainly have followed.

The government has decided to reduce the width of the free channel between the mine fields in the Dardanelles in order on the one hand to permit a continuance of navigation and on the other to increase the defenses of the straits.

WOMAN IS FREED OF MURDER

Mrs. Rene B. Morrow of Chicago Held Not Guilty of Killing Her Husband in 1911

Chicago, Ill.—After being out three hours the jury in the case of Mrs. Rene B. Morrow, charged with the murder of her husband by shooting, brought in a verdict of not guilty. Half crying and half laughing Mrs. Morrow shouted:

"I knew it would be this way. I knew it would be this way."

She rose from her chair and after thanking each member of the jury, she left the court room accompanied by several friends. The verdict is said to have been reached on the third ballot.

The body of Charles B. Morrow was found on the back porch of the family residence the morning of December 27, 1911. He had been shot through the head and the heart and apparently had been dead several hours before the discovery of the body. At his side was found the revolver with which he had been shot.

CREATES NEW CABINET PLACE

Bill Passed by Lower Branch of Congress Provides for Secretary of Department of Labor.

Washington, D. C.—By an unanimous vote the Sulzer bill creating a department of labor with a secretary and cabinet member at its head, passed the house. It is to be carved out of the present department of commerce and labor, which is to be continued as the department of commerce. The plan has long been urged by organized labor and several times Mr. Sulzer has failed by a narrow margin to get it through the house.

In advocating the bill Mr. Sulzer insisted that it would give to labor its proper recognition in the government, that it would pave the way for a better understanding between capital and labor, that it would tend to avert strikes, lockouts and labor disputes, and that it would improve the general condition of labor.

Vote to Unseat Catlin.

Washington, D. C.—Representative Theron E. Catlin of Missouri, in a statement, characterized as a monumental fraud the action of the house committee on elections in voting to recommend that he be deprived of his seat in the house.

Elections committee No. 2 voted to unseat Representative Theron E. Catlin of St. Louis, Republican, and to seat former Representative Patrick Gill, Democrat. Mr. Catlin's campaign expenses were so great that the committee held his election [illegible]

Lightning Shaves Pet Cat

New York City.—Theodore Roosevelt, a gray cat in the house of Mr. and Mrs. J. V. Wilmarth of Annsville [illegible]

At the height of the severe electrical storm Mrs. Wilmarth left her bed to close the windows in an adjoining room. Theodore Roosevelt was on the window sill near her bed. A bolt of lightning entered the window and landed with zest upon T. R., shaving his face of whiskers and hair, leaving it clean as a whistle but otherwise not harming it.

Woman Mauled by Bandits.

New Orleans, La.—Following the receipt of threatening blackhand letters demanding $2,000, which she ignored, Miss Martha Garnier, a young business woman of this city, was kidnaped by masked bandits.

She was found later bound and gagged in the rear of an abandoned house, where her captors, after giving her a cruel beating, left her. Miss Garnier, who is but 28 years old, is in business here and reputed to be quite well to do. A search for her captors is under way.

HERMAN ROSENTHAL

New York gambler informer, who was shot to death in the midst of a great Broadway crowd. It is said the police department is more or less involved in the matter.

HELD IN MURDER CASE

THREE MORE MEN ARE ARRESTED IN NEW YORK CITY.

Two Are Charged With Being Actually Implicated in Slaying of Herman Rosenthal.

New York City.—Three men were arrested and taken to police headquarters in connection with the murder of Herman Rosenthal, who was shot to death on the eve of making revelations of police graft. They were:

Louis ("Bridgey") Webber of 193 Second avenue, gambler and proprietor of a gambling house at Forty-second street and Sixth avenue, charged with being actually implicated in the murder.

Sam Paul, Thirty-second street, gang leader and head of the Sam Paul association, composed chiefly of gamblers and notorious characters, charged with being actually implicated in the murder.

Jack Sullivan of Broadway and One Hundred and Forty-fourth street, manager of newsboys and friend of Sam Paul, Jack Rose, Police Lieutenant Becker, the late Herman Rosenthal and most of the other characters in the case. Held as a material witness. Sullivan's right name is John A. Reich.

The other prisoners who have thus far been taken by the police are:

Deputy Commissioner Dougherty, although taking the attitude that the arrests he made were most vital in the clearing up of the case, refused to say what new evidence he had against Webber and Paul, or why he had delayed their arrest for nearly a week when he could have picked up both within a couple of hours after Rosenthal was shot. The arrests were made after a conference participated in by Dougherty, Inspector Edward Hughes and a third man who was not of the police force, but who represented a high place in the city government.

RICH OIL PRODUCER IS DEAD

Hon. Thomas W. Phillips Was Independent Republican and Served Two Terms in Congress.

New Castle, Pa.—Hon. Thomas W. Phillips, aged 79, multimillionaire oil producer, died here after two months' illness. He was worth $4,000,000 and was the richest independent oil producer in the country.

He was an independent Republican and served in the Fifty-third and Fifty-fourth congresses, fathering the bill that created the bureau of corporations. He gave largely to religion and education and was a trustee of Hiram college.

John D. Punishes Cruel Husband.

Riley is not to be taken back by the oil king until he proves he can be a model husband.

Riley recently drove his wife and seven children, all under 12 years old, out of the house and they had to find shelter for the night elsewhere.

Severe Storm Kills and Damages.

New York City.—Severe rain storms accompanied by high winds in some localities and involving loss of life at widely separated points swept all New England down the coast as far as the Virginia Capes and westward to Pittsburg, the heaviest rain fall coming after noon. At Wilmington, Del., two persons were drowned; in New York a man was drowned on the roof of a 12-story building and in Pittsburg one man met death. All told thousands of dollars' worth of property was destroyed.

Mexican Rebels Kill 84 on Train.

Mexico City, Mexico.—The dead as a result of the attack by Zapatistas on the Mexico-Cuernavaca train near Parres on the edge of the federal district number 84.

It is estimated that the train carried approximately 75 passengers in addition to the 50 soldiers of the escort. Forty-three soldiers were killed. Nine bodies of passengers were found near the wreck. Of the remaining 52, a majority are believed to have been killed or wounded and consumed in the burning cars.

HANFORD RESIGNS, HOUSE QUIZ ENDS

SEATTLE JUDGE QUITS FEDERAL POSITION AND PROBERS VOTE TO CONCLUDE.

JURIST MAKES STATEMENT

Says Almost Constant Strain Under Which He Has Worked So Long Has Taxed but Not Exhausted Powers of Endurance.

Washington, D. C.—Chairman Henry D. Clayton of the house judiciary committee, announced that he considered unnecessary further impeachment proceedings against Federal Judge Hanford of Seattle, who has just resigned. Chairman Clayton declared that while congress has the power to try a federal official for impeachment even after he has resigned, he did not believe that course necessary in this case.

Chairman Clayton instructed the subcommittee, now in Seattle taking testimony in the Hanford case, to discontinue its work. He received the following message from Representative Graham, chairman of the subcommittee:

Vote to Discontinue Quiz.

"Judge Hanford has just forwarded his resignation to the attorney general. We are not quite done taking testimony, but nearly so. The subcommittee is unanimously in favor of discontinuing the taking of further testimony."

In this statement Chairman Clayton cited the precedent of the case of Secretary of War Belknap, who was impeached and tried by the senate after his resignation had been accepted by President Grant. The articles of impeachment against Belknap failed to receive the necessary two-thirds vote in the senate. In the conclusion Mr. Clayton said:

Object Is Accomplished.

"The main object of the impeachment, being to get rid of an unfaithful officer, having been accomplished in this case by the resignation of Judge Hanford, if it is true that he was unfaithful, there seems to be no necessity for impeaching him in order to disqualify him from hereafter holding any office of honor or profit under the United States. I take it that no president will ever appoint him, and no constituency would ever elect him to office of honor or profit. Of course, there will be no formal action on the part of the committee on the judiciary until a report is made by the subcommittee which I appointed to investigate the alleged misconduct of Judge Hanford."

Hanford's Statement.

Judge Hanford's statement to the public follows:

"The almost constant strain under which I have worked for more than 22 years has taxed but not exhausted my power of endurance. I am not likely to have a vacation of rest, but a change of occupation will be a welcome relief. I intend to practice law in Seattle. In the investigation which has been conducted by a subcommittee of the house of representatives much testimony has been given by witnesses who know me and by others who do not. I am grateful for the commendation of those who have spoken and written in my favor—and as for those who have maligned me, I only wish to say that I would be ashamed of myself if I had not incurred the enmity of such people as they are. A judge is never so sure of being right as when his work has been criticized unfairly. Without boasting, in view of all that has been and may be said of and concerning myself and my work, I am glad that my record is what it is."

REBUKES IRREVERENT SOLONS

Minister Says Thirteen Lawmakers Chewed Tobacco During Opening Prayer in U. S. Senate.

Patchogue Depot, N. Y.—Rev. L. H. Johnston of the Patchogue Congregational church in a sermon scathingly rebuked 13 United States senators for chewing tobacco during the opening prayer by the chaplain of the senate.

"They showed lack of ordinary reverence to Almighty God," said Rev. Johnston to his hearers, a large assemblage of prominent summer residents here. "I was in Washington last June, and for about a week attended the sessions of the senate daily. I knew the names of the senators, but I deem it improper to give them. I make no attack on the use of tobacco, for that is a personal privilege, but I do assail the lack of reverence shown to the deity by some public men. While I was in the senate chamber I saw 13 senators chewing tobacco during the opening prayer."

England Plans Larger Navy.

London, England.—Accepting Germany's challenge in the race for the largest navy, but declaring England's motive to be in the interests of peace and to prevent war, Winston Spencer Churchill, first lord of the admiralty, launched in the house of commons a movement that in five years will add twenty-one fighting vessels to the British fleet. The government's vast plan to add to the fighting strength of its navy takes the form of a supplementary naval appropriation of $5,000,000, which was introduced by Churchill.

Suicide Causes Sensation.

Pittsburgh, Pa.—Fashionable Mount Chateau, the beautiful mountain resort near Morgantown, W. Va., awoke in the morning to the biggest sensation this exclusive little villa has ever experienced. Miss Nellie Hughes, 16, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Hughes, Monessen, walked from a vacant cottage near Lock No. 10 and, after removing her shoes, jumped into the river. The suicide was witnessed by a number of male cottagers who were fishing and by a number of others.

EIGHT GIRLS DIE IN FIRE

LONDON CHRISTMAS CARD MAKERS TRAPPED BY FLAMES.

Victims' Escape Is Cut Off When Conflagration Guts Building in a Few Minutes.

London, England.—Eight girls lost their lives in a fire, the disaster strongly recalling the Triangle shirtwaist fire in New York last year. The victims were making Christmas cards on the top floor of the Angus Thomas building in Moorgate street when a fire gutted the building in a few minutes and cut off their escape.

Some of the terrified girls tried to escape by leaping across the narrow gap between the Thomas building and an adjoining structure, but fell upon the glass roof of a smaller building below. Planks were placed across the gap, but the other girls in attempting to escape that way perished in sight of a large crowd of horrified spectators by faltering on the narrow bridge.

A pitiful group of girls clustered around a chimney on the roof and backed by a wall of flame which defied any attempt at rescue. Gradually the fire ate its way to the little space upon which they were gathered, their clothing became ignited and one by one, with piercing screams, the victims fell back into the fiercely blazing building.

The next girl who jumped was killed because the wire netting was gone. Two other girls in the flames jumped and their dead bodies lay blazing on the ground until the firemen had deluged them with water.

The building was situated in what is known as the city danger zone, owing to the congestion of buildings, and was the scene of a great fire in 1897, which destroyed the whole vicinity.

SENTENCES MITCHELL TO JAIL

Justice Wright Gives Vice President of American Federation of Labor Nine Months for Contempt.

Washington, D. C.—John Mitchell, vice president of the American Federation of Labor, who with President Gompers and Secretary Morrison was adjudged guilty of contempt of court several weeks ago, was sentenced by Justice Wright to nine months in jail. Mitchell was not in court. His counsel noted an appeal.

At the close of the trial Justice Wright offered to suspend Mitchell's punishment provided Mitchell promised hereafter to adhere to all court orders, but Mitchell spurned the tender.

MAN, IN PAIN, BITES OFF EAR

Fireman Who Is Scalded in Railroad Wreck Chews Woman Who Tries to Help Him.

Dayton, Ky.—Fireman Harry Schaeffer was probably fatally scalded, Engineer Frank Gregory was internally injured, and a woman had her ear bitten off as the result of an engine on the Chesapeake & Ohio railroad hauling a car of workmen leaving the track and turning turtle and stopping on the brink of a precipice overlooking the Ohio river at Coal Haven, near here. The woman was kneeling close to Schaeffer with a view to administering aid to the injured man. His pain was so great that he bit off her ear.

Banishes Free Lunches.

Los Angeles, Cal.—Free lunches have been formally banished from saloons in Los Angeles by the city council. The new law will take effect in 30 days.

The step was taken with some hesitation by the city fathers because of no precedent existing that could be taken as a criterion, but as the demands for the abolishment of the "poor man's dinner," as it is termed by saloon men, was so insistent the council decided to give the issue a test.

Woman Is Found Murdered.

Oklahoma City, Okla.—Mrs. Minnie Ralstin was found dead in her home near Helena, Okla., her throat cut and her skull crushed. She was the wife of Meek Ralstin, a prosperous farmer. Ralstin and his son were away from home at the time.

Meek Ralstin, Jr., 12, a stepson of Mrs. Ralstin, went to the home of a neighbor and said his stepmother had been murdered. He said he heard her groan and then heard two men talking. One of them said: "Let's get the rest of them."

SPLENDID OUTLOOK FOR CROPS IN WESTERN CANADA

RELIABLE INFORMATION FROM THE GRAIN FIELDS SHOW THAT THE PROSPECTS ARE GOOD.

This is the time of year when considerable anxiety is felt in all the northern agricultural districts as to the probable outcome of the growing crops. Central Canada, comprising the Provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, with their 16,000,000 acres of wheat, oats, barley and flax, of which 6,000,000 acres may be said to be sown in wheat alone, has become a great factor in the grain markets of the world. Besides this, government returns show that every state in the Union has representatives in these provinces, and naturally the friends of these representatives are anxious to hear of their success. It has never been said of that country that it is absolutely faultless. There are, and have been, districts that have experienced the vagaries of the weather, the same as in districts south of the boundary line between the two countries, but these are only such as are to be expected in any agricultural country. The past has proven that the agricultural possibilities of this portion of Canada are probably more attractive in every way than most countries where grain raising is the chief industry. The present year promises to be even better than past years, and in a month or six weeks it is felt there will be produced the evidence that warrants the enthusiasm of the present. Then these great broad acres will have the ripened wheat, oats, barley and flax, and the farmer, who has been looking forward to making his last payment on his big farm will be satisfied. At the time of writing, all crops give the promise of reaching the most sanguine expectations.

In the central portion of Alberta, it is said that crop conditions are more favorable than in any previous year. Heavy rains recently visited this part, and the whole of this grain growing section has been covered. Reports like the following come from all parts:

"Splendid heavy rain yesterday. Crops forging ahead. Great prospects. All grains more than a week ahead of last year. Weather warm last week. Good rains last night."

Throughout Saskatchewan all grains are looking well, and there has been sufficient rain to carry them through to harvest.

From all portions of Manitoba there comes an assurance of an abundant yield of all grains. Throughout southern Manitoba, where rain was needed a few weeks ago, there has lately been abundant precipitation and that portion of the province will in all probability have a crop to equal the best anticipations. A large quantity of grain was sown on the stubble in the newer west, which is never a satisfactory method of farming, and may reduce the general average.

Taken altogether, the country is now fully two weeks in advance of last year, and in all grains the acreages sown are much larger than in 1911. This means that with auspicious weather the west will have the grandest harvest in its history. Two hundred and fifty million bushels of wheat has been mentioned as an estimate of the present growing crop, and it looks now as if that guess will be none too large.

Pittsburg Chivalry.

"What's going on here?" demanded a man as he came upon two little boys battling in a vacant lot on the South side. The lad who was on top was rubbing weeds over the face of the under one.

"Stop it," said the man, grabbing the victor by the neck and pulling him away. "What in the world are you trying to do to his face with those weeds?"

"Do? Why, he swore in front of some girls, and I rubbed some smartweed in his eyes to become a great man like Abraham Lincoln."—Pittsburg Sun.

ECZEMA CAME ON SCALP

Lebanon, O.—"My eczema started on my thigh with a small pimple. It also came on my scalp. It began to itch and I began to scratch. For eighteen or twenty years I could not tell what I passed through with that awful itching. I would scratch until the blood would soak through my underwear, and I couldn't talk to my friends on the street but I would be digging and punching that spot, until I was very much ashamed. The itching was so intense I could not sleep after once in bed and warm. I certainly suffered torment with that eczema for many years.

"I chased after everything I ever heard of, but all to no avail. I saw the advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and sent for a sample. Imagine my delight when I applied the first dose to that awful itching fire on my leg and scalp, in less than a minute the itching on both places ceased. I got some more Cuticura Soap and Ointment. After the second day I never had another itching spell, and Cuticura Soap and Ointment completely cured me. I was troubled with awful dandruff all over my scalp. The Cuticura Soap has cured that trouble." (Signed) L. R. Fink, Jan. 23, 1912.

Worth While.

"See here!" cried the boy's father, "if you don't behave I'll whip you."

"I wish you would," replied the bad boy.

"You do, eh?"

"Yes, 'cause when it's all over ma will gimme some candy."

MADE BIG PROFIT FOR STATE

Purely Business Argument for the Establishment of Sanitoriums for the Tuberculosis.

According to figures contained in the annual report of Dr. H. L. Barnes, superintendent of the Rhode Island state sanitorium, the earnings of the ex-patients of that institution during the year 1911 would amount to over $286,000. This is a sum three times as large as that spent each year for maintenance of the institution, including four per cent. interest and depreciation charges.

The actual earnings in 1911 of 170 ex-patients were obtained by Dr. Barnes. These ranged from $2 to $31 per week, the total earnings for the year amounting to $102,752. On this basis, Dr. Barnes computes the figures above given. He says, however: "While institutions for the cure of tuberculosis are good investments, there is good reason for thinking that institutions for the isolation of far-advanced cases would be still better investments."

Out of a total of 46,450 hospital days' treatment given, 39,147, or 84 per cent., were free, the treatment costing the state on an average $200 per patient. Out of the 188 free cases investigated, 56 had no families and no income on admission to the sanitorium. Out of 132 patients having homes, the number in the family averaged 5.2, and the average family earnings were $.46. In 59 cases the families had no income, and in only five cases were there any savings, none of which amounted to as much as $100.

HAD TERRIBLE ITCHING, BURNING HUMOR ON FACE

Covered With Scabs. Very Embarrassing. Resinol Cured.

Here is proof indeed of what Resinol will do for sufferers from tormenting, unsightly skin humors. Mr. Will D. Hays, Russellville, Tenn., says:

"I caught sycosis or barber's itch. My face would get to smarting and burning, and great red welts would come on it and in a few hours my face would be covered with scales or scabs the size of wheat bran. It would itch a great deal and the more I rubbed it, the worse it became. It even got up in the edge of my hair. It certainly was very embarrassing as well as annoying, too, as everyone wanted to know what was the matter with my face. I tried several different local remedies, but they did not do any good. Then I sent for a small jar of Resinol Ointment and that one jar cured me inside of ten days. I had had the barber's itch for thirty or forty days. I believe Resinol will do the same for others." (Dated April 11, 1912.)

Resinol Ointment stops itching instantly and with the aid of Resinol Soap is the ideal household remedy for eczema and other skin and scalp eruptions, pimples, blackheads, dandruff, burns, scalds, sores, boils, ulcers and piles. Your druggist sells Resinol Soap (25c) and Resinol Ointment (50c) or sent postpaid on receipt of price by Dept. 3K, Resinol Chemical Co., Baltimore, Md.

The Middle-Aged Woman.

Of the many ways in which the middle-aged woman may vary the effect of her afternoon gowns none is simpler than the use of a collar and cuffs of white voile edged with scalloping and embroidery in a floral design. Another change may be the frock set of white chiffon with border of black moline, and still another is the one of black net hemstitched with silver thread. Some of these collars are so long in front that they terminate only at the waist line, where they cross in surplice effect and are tucked away under the girdle. An excellent model of this sort is of light blue lawn embroidered with black dots, and a second is of white agaric trimmed with tiny folds of broadcloth, alternating with eponge.

DAYTON RANKS FIRST

REPORT ON BUILDING AND LOAN ASSOCIATIONS IS MADE PUBLIC.

Large Gains Are Shown in Business Done—Earnings Are More Than Ten Millions.

Columbus.—Large gains are shown by the building and loan associations of the state in the annual report of Deputy State Inspector David L. Rockwell, figures from which were recently made public. Six hundred and forty-three associations filed reports showing gross assets of $187,434,123.87, a gain of $16,683,585.86 over last year. Dayton ranks first with 20 institutions against 21 in 1910, and with total assets in 1911 of $26,615,605.74 compared with $24,344,679.90 in 1910.

Cincinnati is second in assets, although it has the greatest number of associations, with 210 in 1911 against 211 in 1910, and with assets of $20,782,777.42 compared with $18,812,755.69 in 1910. Columbus had 24 institutions in 1910 and 23 in 1911, but assets increased from $17,603,210.53 to $19,830,250.34. Cleveland reported 20 institutions in 1911 against 21 in 1910, with assets in 1911 of $12,509,144.12 compared with $11,314,054.89 in 1910.

The total number of non-borrowing members of the building and loan associations in the state during the year 1910 was 250,132 and in 1911 269,231. The total number of borrowing members in 1910 was 112,166 and in 1911 115,026. The total number of depositors was 137,578 in 1910 and 150,834 in 1911.

The average rate of interest charged borrowers is shown by the report to be 6.25 per cent. An average rate of 4.33 per cent was paid on deposits. The earnings of associations during the last year amounted to $10,469,468.57. Of this $3,951,557.63 was paid as dividends on running stock.

Ohio Makes Record in Shoes.

Boots and shoes stand ninth among the industries of this state, according to a recently published report of the census bureau. The total annual production, including cuts and findings, is $31,551,000. This is exceeded only by the iron and steel industries, slaughtering and meat packing, flour and grist mill products, printing and publishing and lumber. It ranks ahead of tobacco manufacturing, liquors, clothing, carriages and wagons, pottery and more than 100 other industries. The number of wage earners employed is 18,826. The government report says: "There are 63 concerns engaged primarily in the manufacture of boots and shoes, five in the production of boots and shoe signs and four in the manufacture of boot and shoe cut stock." The value of production is steadily increasing, showing a gain of 72.9 per cent in the ten years between 1900 and 1910. The state is producing 8.2 per cent of the total American output of shoes. It produces more than $10,000,000 worth of leather annually. In the manufacture of shoes, women's shoes form 59 per cent of the total. Columbus, Cincinnati and Portsmouth are the principal centers of the shoe trade. It is a remarkable showing of grading up to quality that is presented by comparison of the increasing total number of pairs within the five years preceding the census with the increase in value. In 1905, 18,263,000 pairs were reported, valued at $25,735,000. In 1910, 18,808,000 pairs were reported, valued at $31,551,000.

Would Have Civil Service.

Recommending to the legislature that a law be passed placing sealers and deputy sealers of weights and measures under civil service, in order that efficiency be not sacrificed to political preferment, together with several other measures, the state, city and county sealer and deputy sealers, in convention in this city, adjourned.

Mandatory sale of foodstuffs by weight or by the piece, dealers to be held responsible whether the offenses were committed knowingly or not, is desired.

Tire Concern's Capitalization.

An examination of the balance sheet of the B. F. Goodrich Co. of New York, which has plants at Akron, and recently absorbed the Diamond Rubber Co. of Ohio, shows up an enormous capitalization of good will and patents, which, together with the real estate, buildings, plant and machinery, is placed at $72,325,188.42. The company has an aggregate capital of common stock, $80,000,000, and 7 per cent cumulative stock, $30,000,000.

Against Uniform Reduction.

Declaring against arbitrarily uniform cuts in every item of a municipal budget when a reduction of one or more items is deemed necessary, Supreme Judges Davis and Donahue refused to grant the motion filed by Prosecuting Attorney Pugue, of Cincinnati, asking that he be allowed to submit the question to the court.

Fuel Oil Pays Dividend.

Announcements were received here of the declaration of an initial dividend of $1 a share on the stock of the Ohio Fuel Oil Co. The action was taken by the directors of the company in a special meeting held in Pittsburg. The dividend was predicted some time ago, but announcement was not expected before probably the middle of August. As an immediate result of the announcement the stock firmed up, moving from 17½, the previous day close, to 18 bid. The dividend will be paid on August 1.

Receives Executive Clemency.

Following a plea for mercy, made by his wife and two children, who are ill and in destitute circumstances, Adam Zombroski, of Toledo, serving one year in the penitentiary for fraud, was granted a pardon by Gov. Harmon. The man was charged with presenting a check for 98 cents to a barkeeper and making off with the change when the latter by mistake handed him $98. The governor was moved by the pathetic circumstances, and decided that mercy was the better part of justice in such a case.

Fuel Supply Active in Gas.

Some exceptionally large gas producers have been drilled in the central Ohio gas fields recently. One of the largest and most important completions was that of the Ohio Fuel Supply Co. in Richland county. This was a test on the M. L. Culler farm in Monroe Township and has a producing rate of 8,000,000 cubic feet. The same company has drilled in a wildcat venture on the Henry Fronce farm in Green township, Ashland county, and has a 6,000,000 cubic feet producer. This well is located four miles south of the rich Ashland county gas field and leads to the belief that the productive territory of that field runs to the south. The finding of this new gas producer will lead to further test work in the vicinity, as the Ohio Fuel Supply Co. holds an extensive acreage in that part of Ohio and in all directions from the new well. The company's No. 1, on the William Irwin farm, in the southwest quarter of section 29 of Ashland County, found 14 feet of good producing sand and the well shows a gauge of 7,000,000 cubic feet. No. 1 of this company on the Nancy and Milt Arter farm in the southeast quarter of section 30, Ashland county, has 10 feet of sand and produced 5,000,000 cubic feet of gas. No. 6, on the G. Dickey farm, in the north half of the northwest quarter of section 26, produced 3,500,000 cubic feet and had 10 feet of good pay sand. No. 3, on the William Duff farm, section 17, produced 1,328,853 cubic feet of gas. No. 1, on the Marion Likes farm, on section 9, produced 4,000,000 cubic feet of gas.

Decide Railroad Valuations.

Increasing the aggregate valuation of 31 of the small steam roads of the state by $2,155,875 for the coming year, the state tax commission has announced permanent figures on the properties. Only three roads, the Newburgh & South Shore, Pittsburg & Lake Erie and the Wabash, Pittsburg terminal, were successful in their pleas for decreases. The total reduction aggregates $38,825, compared to the total gross increase of $2,194,800.

Bearing the brunt of the increase are the Detroit & Toledo Short Line and the Pere Marquette. Both roads run through Michigan as well as through this state. The tax commission decided that Michigan was getting too much of the apportionment, while Ohio was getting too little. The result is that the two roads bear one-third of the total increase. The Detroit & Toledo Short Line is boosted $558,795 and the Pere Marquette $278,800.

To Boost Good Roads.

The Ohio Goods Roads Federation will bring into the state within the next few weeks a number of speakers who are of national prominence. They are to make a thorough tour of Ohio and will talk in favor of the proposition authorizing the issuing of $50,000,000 bonds for the improvement of highways, under what is known as the state aid plan. The election will be held September 3. If it is adopted, the $50,000,000 will be expended entirely for a system of inter-county wagon roads throughout Ohio.

Must Be Returned For Taxation.

Accounts in savings banks are to be listed by the depositor for taxation, and not by the bank. This is the law as interpreted by Attorney General T. S. Hogan in a ruling to the state tax commission. The ruling applies to all savings banks.

With one exception, accounts in savings banks are considered credits in law, he holds, and debts may be deducted in making the list for taxation. The exception is the Society For Savings, of Cleveland, in which deposits are held to be money and not credits.

To Be Used With Caution.

Ruling that a newspaper must have actual knowledge that an indictment is secret before it can be held guilty of contempt of court for publishing it, the circuit court handed down a decision in the Cleveland Leader case. The case grew out of the second budget of the indictments which were returned during the general assembly investigation of a year ago. "The power of contempt," said the decision, "should be exercised with caution and should not be made an instrument of injustice and oppression."

Forges Warden's Name.

Because he used the name of Warden Jones in signing a bogus check in Cleveland, Pete Fuller, paroled from a three-year sentence for larceny from Franklin county, will be returned to the penitentiary to finish his sentence. Under the name of Henry C. Henderson, Fuller succeeded in getting rid of several pieces of bad paper recently, and, when one of the checks was found signed "T. H. Jones & Co.," the police suspected that he was a former prisoner.

Takes Over Columbus Concern.

News of the formation of a $10,000,000 envelope company, with a daily capacity of 20,000,000 envelopes, became public here through completion of negotiations through C. N. Atkinson, of Kalamazoo, Mich., for the purchase of practically all of the stock of the Columbus Envelope Co. and the Indianapolis Envelope Co., formerly operated as subsidiaries of the Columbus Lithograph Co. Interests connected with the Bryant Paper Mills Co. and the Illinois Envelope Co. are the purchasers.

Given State Insurance.

Awards for injuries ranging from pinched fingers to lockjaw, were made by the state board of awards. The smallest award, $3, goes to W. J. Brooks, employe of the Colin Gardner Paper Co., Middletown. The largest, $2250, was given to C. E. Wells, employe of the Columbus Bolt Works. Other awards were: $18 to Carl Ruckenberg, working for the Lancaster Glass Co., who previously got $154; Marie Weaver, of Miamisburg, received $8, and Henry Faulber, of Middletown, $8.

GREAT AUTO CONTEST

COLUMBUS WILL HOLD MEET THAT WILL MAKE RECORD FOR DIRT TRACK.

Club at Capital City Expect to Have Some of the Noted Speed Kings Present in August.

Columbus, Ohio.—Announcing the greatest automobile contest to be held on any dirt track of the country during the year, the Columbus Automobile Club has made formal provision for a 200-mile race to be held at the Columbus Driving Park, on the afternoon of August 25.

"Some of the greatest drivers in the country will be present," declared L. M. Browne, chairman of the race committee. "The prizes will be $1,500 cash and various cups.

"We have the only dirt track in the country on which a 200-mile race has been or can be run. Most dirt tracks cut up so badly that the time made toward the end of the race is very poor. During the last 200-mile contest on the local track the time at the end was as good as that at the beginning.

"The club favors the 200-mile contest because it is our wish to furnish the public with a real race and not with an imitation of one. Not only the speed will be taken into consideration, but also the endurance shown. Entries will be free for all, although we do not want more than 10 starters.

"Harry Knight and Lee Frayer, both of this city, and John Jenkins, of Springfield, all of whom were contestants last year, will be here."

MAIL MAN HIT BY WATER

Rural Carrier Has Thrilling Experience and Horse Is Badly Hurt.

Hamden, Ohio.—Caught by a wall of water four or five feet high that swept down Sugar Run, the result of a cloudburst, Homer Dixon, a rural mail carrier of Gillespieville, had a harrowing experience.

As he started to cross the stream the waters came upon him and with horse and mail wagon he was carried a distance of 200 yards on the crest of the flood before he managed to scramble out to a place of safety. The horse and wagon were swept twice the distance before the animal was able to get out of the bed of the creek, bruised and bleeding, with not a vestige of harness on it.

The wagon was a wreck and the mail was swept away and lost.

The force of water was terrific and the flood carried a mass of timbers, trees, wheat shocks and other debris.

HOME COMING AT RIPLEY.

Ripley, Ohio.—Ripley is planning extensively to have a splendid program at their Home Coming the first week of August. Bishop David H. Moore will address the union meeting on the M. E. Church Sunday evening the fourth. On August sixth early in the morning John Rankin, an abolitionary cern, an uncle of Mrs. George N. Gray will hoist the flag from Rankin's Hill. The annual fair is on the sixth, seventh and eighth.

SOME IMPROVEMENTS PLANNED.

Bellefontaine, Ohio.—The moving of the Big Four terminal from Springfield to Bellefontaine, affecting all Cincinnati-Toledo trains, has made necessary considerable improvements to the terminal facilities here and an appropriation of $182,000 has been made by the company for this work, which will include the enlarging of the roundhouse to 38 stalls, increasing the dock.

STATION AGENT IS HELD UP.

Sidney, Ohio.—A masked man entered the C., H. & D. station and pointed a pistol at the agent, John Hammond, and ordered him to throw up his hands, while he searched his pockets, taking a gold watch and chain and $8. He then started to rob the money drawer, but was scared by the whistle of a train.

PINNED UNDER A ROCK.

Zanesville, Ohio.—Mrs. Henry Gillogly of Frostland was pinned beneath a huge rock which fell from the top of a spring, and she lay helpless for four hours before neighbors heard her screams. No bones were broken and she will recover.

WORKMAN IS ELECTROCUTED.

Sidney, Ohio.—Homer Allen, aged 22, an employe of the Sidney Telephone Co., while working on the lines came in contact with an electric light wire, carrying about 2,200 volts, and was instantly killed.

RESCUES MOTHER FROM FLAMES.

Springfield, Ohio.—Fighting his way through smoke, which filled Whitehall, the beautiful country home of E. R. Kelly, millionaire manufacturer, located near Yellow Springs, where a fire broke out, Oliver S. Kelly reached his mother, who was almost overcome. He climbed down to the ground from the rear porch, secured a ladder and carried out Mrs. Kelly before she was seriously affected by the smoke.

Kelly also aroused the other occupants of the house. They all escaped.

WORKS OF POET PUBLISHED.

Hamilton.—Hon. Charles H. Fisk, L.L.D., of the class of 1883, Miami university, Oxford, has edited a collection of poems by George Campbell Ogden. Mr. Ogden was a classmate of Mr. Fisk at Miami university, and was unusually gifted. The poems were written in his early life, and were published as a mark of love by his sister. They have a very great local interest, because many historic points are centered in them. A copy has been placed in the library at Old Miami.

YOUNG MAN DROWNED

Attack of Cramps Causes Another Death in Waters of Scioto.

Columbus, O.—Attacked by cramps while swimming Leo Maurer, aged 18, of 718 Fifth street, drowned in the Scioto river, near the Stimmel road, half a mile south of the Greenlawn avenue bridge.

Harry Kinnel, one of his companions, started after the young man, was also seized with cramps, and was forced to give up the attempt at rescue. Fifteen boys and young men were at the spot.

The Maurer boy had gone bathing with young Kinnel, who lives in South Fourth street, and John Friedlinghouse, whose home is at Fourth and Beech streets.

Young Maurer was the son of William Maurer, a stovemounter. For the last five years he had been employed at the dry goods store of P. H. Vogel in East Main street. There are eight other children in the family.

TEMPORARY ARRANGEMENT.

London, Ohio.—A temporary arrangement has been effected by which London will secure somewhat improved interurban service over the Ohio Electric Railway Co.'s lines. For some time the municipality and the interurban company have been in disagreement and through service between Columbus and Springfield through London was discontinued. As a result of a conference with the Ohio Electric officials, a shuttle car will operate from Lafayette to London over one leg of the V and from London to Summerford over the other leg of the V and return.

GRAIN STORAGE COMPANY.

Springfield, Ohio.—The Western Ohio Grain Storage Co., of this city, with J. W. Burk, R. D. Patton, C. E. Braumiller and L. B. Miller named as incorporators, was incorporated in Columbus, the capitalization being $10,000. The new concern will be used, according to the announcement made by the incorporators, as a storage company for the Ansted & Burk Co. The new company will store grain in the large holding places already erected at the mills.

TO BUILD NEW CHURCH.

Springfield, Ohio.—City Auditor Frank X. Lothschultz issued building permits to the Second United Presbyterian church, for the erection of a brick church at a cost of $10,000 at 1605 South Limestone street; Johanna Stemmdinger, for a frame dwelling costing $1,800 at the corner of Chestnut and Murray streets; and to Val and Johanna Weber, for the erection of a frame dwelling costing $2,500 on Lagonda avenue, near Avondale.

CITY MUST CHEAPEN GAS.

Bellefontaine, Ohio.—The city of Bellefontaine, owning its own gas works, will have to reduce the price of gas if the recommendation of the State Bureau of Accounting is followed. Gas for fuel purposes now costs the consumer 45 cents per 1,000 feet, and for illuminating purposes, although it comes through the same main, but a different meter, $1.12 per 1,000 feet. Some repairs are recommended at the plant before the price is reduced, however.

BABY IS ACID VICTIM.

Dayton, Ohio.—A bottle of carbolic acid found in an alley by a 3-year-old lad was carried by the latter to the crib containing 4-month-old Hanna Drost. The babe, toying with the bottle, caused it to open, spilling the contents on the infant's face. It is thought at the hospital that the child will be blinded from the acid.

WOMAN RESCUES BOY.

Bellefontaine, Ohio.—While children were playing on a bridge spanning the mill race at West Liberty, Elsworth Englished, aged 5, fell into the stream. As the child's body floated under the bridge Mrs. A. G. Steinberger plunged into the water and rescued the boy.

K. OF P. WILL BUILD.

Dayton, Ohio.—The lodges of the order of Knights of Pythias of this city have decided to build a temple on ground belonging to two of the lodges. The plans provide for a seven-story fireproof building, costing $150,000.

FALL FROM EAGLE'S NEST FATAL

SHOE MEN AT DAYTON

Dayton, Ohio.—Plans are now complete for the annual convention of the Ohio Retail Shoe Dealers' association, to be held in this city September 3, 4 and 5. Business conditions will be reviewed, styles and matters of mutual interest discussed. Many pleasant features have been arranged for the entertainment of nearly 500 delegates who will attend the convention. Side trips to Springfield to visit Odd Fellows' and Pythian homes will also be scheduled.

DROWNED IN OHIO RIVER.

Portsmouth, O.—Stepping off a ledge into a deep hole in the Ohio river at the Bohemian club at Portsmouth, where he was taking a week's vacation, Charles Hicks, unmarried, aged 22, a Columbus shoeworker, was drowned yesterday.

He was going in bathing. Several persons on the bank saw his plight, but could not reach him. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Hicks, were notified. He moved to Columbus with his parents about a year ago.

By Katherine Morton

Summer is a splendid season for fostering a child's good looks. Great Nature stands with her arms wide for the little ones, inviting healthful play in the open air, when muscles are hardened, finicky appetites improved and inches and pounds taken on. But the mother must be very careful about food on the hotter days—be careful, indeed, all summer long—and the daily grooming of the little body must be thorough and regular.

The bath is the youngster's greatest safeguard against the miseries of a hot day, for the little moment of sensible care at once lowers the temperature of the body, soothes nerves and does a host of other good things, and the hotter the day the more important is the afternoon sponge or tub bath, with clean, cool garments to put on afterward and shoes that feel like old friends. As to shoes, if you are a mother pray don't forget that barefoot sandals—the little heelless foot coverings that children wear without stockings—are as cheap as cheap, and that children like them.

Sponge the little body down very gently with tepid water if the child seems too tired for a tub bath, and repeat the operation several times during the hottest days. A teaspoonful of ammoniated toilet water will make this sponging doubly refreshing, but if this is used be careful not to have the water get into the youngster's eyes. When the little head feels burning hot, and the hair is soaked with perspiration and is sour as well, a shampoo would not be amiss, and it would doubtless be relished. The extra combing the small head gets at this time would be an added comfort—you know how pleasant a combing is to your own tired head—and when it is time to dress the youngster for the afternoon pay more attention to finding the garments that will keep it cool than to putting on those for mere looks. High necks and long sleeves are a crime in hot weather, and so, for that matter, are stockings—to the wee children who are allowed the bare-necked, bare-armed and bare-legged conditions of dress.

A delicate nursery powder, with the fragrance that appeals to the senses, is an added refreshment after the bath, and it is absolutely needed for the children who chafe easily, or are given to little eruptions from heat or indigestion. Violet talcum, prepared for nursery use, is about as good a thing as can be had for general purposes, but if the child is suffering from summer rash this preparation would be more cooling and healing:

|---|---|
| Elder flower water | 7 ounces |
| Glycerin | 1 ounce |
| Borax | ½ dram |

Mix these together and apply night and morning and during the day.

Now what is the chief cause of the summer rash, and the reason for much of the peevishness and a good deal of the light physical pain a growing child has in summer? Improper food, you may be sure, food as heavy as that in winter, overeating, too many cold drinks, overripe or underripe fruit. On a hot day—one of the dog day kind—indiscretion in food is especially dangerous, particularly if a heavy meal is eaten when the child comes in overheated. A child's food up to eight years of age—and often later—needs always to be the light, easily digested sort. Milk is the most natural food for childhood, and very often it is refused by the youngsters because it is poor or badly kept. Tepid milk is a nauseous mass on a hot day, but milk must not be drunk too cold either, particularly when children are warm and tired and are inclined to take their beverages at a gulp. If the household has that very precious blessing, a cellar, the best way to keep milk is to put it in carefully cleansed and sunned bottles, which can be covered, and then set them on the cellar floor. The coolness of this underground chamber will keep milk at just the right temperature, and also preserve more of its delicious quality than if it were put on the ice.

Large or Small Hat Is a Question for the Future

Some experts of fashions say that still larger hats will be worn, while others disagree and say that the small turban shaped hats will be in the majority. The large hat in the photograph is of Panama trimmed with a bow of black velvet and a large pink rose in the front. The small bonnet is of Milan straw and trimmed with rose and rose leaf decorations.

Timely Advice and Hints for the Hostess

By Mme. MERRI

Attire for Best Man

At a four o'clock wedding please tell me the absolutely correct attire for a best man? The ceremony to be at a large city church.

COUNTRY

Frock coat, white or the latest in a waistcoat of gray, striped trousers, straight or dog-eared collar, gray undressed kid gloves and a silk hat, not forgetting a four-in-hand necktie of a very delicate shade. A scarfpin is permissible and will presumably be the gift of the groom.

Giving a "Tea" or Reception

I am indebted to nearly a hundred friends. Tell me the simplest way to return these social obligations.

L. T. M.

Send out your visiting card in an envelope to fit it to the persons whom you wish to entertain. On it write the day, hours and date, with the words "At home." Then if it is practical have two or three stringed instruments to play during the reception hours. Decorate the rooms simply with palms and a few flowers, darken the windows by drawing the shades and light the rooms with candles, having the gas turned low. In the dining room cover the table with your finest linen, have a pretty centerpiece of flowers, candles with shades and a friend to preside at the coffee urn and one for chocolate. Ask an intimate friend or two to assist you in receiving, and as your guests come and go you will have ample room for all and pay all your social obligations at one time. Serve sandwiches, nuts, olives, a cream or ice and small cakes. A salad may be added, but it is not necessary.

Etiquette at a Reception.

Will you kindly inform me the proper thing to do at a reception? Should I leave my calling card? What should be served?

S. A. B.

Greet your hostess, be served to refreshments, leave your card and take your departure, is about the prescribed formula for an afternoon reception.

Tea, coffee, chocolate, sandwiches, wafers, nuts and bonbons, salad, sherbet or ice cream are the usual refreshments served in the dining room. Two or more ladies, generally intimate friends of the hostess, "pour," one or two waiters assisting in the service.

Birthday Stones.

Some months ago I saw a list of stones allotted to the 12 months in the year, perhaps it was in your column, from which I derive much benefit. Will you kindly print this list?

OLD READER.

The birth stones are: January, garnet; February, amethyst; March, bloodstone; April, diamond; May, emerald; June, moss agate; July, ruby; August, sardonyx; September, sapphire; October, opal; November, topaz; December, turquoise.

Giving a Breakfast.

Would you kindly give a few suggestions as to the menu and entertainment suitable for a breakfast for about [illegible] young ladies? This is for no special occasion, but I wish something a little different.

SUBSCRIBER.

For so many guests you will probably seat them at small tables. It would be pretty to have a different color of candle and flowers at each table. Serve first a chilled fruit mixture, chicken and mushroom patties, Saratoga potatoes, tiny hot, buttered biscuit, olives, salted nuts, radishes. Asparagus salad or tomatoes stuffed with shrimps.

A strawberry mousse, with small cakes or a tutti-frutti ice cream makes an acceptable finish. Grape juice, iced tea or coffee may be the choice of beverages, with a cordial.

Afterward have a reading or a short musical programme. Perhaps you have some friend who is clever enough to entertain with personal reminiscences of some unique or interesting experience in travel at home or abroad.

MADAME MERRI.

SAVED FROM AN OPERATION

How Mrs. Reed of Peoria, Ill., Escaped The Surgeon's Knife.

Peoria, Ill.—"I wish to let every one know what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. For two years I suffered. The doctor said I had a tumor and the only remedy was the surgeon's knife. My mother bought me Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and today I am a well and healthy woman. For months I suffered from inflammation, and your Sanative Wash relieved me. I am glad to tell anyone what your medicines have done for me. You can use my testimonial in any way you wish, and I will be glad to answer letters."—Mrs. CHRISTINA REED, 105 Mound St., Peoria, Ill.

Mrs. Lynch Also Avoided Operation.

Jessup, Pa.—"After the birth of my fourth child, I had severe organic inflammation. I would have such terrible pains that it did not seem as though I could stand it. This kept up for three long months, until two doctors decided that an operation was needed.

"Then one of my friends recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and after taking it for two months I was a well woman."—Mrs. JOSEPH A. LYNCH, Jessup, Pa.

Too Eager.

He said: "On one side is the right of things and on the other is wrong; sometimes the difference between the two is slight. As the following story shows: A gypsy upon release from jail met a friend. 'What were you in for?' asked the friend.

"'I found a horse,' the gypsy replied.

"'Found a horse? Nonsense! They would never put you in jail for finding a horse.'

"'Well, but you see I found him before the owner lost him.'"

Excellent Plan.

"I see," said Mrs. De Jones, while Mrs. Van Tyle was calling, "that you have a Chinese chauffeur. Do you find him satisfactory?"

"He's perfectly fine," said Mrs. Van Tyle. "To begin with, his yellow complexion is such that at the end of a long, dusty ride he doesn't show any spots, and then when I am out in my limousine I have his pigtail stuck through a little hole in the plate-glass window and I use it as a sort of bell rope to tell him where to stop."—Harper's Weekly.

To Protect the Flowers.

Edelweiss and other characteristic Swiss flowers are said to be in danger of total extinction because of the craze of tourists for collecting them. Women tourists especially are always anxious to take away souvenirs in the way of a plant, and do not simply pull the flowers, but dig up the plant. It is proposed to introduce a law that will prevent the buying, selling or digging of edelweiss, fire lily, Siberian spring crocus, Alpine columbine, the Daphne, Alpine violet or other national flower.

The Giveaway.

"Jane," said her father, "how does it happen that I find four good cigars on the mantelpiece this morning? Did Henry leave them for me?"

"No; he took them out of his vest pocket to avoid breaking them last night, and I guess he forgot all about them afterwards."

The laugh that followed made her wish that she had been as careful with her speech as Henry had been with his cigars.—Detroit Free Press.

Fit Punishment.

The Wicked Soul was sitting on a hot stove, drinking molten lava and fanning himself with a chunk of red hot sheet iron.

"And who is the poor wretch?" asked Dante.

"That," replied Satan, "is the first man who said, 'Is it hot enough for you?'"—Milwaukee Sentinel.

A WINNING START

A Perfectly Digested Breakfast Makes Nerve Force for the Day.

Everything goes wrong if the breakfast lies in your stomach like a mud pie. What you eat does harm if you can't digest it—it turns to poison.

A bright lady teacher found this to be true even of an ordinary light breakfast of eggs and toast. She says:

"Two years ago I contracted a very annoying form of indigestion. My stomach was in such condition that a simple breakfast of fruit, toast and egg gave me great distress.

"I was slow to believe that trouble could come from such a simple diet, but finally had to give it up, and found a great change upon a cup of hot Postum and Grape-Nuts with cream, for my morning meal. For more than a year I have held to this course and have not suffered except when injudiciously varying my diet.

"I have been a teacher for several years and find that my easily digested breakfast means a saving of nervous force for the entire day. My gain of ten pounds in weight also causes me to want to testify to the value of Grape-Nuts.

WHY WILSON WON AND CLARK FAILED.

Nearly every newspaper of prominence has had a "summing up" of the Baltimore convention. We have seen nothing better than the following brief statements made by the San Francisco Star:

'Bryan 'came back' next day, while the band played 'Annie Laurie,' and thenceforth, to the very end, he was the acknowledged leader and guiding spirit of the convention.

"He could not be cajoled, nor flattered, nor betrayed, by the enemy. He defied all threats and resisted all blandishments.

"He did not deny the charge that he was working to secure the presidential nomination for himself—a charge made by scheming cowards who never did, never will, and never can understand the true greatness of his character. He simply rammed and jammed the lie down their throats by doing the very things no man would have thought of doing if he only wished to gratify insulting ambition.

"For instance, the famous resolution, which will become historical, denouncing by name and in their presence, the arch-conspirators who pose as Democrats, and all members of the 'privilege hunting and favor-seeking class,' was not calculated to give Bryan a two thirds vote in a convention which had failed to give him a majority for temporary chairman. No, it was meant to make the Democratic convention democratic. And it did so.

"When Bryan styled the New York delegation, Murphy's ninety six wax figures, or puppets moved about by Wall street wires, and when he withdrew his support from Champ Clark because the latter and most of his friends in the convention had been 'too yielding' to the corrupt combination there, did this in Bryan 'seem ambition'?

"Bryan's fight throughout was that of a patriot. It was for principle, for genuine democracy, and for the plain people of whom Lincoln said: 'God must have loved them pretty much, or he would not have made so many of them!'

"If Champ Clark had not made William Randolph Hearst his chief adviser, we do not believe he would have been so non-committal when asked on which side he stood as to Parker for temporary chairman. One blast from his bugle horn would have prevented Parker's selection, and made Clark the Democratic nominee for president.

'Once to every man and nation comes the moment to decide,
In the strife of Truth with Falsehood,
for the good or evil side;
Some great cause, God's new Messiah offering each the bloom or blight,
Parts the goats upon the left hand, and the sheep upon the right.'

"Wilson's greatest asset when he entered the convention was the fact that he had come out strongly against Parker for temporary chairman. That with the splendid record he has made as an uncompromising progressive during the past few years, together with Bryan's support and Hearst's vicious opposition made him the Democratic nominee for president, to which high office we confidently believe he will be elected in November next."

WORTH KEEPING

During Mr. Bryan's campaign against Gov. Harmon in Ohio, he said:

"I shall never be nominated again. My most prized possessions are 100 letters in my safe at Lincoln. Written to me by Nebraska men when I enlisted for the Spanish-American war, in which they offered to substitute at the front for me. Many of these letters were poorly written and some of them were illiterate, but the tenor of them all was that I had a mission to perform in the public life of the nation, while the writer of each and no one dependent upon him, regarded himself as a more or less worthless citizen as compared with me, and said his life would never be missed. These 100 men were willing to die for me and I would rather die now than desert the ideals they had of me and of my public service. If ever temptation [illegible] gained by cheating, the thought of those 100 men always confronted me. My life work is consecrated to the 100 men who offered to die for me, and I shall never give up."

GOOD.

Cleveland Thursday paid a glowing tribute to its greatest mayor, Tom L. Johnson. Former political enemies and friends united in honoring his memory. Luna park donated its proceeds for the day to the memorial fund. His is a memory that should be kept green as long as Cleveland endures. He was a true friend to Ohio's metropolis.—From editorial page Telegraph-Republican, July 19, 1912.

The Business Men's Association of Ravenna has issued a very attractive booklet showing the beauties and advantages of that city by means of fine illustrations and descriptive matter. These books are to be sent to other points for publicity purposes.

Ohio's 19 anti-Harmon delegates were in evidence from the beginning of the convention to the end. They did not lose any points. Mayor Baker made a splendid impression on the convention. He could have had the vice presidency for the asking.—Bryan's Commoner.

The new invalid and unemployment insurance law, which went into effect July 16th, in great Britain, brings the millenium a bit nearer, in the opinion of Chancellor Lloyd-George, who framed the measure. How much nearer no one can say precisely. It's such a long way off.

Government irrigation reports increase in interest from year to year. At the close of last month there was stored in various irrigation reservoirs sufficient water to cover [illegible] acres one foot deep. In all completed projects there is water enough to last through the season which speaks well for the engineering.

President Taft has written to the mayor of Chicago expressing thanks for the excellent service of the police during the recent convention. All who were at that gathering agree that the efficiency and abundance of the police made any outbreak impossible. An inquiry as to whether Roosevelt had sent a message corresponding to Taft's led to a smile. It hadn't arrived at last accounts.

The Ohio Democratic administration is going on with its good work in making property pay taxes that heretofore has escaped. Lately the state tax commission has added piles of iron ore deposited along docks at lake ports to the tax lists, and more recently all wells have been placed on the duplicate at their real value. These will help lift the burden from the common tax payer.

The attitude of the La Follette family seems to be—let Wilson do it. The senator's brother is quoted as predicting that the Democratic candidate will carry Wisconsin, Minnesota, the Dakotas and other states in the Northwest. Senator Bob is anxious to see Taft beaten, and far more anxious to see Roosevelt beaten, and is not at present in a position to do either job himself. It looks as if he could rely on Wilson.

Galveston is soon to have its public market in operation, and it is confident that it will be one of the best in the world. The truck gardens of the mainland are avilible for fresh vegetables every month in the year, and a large and well administered public market will give the people a wide range of choice at moderate prices. It is now proposed to hold an exposition of the products of land and sea in order to show the great variety available.

Charming View.

Citiman (to house agent)—"I thought you said there was a charming view from the front windows? Why, there are only houses to be seen." House Agent—"So there is a charming view, sir. In the house opposite lives the most beautiful widow you ever clapped eyes on, and she's always at the window."

RANDOM THOUGHTS

By Tom, Dick and Harry

The most notable features about Mr. Roosevelt are his "I's" and mouth.

The Tyranny of the Minority.

Last week we had something about the impossibility of any tyranny by a majority and this week let's look at the possible tyranny of the minority. That it is possible for a mere handful of men in a favorable position to tyranize over a majority of the people needs little argument. We have only to look at the result of the late Republican unpleasantness at Chicago to see how, in the hands of designing men, government may be made to entirely misrepresent the will of the people who make the government possible. With a popular vote of two to one against him in nearly every state where the people had a chance to indicate a preference, Mr. Taft was foisted upon us by a gang of men who seek their own interests only in politics as well as in business. They understand how impossible it would be for them to rob the people by means of special legislation and by evasion of enacted statute were the people in possession of the right of the initiative, referendum, or recall. If by any chance they did succeed in getting a law enacted which worked only for their interests, the people could soon nullify it and bring back the equality before the law which had been stolen from them. The thing which happened at Chicago in a national convention happens almost daily in our national and state legislative bodies, and receives the sanction of a judiciary as corrupt as the legislators.

A minority has been in control of our government since its inception, and such rule is supported by those who are Tories at heart now as their ancestors were in the beginning. The notion is that kings rule by divine right, and some of us cannot wholly break away from that notion.

Two weeks ago I asked: "Why the Socialist party?"

Mr. Levengood answers by telling what the aim of the party is and finding fault with both the Democratic and Republican parties. The other answer from Tom, Dick and Harry, in a round about way assumes from my way of stating the question that I approve of socialism and so the writer, finding himself upon a premise to his liking, draws the logical conclusion that must of necessity follow. Very good, indeed. His answer leads me to conclude that he is a lawyer who wishes to win a point.

If the moon consists of green cheese and one man eats the moon, there certainly would be a bad case of constipation. The logic is good, but how about the premise?

Mr. Levengood tells very nicely the object of the Socialist party. Possibly one tenth of the Socialists in this country would agree with him, but he failed to tell us how he or his party is going to bring Socialism about. If the Socialist party becomes the dominant party in this country and finds that representative government is not responsive to the will of the majority, would not the Socialists be compelled to resort to the initiative and referendum? And then, after all their trouble, would not the party be right at the same place where Mr. Bryan has brought the Democratic party?

Socialism contemplates co-operation in industrial affairs—no matter where a Socialist lives he will agree with that.

Every well informed Socialist will agree that Socialism is to be brought about through the medium of organized government of some kind. Socialists must agree to that. Anarchists might not.

Everybody will agree that the people of this country will have, in time, just as much Socialism as they want, and no more.

Thanks to the good work that Mr. Bryan has done, the people are now getting what they want. What they want! And if there is anything on God's green earth that you cannot force upon a man against his will, it is Socialism. When you force it upon him it isn't Socialism—it's tyranny!

Mr. Bryan has been trying to make this government responsive to the will of the people. He is succeeding fairly well. The people are keeping all the things they like and are getting many things that they think they will like. Now the question is what you Socialists, with your party, expect to do more than that? For sixteen years Mr. Bryan has been engaged in a struggle to drive Special Privilege, the favor-seeking capitalists, out of our government, and the Socialists for the past twelve years, have been so busy fiddling around trying to build up a "party" that they have not so much as offered him a helping hand.

Mr. Levengood says that the Democratic and Republican parties are financed by the capitalists. Let me tell him this: If ever the Socialist party gets to be a dominating party, the party will have troubles of the same kind, too. If Mr. Levengood can tell us how he can take a Democrat or a Republican or just a common man, to all of whom a dollar looks good, and make him over into a Socialist and have a dollar look ugly to him, if he will tell me how that can be done, then I might conclude that Socialists will stand the test better than Republicans or Democrats.

The fact is the Socialists want a party just now more than they want [illegible] Mr. Bryan to make the government responsive to the will of the people.

Let me ask the writer who sees a "ship on the horizon." If you were on the island of Despair and a good staunch ship, commanded by a captain who for many years had combatted with the waves of adversity and who, with the assistance of his first mate, had kicked the traitors overboard, with sailors tried and true, and they offer to take you to the Promised Land, would you stand there, like a chump, dreaming of a "world movement" and a phantom ship called Socialism?

Hetty B. Hart, the unknown heirs of Hetty B. Hart, deceased, the unknown devisees of Hetty B. Hart, deceased, the unknown executors of Hetty B. Hart, deceased, the unknown administrators of Hetty B. Hart, deceased, the names and residences of all of whom are unknown to the plaintiff, will take notice that on the 5th day of July, 1912, Martha White, Mary Victoria Davis, Lillie A. Grover, and Agnes Baker, filed their petition in the Common Pleas Court of Lake County, Ohio, in Cause No. 4421 against the above named parties, claiming that plaintiffs are in the actual possession of and the owners in fee simple of the premises hereinafter described, and praying that the above named parties be compelled to show their interest, if any, in the premises hereinafter described, and that such interest may be adjudged to be null and void and that plaintiff's title may be quieted against them.

The defendants, Hetty B. Hart, the unknown heirs of Hetty B. Hart, deceased, the unknown devisees of Hetty B. Hart, deceased, the unknown executors of Hetty B. Hart, deceased, and the unknown administrators of Hetty B. Hart, deceased, claim an estate or interest in the above described premises adverse to plaintiff's rights by reason of the fact that on and prior to April 1st, 1862, the defendant, Hetty B. Hart, was seized in fee simple of the above described premises; that on or about the 19th day of June, 1861, said Hetty B. Hart executed to one Richard H. W. Jarvis, a certain Power of Attorney granting unto said Jarvis power to grant, sell, release and convey any lands belonging to her situated in the Western Reserve in the State of Ohio, and to make deeds therefor, which Power of Attorney is recorded in Book 8, page 37, Lake County, Ohio Records, that on the 1st day of April, 1862, one R. W. H. Jarvis, as Agent for said Hetty B. Hart executed and delivered to Ansel White, from who the plaintiffs have derived their title to the above described premises, a deed covering said above described premises, which deed is recorded in Book 8, page 596, Lake County, Ohio Records.

Said Premises are described as follows: Situated in the Township of Willoughby, County of Lake, and State of Ohio, being in township No. Nine (9) in the Tenth (10) Range of Townships in the Connecticut Western Reserve, (so-called), being known and designated as the East part of Lot Number Four (4) and the West part of Lot No. Five (5), in Tract Number Sixteen (16) in said Township of Willoughby, and is bounded as follows, viz: North by Lake Erie, East by the East half of Lot No. Five (5), heretofore sold to Jacob Lamoreau, south by Lot Number Eight (8), and West by a Fifty-acre tract in said Lot Number Four (4) heretofore sold to Andrew J. Heeman, containing One Hundred and Twenty-six and Seventy-three Hundredths (126.73) acres of which Sixty-six and Eighty-eight Hundredths (66.88) acres are in Lot Four (4), and Fifty-nine and Eighty-five (59.85) acres are in Lot Five (5).

Plaintiffs further say that they and their immediate predecessors in title have held the actual, open, continuous, undisputed and exclusive adverse possession of the above premises for more than Twenty-one (21) years last past, to-wit, from April 1st, 1862, as to all of the above named defendants and as to all other persons.

Plaintiffs deny that any of the above named defendants have any interest in any of the above described property.

Said parties are required to answer on or before the 7th day of September, 1912.

OSCAR J. HORN,
Attorney for Plaintiffs.

ORDINANCE No. 218

An Ordinance to Amend and Supplement Section 96 of the Codified Ordinances of the Village of Fairport, Ohio.

Section 96. It shall be unlawful for any person, other than a village contractor, village officer, or employe in the regular course of his business or employment, to dig up, remove or carry away, or cause the same to be done, any stone, earth, sand or ground from any street, alley or public ground in said village or make any opening or excavation in any street, alley or public ground without first obtaining from the Mayor, or in his absence the Clerk of said village as hereinafter provided, a permit so to do.

Sec. 96A. Any person desiring to make any opening or excavation in any street, alley or public ground of said village shall make written or printed application to the Mayor, or in his absence the Clerk, which shall specify the location, size and purpose of the opening or excavation to be made. Upon the making of such application the applicant shall deposit with the Mayor or Clerk the sum of two ($2.00) dollars to insure said opening or excavation being properly refilled and said street, alley or public ground being restored to its former condition of repair and usefulness. Thereupon the Mayor or Clerk shall issue a permit to make such opening or excavation which permit shall contain a stipulation that the person to whom the same is issued shall indemnify and save harmless said village from loss or claim for damages because of any act or omission of the holder of said permit in doing the work authorized to be done. It shall be the duty of the holder of said permit to properly guard and light any opening or excavation made under such permit. When the holder of such permit is ready to refill such opening or excavation he shall notify the commissioner of streets whose duty it shall be to inspect the filling of such opening or excavation. If the commissioner of streets finds that such opening or excavation has been properly filled and said street, alley or public ground restored to its former condition of usefulness and repair he shall so certify upon such permit and sign the same. Upon the return of such permit with said endorsement thereon by the person to whom it was issued he shall be entitled to receive said sum of two ($2.00) dollars deposited to secure the same.

Sec. 96B. The Mayor or Clerk issuing such permit shall be entitled to receive therefore a fee of Twenty-five cents from the person securing the same.

Sec. 96C. Any person violating any provision of section 96 hereof shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be fined in any sum not exceeding fifty dollars.

Sec. 2. Said original section 96 of the codified ordinance of said village as codified and passed Nov. 14, 1899, be and the same is hereby repealed.

Sec. 3. This ordinance shall be in force and take effect from and after its passage and legal publication.

Passed June 27, 1912.

AUGUST WOLFF,
Mayor.

Attest:
J. O. KOSKI, Clerk.

MENTOR

We have had all kinds of weather this past week, cold enough for our ladies to put on winter cloaks when out driving in the evening, and yet hot enough for many to wish for cooler weather during the middle of the day. And so, because it has been so varied, it has been quite ideal.

The action of our mayor in attempting to put a stop to the speeding through our streets by automobiles and auto-cycles, as we have heard them called, has had a very beneficial effect indeed, for there have been very few "scorchers" through here during the past few days. Some 18 or 20 have been arrested for violating the state law for speed and the watch will doubtless be kept up, until it is safe for people to attempt crossing the street.

Mrs. Laverne Root Amidon and her daughter, Miss Marion, of Pasadena, Cal., who were formerly Mentor and [illegible] weeks back home with friends and relatives. Mrs. Amidon is with her cousin, Mr. Charles Justus, and his family, at present.

The county growers of ginseng met in a convention at the village hall on Friday last, when growers from all around were present, and some forty or more were in attendance.

Mr. and Mrs. John Northcote have returned from a short stay with Mrs. E. H. Hill at Belleview, the two ladies being sisters.

Again the Horticultural meeting at the Balch homestead at Madison on Saturday last was not so well attended by our Mentor folks as would have been desirable, on account of pressing business here at home, and a number of us were disappointed in consequence.

Miss Sadie Hoose has returned from attending a summer school for teachers, which has been held at Ypsilanti, Mich., where she spent three very profitable weeks, we understand.

Miss Frances Cleveland is still at Chautauqua, having decided to take the full six weeks' course of study for librarians.

Mrs. Edgar Barber and her little charges, i. e., her nephew and niece, the children of her brother, Mr. Will Aldrich, of Maryland, who are making their home with her, were all out on Sunday for meeting after which, the day was spent with Mr. and Mrs. John Tyler at the Center.

Mr. J. C. Jackson and daughter, Miss Hazel Sperry, have just returned from a business trip to Kansas of a month or two, and will be at home for the remainder of the summer.

The Methodist Sunday school is to picnic this coming Saturday at our Mentor park, a delightful place that used to be known as "Hopkins Point" before the township fathers bought the ten acres that is now such a comfort to all our people. The superintendent gave assurance that it was hoped that a church piano would be the result, and invited everybody to come and bring his dinner. The beach down there is very good indeed, and three tiny rack lands have been provided for those who are willing to take such a jaunt.

Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Park of Cleveland, were down over Sunday with their daughter, Mrs. Lamb.

Mrs. Payson Carroll has been having a visit from her cousin, Miss Stella Young of Oates Mills. Miss Young has recently returned from making quite a stay in California, having spent most of her time in Pasadena and Los Angeles, both of which places she declares delightful.

Robert Case has had the management of the oiling of the main road through here this summer and has done a much more satisfactory job than any one before. Instead of putting the horrid black stuff all on at once, Mr. Case has made three boutes of it, and so, by putting it on at different times the rain has not had a chance to wash it all off into the gutters, and the road has been better than usual.

Mr. and Mrs. George Rose and daughter, Miss Helen, of Cleveland, have recently been down here, the guests of Mrs. Laura Hodge and her daughter Mrs. Parmelee.

The wedding cards are out for the marriage of our esteemed mayor, Mr. T. P. Cadle, with Miss Margaret Dunbar, of Lisbon, Ohio, same to take place in the Methodist church on Wednesday, the 31st of this month. As Miss Margaret is the daughter of Rev. F. L. Dunbar, who was pastor here for nine years, she feels more at home in Mentor than anywhere else, and Mentor folks are quite sure that she belongs to them. A number of the closest friends of the family are planning to lend their presence at the ceremony.

Miss Gertrude Jacke has recently returned from a visit with friends in Canton, Ohio.

Mrs. H. W. King of "Kingwood," has returned from her sojourn in Europe, having left her two daughters Jane and Laura, to Italy for the ensuing year.

Mr. Bert Smith has been spending a portion of his summer vacation in Silver Creek, N. Y., where he was a guest of his mother's brother, and his family.

Miss Virginia Sawyer is helping her father, Mr. W. A. Sawyer, in his many duties as postmaster, ticket agent and express agent for the C. P. & E. people, besides handling pianos, music, newspapers, etc.

Mrs. A. R. Traxler is away on a visit to relatives in Michigan at present, we understand, and that she was accompanied by her oldest daughter, Mrs. Paul Aldrich and her two children, of Painesville.

Mrs. Emma Mead Hammond, widow of the late Charles Hammond, was called to Euclid one day last week to attend the burial of her sister's husband, who died somewhere in the east.

Mrs. William Dow has returned from quite an extended stay with relatives in one of the Eastern states, and is now at home for the summer at their new home "Hedged In."

Mr. John Nott has been spending a short time in Youngstown recently.

Mrs. Will Hart and her sister, Mrs. Paul Woodruff, have been down to the home of their parents in Huntington, Ohio, on a visit.

Mr. Grant Cowles was in Akron over Sunday with friends.

Mr. Harry King returned from his Western trip on Friday, having found crops rather better out there than here, and having been very much surprised by the growth of some of the towns which he had not seen in ten years; some of them having quadrupled in size during that time, and now boast electric lights and all modern improvements.

Miss Ruth Brudway is taking Miss Cleveland's place as organist in the church during the absence of the latter, and is also attending to the village library work. Miss Brudway was one of those from here who attended the Painesville High school reunion at Willoughbeach on Thursday last.

Mr. Fred Grier of Cleveland is spending his vacation down here with his mother, Mrs. Aurelia Shumaker Grier, at her pleasant cottage in the east end of the village.

The suite of rooms in the new block just built by Mrs. Bostwick are really the most desirable of any in our village at present.

The much injured Dan McCarthy is recuperating down at the Lake, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Rosenthal and family, who are occupying a cottage there during the warm weather.

USE OF CROSS IN HERALDRY

More Than Four Hundred Forms of the Device Are Recognized in That Science.

In early pagan days the cross was a symbol of shame and ignominy, and only those deformed or misshapen trees that could be used for no other purpose were formed into crosses. But since the cross has become dear to Christians, says the "Ave Maria," the most precious woods and metals have been formed into it. To the third century may be traced the custom of making the Sign of the Cross. In the days of Constantine, Christians painted crosses on the entrances of their houses as a symbol of their faith.

The impetus to the use of the cross in heraldry was given by the Crusaders, who wore a red cross upon their right shoulder as a token of the obligation they had taken upon themselves. Its form and meanings in heraldic designs are many. In fact, over four hundred and seven different forms have been recorded by students of biography and genealogy.

In heraldry the cross is formed by two perpendicular and two horizontal lines crossing in the center of the shield. This form is modified in various ways by additions and combinations, thus expressing many meanings. It has been said that human intelligence has never devised a system so infinite in its varieties and so endless in its application as is to be found in the science of heraldry, in which figure twenty-seven basic or fundamental crosses.

The Greek cross has all four arms of equal length, while the Latin cross has the earth end longer than the other three arms. The Calvary or Christ Cross rests upon three steps or degrees. The Patriarch cross is recognized by its double crossbar. The St. Andrew's cross is an X, in token of the form of cross on which that saint suffered martyrdom by having his hands and feet bound to its four arms. The St. Anthony cross is shaped like a T, and has its name from the cross that St. Anthony, abbot, wore upon his cloak, though the origin of his cross seems to be Egyptian.

It is a matter of interest that many American families have the cross as the basic emblem of their escutcheons. Among them are at least five of the presidents. The Garfield shield has a blue cross in the dexter canton, and the family motto is, "In the cross I conquer." The Tyler shield had on it a bar, two crescents and a cross form. The shield of the Adams family was adorned by a large cruciform device.

Woman Suffrage Column

By Miss Lucy Buell

"How the Vote Was Won."

The play given at the High school auditorium last week was a clever bit of work. It was a one-act comedy, the scene laid in London. The weapon that the suffragists use to bring victory to their cause is the strike. All the self-supporting women of England quit work on a certain day and go to their "nearest male relative" to be taken care of—or lacking such a means of support they elect the work house [illegible] the tax payers, till the vote shall be won.

Horace Cole, a young clerk, is a rabid anti-suffragist and his wife shares his opinions, but unfortunately for Horace, he is the "nearest male relative" of an apalling number of hitherto self-supporting women who descend upon him. In face of this arrangement his views undergo a change and he is ready to storm parliament with his demand "Votes for Women." It was an amusing bit of drama and the audience evidently appreciated the humor of the situation.

The play was followed by a speech from Judge Addams of Cleveland, on different phases of the woman suffrage question—an able and convincing address.

The women of Painesville have organized to carry on the suffrage campaign.

The third of September will soon be here and they realize that much work is to be done if an intelligent vote on the 23rd amendment is to be cast.

The organization is to meet Monday afternoons at 3 o'clock in the agricultural room of the court house. All women interested in the cause are urged to join this organization. A full list of officers and committees will be published next week.

The Girl from His Town

by Marie Van Vorst

ILLUSTRATIONS by M. G. KETTNER

COPYRIGHT 1910 by The Bobbs-Merrill Company

SYNOPSIS.

Dan Blair, the 22-year-old son of the fifty-million-dollar copper king of Blairtown, Mont., is a guest at the English home of Lady Galorey. Dan's father had been courteous to Lord Galorey during his visit to the United States and the courtesy is now being returned to the young man. The youth has an ideal girl in his mind. He meets Lily, Duchess of Breakwater, a beautiful widow, who is attracted by his immense fortune and takes a liking to her. When Dan was a boy, a girl sang a solo at a church, and he had never forgotten her. The Galoreys, Lily and Dan attend a London theater where one Letty Lane is the star. Dan recognizes her as the girl from his town and going behind the scenes introduces himself and she remembers him. He learns that Prince Poniatowsky is suitor and escort to Letty. Lord Galorey and a friend named Ruggles determine to protect the westerner from Lily and other fortune hunters. Young Blair goes to see Lily; he can talk of nothing but Letty and this angers the Duchess. The westerner finds Letty ill from hard work, but she recovers and Ruggles and Dan invite her to supper. She asks Dan to build a home for disappointed theatrical people. Dan visits Lily, for the time forgetting Letty, and later announces his engagement to the duchess. Letty refuses to sing for an entertainment given by Lily. Galorey tells Dan that all Lily cares for is his money and it is disclosed that he and the duchess have been mutually in love for years. Letty sings at an aristocratic function, Dan escorting her home. Dan confronts Galorey and Lily together. Later he informs Letty that his engagement with Lily is broken, asks the singer to marry him, and they become engaged. Ruggles thinks the westerner should not marry a public singer, and endeavors to induce Letty to give him up. She runs away, fearing she is not good enough for Dan, and Ruggles makes the latter believe she has abandoned his love. Finally Dan finds Letty in Paris, where he is persistent in pressing his suit.

CHAPTER XXVII.—Continued.

She made him take a table in the corner, where she sat in the shadow on the sofa, overlooking the brilliant room. Maxim's was no new scene to either of them, no novelty. Poniatowsky scarcely glanced at the crowd, preferring to feast his eyes on his companion, whose indifference to him made his abstraction easy. She was his property. He would give her his title; she had demanded it from the first. The Hungarian was a little over dressed, with his jeweled buttons, his large boutonniere, his faultless clothes, his single eye-glass through which he stared at Letty Lane whose delicate beauty was in fine play, her cheeks faintly pink, her starry eyes humid with a dew whose luster is of the most precious quality. Her unshed tears had nothing to do with Poniatowsky—they were for the boy. Her heart sickened, thinking where he might be, and more than that it cried out for him. She wanted him.

Oh, she would have been far better for Dan than anything he could find in this mad city, than anything to which in his despair he could go for consolation. She had kept her word, however, to that old man, Mr. Ruggles; she had got out of the business with a fatal result, as far as the boy was concerned. She thought Dan would drift here probably as most Americans on their wild nights do for a part of the time, and she had come to see.

She wore a dress of coral pink, tightly fitting, high to her little chin and seemed [illegible] like a coral [illegible] from neck to toe, clad in the color she affected, and which had become celebrated as the Letty Lane pink. Her feathered hat hid her face, and she was completely shielded as she bent down drawing pictures with her bare finger on the cloth. After a little while she said to Poniatowsky without glancing at him:

"If you stare any longer like that, Frederigo, you'll break your eye-glass. You know how I hate it."

Used as he was to her sharpness he nevertheless flushed and sat back and looked across the room, where, to their right, protected from them as they were from him by the great door, a young man sat alone. Whether or not he had come in Maxim's intending to join a congenial party, should he find one, or to choose for a companion some one of the women who, at the entrance of the tall blood boy, stirred and invited him with their raised lorgnons and their smiles, will not be known. Dan Blair was alone, pale as the pictures Letty Lane had drawn on the cloth, and he, too, feasted his eyes on the Gaiety girl.

"By Jove!" said the Hungarian under his breath, and she eagerly asked: "What? Whom? Whom do you see?"

Turning his back sharply he evaded her question and she did not pursue the idea, and as a physical weakness overwhelmed her when Poniatowsky after a second said: "Come, cherie, for heaven's sake, let's go"—she mechanically rose and passed out.

Several young men supping together came over eagerly to speak to her and claim acquaintance with the Gaiety girl and walked along out to the motor. There Letty Lane discovered she had dropped her handkerchief, and sent the prince back for it.

As though he had been waiting for the reappearance of Poniatowsky, Dan Blair stood close to the little table which Letty Lane had left her handkerchief in his hand. As Poniatowsky came up Dan thrust the small trifle of sheer linen into his waistcoat pocket.

"I will trouble you for Miss Lane's handkerchief," said Poniatowsky, his eyes cold.

"You may," said Dan as quietly, his blue eyes like sparks from a star, "trouble me for half!" And lifting from the table Poniatowsky's own half-emptied glass of champagne, the boy flung the contents full in the Hungarian's face.

The wine dashed against Poniatowsky's lips and in his eyes. Blair laughed out loud, his hands in his pockets. The insult was low and noiseless; the little glass shattered as it fell as softly that with the music its gentle crash was unheard.

Poniatowsky wiped his face tranquilly and bowed.

"You shall hear from me after I have taken Miss Lane home."

"Tell her," said the boy, "where you left the handkerchief, that's all."

CHAPTER XXVIII.

Such Stuff as Dreams.

Dan was in his room at the hotel. He woke and then slept again. Nothing seemed strange to him—nothing seemed real. It was three o'clock in the morning, the rumble of Paris was dull. It did not disturb him, for he seemed without the body and to have grown giantlike, and to fill the room. He had a sense of suffocation and the need to break through the windows and to escape into ether.

The entrance of Poniatowsky's two friends was a part with the unreal naturalness. One was a Roumanian, the other a Frenchman—both spoke fluent English. Dan, his eyes fixed on the foreign faces, only half saw them: they blurred; their voices were small and far away. Finally he said:

"All right, all right, I can shoot well enough: this kind of thing isn't our custom, you know—I'd as soon kill him one way as another, as a matter of fact. No, I don't know a darned soul here." There was a confab incomprehensible to Dan. "It's all one to me, gentlemen," he said. "I'd rather not drag in my friends. Fix it up to suit yourselves."

He wanted them to go—to be alone—to stretch his arms, to rid himself of the burden of sense and be free. And after they had left he remained in his window till dawn. It came soon, midsummer dawn, a singularly tender morning [illegible]. His mind worked with great rapidity. He had made his will in the States. He wished he could have left everything to Letty Lane, but if, as Ruggles said, he was a pauper? Perhaps it wasn't a lie after all. Dan had written and telegraphed Ruggles asking for the solemn truth, and also telling him where he was and asking the older man to come over. If Ruggles proved he was poor, why, some of his burden was gone. His money had been a burden, he knew it now. He might have no use for money the next day. What good could it do him in a fix like this? He was to meet Poniatowsky at five o'clock in a place whose name he couldn't recall. He had seen it advertised, though people went there for lunch.

They were to shoot at twenty five paces—he might be a Rockefeller or a beggar for all the good his money could do him in a pinch like this.

His father wouldn't approve, the old man wouldn't approve, but he had sent him here to learn the ways of the old world. A flickering smile crossed his beautiful, set face. His lessons hadn't done him much good; he would like to have seen good old Gordon Galorey again; he loved him—he had no use for Ruggles, no use—it had been all his fault. His mind reached out to his father, and the old man's words came drumming back: "Buy the things that stay above ground, my boy." What were those things? He had thought they were passion—he had thought they were love, and he had put all on one woman. She couldn't stand by him, now that he was poor.

The spasm in his heart was so sharp that he made a low sound in his throat and leaned against the casing of the window. He must see her, touch her once more.

The fellows Poniatowsky's seconds had chosen to be Dan's representatives came in to "fix him up." They were in frock coats and carried their silk hats and their gloves. He could have laughed at them. Then they made him think of undertakers, and his blood grew cold. He handled the revolvers with care and interest.

"I'm not going to let him murder me, you know," he told his seconds.

They helped him to dress, at least one of them did, while the other took Dan's place by the window and looked to the boy like a figure of death.

The hour was getting on; he heard his own motor drive up, and they went down through the deserted hotel. The man who had consented to act for Dan regarded their principal curiously. He wasn't pale, there was a brightness on his face.

"Partons," said one of them, and told Blair's chauffeur where to go and how to run. "Partons."

CHAPTER XXIX.

The Picture of It All.

As far as his knowing anything of the customs of it all, it was like leading a lamb to slaughter.

Villebon, lovely, vernal, at a later hour the spot for gay breakfasts and gentle rendezvous, had been designated for the meeting between Dan and Poniatowsky. There in his motor he gave up his effort to set his thoughts clear. Nothing settled down. Even the ground they flew over, the trees with their chestnut plumes, blurred, were indistinct, nebulous, as if seen through a diving bell under the sea. Fear—he didn't know the word. He wasn't afraid—it wasn't that; yet he had a certainty that it was all up with him. He was young—very young—and he hadn't done much with the job. His father would have been ashamed of him. Then all his thoughts went to her. The two men in the motor floated off and she sat there as she had sat yesterday in her marvelously pretty clothes—her little coral shoes.

He had held those bright, little feet in his hands on the Thames day, they had just filled his great hands.

Then Letty Lane, too, spirited away, and the boy's thoughts turned to the man he was to meet. "The affairs are purely formal," he had heard some one say, "an exchange of balls, without serious results."

Only Taking Out Wrinkles

Woman Gives Her Gowns Steam Bath and Alarms the Entire Hotel Staff

The couple had been traveling and the wife's gowns had got wrinkled. After dressing they went to the theater, having previously unpacked the trunks, hung all the wrinkled dresses up in the bathroom and then filled the bathtub with hot water.

Not long after their departure persons passing along the corridor noticed something that looked like smoke coming out through the open transom, and an alarm of fire was given. One of the managers and a lot of porters and bellboys, some armed with fire extinguishers, rushed up to the scene. Things looked serious.

The manager produced his pass key and the brave followers prepared to rush in and distinguish themselves. The steam was so thick in the room that not a thing could be seen. One look established that the vapor was not smoke. When the traveled couple got back to the hotel they found an irate manager and a lot of soaked frocks. The woman said she had often taken the wrinkles out of dresses by a steam bath and she didn't see why the hot water was kept so very hot anyhow, for goodness knew that nobody wanted to take a bath in boiling water.

PROPAGATION OF THE GRAPE AND PRUNING AND TRAINING

Cuttings Should be Made by Getting in Close Below Bud in Slanting Manner—Thorough Understanding of Names of Various Parts of Vine is of Great Importance.

(By GEORGE C. HUSMANN, Pomologist, United States Department of Agriculture.)

Cuttings for the propagation of grape vines may be prepared at any time after the vines have become dormant. Other things being equal, and if they are afterwards well cared for, the sooner they are prepared after the vines have become dormant the better. The length of the cuttings may vary from 8 to 20 inches, depending on the climatic and other conditions of the locality in which they are to be planted. Usually, the hotter and drier the climate the longer the cuttings will need to be. They should always be made from young, well matured wood, and preferably from medium sized, short-jointed wood.

To make cuttings, cut close below the lower bud, making the cut somewhat slanting and leave about an inch of wood above the upper bud or eye. If a small piece of the old wood or a whorl of buds can be left to form the butt end of the cutting, so much the better. The cuttings should be tied in convenient sized bundles, the butts being turned the same way. The bundles should then be heeled in or buried in trenches butt ends up and well covered with 3 to 6 inches of soil. Inverting the bundles causes the butts to callus while the tops remain dormant, and the cuttings are ready to [illegible] as soon as planted, whereas, if the bundles are heeled in with the tops up the latter often start to grow before the roots to support them do.

In the spring, when the ground has become warm enough, plant the cuttings in soil made mellow by plowing and cultivating. The planting may be done in slanting trenches 3 or 4 feet apart, which can be made with a plow. Deepen the trenches with a spade if necessary. Set the cuttings at such depth that only the upper buds will project above the ground and firm the soil well around them. The cuttings should be spaced 2 to 3 inches apart, the distance between them differing with the varieties, some rooting more readily than others. Keep the soil clean with hoe and cultivator, and stir often during the summer to keep it mellow and moist. Frequent stirring in many localities is better than irrigation.

All varieties of the vine may be propagated by layers. The Rotundifolia vines are nearly always propagated in this manner, but with other species layering is usually resorted to only with varieties which do not root readily from cuttings. In layering choose canes of the last season's growth, preferably those that start near the base of the vine.

It is well, the summer before, to leave on the vine for this purpose some shoots starting close above ground and allow them to grow as long as possible. In pruning these canes all the well-developed buds are left. The ground is made mellow, a trench about 2 inches deep is drawn from the vine with the hoe, and the cane is bent down and fastened in it. Each bud on the cane will usually produce a shoot, which by this process is made to grow upward. When these shoots are well started the trench should be filled with soil. Each of the shoots then takes root at its base. To assist the roots in starting a slight incision should be made in the cane opposite each shoot. The plants are taken up in the fall or winter, being divided by severing the original cane behind each shoot which, having its own system of roots, becomes a new vine. Canes may be layered either in the fall or in the spring.

When grafting is done near the ground on stocks strong enough to hold the scions firmly no tying is necessary, otherwise they should be tied with raffia. In either case a stake should be driven at the side of the graft to protect it and to provide a support for the young shoots. It is good practice to press a little moist soil over the cut around the junction of the graft and to cover the scion completely with fine dirt, hilling it up [illegible] to protect it from drying out.

When vines grafted above ground are not covered with dirt the entire cuts should be waxed to exclude the air. The grafts should be examined frequently and the suckers removed and the roots starting from scions that have been grafted on resistant stocks should be cut off.

Bench grafts are also tied with raffia. They may be planted out directly, but bench-grafted cuttings are usually stored or are heeled in upside down in damp, not wet, river sand, moss, or other suitable material, to allow them to callus before planting.

A clear understanding of the names of the different parts of a vine is necessary before the subject of grape training is considered. The illustration shows a vine, the different parts of which are shown by letters, as follows: T, trunk, the stem or main body of the vine; B, branches, which are of mature wood, being several years old. A, arms or ramifications of the branches, usually of wood two or more years old; C, canes, called shoots when green and canes when mature; S, suckers, the shoots which start below the ground from the main body; WS, water sprouts, the shoots which start above the ground from wood older than one year; L, laterals, the secondary shoots of a cane.

LIMING OF WET LANDS IN FALL

Caustic Forms Which are Generally Most Economical are Best Distributed in Powder.

The period of late July and August affords the best time for the drainage of many wet areas of land which are so saturated that they are filled with water at other seasons, says Professor E. O. Fippin of the New York State College of Agriculture.

Particularly is it desirable to drain heavy clay land at this season in order that the soil which is thrown out may have an opportunity to thoroughly dry before being returned to its position over the tile. This period of slack work is also worth considering for the drainage of those other wet places on the farm which show themselves in the field by the dwarfed crop and the distress which it suffers during these dry periods. Those places which suffer most from drought are often the same areas which have had an excess of water in the early spring.

The application of lime on old meadows and upon other land which is to be plowed for a crop next spring should be considered. Caustic forms of lime which are generally most economical in this state are best distributed in the finely powdered form. Fall applications followed by late fall or early spring plowing are preferable.

Keeping Chicks Off Grass.

Little chickens should be kept off the grass as much as possible, when it is wet with dew. The hen should be well fed and watered, so that she may rest content in the coop; then if the little ones range far enough on their own account to get damp they have a dry mother to return to and will take no hurt.

The Lazy Hens.

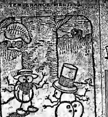
Better get all the lazy hens ready for market. Of course, you have trap nests and know to a certainty which are the lazy ones.

TEMPERANCE MEETING.



First Beetle—What kind of a meeting was that at the Oak hall last night?

Second Beetle—Must have been a temperance meeting. The place was full of water bugs.

Meeting Emergencies.

Senator Dixon was condemning a piece of political deception.

"The thing was as flagrant," he said, "as the railway case.

"Two men, one of them very short, were passing through a station toward the train gates when the bigger one was heard to say:

"'I've took a half ticket fur ye, George. Yer so little, ye'll pass, all right.'

"'But,' protested George, 'how about my beard?' And he twiddled his chin beard nervously.

"'Oh,' rejoined the other, 'tell 'em it's a mole.'"

Laying a Foundation.

Little Bobby (the guest)—Mrs. Skimper, when I heard we were goin' to have dinner at your house I started right in trainin' for it.

Mrs. Skimper (the hostess)—By saving up your appetite, Bobby?

WHY IRELAND HATES ITS POLICE

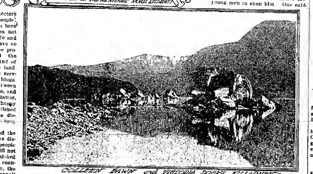
DEMONSTRATION in DUBLIN

BLARNEY CASTLE

A TUNNEL ON THE KENMARE ROAD, KILLARNEY



COLLEEN BAWN and VICTORIA DOCKS, KILLARNEY

THE traveler in Ireland can generally get pieces of information from the policeman, who is sure to be not far off, having in these days little to do except to scrutinize strangers at railway stations and street corners. Although often frigid and uncommunicative to natives, the policeman is free enough with strangers, and his information is apt to be reliable about the country generally, for, as he is never kept long at any one place, his local knowledge is extensive. It is true that he is apt to be biased against the peasantry, because, although a peasant's son himself, his training and employment have made the people hate him, for the common people have no use for the "peeler," as the constabulary are contemptuously called by them.

Imagine the policeman, the natural protector of life and property, being hated by the people! That is the condition in Ireland yet, and has been so almost from the beginning. That does not mean that the Irish do not want to have life and property protected. It means that they have so long seen the policeman identified with the protection of a particular kind of life, to-wit: the landlord's and bailiff's, and a particular kind of property, to-wit: the landlord's property in land that they overlook his other useful public services. It is a most unfortunate state of things. The policeman has been made the buffer between the English Government and the Irish people, and the efficient instrument of coercion of the latter, and between the two his lot has not been a happy one. When home rule becomes an accomplished fact, the Royal Irish Constabulary will be disbanded. It will no longer be necessary to keep an "English garrison" in Ireland.

The estrangement between the police and the people is indeed remarkable. In the lawless districts of which there are still too many, the people who could give information to the police will not do so. Hence, there is a good deal of unpunished crime in those districts. One of the worst counties in this respect is the county of Clare, the historic constituency that first elected O'Connell to Parliament. Here the old wounds of the agrarian war have never closed up. During my stay I saw in one of the papers a pastoral letter of the Most Rev. Dr. Fogarty, Bishop of Killaloe, giving a blood-curdling description of outrages which continued to be committed with impunity against life and property in Clare. I visited Ennis, the capital of the county. I was told that in one week no less than three shooting outrages had been perpetrated on unoffending men. One of the victims was an ex-soldier, who was acting letter-carrier, and who was shot in the highway in open day. Although many people passed his wounded body on the road, not one would comfort or relieve him till the police came several hours afterwards. These passers-by doubtless felt that if they gave any help to the victim they might meet the same fate as himself. So helpless has British law become in the county of Clare.

Sauntering round the narrow streets I fell in with an old man who did not object to conversation. He proved to be an ex-policeman. This man did not mince matters in detailing his views and experiences. "Clare was the most peaceable county in Ireland," said he, "when I joined the force, but the cursed Land League came upon us, and since then things have been different. Most of the men you meet on the road are Fenians or Ribbonmen, and many of them are criminals." I told him I thought this was too strong a description of his countrymen. He, however, stuck to his opinion, and took me to an elevated spot at the back of the Court House, from which he pointed out the scenes of as many as seventeen assassinations, all more or less successful, but for which only one man was ever brought to justice.

It is not alone the malcontents and the secret society men that refuse to tell the police what they know about outrages. Even the relatives of the injured persons are often known to adopt a similarly uncommunicative attitude. To give information to the police is to be branded as an "informer," which is the most offensive epithet in the Irishman's vocabulary, being worse than that of "hangman." The stigma descends from father to son, while there is any of the family left to endure it. My ex-policeman friend told me that he himself had heard a Clare mother, whose son was shot before her eyes, make the avowal that she would rather see all her sons lying dead beside her than become a hated "informer." She brought the secret to the grave with her.

I asked my friend for his opinion as to why the force was so unpopular. He laid the blame unhesitatingly upon the English Government. The Government have employed the police almost exclusively at evictions and other such unpopular tasks, when they might have employed the regular soldiers or the militia. The result is that the latter forces are popular, or at least are treated with some toleration, whereas the police are detested. It may be that recruiting reasons were back of England's policy of keeping the army and militia out of Irish agrarian troubles. Ireland used to be a good recruiting ground for these latter forces, and it is important to England that it should continue so. This consideration would dictate the wisdom of keeping the military force neutral in Irish internal affairs.

One of the allegations made by Nationalists is that outrages have often been "manufactured" by police agents at the instigation of the Government itself, in order to furnish an excuse for coercive laws. I asked this police veteran if there was any truth in this statement.

"It is no longer true," he said. "But," he added, "I can well remember when there were some very queer methods employed by the Dublin Castle authorities to get evidence about outrages. Did you ever hear of the Tubbercurry conspiracy?" he inquired.

I told him I had not. He thereupon told me the story of how a Government spy, disguised as a blacksmith, settled in a Western town, got into the confidence of the people, became sworn in as a secret society man, and ended by making things so hot that nearly one hundred young men had to flee the country.

"It was," said he, "in the early Land League days, when the famous, or infamous, Jimmy French was at the head of the detective department in Dublin Castle. I was a recruit in the constabulary depot then. Tubbercurry is a little town in the west, and many outrages were committed around that spot, but not a man was punished for them, nor was any word of information given to the police. Secret societies ruled the place. Going among the raw recruits one day, and questioning them, Jimmy French picked out a young man, named Morris, a blacksmith's son, who had also learned the trade himself, and instructed him to repair to Tubbercurry, set up a blacksmith's forge there, make himself popular with the people, keep his ears and eyes open, and if he got any bit of important information, to take it himself to Dublin. He was not to divulge his identity to the local police, for this would ruin his chances. They were to be kept in the dark as much as the peasantry. Of course, Morris was to have plenty of money for the job, but he was to live poorly and dress poorly on the profits of the forge.

"Morris carried out his instructions to the letter. He took the name of 'Billy Bartley.' Bartley's forge soon became a rendezvous for the idle or half idle youth of the neighborhood. The kind young blacksmith would only charge a few coppers for shoeing a horse, or mending a spade, and smaller jobs he often did for nothing, especially when his clients were of the poorer sort. He acquired a reputation as 'the broth of a boy;' he was a willing gamester, being always ready, if a game of cards was proposed, to cease work and reach over for the cards, which were always kept on the top of the bellows, and continued playing as long as he found company. He omitted no opportunity of making himself known and liked, went to every fair, dance, wake and festival where people congregated. In the political life of the village he was always [illegible] in giving his opinions, and even his money. Had he continued this gait he must have found himself in some public office. A Poor Law Guardian, or a Justice of the Peace he might have been if the plot had been allowed to develop so far.

"Of course there were those who had their suspicions of young Bartley. Where did he come from and what were his antecedents? When this kind of questioning got too close, he managed to turn it off in some adroit way beyond the statement that he had had some trouble with his parents, and that he had resolved to earn his livelihood away from them, he would confide nothing as to his past. The old men shook their heads, and warned the young men to shun him. One said he was too good to last long. Another said he might be a Government spy who would get them all in trouble. That he went to mass regularly was admitted, but there were some who remarked that his manner of blessing himself revealed the amateur worshiper. The conjecture that he might be a Government spy came to Bartley's own ears, and at once he set about to explode it.

"The first thing Bartley did was to go to a liquor seller's and get drunk. When he was told to get out he became abusive, cursing everybody in authority, especially the Government, the Lord Lieutenant, and the Queen. Rolling in the gutter, he called for three cheers for an Irish Republic and a Parliament in College Green. When the police came, Bartley became more abusive. At the station house he assaulted two of them, and challenged any miserable hound that ever wore the Queen's uniform to a stand-up fight. When he appeared before the magistrates he was fined heavily, and, in accordance with the part he was playing, would have gone to jail instead of paying the fine, had not a crowd of sympathizing Nationalists in the body of the court subscribed the amount of the fine between them. After giving this incontestable proof that he was a genuine Nationalist and no Government spy, Bartley's reputation was re-established.

"Work at the forge now became more brisk. But whereas previously the men brought spades, shovels, and plowshares to mend, they now brought pikes and muskets. Bartley was trusted as he had never been before. The week after his encounter with the police he was sworn in as a regular member of the secret society ready to take the field against the Government when the rebellion was announced. He had, however, stipulated that he should not be asked to leave the forge until actual war had broken out, and his wishes were respected. Many firearms were mended and many pikes were made for the members of the revolutionary society. Bartley knew the name of every member; the name of every man who had a rifle; the name of everybody who committed an outrage for five years previously, and the name of every person on whom an outrage was intended to be committed. Bartley made reports of these particulars to the central office in Dublin. He was thanked and told to keep cool. When the Government thought the net was full they drew it out, and presto! the whole town and district of Tubbercurry was thrown into a state of the wildest confusion. Summonses were issued for all the names on Bartley's list. Those who felt that their cases were light attended court and were let off with a fine. Bartley took the first train for Dublin as soon as he heard that the first summons was issued. Had he remained a few hours later, he would have been assuredly assassinated."

Swiss Method is Practical

Unworthy Fathers Apprehended and Forced to Work to Support Their Families.

The Swiss have a practical, quick and successful method—which is a lesson to America and Europe—of treating the unworthy fathers who [illegible] ill treat their wives and children or desert them.

A Swiss butcher, who is a widower and has a large family, appeared before the tribunal at Nyon, near Geneva, on the charges of ill treating his children and deserting them, and was found guilty. He was sentenced by the magistrate to two years' confinement in the "Colonie of Orbe" (Canton of Vaud), which is really a prison for the "workshy," and where they are forced to work, the [illegible] of their labor being employed to support their wives and families and the money sent regularly to the commune of the "prisoner." In this case the butcher is a native of Nyon and the authorities have taken charge of the children, and as they grow up will find them positions. If after two years, when the butcher is liberated, he desires to restart his home and work he is at liberty to do so, but if he repeats his offense he will be sentenced to a longer term among the "workshy." Every large canton has one of these establishments, which have proved very successful for brutal or "tired" fathers.

Save the Babies.

INFANT MORTALITY is something frightful. We can hardly realize that of all the children born in civilized countries, twentytwo per cent., or nearly one-quarter, die before they reach one year; thirtyseven per cent., or more than one-third, before they are five, and one-half before they are fifteen!

We do not hesitate to say that a timely use of Castoria would save a majority of these precious lives. Neither do we hesitate to say that many of these infantile deaths are occasioned by the use of narcotic preparations. Drops, tinctures and soothing syrups sold for children's complaints contain more or less opium, or morphine. They are, in considerable quantities, deadly poisons. In any quantity they stupefy, retard circulation and lead to congestions, sickness, death. Castoria operates exactly the reverse, but you must see that it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. Castoria causes the blood to circulate properly, opens the pores of the skin and allays fever.

Dr. A. F. Peeler, of St. Louis, Mo., says: "I have prescribed your Castoria in many cases and have always found it an efficient and speedy remedy."

Dr. Frederick D. Rogers, of Chicago, Ill., says: I have found Fletcher's Castoria very useful in the treatment of children's complaints.

Dr. William C. Bloomer, of Cleveland, Ohio, says: In my practice I am glad to recommend your Castoria, knowing it is perfectly harmless and always satisfactory.

Dr. E. Down, of Philadelphia, Pa., says: "I have prescribed your Castoria in my practice for many years with great satisfaction to myself and benefit to my patients."

Dr. Edward Parrish, of Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "I have used your Castoria in my own household with good results, and have advised several patients to use it for its mild laxative effect and freedom from harm."

Dr. J. B. Elliott, of New York City, says: "Having during the past six years prescribed your Castoria for infantile stomach disorders, I most heartily commend its use. The formula contains nothing deleterious to the most delicate of children."

Dr. C. G. Sprague, of Omaha, Neb., says: "Your Castoria is an ideal medicine for children, and I frequently prescribe it. While I do not advocate the indiscriminate use of proprietary medicines, yet Castoria is an exception for conditions which arise in the care of children."

Dr. J. A. Parker, of Kansas City, Mo., says: "Your Castoria holds the esteem of the medical profession in a manner held by no other proprietary preparation. It is a sure and reliable medicine for infants and children. In fact, it is the universal household remedy for infantile ailments."

Dr. H. F. Merrill, of Augusta, Me., says: "Castoria is one of the very finest and most remarkable remedies for infants and children. In my opinion your Castoria has saved thousands from an early grave. I can furnish hundreds of testimonials from this locality as to its efficiency and merits."

William Shaw, the secretary of the famous Christian Endeavor society, said in a witty after-dinner address in Boston:

"There is a little Back Bay girl who is much interested in her auntie's Christian Endeavor work. The little girl was writing a letter to her brother at Yale one day, and in the midst of the epistle she looked up and said:

"'Auntie, how do you spell devil?'

"'Devil!' cried her aunt, with a shocked smile. 'Why, child, don't you know you mustn't use such a word as devil?'

"'But, auntie,' protested the little girl, 'I want to tell brother about your Christian and devil meetings?'"

Voice of Conscience.

A western Kentucky negro was in jail awaiting trial for stealing a calf. His wife called to see him. On her way out the jailer, whose name was Grady, halted her.

"Mandy," he inquired, "have you got a lawyer for Jim?"

"No, sah," said his wife. "Ef Jim was guilty I'd git him a lawyer right away; but he tells me he ain't guilty, and so, of co'se, I ain't aimin' to hire none."

"No," responded the librarian a little snappily, for she was tired, "I'm thankful to say I've only got two. They're not under the sea!"

For years J. S. Donahue, So. Haven, Mich., a civil war captain, as a lighthouse keeper, averted awful wrecks, but a queer fact is, he might have been a wreck himself, if Electric Bitters had not prevented. "They cured me of kidney trouble and chills," he writes, "after I had taken other so-called cures for years, without benefit and they also improved my sight. Now, at seventy, I am feeling fine." For dyspepsia, indigestion, all stomach, liver and kidney troubles, they're without equal. Try them. Only 50c at Barnes' Pharmacy.

Evidences of Disposition.

The love of moral beauty, and that retention of the spirit of youth which is implied by the indulgence of a poetical taste, are evidences of good disposition in any man, and argue well for the largeness of his mind in other respects.—Leigh Hunt.

Wonders Within Ourselves.

We carry with us the wonders we seek without us; there is all Africa and her prodigies in us; we are that bold and adventurous piece of nature, which he that studies wisely learns in a compendium what others labor at in a divided piece and endless volume.—Sir Thomas Browne.

WICKLIFFE.

Mr. Ivan Wortman and sister Jennie took the boat at 8:30 Saturday evening for Buffalo. From there they expect to ride about 100 miles on their motorcycle to visit relatives in various parts of the country.

Mr. and Mrs. Walkley from Michigan, are visiting at their son's home on Taylor avenue.

Mrs. Wm. Gale and little daughter Mona, went to Cleveland one day last week.

Mrs. Martin and daughter went to Cleveland Tuesday of this week.

The lawn fete given last Wednesday evening on the grounds of Mr. E. G. Young, by the Cleveland Crane & Engineering Co.'s band was in every respect a most successful affair. The program for the evening showed that the Wickliffe citizens are working together for the betterment of a prosperous band. The grounds were illuminated with electric lights, which made a very pleasing effect, and will be remembered by the large crowd in attendance, which numbered over 300. The amount of cash cleared is reported at $120.

Mrs. Frank White and daughter Leta, went to Cleveland shopping Monday of this week.

Mr Charles Morris who is now stopping with his mother in Wickliffe, went to Cleveland Sunday to visit relatives there.

Miss Florence Sonaway attended the funeral of one of her friends in Cleveland Tuesday.

Mr Frank Hurdaker was taken to a specialist one day last week. The doctor says he has a growth on his liver.

Supplanting Mr. Howells.

"A good deal of it, too, is biased. A good deal of it is like Mr. Walton's.

"During the Christmas holidays Mr. Walton gave a party in his daughter's honor, and at this party the young girl read from an improvised platform chapters out of her book.

"Her fond old father was carried away by the reading. So tremendously indeed did his admiration for his daughter's talent enkindle him that, as the girl read on, the old man could be heard muttering over and over:

"Howells be hanged! Howells be hanged!"

Raising Cats for Fur.

Several business men of South Brooklyn are contemplating the incorporation of a company for the establishment of a novel industry—a cat farm—the first of its kind in the United States. It is the intention of the men back of the scheme to purchase a tract of land out on Long Island about a half mile square and erect several buildings, the whole to be surrounded by a high concrete wall.

Animals that produce fur for coats, muffs and neck pieces are becoming scarcer each year, and cat skins are much in demand by furriers, who willingly pay good prices for them.

Trying to Obey Orders.

He was a budding author, and his wife, determined that his train of thought should not be trammeled by domestic worries, said to the new maid: "Now, Jane, if you want anything, always come to me. Never go to Mr. Bookmaker unless I am out."

A few days later there was a knock at Mr. Bookmaker's study door, and in reply to the usual "Come!" the new maid, fresh and pretty, appeared. "Please, sir," she said, "Mrs. Bookmaker said I was never to disturb you unless she was out."

"Well?" said Mr. Bookmaker, inquiringly.

"She's out, sir."—Lippincott's Magazine.

London's Coal Consumption.

About three hundred and twenty-seven thousand tons of coal are burned every week in London.

BIRDS WITH NERVE

IN CALIFORNIA THEY HAVE FREE AND EASY WAYS.

Annoy the Children and Steal Articles From Clotheslines—Gulls at the Seashore Are Wonderfully Tame and Sociable.

My first experience of the fearlessness of the California bird came to me at second hand, writes a correspondent of Suburban Life. It also came near getting a small boy into trouble. After we were settled in a little home the said small boy went to school on his bicycle, down a busy avenue, with street cars running to and fro constantly. Before he had made the journey many times the child came home one evening and said:

"I wish the birds would leave me alone."

"What birds?" I asked.

"Why, those little blackbirds you see around," he answered. "When I'm riding to school they come down and try to peck my hat off."

The child had always been a truthful child, but my faith in his veracity was shaken. I gently expressed a doubt, but the boy backed up his assertion vehemently.

"They do it every morning," he persisted, and I had to let it go at that.

Later on, in speaking of this particular breed of bird to a neighbor, the boy's statement was justified.

"Those little birds certainly are daring," said the neighbor. "I've seen them try to take a piece of bread or cake from a child's hand—and not such a small child, either. They don't seem to have the ordinary fear of mortals, probably because they are never molested here in the city."

One morning, going out to the front door, I found a caller. He was a tiny fellow, riding a tricycle.

"Hello!" he said.

"Hello!" I answered. "What's your name?"

"Henry," was the reply. "I live over there," pointing to a house some distance across a vacant lot, and on another street.

"And what are you doing so far away from home?" I asked.

"I want my little sister's shoe. It's in your yard."

"How did it get in our yard?"

And sure enough a search of the yard disclosed the little white shoe, which the bird had pulled from the line and brought over to us. The boy's mother had seen the feathered thief, and watched it till it dropped its booty in our back yard.

The tameness of the gulls at the seashore is another source of wonder and delight. When we go to the beach we save the scraps of our luncheon and use them as a coaxer for the gulls. Sitting on the sand, piece by piece the scraps are thrown around us, and by and by we have a circle of the beautiful and graceful birds, all on the alert for another piece, but equally on the alert for the approach of anything which might be called an enemy.

At last, when they have found out that no aggressive move is made, the creatures will approach, almost within reach of our hands. On the piers where people are fishing, the gulls will sit in rows, waiting for a chance at discarded bait or fish. People pass constantly to and fro near them, but they show no fear. Rules regarding their protection are very strict, and perhaps this is why they have learned to be so fearless.

In some localities in the city's outskirts telephone and other wires will be covered for a block or more with small birds. What they find to eat in the city is a problem, but they thrive. Some of them are beautiful songsters, and all seem to have cultivated a friendly and fearless disposition.

When Women Were Knighted.

It is not at all well known that knighthood has constantly been conferred upon women. Many English ladies received the accolade, and many more were members of such knightly orders as the Garter and St. John. When Mary Cholmondeley, "the bold lady of Cheshire," was knighted by Elizabeth for "her valiant address" on the Queen taking command at the threatened invasion by Spain, did she know that a whole city of Spanish women, the gallant women of Tortosa, had been knighted for saving that city from the Moors? Mary and Elizabeth had both been knighted at their coronation, but by the time Anne, the second Mary, and Victoria ascended the throne it had been quite forgotten that, according to English law and usage, a woman who filled a man's office acquired all its privileges and was immune from none of its duties.

Underrated Man.

Victor Hemery, the noted French racing automobilist, was praising an American automobile.

"I don't know why it should be so unpopular," he said. "Perhaps it isn't advertised enough. At any rate, it is a very much underrated machine."

Adjusting his racing goggles he smiled.

"It reminds me of the man whose wife called to her little son one cold winter night:

"'Tommy, go bring me up the bedwarmer.'

"Tommy, without leaving his comfortable seat before the clanking radiator, shouted downstairs:

"'Father, mother wants you!'"

MANILA'S OLD FORT

SANTIAGO WAS BUILT MORE THAN 300 YEARS AGO.

Key of City's Vast System of Defense Constructed by the Spaniards Is Now Used as Military Headquarters.

A score of miles down the bay from Manila, right at the very front door of the archipelago, lies hidden on Corregidor Island a veritable hornet's nest of masked batteries. According to the Overland Monthly, these batteries make the Port Arthur emplacements of yesterday seem like mere old-fashioned toys, and paper ones at that.

The Gruson turrets, made of concrete and steel and sunk on rock foundations, natural or artificial, in the deep, resembling huge gray turtles sticking up out of the water with protruding gun barrels for necks, occupy El Fraile and other small islets in the vicinity, while old hump-backed Corregidor is covered from crest to shore line with guns, a honeycomb of underground cement tunnels, pits and runways, wireless equipment, electrical apparatus, searchlights and other contrivances to aid in repelling an enemy.

When it comes to age and romantic history, however, old Fort Santiago is far ahead of Corregidor. Manila's walled city, a town in itself, consisting of several city blocks with paved streets, business houses and large dwellings is surrounded by a stone wall about thirty feet high and from thirty to forty feet thick.

The walls once were skirted on the outside by a deep moat, filled with water having drawbridges at the various gates. Most if not all of the moat has now been filled in, but no doubt the walls will stand for years if for no other reason than for their historical interest.

Of this vast yet crude system of defense Fort Santiago stands as the key. What the Tower of London is to England, what the Vatican is to Rome, what the Bunker Hill monument is to the United States, Fort Santiago is to the Philippine islands.

The Spanish invaders made Manila their headquarters in 1571 and began to fortify it about twenty years later. The first stone construction was the circular wall which is still standing. Since the American occupation of the fort its armament has been taken away and the buildings within the parks have been converted into barracks and storerooms.

Commodious office buildings have been erected on top of the walls along and overlooking the Pasig, and here the commanding general of the Philippine division has his headquarters. In one of the beautiful parks within the fort is located the military arsenal, with its big steam and electric workshops.

Some of the maps and plans of the fort are now in the British museum, in London, where they were carried after the British conquest of Manila. The fort, mostly in its present form, has stood for 290 years. There are all sorts of stories floating about concerning secret chambers in the walls and wings.

So far as the secret chambers are concerned, there is some truth in the rumors. The filling of the old moat closed many of the entrances to these chambers, probably forever. When the wall in Calle Aduana was removed, an inner chamber was found filled with human skeletons.

Natives have a wholesome terror of the old place, and absolutely no desire to see anything below the surface of the thick old walls. Americans who, with electric lamps, have started explorations have given up, owing to the foul air, crumbling passages and other hindrances.

Only three flags have flown above Fort Santiago. For 328 years the Spanish ensign was unfurled to the tropic breeze, except for the brief time the British flag supplanted that of the rightful lords. The hoisting of the third flag is well known to all Americans.

Waging a War.

Fourteen million dollars was spent in this country last year in the war against tuberculosis. In comparison with the small amounts expended for the same purpose only a few years ago this sum seems vast. In reality, it is not nearly as large as it should be. The organized effort now being made in every state of the Union to stamp out tuberculosis is commonly referred to as a war, and quite properly so. It is a war waged against an insidious enemy that takes greater toll of life than is taken in actual warfare. Yet in these days $14,000,000 would not go far in financing even the smallest of real wars that may come. Why should we not spend more in carrying on a great war which is already here and which has as its objective something more important than the acquisition of territory or the protection of the honor of a king?

Electric Fans Prevent Frost.

To the long list of the means heretofore proposed of protecting fields, orchards, and vineyards against frost a new one has recently been added by a French scientist. He points out the fact that frosts are not feared when the wind blows; he is thus led to suggest the creation of an artificial wind by the installation of electric fans among the plants to be protected. He considers this plan applicable chiefly to vineyards, but also possibly useful in orchards.

Happiness Transmitted.

Happiness, at least, is not solitary; it joys to communicate; it loves others, for it depends on them for its existence . . . the very name and appearance of a happy man breathes of good nature, and help the rest of us to live.—Stevenson.

FINE DRAMA SEASON

ATTRACTIONS AT PLUNKVILLE REVIEWED BY EDITOR.

Opening With Greater Barnstormers' Minstrels, the List Included Prof. Svengali, "East Lynne," "Jesse James" and Others.

"The dramatic season just ended," said the Winesap County Weekly Vindicator, "was the most successful in the history of Plunkville, both from an artistic and a financial point of view.

"Early in October the season was ushered in with the Greater Barnstormers' Minstrels, with 15 performers in high top slickems and beautiful pink dusters, who played the most ravishing circus marches in the courthouse yard. At the evening performance many of the latest melodies were rendered, including 'After the Ball,' 'Hot Time Tonight,' and 'Love Muh and the World Is Mine;' also many first-class jokes which have never been seen in the almanacs in this section. Our versatile and talented barber, band leader, baseball pitcher, orchestra conductor, and society favorite, Mr. Nick Duggins, secured an engagement with the minstrels to play second baritone and double up in the evening as 'Mr. Rastus Johosing Brown.'

"In November a hypnotist and entertainer called 'Prof. X. Svengali,' occupied the boards at the opera house. Professor Svengali put Sam Tucker, the tinner, into a trance, and made him stand on his head in the corner and sing the 'Doxology.' After the performance Sam missed a five-dollar bill, but he allowed the fun was worth the money.

"In December we witnessed that soulful and lachrymose drama, 'East Lynne,' put on with great eclat and a whole lot of terrific success. Deacon Shucks, who hasn't cried since his wife ran away with the leader of the Base Center choir, broke into profuse tears; and as the large concourse of Plunkvillians shuffled down the steps that lead from over S. Quigley's well-known commission, confectionery and farm implements emporium, there was not a dry eye on the stairs.

"About the middle of January the Plunkville Thespian and Terpsichorean Troupe rendered 'Kate, the Convict's Daughter,' for the benefit of the South Sea head hunters. Miss Sadie Sebree, our talented milliner, who took the immortal role of Kate Kipper, made a pronounced hit and admits that, when it comes to finished trapdoor and red light situations, she has Mme. Bernhardt backed off the boards.

"The spring attractions included 'Ten Nights in a Barroom,' 'Jesse James,' a Shakespearean elocutionist who put everybody to sleep faster than Parson Buckner does, and a man without arms who played the bass viol with his toes.

"For the next season Manager Toby Scruggles will maintain the same high standard. He has already engaged 'Uncle Tom's Cabin,' a fiddling quartet, a moving-picture show, a patent-medicine entertainment and an ossified man. During the summer many notable improvements will be made. A new tin cornice will be erected and the interior will be repainted in exquisite tints of flamingo red, paris green, Helen pink and chrome yellow, with many striking fresco decorations representing Venus, General Grant, Cleopatra, the Muses and Little Bo-peep. For next season the same competent staff will serve the public. Capt. Artemus Jefferson, the saddler, will continue to preside at the box office in return for the privilege of seeing the shows free. Nathan Thomas, the grocer, will light up and make fires and 'Piggy' Partington, the widow's son, will act as usher and carry the red banner with the golden letters in the parades for the same splendid privileges."

New Find of an Old Race.

Fanning Island, in the mid-Pacific ocean, which was recently purchased by a British Canadian syndicate for use as a coaling station, is the scene of remarkable discoveries, the news of which was brought by the steamship Makura, which arrived at Vancouver, B. C., on Dec. 13. Archaeological explorations have brought to view indications that the island was inhabited at some long-ago period by a race with peculiar skill in architecture. Excavations there have unearthed a large stone building, 50 feet wide and 200 feet long, in the construction of which no mortar was used, the stones used having been skillfully mortised together.

Near by this strange structure was found a tomb containing a human skeleton with a necklace made of the teeth of the sperm whale, and of other articles, including the skull of a dog.

All Fixed.

"No, you won't."

"Why won't I?"

"My sister knows the young lady in the case, and it has been arranged for you to propose at the ball next week."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

In Control.

"A man always likes to feel that he is in a position to reward his friends and punish his enemies."

"That's true," replied Senator Sorghum; "sometimes I am tempted to take a position as janitor of a big building."

More to the Purpose.

Distracted Parent—"We don't need it; but have you anything that can manage a child?"

Easy Task.

There are two things which I am confident I can do very well; one is an introduction to any literary work, stating what it is to contain, and how it should be executed in the most perfect manner.—Samuel Johnson.

HOW MONEY IS DESTROYED

Various Processes Were Tried on Bank Notes by the German Imperial Printers.

As the great difficulty which most people meet with in regard to bank notes is that of being able to keep them, it will probably come as a surprise to many to learn there are yet others for whom the difficulty is how to get rid of them. The difficulties entailed in destroying such paper are well illustrated in a very interesting article upon paper destruction by the German imperial printers, the Kansas City Journal says.

The methods previously available were three—burning, boiling and pulping. In the first process it has been found that even where a special furnace has been used it has not infrequently happened that while the outer parts of packets were destroyed some of the contents were not even singed. In the case of stamped or gummed paper the matter was still worse, for the packets baked together into solid blocks, the interiors of which were quite intact.

In the second process the paper for destruction is placed in iron boilers; lye is added and the contents then subjected to the prolonged action of steam. As a destructive process for small quantities this is quite effectual, as is also that of pulping, a process in which the paper is cut up by revolving knives in water.

In both of these cases there is, however, another difficulty—that of disposing of the product. It cannot easily be sold, it will not pay to transport and on hand the sodden, stodgy mass quickly goes bad.

The German imperial printers therefore decided to try a new way—grinding it up dry. To this end they installed a forty horse power mill, which by a process of hurling, crushing and tearing reduces the paper to an almost powderlike form, in which it passes through a sieve into a collecting chamber beneath the mill ready for packing.

This, however, was accompanied by a very objectionable feature, especially when dealing with gummed paper in the grinding. Such a dust was created that though the workmen engaged wore protectors, it yet persistently filled and blocked their eyes and nostrils.

As the work of packing was on this account not only unhealthy, unwillingly performed and also uneconomical, efforts were made to find some mechanical means of doing it. Difficulty after difficulty arose.

Among such may be mentioned that a spiral feeder having been devised it was found that the paper would sometimes form into balls solid as blocks of wood, which defied the efforts to move them by the 20 horse power motor.

The imperial printers, therefore, are now to be congratulated upon possessing a machine perfect in its kind. It takes the paper, grinds it up to any size desired and bags it.

Finally, though, the paper in this form fetches but little on account of its consequent shortness of fiber, the mill is yet not only paying off the initial outlay, but is also saving some $260 a year in workmen's wages.

His Job.

Every morning as he set forth to work a young man in Washington passed a clean, pleasant-faced, black-mustached man, followed by a jovial looking dog.

The two met so regularly that they got to nodding to each other, neither with the remotest idea who the other was. From nodding they passed to the "good morning" stage, and one day the younger man paused to pat the other man's dog. They fell to discussing different brands of dogs, and the black-mustached man said he regretted that such small yards prevail in Washington, as he was used to having several dogs around. Evidently he hadn't lived in Washington long.

"You're in the government service?" inquired the young man.

The other man owned up that he was.

"What's your job?" pursued the young man.

"Oh, I'm secretary of war," replied Stimson, modestly.

Costumes Indicated Conditions.

Peasant girls in parts of Europe declare their unmarried condition by modes of dress and coiffure, and bachelors are sometimes indicated in similar fashion. The zona or girdle had its significance in the Greek world, and the Roman husband wore as such garb of his own.

Where Massachusetts Leads.

More than 50 per cent. of all vehicles in Massachusetts are motor propelled, a greater proportion than in any other state.

Choose Your Birds Carefully.

If you want to be up with the lark in the morning, keep away from the swallows. [illegible]—Lippincott's Magazine.

The Lake County Weekly Herald

Volume XIV. No. 21 PAINESVILLE, OHIO, AUGUST 1, 1912 One Dollar Per Year

NOTICE TO READERS

The Herald has been selected by the Constitutional Convention as one of the two papers in this county in which will appear the proposed constitutional changes. Three columns, commencing with this issue, will be published each week for five consecutive weeks. In addition to the fifteen columns, our next issue will contain a supplement, all of which will be devoted to explanations of proposed changes.

All this matter published by authority of the Constitutional Convention will be statements of facts, and of course favorable to the position taken by a majority of the members of the Constitutional Convention. This does not mean that the editorial page will necessarily favor all the amendments proposed. It does not mean that any one who may oppose any one or all amendments, shall be denied the privilege of using the Herald as a medium of stating his views to the public.

We shall, so far as we are able to judge, permit no false or misleading statements to appear in the Herald. The adoption of a new constitution for the state of Ohio is a matter of great importance. Any man or woman or any corporation who cannot be honest in the discussion of a matter, so far reaching in its results, should be denied every medium through which to reach the public attention.

First Commencement

The Andrews Industrial School for Girls at Willoughby graduated a class of five last Friday evening. The attendance during the term just closed was 150.

Prof. S. D. Shankland, principal of the Andrews school is a Willoughby man, formerly prominent in the public school affairs of the state. As the head of this industrial school he has made a most enviable record and has the full and hearty support of the board of trustees.

The Plain Dealer of Saturday in its writeup of the commencement exercises, makes a number of interesting statements about the school.

"The exercises marked the close of a remarkably successful year. Less than two years ago the first pupil was enrolled and a few trained teachers organized small classes in sewing and cooking in the old Andrews family residence. Supt. S. D. Shankland gathered a half dozen girls around a table in his office for instruction in arithmetic as the germ of the academic department.

"Today, with half a dozen departments fully organized; with a faculty of twenty-five and a student enrollment of 150; with a newly furnished gymnasium and steam laundry just installed, the plant is running to capacity and the trustees are facing the problem of immediate extensions along all lines."

The Ohio State Fair and Columbus Centennial Exposition

The State Legislature appropriated $25,000, and the city of Columbus added $50,000 more for the purpose of celebrating the end of one hundred years, since Columbus became the capitol city of the Buckeye state. This Centennial celebration will be held, by act of the Legislature, in connection with the Ohio State Fair, during the week of August 26th to 31st.

The Columbus Centennial Commission will have the expenditure of the $75,000 above mentioned, and will cooperate with the Ohio State Board of Agriculture in building up and promoting the greatest event of this kind in Ohio's history.

Reports indicate that every county will take more than ordinary interest this year because of honor and respect that are to be paid to the discoverer of America, Christopher Columbus.

Large Scale.

Every feature of the Fair will be enlarged and in keeping with the occasion. Half of the states of the Union will contribute to the magnitude and success of the event. Thousands of dollars have been spent since 1911 to improve and beautify the grounds. New and commodious buildings have been erected this year, by act of the Legislature, to take care of the overflow exhibits.

New exhibitors are demanding space for displays, while old exhibitors are paying for more space and spending hundreds of dollars to make their exhibits more attractive.

An elegant colored and illustrated catalog will be sent free to all requests, by addressing the Secretary, State House, Columbus.

SAD AFFAIR.

Death of Young Carrig Boy Brings Sorrow to Many.

The death Monday afternoon of Willie Carrig, aged seven years, son of William Carrig of Axtell avenue, was a sad affair.

It seems that the boy was afflicted with a weak heart, and when two older boys, in a spirit of fun, thought to frighten the little fellow, with no idea of doing him any harm, the boy took the matter too seriously, and his death followed.

The funeral services were held from St. Mary's church Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

The fourteenth annual picnic of the Willoughby employes of the American Clay Machinery Company will be held at Willoughbeach Park, Saturday, August 10.

—o—

"Lake County Illustrated" will be a beautiful and interesting portfolio containing pictures, views, pretty homes, and a writeup of each city, town and village in the county.

—o—

Willoughby village will vote September third on the question of a $30,000 bond issue for the proposed new filtration plant in connection with the water supply.

—o—

Friends of Mr. A. L. Williams, the job printer, will be glad to know that he is now daily improving and hopes soon to open his office again.—Willoughby Independent.

—o—

The extension of the Macadam road from Weed's Corners to Brockmon church will not be built as soon as expected. The commissioners received bids Tuesday but as they were not satisfactory, the work will have to be readvertised.

—o—

Painesville lawns and gardens never looked better. In this connection we might state, however, that Prof. Wm. Parsons and J. B. Trall are the artists, each entitled to be termed glebae ascriptus.

—o—

Miss Gladys Jones will leave Monday for a two weeks' vacation on the shores of Long Island, New York.

Mrs George Prentiss and Mrs. John T Robinson have returned home after a week's sojourn at Jamestown and Chautauqua, New York.

—o—

A number of oil and gas companies have for the past few months been very active in securing leases upon land to "drill for oil" in Lake county and the northern part of Geauga county. Very little work has been done in either county except the drilling of one well and the starting to drill another by the company in which Mr. F. C. Carroll of Mentor, is interested, this work has been done on Mr. Carroll's place, the Hermitage, in Concord. The Herald is not in the confidence of any of the companies which have, or which propose to prospect this section, but we think it is reasonable to suppose that the real incentive back of this line of activity is the idea that gas may be found in paying quantities. Nothing could happen to promote the interests of Painesville along the line of manufacturing more than to find a good supply of natural gas in this vicinity.

MEETINGS SOON

INTEREST IN PROPOSED CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENTS.

Campaign from Now to Day of Voting Will be Lively—Friends and Foes Active.

Public spirited citizens are beginning to wake up and show some interest in matters pertaining to the changes of our constitution. It has been decided to call a meeting for some night in the near future to organize for the purpose of getting the people interested in the proposed constitutional amendments with a view of getting out as full a vote as possible.

It has seemed almost an assured fact that the proposed changes in our basic law would be approved, or that at least many changes would be approved, but within the last week there appeared statements in print showing beyond doubt that there is organized opposition to the most important of the proposed amendments.

It is the duty of every man to post himself upon the questions involved and every voter should be sure to get honest information. Above everything else voters should not be misled by selfish interests. Selfish interests will be the most active.

The Herald will contain, during the four remaining weeks a great deal of information. Every issue, including this one, between now and September 3rd should be read carefully. Pass the paper on to your neighbor. Call at the office for additional copies if you care to hand them to some one who needs information.

At the local meetings there will undoubtedly be discussions pro and con and at these meetings will be the best place for those not well informed to study the questions involved.

Taking While They Can.

Knowing full well that the people are on the point of revolt and knowing too that the people understand that high tariff means license to rob and that they will not be fooled any longer by the talk of "prosperity" and that they can not be frightened by the threat of the "mills closing," the trusts are determined to take one final gouge into the pocketbooks of the people before they are pushed away from the trough of special privilege at which they have been growing fat.

The leather trust, which is owned by the Chicago beef barons, has announced that the price of leather is to be increased 20 per cent. This will mean a corresponding increase in the price of shoes. This trust attributes the necessity for increasing the price to the growing demands of the automobile makers for leather. This demand is no greater now than it has been for the past three or four years, and those familiar with the leather situation say the excuse is only a subterfuge.

The cloth manufacturers also have announced that an increase in clothing of from five to fifteen cents a yard will be put into effect this fall. The cloth manufacturers—which means the woolen trust—say there is going to be a big shortage in wool, not only in this country, but in other wool producing countries as well, and that labor costs more than formerly.

As to this latter contention it will be recalled that immediately after the Lawrence, Mass., strike last winter, the woolen trust raised the price on all its goods, giving the increased cost of labor as the excuse. At that time it was figured by men who are familiar with the clothing business that the last increase in prices was sufficient not only to meet the increased cost of labor, but to pay for the losses caused by the strike, as well, with enough margin left over to insure the trust a largely increased profit.

After the wool trust raised the price on cloth last spring the market value of its stock increased, and at no time has there been a falling off in the dividends paid to the owners of the heavily over-capitalized woolen trust. John Nicholas Brown, whose picture is appearing in the newspapers a great deal these days, is rated as the richest baby in the world. His fortune consists of stock in the woolen trust, which pays wages of $5, $6, and $7 a week, and dividends of all the way from fifteen to one hundred per cent.

The price increases are purely arbitrary, and are based on no other reason than the greed of the trust owners to get the last possible cent out of the consumers before a reform knocks the main prop from under them, namely, the tariff.

Woman Suffrage Column

By Miss Lucy Buell

If, on September third, Ohio grants her women the right to vote she will be the seventh free state, even if the equal suffrage amendments should carry in all the other states where they are now pending. For the election in Ohio will come several months earlier than in the other states, and the result in Ohio will be either an encouragement or a damper to the campaign in Kansas, Wisconsin, Nevada, New Hampshire, and Oregon. Therefore it is especially important that Ohio should get out the biggest affirmative vote possible. The Ohio women are hard at work in their own behalf.

Several things give the women of Ohio hope that the campaign will terminate successfully September 3rd. The chief of these are as follows.

The State Federation of Labor has not only endorsed suffrage, following its custom of many years, but it has just issued instructions to all Ohio local unions to cooperate with the organization forming in every county to support the constitution as a whole. This important action of several bodies in lining up to work concretely for the constitution increases the chances of amendment 23 a hundred fold.

On June 20th two telegrams in quick succession came to the suffragist headquarters in Warren, announcing the unanimous endorsement by the G. A. R. and the W. R. C. amidst the greatest enthusiasm of the suffrage cause. The veterans made moving speeches recalling the devotion and self-sacrifice of American women for their country during the Civil war, and the W. R. C. for the first time passed a similar resolution.

About the same time the German National Athletic Association endorsed suffrage by a large majority. This action by a German body is one of the most encouraging signs of popular sentiment.

The State Y. P. S. C. E. in its convention recently unanimously endorsed suffrage. Several ministerial associations have done the same. Many ministers are preaching for us.

The fact that the election comes before the presidential election, so that the constitution will have all the attention of the voters, and will not be sidetracked owing to the excitement of partisan strife, is a great point in our favor. Then we have a favorable position in the column, near the middle, are not set apart from the other amendments or discriminated against in any way.

On the whole, the prospects for carrying the 23rd amendment are bright, but there is much work to be done. There are hundreds of indifferent voters in every county in Ohio—get after them, you who are interested in this matter; do your part toward bringing out a hearty response from intelligent voters for the suffrage amendment.

The Equal Suffrage League, formed to forward this work in Painesville and vicinity, has the following officers.

President, Miss Lucy Buell; first vice president, Mrs Chauncy Blackmon; second vice president, Mrs. Herlett Gilbert; corresponding secretary, Mrs. F. H. Kendall; recording secretary, Mrs. R. S. DeForest; treasurer, Mrs. W. L. Cowles.

The Executive committee is composed of a representative from each of the various organizations of Painesville:

Disciple church, Mrs Wilbur B Meredith; Baptist church, Mrs Geo Allen; Congregational church, Mrs Perry; Methodist church, Mrs Wm Wales; St James' church, Mrs C P Baker; St Mary's church, Mrs C Loomis; Christian Science church, Mrs C Hard; Richmond Congregational church, Mrs C E Call; Salvation Army, Mrs Dunn; W. C. T. U., Mrs Emma Wilcox; W. R. C., Mrs R E Henderson; D. of A., Mrs Way; L. O. T. M., Mrs F F Benson; D. A. R., Mrs Clark Nye; Pythian Sisters, Mrs Gilmore; Rebeccas, Miss Lola Crofoot; Eastern Stars, Mrs Bartlett; Fortnightly Club, Miss Stella Cummings; Monday Club, Mrs Spence; Progressive Club, Mrs L J Tuttle; Review Club, Miss Kilbourne; Chautauqua Circle, Mrs Lamphair.

RESIGNS.

Dr. M. H. Carmedy Resigns As Coroner, Claiming He Has Not Received Fair Treatment.

Dr. M. H. Carmedy, county coroner, in a letter to the county commissioners, dated July 24, charges that body with discrimination in the matter of compensation for services as coroner. Coroner Carmedy claims that his predecessors have been paid for similar services for which he has not been paid.

"Painesville, O., July 24, 1912.
"Lake County Commissioners,
Painesville, Ohio:

Gentlemen—I herewith hand you my resignation as Lake county coroner, to take effect at once, as I cannot afford to work for this county without compensation, inasmuch as I am called to various parts of the county to [illegible] bodies and hold inquests, while you and the prosecuting attorney refuse to pay me for my services, although the records show that my predecessors have received fees for similar work.

Sincerely,
M. H. CARMEDY.

Tom Foster and Miss Glenna Snyder were Sunday guests at O. S. Foster's at Mentor Headlands.

Miss Nettie Sheppard has returned to her work in the city after her vacation at home.

Mr. George Kent lost a valuable cow not long ago. It was staked out and in some way got caught in the rope, and when found its neck was broken.

Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Haywood were recent guests of their son, Leroy Haywood and wife, in Richmond.

Mrs. O. C. Baker, formerly of Madison, passed away at her home in Akron, Wednesday July 24th, after a paralytic stroke, superinduced by a fall some months ago. Mrs. Baker was an exceptionally bright lady and highly respected by all who knew her. For several years Mr. and Mrs. Baker have spent their summers here at their summer home on the Chapel road, and their winters in Akron, but this summer they were not able to come at their usual time, on account of Mrs. Baker's health. Her son, M. L. Baker, and family, who were at their cottage at Red Bird Beach, left Thursday for Akron, where the funeral occurred Friday.

Orriet Hickok, who is working in Painesville, has been at home for a few days.

The M. E. Chapel ice cream social cleared over $12 Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. N. H. Crippen.

Miss Marion Chapman of Cleveland, who has been spending several weeks at the home of her grandfather, Mr. John Chapman, returned to her home in Cleveland Thursday. Miss Frances Hall accompanied her to spend several days.

Mrs. Clarence Ferguson was a Geneva visitor Monday.

There was a party of young people met at the home of Mrs. Sample Saturday evening.

The L. A. S. will meet at Gladmore park Aug. 1st. Everyone come.

The annual picnic reunion of the pupils and families of Mrs. Adetta Hays will be held at the Madison township park Aug. 10th. The card says "Bring the usual well-filled basket and a broad smile. Respond to name with a quotation or a few words."

Mrs. Chas. Hall entertained her brother, Chas. Vrooman and family of Geneva, Wednesday.

MADISON.

Mrs. Warner and Mrs. Tucker of Unionville called on friends in town Thursday.

Mr and Mrs. Frances Ives Hendsy of Chicago, are spending some time with friends in Madison and Geneva. They have a new auto and are enjoying their vacation.

Between two and three hundred people attended the Congregational Sunday school picnic at the Township park Thursday. Owing to the heavy rain of Tuesday night and Wednesday morning the picnic which was scheduled for Wednesday, was postponed until Thursday. The day was delightful and the usual good time was enjoyed by all.

Mr. R. F. DeWitt was at the state hospital Tuesday. He reports his son as very much better.

Park Kimball of Illinois, is visiting his grandparents, Mr and Mrs. Parks, and other friends in town.

Mrs. Mary Burns who has been visiting her brother and family in Cleveland, the past five weeks, returned home Monday evening.

John Austin spent Wednesday night with Mr. and Mrs. Kitchum, in Willoughby.

A Hero in a Lighthouse.

For years J. S. Donahue, So. Haven, Mich., a civil war captain, as a lighthouse keeper, averted awful wrecks, but a queer fact is, he might have been a wreck himself, if Electric Bitters had not prevented. "They cured me of kidney trouble and chills," he writes, "after I had taken other so-called cures for years, without benefit and they also improved my sight. Now, at seventy, I am feeling fine." For dyspepsia, indigestion, all stomach, liver and kidney troubles, they're without equal. Try them. Only 50c at Barnes' Pharmacy.

HER KISS A LINGERING ONE

Imprinted by Bernhardt on the Hand of a Little Girl, It Wouldn't Come Off.

A London lady who returned from Europe a few months ago tells a pretty story that concerns Sarah Bernhardt and two little girls, the daughters of Doctor Bull, the famous Paris oculist, who is a Canadian.

Bernhardt at the time was playing a version of the "Sleeping Beauty," and wanted a large doll to use as a baby in the play. In all Paris, however, she found it impossible to secure one that looked natural. The two little daughters of Doctor Bull were playing in one of the public gardens one day and had with them a very large and beautiful doll which had been sent them from America. The great actress happened to pass by where the children were at play and at once noticed their big doll. She dismounted from her carriage and came toward them.

"Oh, children," she said, "that is just the dolly I want. Will you lend it to me for my play?"

"If mamma will let us we will lend it to you," said the elder of the two little maids.

Madame Bernhardt inquired of their nurse who the children were and on being informed, took them all up in her carriage and drove to Doctor Bull's home. Mrs. Bull, of course, was delighted to be of service to the actress and the children's doll appeared in all the future performances. A day or so after the little incident tickets for a box for the performance arrived for the children. They attended, and between the acts the little girls were taken behind the scenes to meet their new friend.

"And now all the lady what the great actress did when you went behind," said Mrs. Bull to the elder of the little ones when the incident was being related.

"Well, you know," said the child with great earnestness, "she stooped down and kissed my hand, and the kiss would not come off and my mother had to wash it off."

Early Submarine.

The submarine was known in England as far back as the early years of the seventeenth century, when a submarine was navigated from Westminster to Greenwich by Cornelius Drebel of Alkmaar in Holland. Drebel, who enjoyed the patronage of James I, was given an apartment in Eltham palace. The king expressed his intention of accompanying Drebel in one of his submarine voyages but was dissuaded by his courtiers, who alleged that Drebel was "in league with Old Nick." Drebel's boat was so constructed that, according to a contemporary writer, "a person could see under the surface of the water, and without candle light, as much as he needed to read in the Bible or any other book."

Bath Novelty.

Carved wood bowls that float in the bathtub and hold one's favorite soap are one of the latest fads, but a bath bowl for another purpose was brought from Turkey by a native as a present to the friend he was visiting. It was about two inches deep and eight inches in diameter and made of brass, but as light in weight as aluminum. Many were the guesses as to its use, from a fern dish to a finger bowl, until the foreigner enlightened us: "It is the bowl we use in my country to lift water and pour it over the body when taking a bath in the bathtub. I have not seen any in the bathrooms of America."—Good Housekeeping Magazine.

First English Matches.

Though the first match appeared in England as late as 1827, the idea seized a genius years before that date. This advertisement in a Morning Post of 1788 gives evidence: "For travelers, mariners, etc. Promethean fire and phosphorus. G. Watts respectfully acquaints the public that he has prepared a large quantity of machines of a portable and durable kind, with promethean fire, paper and match inclosed most admirably calculated to prevent those disagreeable sensations which most frequently arise in the dreary hour of midnight, from sudden alarms, thieves, fire or sickness."

Regulating Foot Traffic.

Kansas City has decided that as a city grows it is very evident that all traffic on foot as well as on wheels must be controlled. It believes that the "jay walker" is a menace to traffic in a busy city and will not permit him to stray all over a street on which the movement of vehicles is strictly regulated and so increase the danger of accidents nor will it allow him to cut corners.

School Children Farmers.

A special train loaded with prize agricultural products grown by school children in a state-wide garden contest engineered by L. R. Alderman, state superintendent of schools in Oregon will invade the east this fall. Oregon has applied scientific management to school gardening to demonstrate what children can do to develop the economic resources of the state, and check a backward and unpromising tendency toward overspecialization in agriculture in this growing commonwealth.

Famous Man Unrecognized.

The most famous men may walk in public, disguised by the photographer and artist and quite unrecognized in the street. Not long ago Mr. Balfour (whose face I happen to know) started to walk in front of me along Piccadilly, trailing an umbrella thoughtfully. I watched. Mr. Balfour walked a quarter of a mile through the middle of London and not a single passer-by gave the slightest indication of his passing by the turn of a head. No one knew him.—London Chronicle.

MIKADO OF JAPAN CROSSES DIVIDE

MUTSUHITO PASSES AWAY AFTER LONG ILLNESS, DUE TO ACUTE NEPHRITIS.

YOSHIHITO ASCENDS THRONE

Youth Becomes Ruler of Flowery Kingdom and Will Carry Out Progressive Policies of the Late Monarch.

Tokio.—Mutsuhito, emperor of Japan, died on July 29 at 12:43 a. m. Acute nephritis was given as the cause of death. The crown prince, Yoshihito, has succeeded to the throne.

MUTSUHITO,
Dead Mikado of Japan.

Mutsuhito, emperor of Japan, possessed a personality of which but little is generally known. Of a quiet, unassuming nature, yet possessed of a will of iron, he accomplished great reforms.

As a statesman he commanded the respect of the nations of the world. As a leader of his people in peace and in war he was both loved and feared. To his virtues they attributed the victories over their enemies by land and sea. To his wisdom they credited the advance of an ancient Japan to a place in the front rank of nations.

His reign began in 1867 and outlasted that of all but two or three living monarchs.

Under the rule of Mutsuhito Japan enjoyed an unprecedented era of prosperity. Civilization has made rapid strides. The arts and ideas of the western world have been adopted and Japan has emerged from the dark.

YOSHIHITO HARUNOMIYA,
New Emperor of Flowery Kingdom.

Mutsuhito was born in Kyoto November 3, 1852. He was the second son of Emperor Komei and succeeded to the throne on the death of his father in 1867, becoming the 121st emperor of Japan. The country was then in a ferment owing to concessions which had been granted as the result of a treaty made in 1858, and after the visit of the expedition commanded by Commodore Perry, the American naval officer, in 1852-4. This threw open some ports to foreign trade. It was only by force of arms that the new ruler enforced his decree and saved Japan from a reversion to primitive conditions.

SAY BECKER PLANNED SLAYING

Three Men, in Confession, Declare Lieutenant Hounded Them Weeks to "Get Rosenthal."

New York City.—Police Lieut. Charles A. Becker was indicted by the grand jury, arrested, arraigned, and sent to the Tombs on the charge of having ordered and planned the assassination of Gambler Herman Rosenthal, who was shot down by assassins in front of the new Metropole hotel. The indictment charges murder in the first degree, and comes as a result of confessions made by Jack Rose, "Bridgey" Webber and Harry Vallon. Each witness swore separately and without qualification that Becker hounded them for weeks to "get Rosenthal."

Becker pleaded not guilty to charge.

Archbald Denies Wrong Doing.

Washington, D. C.—Before the Senate sitting as a court of impeachment Judge Robert W. Archbald of the commerce court made formal answer to the 13 articles of impeachment preferred by the house of representatives.

The judge admits being involved in numerous coal deals while on the bench. He admits soliciting high railroad officials to further such deals.

But Judge Archbald says, every such act was innocent and many were without hope of private gain.

Two Identify Body as Nurse.

Catskill, N. Y.—The body of the young woman found in Du Bois creek, near this village, was identified as that of Miss Dorcas I. Snodgrass, nurse, who has been missing from her sister's home in Mount Vernon since July 17. The identification was made by Frederick Schmidt, the young woman's fiance, an electrical contractor of Mount Vernon, and by Police Lieut. M. I. Silverton of the same place.

Murder pure and simple is the verdict of the townspeople.

REJECTS WOOL MEASURE

HOUSE TURNS DOWN LA FOLLETTE BILL SENATE PASSED.

Also Refuses to Agree to Sugar and Excise Income Tax Acts, but Invites Conferences.

Washington, D. C.—That the Democrats have little hope of the passage of tariff legislation at this session of congress was shown when the house returned to the senate without approval and without a request for conference the wool bill passed by the senate.

Explaining this unusual procedure, Chairman Underwood of the ways and means committee said that he thought the senate might recede from its position and substitute for the bill it had sent to the house, the Democratic bill or some measure on which the house could meet the senate through compromise propositions. The bill rejected by the house was the La Follette bill, presented by Senator La Follette over a year ago.

Led by Underwood, the Democrats of the house refused also to agree to the sugar bill as amended by the senate and to the excise income tax bill carrying amendments repealing the Canadian reciprocity pact and continuing the tariff board. Conferences with the senate were invited on these bills to see if the differences between the house and senate could not be adjusted or compromised.

The repeal of the Canadian reciprocity pact was defeated in the house by a vote of 127 to 107, party lines being loosely drawn. About 22 Democrats from the middle west voted with a majority of the Republicans for the repeal, while several Republicans voted against it.

GIVES VERDICT IN TITANIC CASE

British Board of Trade Court, Which Investigated Sea Disaster, Exonerates Bruce Ismay.

London, England.—The judgment of the British board of trade court of inquiry into the disaster to the White Star liner Titanic has just been pronounced by Lord Mersey, the presiding judge, before a large audience.

The court finds that the collision of the Titanic with the iceberg was due to the excessive speed at which the ship was navigated; that a proper watch was not kept; that the ship's boats were properly lowered, but that arrangements for manning them were insufficient; that the Leyland liner Californian might have reached the Titanic if she had attempted to do so, that the track followed was reasonably safe with proper vigilance, and that there was no discrimination against third-class passengers in the saving of life.

The court of inquiry exonerates J. Bruce Ismay, chairman and managing director of the White Star line, and Sir Cosmo Duff-Gordon, one of the passengers, from any charges of improper conduct.

The judgment recommends more water tight compartments in seagoing ships, the provision of lifeboats for all on board and more efficient drills of the crew as well as a better lookout.

REAFFIRMS MONROE DOCTRINE

Uncle Sam's Warning to All Nations Is Aimed at Attempted Jap Purchase in Pacific.

Washington, D. C.—That the Monroe doctrine prohibits such schemes as that by which Japan directly or indirectly tried to acquire a naval base at Magdalena bay, was proclaimed by Senator Lodge in a resolution he presented to the foreign relations committee of the senate.

Substantially the Lodge resolution declared that it is the judgment of congress that the Monroe doctrine forbids any foreign nation to acquire a naval base at Magdalena bay or any other point on the American continent. The protection of the Panama canal and the maintenance of the great highway as a continuance of the coast line of the United States emphasizes the importance of preventing any nation from obtaining a vantage point that would threaten the peace of the United States or be a danger to the canal.

TURKEY WOULD END CONFLICT

Ottoman Government Announces a Willingness to Open Negotiations in Order to Bring Peace.

Constantinople, Turkey.—The Turkish government is willing to enter into peace negotiations with Italy if they are conducted in a manner compatible with Turkey's honor and dignity and her rights are adequately safeguarded. This was announced in the chamber of deputies here during the reading of the new ministerial program.

Asks Solons for "Nice Name."

Washington, D. C.—The following letter, addressed "Legislator, Washington, D. C.," has been delivered to the United States senate:

"Madison, Ala.—Dear Sirs: I will ask a favor of you if you please. My former name is Rundles, and I don't like the name, and decided to ask the Legislature for the favor of sending me a nice name.

"I am a young lady of 17 years of age. Please do your best in selecting a real nice name.

"Miss Allie Rundles."

Keeps Vow to Bar Whip.

Washington, D. C.—Forty years ago little Willie Wilson was late for school at Blantyre, in Scotland, and the schoolmaster soundly thrashed him for it. Willie took an oath that when he got to parliament he would pass a law making such behavior on the part of teachers a penal offense. He never went to parliament, but in the house he took steps to make good his oath. As a representative from Pennsylvania he introduced a bill making corporal punishment in the District of Columbia a serious offense.

GEORGE W. WICKERSHAM

Attorney General Wickersham has accepted the plan proposed by the meat packers for the voluntary dissolution of the National Packing Co.

ACCEPTS PACKERS DISSOLUTION PLAN

ATTORNEY GENERAL WICKERSHAM DECIDES BEEF TRUST NO LONGER EXISTS.

WILL NOT INSTITUTE SUIT

Combine Which the United States Government Has Fought for Ten Years Voluntarily Agrees to Obey the Law.

Washington, D. C.—The beef trust, which the government has fought for ten years, is no longer in existence in the opinion of the department of justice. Attorney General Wickersham has accepted the plan proposed by the packers for the voluntary dissolution of the National Packing Co., a holding concern owned by the Morris, Swift and Armour packing companies. The attorney general decided also that the department of justice will not institute the civil dissolution suit which it had threatened to file August 1.

Here are the other things he did: Accepted the assurances of the packers that active competition will be revived.

Informed them that as soon as it develops competition is being restrained further prosecution will be started.

Called their attention to an injunction order affirmed by the United States supreme court in 1906, prohibiting the Morris, Swift and Armour packing companies from combining to restrain trade.

OFFICIALS FACE BRIBE CHARGE

Detroit Aldermen and Secretary of Committees Accused of Accepting Cash to Influence Their Vote.

Detroit, Mich.—Through the agency of Detective Burns and his dictagraphs, 13 Detroit aldermen and the secretary of the common council committees were caught red handed in accepting bribes for voting to close a certain street for the Wabash railroad. The Wabash is not involved, the officials not knowing of the use of the railroad's name by the detectives in setting the trap.

The leader of the boodlers, Alderman Thomas Glinnan, got $1,000 and the secretary of the council committees, Eddie Schrettler, received half that amount. Both have confessed.

Excise Bill Passes Senate.

Washington, D. C.—The senate, in its consideration of the excise bill, by a vote of 37 to 25, repealed the reciprocity law in its entirety and levied a duty of $2 a ton on print paper.

A combination of Republicans and progressive Republicans voted into the excise bill the Cummins amendment for a permanent tariff commission. With these amendments the excise bill was carried by a vote of 36 to 18.

The excise bill would levy upon all persons, firms or copartnerships an annual tax equal to 1 per cent of net income in excess of $5,000.

Harry Thaw Must Stay in Asylum.

White Plains, N. Y.—Harry K. Thaw in the eyes of the law is still insane and must remain in the asylum where he was placed on February 1, 1908 after he had killed Stanford White. Justice Martin J. Keogh of the supreme court denied Thaw's application for freedom. The court took the ground that Thaw's release would be dangerous to public safety.

Large Wheat Crop Predicted.

New York City.—Bradstreet's says: The past week's reports furnish a veritable budget of good news. Practically every crop prospect pleases, current trade is of seasonable volume, buying for fall and beyond is expanding, the iron and steel industry is oversold, labor is scarce and the railroads are preparing for a heavy traffic in the autumn. Estimates on the country's wheat yield are being increased so that a crop of 700,000,000 bushels is now predicted by those who claimed to be experts.

One Dies as Floor Falls.

Wheeling, W. Va.—Two hundred men, women and children were plunged 25 feet to the ground when the floor of an open air vaudeville theater gave way at Wheeling park, four miles east of this city, where the Masons were having their annual outing.

County Commissioner George Woods died a short time after the accident and 40 others were injured, ten of them perhaps fatally. One of the fatally hurt is Mrs. Dawes Harkins of Martins Ferry, O.

MAKES KNOWN FINDINGS

MINORITY MEMBERS OF STEEL INVESTIGATORS REPORT.

Recommend Federal Incorporation of All Concerns Whose Capitalization or Value Exceeds $50,000,000.

Washington, D. C.—The federal incorporation of all concerns engaged in interstate commerce whose capitalization or value exceeds $50,000,000 is the keynote recommendation of the minority members of the Stanley steel investigating committee. The report of the Republican members of the investigating committee has just been made public. The full report is signed only by Representatives Gardner and Danforth. The remaining Republican members, Sterling and Young of Michigan, file individual dissents on the exact character of remedial legislation needed. Messrs. Sterling and Young agree with their Republican colleagues that federal incorporation is a remedy for present industrial evils, but they decline to go so far as to recommend the federal regulation of prices, which Gardner and Danforth advocate in the event the situation cannot otherwise be met. The four Republican members agree on the following salient findings of fact as disclosed by the long investigation of the United States Steel Corporation.

That J. P. Morgan & Co. received $62,500,000 for organizing the corporation, and that of the capitalization of $1,400,000,000 nearly one-half was water.

That the average annual earnings of the steel corporation have been from 11 to 12 per cent of its assets and that the corporation controls more than one-half of the crude and finished steel business of the country.

That the average wholesale price of steel products has been lowered since the corporation was formed, but that the corporation and all independents have an understanding as to price.

The system of interlocking directorates has insidious consequences and tends to "inside management" and the stifling of competition.

That the situation as to the iron ore supply is grave and may become menacing, and that labor conditions in certain departments of the steel industry are bad.

DENIES STEALING NOMINATION

Statement From White House Says Seating of Delegates at Chicago Was Done in Fairness.

Washington, D. C.—The long expected and carefully prepared answer of the Taft faction to the reiterated charges that the president "stole the nomination at Chicago" has just been issued from the White House. It is the longest and probably the most complete political statement ever put out from the executive mansion and is intended by its very thoroughness and care to damn the arguments of the third party men and spike the guns of the Democrats who may seek to make campaign matter out of the former president's charges.

Every one of the 238 contests which Colonel Roosevelt's leaders instituted in Chicago are carefully discussed, dissected and disposed of. All the arguments which were presented to the national committee prior to the opening of the convention or to the committee on credentials after June 18 are included in the Taft statement—a bulky document of some 150 pages and 40,000 words—and, in addition, there is a summary which epitomizes the contests and shows wherein each lacked the necessary flavoring of truth which caused the convention to reject it.

"An examination of the facts," concludes the statement, "shows that the tribunals were right in every instance. There is not the slightest evidence that they were moved by other than a mere desire to reach a right conclusion. On the other hand, the action of the Roosevelt men in bringing 160 contests that they promptly abandoned strongly tended to show the lack of good faith in the prosecution of them all. Those who support President Taft can well afford to stand on the record in those cases and to asservate without fear of successful contradiction that the delegates whose seats were contested were as fairly seated in this convention as in history of the party."

Girl Is Outraged and Slain.

New York City.—Little Marie Barauto, the eight-year-old child whose body was found floating in the East river, was outraged, then murdered and cast into the water, according to the findings of Dr. Wuest, coroner's physician, who performed an autopsy on the body.

No water was found in her lungs, nor were there any marks of violence on the body. A blue and white bandanna handkerchief found stuffed so far down the little throat that forceps had to be used in extracting it, was the cause of death.

Finds Way to Keep Up Sox.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Mrs. Charles E. Clarke of West Philadelphia has solved the problem of keeping half hose up without resorting to the use of garters. She has a little daughter who complained that the garters hurt, so Mrs. Clarke began experimenting. She discovered that a little dab of library paste on the inside of the half stockings is just the thing.

Now, when the child is dressed, Mrs. Clarke just pastes her stockings to her calves and the half hose are there to stay for the rest of the day.

Says Bullet Brings Sleep.

Washington, D. C.—Alexander P. Humphrey of Pittsburg is endeavoring to impress the war department with the desirability of equipping the United States army with his new sleep producing bullet. According to the claims of the inventor, the Humphrey sedative bullet is coated with a preparation of morphine which renders it painless after it has made a wound. Instantaneous protection at the moment of impact and then sweet, dreamless sleep is promised for the enemy.

MAIL CARRIER A HERO

HAMILTON MAN RESCUES CHILD AND UNCLE FROM DROWNING.

Little One Falls Into Hydraulic Waterway and Life of Would-Be Savior Is Also Endangered.

Dorothy Myers, aged four years, daughter of Eugene Myers, of West Fairview avenue, Lindenwald, while on a visit to her aunt, Mrs. George Suchholt, 161 Mill street, wandered away from the house and near North Second and Mill streets ventured too close to the hydraulic and fell into the waterway. Her uncle, George Suchholt, appreciated the child's danger and leaped into the water and both went down for the second time just as Mail Carrier Schmitt appeared upon the scene.

Mr. Schmitt at once saw the danger in which the child and man were placed and throwing off his coat and tossing aside his mail sack, went to their rescue. He quickly landed on the shore with the child and man in a semi-conscious condition.

The prompt rescue by Mr. Schmitt has been highly commented upon and he certainly is entitled to the life-long thanks of at least two families and a Carnegie hero medal.

STREET CARS IN COLLISION

Five Persons Injured at Springfield When Wet Track Causes Crash.

Springfield, O.—A wet track which made it impossible to stop an oncoming car was the cause of a collision between two street cars on West Main street, in which five persons were injured. The accident happened at Main and Plum streets. Car No. 141 of the West Main street line, in charge of Motorman Frank Wildman, had stopped to let off passengers, when a Snyder Park car, following, in charge of Motorman William Colvin, crashed into the car standing still. Those injured were either in the vestibule or were alighting from the car. Mr. Brocker, one of the injured, it is supposed, received a broken nose by being thrown against the sill of the rear window. The glass in both cars was broken.

FOUR MEN ARE INJURED.

Bellefontaine, O.—An automobile, skidding on the dewy grass at the roadside, plunged through a barb wire fence. Four Bellefontaine business men, returning from a run to Columbus, were hurt. The machine was wrecked.

Guy Morse, grocer, lost an ear and his collarbone was fractured. E. O. Stiles, jeweler, received injuries to his head. The back of Perry Powell, druggist, was injured. Myron Lesourd, a lumber dealer, was cut by barbed wire.

RECEIVER IS APPOINTED.

Dayton, O.—By the appointment of a receiver for the Gem City Securities Co., Franklin T. Betts, president, at whose instigation court action was taken, claims that an adjustment of the financial difficulties which have arisen recently will be effected. The petition filed by Betts asked for a receiver to take charge of all funds, assets and properties of the concern, the same to be held, subject to the order of the court.

OLD SKELETON IS FOUND.

Newark, O.—Professor J. H. Renmant, of Coshocton, recovered the skeletons of several men of giant stature, supposed to have been mound builders, while excavating in a mound near Newark.

One of the skeletons measured 7 feet and 6 inches in length. Numerous articles buried with the bodies were recovered. All have been shipped to Coshocton.

GIVE ORGAN TO CHURCH.

Hamilton, O.—Some time during the first two weeks of August the people of the First United Brethren church at Dick and Park avenues, are to install a beautiful Williams pipe-toned organ, the gift of relatives of a few close friends of Rev. D. K. Flickinger who worshiped with these brethren when living in Hamilton and from which church the funeral was conducted last September.

BOLT DOESN'T HURT BABY.

Marysville, O.—During an electrical storm in Dover township Mrs. Ernest Andrews placed her 6 months-old baby on a bed. One of the bed posts was struck by lightning and shattered. The baby escaped injury.

PASTOR TENDERED DINNER.

Lima, O.—The pastoral services and personal character of Rev. A. W. Ballinger, pastor of the First United Brethren church, and president of the Pastors' union, were the subjects of high tributes paid at a dinner given in his honor by the Pastors' union. The occasion of the gathering arose from the departure of Rev. Mr. Ballinger on Tuesday, August 12, for a new pastorate at Riverside, Cal. The dinner was served at the Business Women's Club.

BULL DOG ATTACKS BOY.

Sidney, O.—Clarence Mahan, the ten-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Mahan, of Piqua, O., was severely bitten by a small dog at Fountain Park. The child was swinging around one of the May poles when the dog snapped at him, fastening its teeth into the lad's hip. He was removed to his home on Park avenue and a surgeon was called. The owner of the dog was warned to keep it confined. It is not thought that the dog was mad.

WOMAN TORN BY BEAST

Farmer's Wife Is Attacked By Fierce Boar and Sustains Serious Injuries.

Piqua, O.—Mrs. Fred Meyers, who resides on the Stillwater pike, about two miles west of Piqua, was attacked by a fierce boar in the farmyard of her home and fearfully torn by the enraged animal before she could be rescued.

Seeing that the boar had escaped from his pen Mrs. Myers picked up a small stick and started to drive him back. When she reached the animal it turned and started towards her. Mrs. Meyers backed away, but was prevented from running by a wire fence. She tried to drive off the boar with a small stick in her hand, but it paid no attention and jumping up at her threw her down and bit her three times before Mr. Meyers, who had heard her cries, could reach her. Meyers beat the boar away with a club. Only the fact that the boar's tusk struck a rib saved the woman from having her heart literally torn out.

In addition to the bites Mrs. Meyers had several long, deep cuts on her back made by the barbs of the wire fence.

BIG MERGER AT IRONTON

Two Million Dollar Concern Will Be Result of Combination.

Ironton, O.—By unanimous consent of the stockholders of the Marting Iron and Steel Co., the Ironton Iron Co. and the Lawrence Iron Co., the three companies will be combined under the name of the Marting Iron and Steel Co., whose capital stock will be increased to $2,000,000. The three furnaces will be taken in by the new company at values agreed upon, which will exceed three-fourths of the new capital stock. The balance will be disposed of at the discretion of the directors, yet to be selected.

Col. H. A. Marting, who is heavily interested in all three companies, will be president and general manager of the new company. The consolidation was made in the interest of economically handling of the kindred businesses. Lawrence furnace will at an early date be enlarged to a 200-ton daily capacity. The new company will open a large ore deposit in Michigan, and expects eventually to build a large coke oven here. Unless the demand requires the furnaces will not make the same kind of iron at the same time.

AUTO TURNS TURTLE.

Dayton, O.—W. S. Elliott, 125 St. Nicholas avenue, general manager of the Myers Auto Top Co., sustained a fractured jaw and many minor hurts, and O. C. Shaffer, 731 East Second street, escaped with slight bruises, when an automobile which they were riding, near Barr's Station, on the Xenia pike, turned turtle and landed on top of them in a ditch. The machine skidded off the road when a tire blew out.

RISKS LIFE TO SAVE DOG.

Zanesville, O.—Mrs. W. W. Odell, wife of one of Roosevelt's rough riders, thought more of a dog's life than she did of her own, and as a consequence, she received a bad cut on the head and a wrenched back.

Her pet dog was under an interurban car when it started at Vanderbark Station and she swooped down and caught him, throwing him out of the way. The car step struck her and threw her down an embankment.

HEAT KILLS NONAGENARIAN.

Columbus, Ohio.—The hot wave which swept Ohio prevented John H. Rodgers, Columbus contractor, attaining the age mark set by most of the members of his family. Rodgers died from the effect of a heat prostration. He was 98 years of age. He never had been ill. Most of the members of his family attained the century mark.

WATKINS SELLS BALL TEAM.

Springfield.—W. H. Watkins, president of the local Central league team, has sold out his holdings in the company to his partner, Sol Meyer, of Indianapolis. It is said Mr. Watkins will retire and take a rest on his farm in Michigan.

BOY HAS FATAL ACCIDENT.

Manchester, O.—Lester Sutterfield, 17-year-old boy, while handling a rusty revolver, discharged it and the 22-caliber ball entered his abdomen. He died shortly afterwards.

HEAT CLAIMS A VICTIM.

Wapakoneta, O.—Florenz Oarmhausen, a business man of Lock Two and president of the Lock Two Grain and Milling Co., died at his home from the effects of a sunstroke.

OFFICERS NAMED.

Dayton, O.—Miss Ollie Peddicord, of Piqua, was named grand lady councillor of the Colored Court of Calanthe, the ladies' auxiliary of the Colored Knights of Pythias, at the convention just held here. Other officers are: Mrs. Amy Logan, Springfield, instructress; Mrs. Anna Loverotte, Cincinnati, inspector; Mrs. Ollie Topsico, East Liverpool, orator; Mrs. Annie Hudson, Washington C. H., senior directress; Mrs. Edna Anderson, Newark, junior directress.

FOUND AFTER FIFTY YEARS.

Springfield, O.—Although buried in the earth for 50 years, a locket containing the picture of Matthew Neer was found on the Neer farm. The gold is tarnished, but the picture is distinct. Upon going to the war in Virginia, Mr. Neer sent his sister, Matilda Neer, the locket containing his picture. It was lost on the farm. One of the men was plowing when he discovered it in a furrow. Mrs. David Jones, formerly Miss Neer, was given the locket.

Men in the Engine Room

STARBOARD ENGINE OF A MODERN LINER

FREIGHT on a sailing ship from New York to London used to be 14 shillings a quarter of wheat; now it is just over a shilling a quarter by steamer from New York to Liverpool. Not all of the engineering which has brought about this result has been done in the drawing office and the factory. Much of it has been done by workingmen who took the raw inventions out to sea, struggled with their crudities and put the needful improvements into the minds of the designers ashore. In big ships and little the process is going on and it is a stern one still in spite of modern refinements. In the old days, when boiler pressures were so low that a steamer had to slow down to raise enough steam to whistle with, an upholstered settee was often provided in the engine room for the use of the man on watch, so that he need not stand more than was absolutely necessary. Today it is probable that not one seagoing vessel could show such a thing. A man who cannot walk about for four hours in the temperature of a Turkish bath is not wanted now.

While the ship is at sea all the engineers except the chief keep two watches of four hours each in the twenty-four. The same man always has the same hours. The third engineer takes the 12 to 4 a. m. and p. m. watch, the second takes the 4 to 8 and the chief's watch, 8 to 12, is taken by the fourth engineer, or by the donkeyman, if there are only three engineers carried. In this case the chief is always within call. The duties of watchkeeping largely lie in seeing that this or that does not happen. As well as the main engines there are the pumps and other auxiliary machinery and the boilers always seeking to go wrong if given a chance. Then in port all hands are busy with the adjustments that have been noted down as necessary while the ship was steaming, and those entail the handling of tremendous weights with hand tackle only. Such work does not seem very formidable, perhaps, but seagoing engineers know that Commander Willetts, U. S. N., spoke truly of their work when he told the American Institute of Naval Engineers that "it requires the most strenuous and exacting attention of any known pursuit, and, while requiring skill and intelligence to accomplish well, it has to be performed under such severe stresses and in such dirt and heat as to rob it of all interest except in its speedy completion.

In the Silent Hours.

An engineer does not readily forget his first voyage or that first night in the "graveyard" watch (12 to 4 a. m.) when he sat on a bucket to consider the novelty of his surroundings and revile the heat, and woke up from a few seconds of troubled sleep to find the chief engineer vigorously kicking the bucket away from under him. In a few weeks he becomes ashamed of wanting to sit, even in the tropics; but he has not conquered human weakness even then, for after a few voyages nature will have provided him with the trick of sleeping while he solemnly paces the engine room. Usually this only happens after a spell of exhausting labor, such as is consequent on breakdowns, and usually it only lasts until he walks into the boiler-room bulkhead and wakes, feeling foolish and uncanny, after, perhaps, fifteen seconds of jerky somnambulation. Then he learns to keep a bucket of cold water handy to dip his head into, and the same intelligence that contrives this antidote warns him that it were unwise to mention the circumstance in the messroom. Indeed, a hint of even feeling sleepy is as horrifying to the ear as the smell of a heated bearing is to the nostril. A hot bearing once smelt is never forgotten. It is not by any means an overpowering smell—just burning oil—but to the men on whose watch it occurs it reeks of certain disgrace. When he has eased the engines and hears the other engineers warned by the change of speed, coming tumbling down the ladders, while he is frantically searching for the source of the smell he would give five years of his life to undo the oversight of the last five minutes.

Discipline in the merchant service begins well enough at the top, but it does not work all the way down. It stops at the lowest grade of man who has a certificate to lose, the junior engineer. In the evidence at a recent nautical inquiry one read of a man smilingly informing the court that he was ashore having a last drink while he should have been on board joining in boat drill. A junior officer or engineer dare not do such a thing. The law and the owners deal severely with him. He is supposed to behave with naval obedience himself, while his own authority is frequently flouted by those nominally at his command. Anything less like the navy could scarcely be imagined. The idea that engineers are given to chastising firemen with any handy weapon is often found in fiction. It is fiction. In real life discipline below decks depends almost entirely on the good nature of the firemen.

Surroundings Are Degrading.

Socially the merchant service engineer is equally remote from the naval type. His accommodation does not often rise above the level set by oilclothed tables and kitchen cutlery. Such conditions have not an expanding effect on the intellect. His conversation in the messroom is commonly personal and bitter. If he comes from the "upper middle classes" his relatives too often find him morose at 40, or vulgarized, or disappeared altogether from their ken. If he resists the social influence of his environment the result is often a curious mental combativeness which seems to arise out of the well nigh incompatible requirements that he is supposed to meet—an artisan with supposedly the prestige of a lieutenant and actually less authority than a corporal. The better educated men strive to rise above seafaring. Examinations must be passed and they can only be entered for by men with a certain amount of sea service to their credit. Twelve months at least must be passed at sea to enable a man to go up for a second class certificate of competency—that is to say, the certificate which legally qualifies him to act as a second engineer or on a very small ship as chief engineer. After obtaining that he must serve another year as engineer in regular charge of a watch on board an ocean going steamship before he may sit for his first class certificate, which enables him to sign on as chief engineer of any sort of vessel, from an excursion steamer to the last liner in Atlantic flyers.

When he is "up for second" he has to pick out the answers to questions about, say, the temperature of the hot well under imaginary and distressing conditions dear to the hearts of examiners, from mixed memories of raucous laughing nights ashore and of days of anxious vigilance over racing engines, when the propeller would be flung clear of the wintry western ocean and the ship quiver as though from earthquake. When he is "up for chief" he is set more difficult questions, but still not beyond the reach of simple arithmetic. If he aspires to the honorary examinations—"extra chief" it is called—the questions become more academic, and he unlocks the brain cell which contains the integral calculus. The calculus is probably stored next to visions of the most important objects which it is to achieve for him—a surveyorship or superintendentship ashore, a nice little home in Forest Oats or North Shields, and wifely companionship unbroken by voyaging, or perhaps the protection of a widowed mother.

Built Ships in the Woods.

In Colonial days the shipping for our home trade and for sale abroad was built chiefly in the district of Maine and in New Hampshire. These two colonies built rather more than one-half the entire American tonnage in the days immediately preceding the Revolution. The older ports could not compete with the new settlements amid the timber.

When the great trees had been exhausted on the river banks, gangs of shipwrights went a mile or two into the forests, and here on the uplands they would build a vessel of 100 tons or more, mount her on strong sledges of timber, hitch on a team of 200 oxen and drag it in one steady pull over the snow to the frozen surface of a navigable stream.

Such a team of oxen would be a quarter of a mile long, and it took the leadership of a major general to start them all at once. It was called "raising them," and this work once done nothing must stop them till the ship rested on the ice.

She's Wearing It Now.

"But don't you think this bathing suit somewhat—er—a trifle immodest?"

"I don't know. That is what all the fashionable people are wearing this year."

"That so? Then I'll take it. I can overcome my modesty, but I never can overcome the handicap of being unfashionable."

DILLON WITHDRAWS

WILL NOT HEAD REPUBLICAN STATE TICKET IN OHIO.

Probability of Third Ticket Causes Columbus Jurist to Decline Candidacy.

Columbus.—Judge Edmond B. Dillon will not be the Republican candidate for governor of Ohio. This decision was announced from Mackinac, where the judge has been spending several days with Walter Brown. His formal withdrawal was prepared and placed in the hands of the state central committee for their consideration at their meeting Wednesday in Columbus.

The following is the statement which Judge Dillon gave to the public following his decision to withdraw:

"My written declination, placed in the hands of Chairman Burton, was not read to the convention, and I accepted the nomination in the full presumption and belief that my acceptance would mean an united party and a single ticket in Ohio.

"All endeavor in that behalf has failed, despite the kind offices of my friends in each following of the party.

"The measure of justice due me, even though a mere individual, requires my resignation as nominee for governor, and the same will be presented to the state central committee at its meeting next Wednesday."

It is said that the withdrawal is the result of Col. Roosevelt's determination to have a third party state ticket put into the field in Ohio. It is also said that many of the third party Republicans of this state were opposed to this program and desired to support Judge Dillon.

The state committee has the right to fill this vacancy on the ticket, but may if they prefer reconvene the convention which has already held two sessions.

Ohio's Grain Shortage Alarms.

Grain men and millers of this state are planning concerted action for the encouragement of greater grain production in Ohio. The annual falling off in yield has brought an alarming condition, in that this state, which formerly had large supplies of grain to sell, is now obliged to buy from other states. In other words, Ohio is fast becoming unable to feed itself. As an illustration of this decline reports of the federal agricultural department show that in 1899 the wheat acreage of this state amounted to 3,209,074, compared with 1,827,923 in 1909, which is a larger acreage than in the present year. In 1899 Ohio produced 50,376,800 bushels of wheat, against 30,663,704 in 1909. The production this year is estimated at about 10,000,000 bushels. The average yield of wheat to the acre this year is estimated at seven bushels, while the average for the last 10 years was 16 bushels. In many sections of the country outside of Ohio and in nearly every foreign land an average of more than 20 bushels of wheat to the acre is obtained under conditions no better than in this state. The various organizations of grain men and millers have asked the co-operation of the state board of agriculture in making a persistent general campaign to encourage grain production. As a preliminary step, special inducements will be offered the farmers to make extra efforts to secure larger yields of wheat and other grains.

To Oust Basement Bakeshops.

The basement bakeshop in Ohio must go. T. P. Kearns, state inspector of workshops and factories, has served notice upon owners to vacate them within reasonable time or they will be prosecuted criminally. It is said that there are at least 100 such bakeshops in Cincinnati alone. Inspector Kearns has been contemplating a campaign against them for some time and has secured legal sanction for his course from Atty. Gen. Hogan.

Section 1022 of the general code prohibits bakeshops in cellars or basements. When passed in 1866 it excepted bakeshops then in existence. When Ohio laws were codified in 1910 the exception was omitted.

Interest Not a Rebate.

An agent of a fire insurance company may take the note of a customer, without interest, and not be guilty of violating the rebating act, according to the attorney general's department. It also has been held that, generally speaking, the practice of railroads extending credit is not to be regarded as rebating.

May Lose New Building.

Middletown may lose a new school building and municipal ownership of waterworks and electric light plant because of the Smith 1 per cent law. The law was held to include all levies within the 15-mile limitation and to prohibit the piling up of a sinking fund, in anticipation of the approval by the people of a bond issue.

Illinois Man Chosen.

George Frederick Arps, formerly professor of psychology at the University of Illinois, will fill a similar position at Ohio State university next year. His election was ratified by the trustees of the university. He will fill the vacancy made by Dr. Thomas H. Haines, who has been granted a leave of absence.

A petition for a woman's building for social purposes, presented several months ago by women students of the university, was referred to a committee.

Heat Is Insurance Factor.

If an employe suffers a heat stroke due to the high temperature of the place where he is employed and got to weakened physical condition, he is entitled to compensation under the state liability law, according to the decision of the state liability board of awards. The decision was given in the case of Enoch A. Fish, an employe of the Champion Coated Paper Co. of Hamilton, who suffered such a stroke while working in a drying room, where the temperature is kept high.

HERBERT S. BIGELOW

President of the Ohio Constitution Convention, Who Is Now Making Addresses Throughout Ohio Favoring the Adoption of the Amendments to the Constitution.

Commission Changes Bond Policy.

The Ohio public service commission has receded from its position that bonds of public utility corporations must sell at par. It has granted authority to the Columbus, Kenton & Toledo Traction Co., allowing it to issue $1,385,000 first mortgage 5 per cent gold bonds, which may be sold at not less than 80. Permission was also granted the company to issue $50,000 of common stock. If the commission has definitely changed its policy in regard to the question of bond sale, it means the restoration of at least one important factor to the development of Ohio utilities. A former request had been refused by the commission. Proceeds of the sale of the $1,385,000 bonds will be applied to the construction and equipment of an interurban railway between Richwood and Findlay, a distance of 60 miles. It is expected that the bonds may be disposed of at 80 per cent of par, net to the company, which would yield $1,108,000. This amount, with the $50,000 common stock to be sold at par will cover the estimated cost of the road and equipment. While it gave the Columbus, Kenton & Toledo Co. permission to sell at 80 per cent of par, the commission refused to allow the Lake Shore Electric Railway Co. to sell bonds below 85. However, in giving authority to sell its bonds at 85, the commission reversed its former ruling. The Lake Shore Electric Railway Co. was given authority to make two issues, one of $60,000 and one of $56,000, both of which may be sold not below 85. The former issue is for reimbursement of the costs of improvements made in 1909 and 1910 and the latter for improvements in 1911. The issue of $56,000 was rejected twice by the commission and appealed to the Cuyahoga county common pleas court, where it was sent back to the commission.

Two Roads Have Good Reports.

Advance figures submitted to the interstate commerce commission for the fiscal year show that two Cincinnati initial lines have enjoyed a good year. The report of the Norfolk & Western reveals the fact that it is operating 3,003 miles of track and that the average earnings per mile for the year reached a total of $16,030.47. Freight earnings totaled $30,115,483.01; passenger revenues, $4,184,246.01, and miscellaneous business aggregated $1,257,793.46, making a total of $35,557,622.47.

Freight earnings of the Chesapeake & Ohio for the year were $24,396,288.09; passenger fares show a total of $5,255,364.82, while miscellaneous revenue was $1,400,019.46, making total earnings of $31,050,672.37.

To Test Zone Rule.

The failure to deliver a small consignment of perishable goods to a citizen of Columbus has sprung a question that has involved every express company doing business in Ohio. This relates to the right of the companies to arbitrarily designate zones within a city beyond which they will not deliver consignments. In this particular instance the goods were held and a postal card sent the consignee, who found them spoiled when he came to the office of the express company. Thereupon he made a claim for damages before the state public service commission.

After Holders of Standard Oil.

Working hand in hand, Atty. Gen. Hogan and members of the state tax commission started action which may cause all Standard Oil Co. stock in this state to be listed for taxation. The action is a result of complaints and investigations recently made by a civic club of Cincinnati.

Atty. Gen. Hogan has notified the tax commission that he has in his possession a complete list of Ohio Standard Oil stockholders in the year of 1907. The list was secured through litigation against the Standard in a United States court.

Orders Fire Escapes.

Orders for two additional fire escapes, several balconies and exit lights were issued to Campbell M. Chittenden, owner, and Robert Young, lessee of the Metropole hotel, 69 South High street, by State Factory Inspector Kearns. Discontinuance of the use for sleeping purposes of rooms having no outside windows for ventilation also was demanded.

Berry Brothers, East Fifth avenue, were ordered to provide lunchrooms for their employes and keep a record of all children employed.

Gives Opinion on Insurance.

Straight life insurance policies are not subject to taxation under Ohio laws because they represent no money in hand. Endowment policies are taxable when the premiums are paid up and the endowment is paid in a lump sum, but when the endowment is paid to the policyholders as annuities they are tax exempt.

This is the substance of directions as to the laws given by the attorney general's department to the state tax commission.

REMARKABLE WINNING STREAK OF MARQUARD

Rube Marquard, $11,000 "Lemon."

The winning streak of Rube Marquard of the New York Giants is not only a season's sensation, but is the cause of a lot of arguments—some of which can be settled by reference to the records, others which must be decided only in each fan's own opinion. As the Rube approached the modern day records of Reulbach and Chesbro of 14 straight wins the delvers into the dope began to dig deeper for more ancient marks for him to shoot at. They discovered that Radbourne had won 18 straight for Providence in 1884, that Luby had won 20 for Chicago in 1890 and that McCormick in 1886 with Chicago had won 24 straight. So far as known that mark of McCormick's is the premier feat in organized ball.

Disputes as to the clear title Marquard holds to some of his victories will always be open. For instance, there was the case of his thirteenth win. Marquard went out of the game with his team behind, but before another pitcher went in his mates halted out a victory. Secretary Heydler of the National League ruled that the victory went to Marquard because he had pitched most of the game. The fifteenth game presented another situation. Marquard went in in the eighth inning with the score a tie, his team won in the tenth. He also got credit for that.

Whatever may be the arguments, there is no question that Richard de Marquis is one of the greatest twirlers of modern times and the fact that he is a left hander makes his work all the more remarkable, for left-handers have never been noted for consistency.

AROUND THE BASES

Frank Schulte's homers are more timely this season than last.

Somebody has characterized the National league race as a three-months' yawn.

Lavender looks more like $1,600 worth than O'Toole looks like $22,500 worth.

Tris Speaker was the first American league player who passed the 100 mark for hits.

Sumo machines have tire trouble, but Harry Davis' Cleveland team has first-base trouble.

Eddie Slever, once a Detroit pitcher, is now an umpire in the Southern Michigan league.

Pat Dougherty, former White Sox outfielder, is managing a semi-professional team at Hornell, N. Y.

Lee Lemon is the big hitter of the Texas league, with an average of .333. Funny, how a lemon can bat.

From the epigrams of Tom Sharkey: "Kids don't care any more about boxing. It's all baseball."

Buck Weaver has learned that it doesn't pay to get his hands into an argument with Ty Cobb's spikes.

Edward Willett set a long-distance hitting mark for Detroit when he made two home runs in two consecutive innings.

Baker and Cravath are doing more to distribute leather to far away points than all the big Philadelphia factories combined.

Eddie Plank of the champions is in great form. He believes that he will get another chance to trim the Giants in the fall.

The Detroit club has purchased a shortstop from the Hannibal club of the Central Association. Olds O'Marn is his name.

Montreal papers are charging that Chick Gandil didn't do his best for the International league team. And naturally Chick is sore.

Charley Dooin is actually trying the scheme of giving his signals while standing. He thinks the old crouch thing will have to go.

The Phillies have been wondering what players will be traded. Now comes a rumor from New York that Chalmers is to be let go.

Frank Smith, the veteran pitcher that was released by the Cincinnati Reds recently, is doing fine work with the Montreal team in the International league.

Frank Farrell, owner of the Yankees, is authority for the statement that his team will be reorganized, no matter what the cost, before another season rolls around.

When his pitching days are over Otis Crandall of the Giants, who is leading the National league in hitting, will still be able to stick in the game as an outfielder.

Jennings may become part owner of the Boston Nationals next year. Ward has been a dismal failure there, and Jennings is anxious to get into the magnate class.

Dolly Gray, former Washington pitcher but now of the Vernon team in the Pacific coast league, is doing such good work that his team is now leading that league.

ONE OF MACK'S GREAT FINDS

Amos Strunk Fills Place of Captain Murphy in Athletic Outfield With Much Credit.

Amos Strunk, who is playing left field for the world's champions, has been with the Athletics for four years. Probably no man in baseball outside of Connie Mack saw in Strunk the "makings" of a great player. Amos sure was a raw recruit when Mack picked him up. Few and far between were the games in which he participated up to this season.

Amos Strunk.

When Capt. Danny Murphy was injured a short time ago the wiseacres said: "That finishes the Athletics. Connie hasn't got a good man to take his place." But they reckoned not with the youngster whom Connie worked with for the greater part of four years. Amos Strunk was assigned to an outfield berth and he has proven by his terrific batting and brilliant fielding that Connie's confidence and patience were not in vain.

Made But Little Difference.

Fred Hartford, a widely known sporting man of the Hub, was dining. The meal was bad and the service was worse. No wonder Hartford lost his temper. He stood it as long as he could and then he vigorously complained to the waiter.

"Oh, sir, if you only knew what a hard time we waiters have to get along."

"Well, why be a waiter?" asked Hartford.

"What else can I do?" said the waiter.

"Don't you know they are paying some men as high as $10,000 a year to play ball?" returned Hartford.

"But I can't play ball," the waiter said.

"What's the difference?" said Hartford, as he started for the door. "You can't wait, either."

Chicago Boy Doing Well.

Walter Leverenz, a Chicago boy, is making a phenomenal record as a pitcher with the Los Angeles club in the Coast league. This kid southpaw, a former team mate of "Lena" Blackburne at Hartford a few years ago, has won eleven games for the coast team this year. He is being watched by the big league scouts and will be in the major leagues before very long.

RECORD OF A GREAT MEDICINE

Doctors Could Not Help Mrs. Templeton—Regained Health through Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound.

Hooper, Nebraska.—"I am very glad to tell how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has helped me. For five years I suffered from female troubles so I was scarcely able to do my work. I took doctors' medicines and used local treatments but was not helped. I had such awful bearing down pains and my back was so weak I could hardly walk and could not ride. I often had to sit up nights to sleep and my friends thought I could not live long. At my request my husband got me a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I commenced to take it. By the time I had taken the seventh bottle my health had returned and I began doing my washing and was a well woman. At one time for three weeks I did all the work for eighteen boarders with no signs of my old trouble returning. Many have taken your medicine after seeing what it did for me. I would not take $1000 and be where I was. You have my permission to use my name if it will aid anyone."—Mrs. Susie Templeton, Hooper, Nebraska.

The Pinkham record is a proud and peerless one. It is a record of constant victory over the obstinate ills of woman—ills that deal out despair. It is an established fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has restored health to thousands of such suffering women. Why don't you try it if you need such a medicine?

THOMAS JEFFERSON

In a speech delivered in the House of Representatives June 5, 1904, Mr Bryan paid this tribute to Jefferson.

"There are wrongs to be righted; there are evils to be eradicated; there is injustice to be removed; there is good to be secured for those who toil and wait. In this fight for equal laws we cannot fail, for right is mighty and will in time triumph over all obstacles. Even if our eyes do not behold success, we know that our labor is not in vain, and we can lay down our weapons, happy in the promise given by Bryant to the soldier:

> "'Yea, though thou lie upon the dust,
> When they who helped thee flee in fear
> Die full of hope and manly trust,
> Like those who fell in battle here
>
> "'Another hand thy sword shall wield,
> Another hand the standard wave
> Till from the trumpet's mouth is pealed
> The blast of triumph o'er thy grave.'

Let us then, with the courage of Andrew Jackson, apply to present conditions the principles taught by Thomas Jefferson, the greatest constructive statesman the world has ever known, the grandest warrior who ever battled for human liberty. He quarried from the mountain of eternal truth the four pillars upon whose strength all popular government must rest. In the Declaration of American Independence he proclaimed the principles with which there is, without which there cannot be, a government of the people, by the people and for the people. When he declared that 'all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness; that to secure these rights governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed,' he declared all that lies between the Alpha and Omega of democracy.

"Alexander 'wept for other worlds to conquer,' after he had carried his victorious banner through the then known world; Napoleon 'rearranged the map of Europe with his sword,' amid the lamentations of those by whose blood he was exalted; but when these and other military heroes are forgotten and their achievements disappear in the cycle's sweep of years, children will still lisp the name of Jefferson, and freemen will ascribe due praise to him who filled the kneeling subject's heart with hope and bade him stand erect—a sovereign among his peers."

AFTER DUE REFLECTION.

Senator Tillman is not among the old friends of William J Bryan who wholly misinterpreted his policy in the national Democratic convention and fell to hotly abusing him. The South Carolina senator confesses that at the moment he thought the commoner unnecessarily bitter, "but as I could analize and unravel what he was doing and realized the great stake for which he was playing I came to feel more and more admiration for him."

He certainly is a great leader and an unequaled fighter and the promising condition in which the party now finds itself after the second fiercest battle in its history must be attributed to his wisdom, foresight and magnificent courage. He comes out of this battle the greatest American living and will go down in history as a far greater man than if he had been elected president. He did things which must have been very painful to him but controlled alone by patriotism and love of principle, he never faltered for an instant. He sternly brushed aside both friend and foe in the pursuit of right and justice for the people. He deserves all the credit that any one man can get out of this great victory."

Thomas M. Osborne said much the same thing at the first Wilson rally held in Auburn, N. Y.:—

"There was one man at Baltimore to whom the Democratic party owes a tremendous debt. That man was William Jennings Bryan. I differed with him in the distant past, but I want to say to you that he is the greatest Democrat in America today. His fight at Baltimore for courage and shrewd political action is the finest thing we have over seen in the history of American politics. Some said Bryan was only a mischiefmaker, but he was a mischiefmaker only when the wrong people were trying to guide the party."

One of the striking things about this campaign is the spectacle of men like Mr Osborne awakening to a warm admiration at a time when so many of Mr Bryan's friends of 1896, earnestly enlisted in behalf of Champ Clark, could view him only as an egotist and "marplot." The right perspective must come to those immediate actors, if it has not already done so. Even the Democrats of Missouri are applauding Mr Bryan.

RECALL OF JUDGES IN 1780.

On the first day of May, 1780, at a convention of the settlers of Tennessee, held at Nashborough (now Nashville) "Articles of Agreement or Compact of Government" were entered into. One of the first articles provided for the election of twelve triers or judges. Provisions for the "recall" were also adopted, in the following language: "As often as the people in general are dissatisfied with the doings of the judges or triers so to be chosen, they may call a new election in any of the said stations, and elect others in their stead, having due respect to the number now agreed to be elected at each station, which persons so to be chosen shall have the same power as those in whose room or place they shall or may be chosen."

BRYAN'S GOOD NATURE.

"In an interview with a correspondent for the New York Times, Mr Henry Watterson says some pretty mean things about Mr Bryan and then adds, 'No one could be more averse to acrimonious controversy than I am.' He explains, however, that he tells these things because he is an honest man, committed to telling of the truth without favor or fear.

"Two negroes listened for a time to an orator who had a great deal to say in praise of himself. One asked the other: 'Sam, who is that gemman?'

"'I don't know his name,' replied Sam, 'but he suttinly do recommen' hisself mos' highly.'"

The people of Cleveland must remember he belonged not alone to Cleveland. More and more municipal and national questions are influenced by the things he taught. To the outer country, the soul of Tom Johnson has gone, and it speaks for right and justice and fair play. It spoke at Baltimore. This great audience is a wonderful tribute to him. No man ever knew Tom Johnson that he was not a better man for knowing him. We must honor his memory, not simply by these gatherings, but by carrying on the great struggle he began against privilege and for the unprivileged, for equal rights for all and special privileges to none. We must honor the memory of Tom Johnson by making Cleveland the best and freest city in which to live. We must never be satisfied with the accomplishments of the past, but in his spirit go forward fighting for the common weal so our city will become the best and freest on earth.—Dr Cooley on Tom Johnson.

We clip the following news item which has been going the rounds:

The ex-president (Mr Roosevelt), intimated that he intends to tear the Bryan theories to tatters. Roosevelt regards Bryan as a platform orator who shoots arrows into the sky.

If Mr. Roosevelt don't like no one nohow, we can't understand how he can fix up a ticket with two names on it. Hold on, though, we have it: For president, Theodore Roosevelt, for vice president, Theodore Roosevelt, and even then the candidate for president might smash the looking glass if he saw a reflection of the candidate for vice president therein.

Nearly ninety million people in this country favor the LaFollette tariff bill which will lower the price of woolen goods. There may be one hundred thousand people in this country who have a direct interest in keeping the price of woolen goods high. Will President Taft sign the bill and thereby place himself with the great majority, or will he in this case advance the idea that the "minority have constitutional rights that must be respected."

There will be no half-million dollar contributions to the Woodrow Wilson campaign fund this year, but the people will see to it that he gets enough money to defray legitimate

The people may soon have a chance to see if President Taft has changed his views on the tariff when the La Follette bill is presented for his signature.

Ohio railroads may be able to cut out the excursion rates, but they will start something if they try to knock out two-cent fare in the state.

RANDOM THOUGHTS

By Tom, Dick and Harry.

We are rather jealous of our contemporary socialistic writer. He is responsible, without any doubt, for the blunderbus way in which our "political friend" tried to answer our defense of the Socialist party. We rather flatter ourselves, however, that both the peroration and the climax were devoted to the writer. We are sorry that the interim did not deal as gently with us. When a man starts off with a case of constipation and ends on an island of Despair, his meandering misery ought to be interesting if not pleasant.

We are not to say proficient in medicine, but intuitively we know that a case of constipation does not prove anything illogical. We therefore still hold that our premise is sound. That is, that our political friend approves of socialism. Our conclusion he very kindly admits is sound logic and we will not repeat it.

On a certain memorable occasion of recent date Mr. Bryan refused to answer a hypothetical question when one had been put to him publicly. He explained that no man had a right to ask another a question of that character. We refer our political friend to his god of the Idealistic—Mr. Bryan as an answer to his question concerning our action it found in the circumstances he describes.

As a matter of fact, though, we are in the same position as Mr Bryan was —that is, "jest dyin'" to answer the question. So we are going to do as he did: fortify ourselves until the time things get real hot and then answer the question.

No, dear political friend, we would not stand there like a chump. We would fall on that brave captain's neck, and believe us, we would stay right there until he got back on board his ship and well under way. But please note this: we are not on an island of despair and if we were, it would be an easy matter to consult a time table or two and have a choice of routes toward Utopia. At least two are widely advertised every four years. We have never heard of any one making port over either route so that story of "tried and true sailors" is sort of a refrigerator product.

Editor Herald: Your article in the issue of the Herald of July 25, in reply to a previous one by myself, offers opportunity for earnest discussion.

I challenge your statement that but one-tenth of the socialists would agree with my definition pertaining to the mission of the Socialist party. Will you kindly bring forth one instance where I have overstepped the traces? My statements are based entirely upon scientific socialism. Read any book of authority upon the subject and you will realize that you have made a false accusation.

And you say "He failed to tell us how he or his party was going to bring socialism about." Right you are. I failed to do so simply because I was writing upon another phase. But here it is:

"He" or no other individual can change the present mode of production and distribution. The agencies that make for socialism are to be found in every corner of the civilized world. Socialism will evolve from the out-grown system of capitalism.

Savagery, when it was no longer able to satisfy the demands of the people, was supplanted by barbarism. Barbarism in course of time, outlived its historic function and the era of feudalism sprang up, and was maintained until it became decadent. Out of the ruins of feudalism evolved the present state of capitalism.

The capitalist system has outgrown its historic function, and is utterly incapable of meeting the problems now confronting society. It will, as the result of economic evolution pass out of existence as did the other economic orders. The next step in economic evolution is socialism.

Competition contained within itself the germ of its own destruction. The trust was the logical outcome. The organization of the trust with its great workshops meant an enormous saving of labor power in creating commodities.

The existing evil is not to be found in the modern methods of production, but it lies in the private monopoly, or private ownership of the means of production. The trusts have transformed industry and now will come the transformation of the trusts by the people.

We shall take our national industrial equipment from the ownership of the plutocracy, and operate it to the interest of all the people. This can be done by two different methods —either by purchasing the industries at their physical value, or by direct confiscation by the government.

When the Socialist party is in power, all of the people, by referendum, will decide which method shall be used.

Yes, Mr. Editor, this will be brought about through the medium of organized government. As for socialism "being forced upon the people," suffice it to say that the socialist state can never be established until the majority of the people vote for it.

The conditions that make for socialism, the increase in the party membership, the enormous increase in the socialist vote, and the progressive legislation enacted by the socialists elected to office throughout the world, indicate that the people have become conscious of the fact that it is to their material interest to support the Socialist party.

Then the editor writes, "Thanks to the good work of Mr. Bryan the people are now getting what they want. What they think they want!" I want to inform the editor that what the people want is results, and not empty pledges or high sounding phrases.

At the very time when the Democratic convention was in session, the United State congress was in session, with the democrats in control of the lower house. Why did not the Democratic party perform at Washington, instead of promising at Baltimore?

They had absolute power and have it now. Why do they not enact laws redeeming their past pledges, instead of making a new lot they never intend to redeem?

I put this question to the editor: Is there one plank in the Democratic platform which (if carried out to its logical conclusion) would serve to give the wage workers of this nation the power to obtain the equivalent of the full social value of their labor? Is there one plank which protests against the exploitation of the workers and which offers a remedy for that evil?

GEORGE LEVENGOOD.

[Lack of space obliges the Herald to continue Mr. Levengood's article over to next week.—Ed.]

He who furthers a falsehood knowing it to be one, is as guilty as the one who originated it.

We've got a grouch again, and all because some newspapers having no apparent regard for their own honor are publishing vicious attacks upon the proposed amendments to the Ohio constitution. In one paper of the issue of Monday, we counted 18 separate and distinct lies, each blacker than the preceding one, until the climax came in the assertion that the Initiative and Referendum as proposed for Ohio, was seeking to establish the single tax. The article claimed for its author some nameless magazine writer in another state. The stuff is furnished free of charge in boiler plate form to such newspapers as are willing to seduce their readers at the behest of mendacious financial organizations, too cowardly to come before the people in their own proper persons and fight for their honest beliefs, but must hire penny-a-liners to write the stuff, and furnish it free to country newspapers. To further these falsehoods by publication is to share the guilt of the falsifiers.

Rebuke for "Rubberers."

Down in Fowler, Kan., a few nights ago an evangelist who was conducting meetings became very much exasperated by reason of folks coming in late and because the congregation turned around to look whenever there was a new advent. On this special night a man came in late and every one turned and stared.

Then the evangelist told a story: "A few years ago I was out on the prairies riding my broncho, and as I passed a prairie dog's den I saw the funniest looking thing with such big, stary eyes that I got down to investigate. I began walking around that hole and as I walked that owl's eyes kept fixed on me, but his body remained stationary. I just kept on walking, the eyes kept fixed and the body remained stationary, until, would you believe it, after I had walked around three or four times, that owl's head dropped off.

"Some of these nights," the prophet moralized, "you folks will be looking under the seats for your heads."—Kansas City Star.

Extensive Use of Telegraph.

It is about 60 years since the introduction of the electric telegraph, as the system was known in this country up to its acquisition by the post office. The lines now in existance are sufficient to go round the world 136 times. Put in other words, they would reach the moon sixteen times. The total number of offices is given at 130,000, with 160,000 apparatus, which send out annually 800,000,000 dispatches. The English, we read, make the greatest use of the Telegraph, it being estimated that for every hundred persons there are sent out 194 messages. France follows, with 151 messages, next comes Denmark, with 110, Belgium, with 104, and Germany with 91. The record telegram extended over 30,000 words. Others of 10,000 are mentioned.

Gossip and Safety.

Helty B Hart, the unknown heirs of Helty B. Hart, deceased, the unknown devisees of Helty B Hart, deceased, the unknown executors of Helty B Hart, deceased, the unknown administrators of Helty B. Hart, deceased, the names and residences of all of whom are unknown to the plaintiff, will take notice that on the 5th day of July, 1912, Martha White, Mary Victoria Davis, Lillie A. Grover and Agnes Baker, filed their petition in the Common Pleas Court of Lake County, Ohio, in Cause No. 4421 against the above named parties, claiming that plaintiffs are in the actual possession of and the owners in fee simple of the premises hereinafter described, and praying that the above named parties be compelled to show their interest, if any, in the premises hereinafter described and that such interest may be adjudged to be null and void, and that plaintiff's title may be quieted against them.

The defendants Helty B Hart, the unknown heirs of Helty B. Hart, deceased, the unknown devisees of Helty B. Hart, deceased, the unknown executors of Helty B Hart, deceased, and the unknown administrators of Helty B Hart, deceased, claim an estate or interest in the above described premises adverse to plaintiff's rights by reason of the fact that on and prior to April 1st, 1862, the defendant, Helty B Hart, was seized in fee simple of the above described premises; that on or about the 19th day of June 1861, said Helty B Hart executed to one Richard H. W. Jarvis, a certain Power of Attorney granting unto said Jarvis power to grant, sell, release and convey any lands belonging to her situated in the Western Reserve in the State of Ohio, and to make deeds therefor, which Power of Attorney is recorded in Book 8, page 37 Lake County, Ohio Records; that on the 1st day of April 1862 one H. W. Jarvis, as Agent for said Helty B. Hart executed and delivered to Ansel White, from whom the plaintiffs have derived their title to the above described premises, a deed covering said above described premises, which deed is recorded in Book 8 page 595 Lake County Ohio Records.

Said Premises are described as follows:

Situated in the Township of Willoughby, County of Lake and State of Ohio, being in township No. Nine (9) in the Tenth (10) Range of Townships in the Connecticut Western Reserve (so called), being known and designated as the East part of Lot Number Four (4) and the West part of Lot No. Five (5) in Tract Number sixteen (16) in said Township of Willoughby, and is bounded as follows, viz: North by Lake Erie, East by the East half of Lot No. Five (5), heretofore sold to Jacob Umorian, south by Lot Number Eight (8) and West by a Fifty-acre tract in said Lot Number Four (4) heretofore sold to Andrew J. Beeman, containing One Hundred and Twenty-six and Seventy-three Hundredths (126.73) acres of which Sixty six and Eighty eight Hundredths (66.88) acres are in Lot Four (4) and Fifty-nine and Eighty-five (59.85) acres are in Lot Five (5).

Plaintiffs further say that they and their immediate predecessors in title have held the actual, open, continuous, undisputed and exclusive adverse possession of the above premises for more than Twenty-one (21) years last past, to-wit, from April 1st, 1862, as to all of the above named defendants and as to all other persons.

Plaintiffs deny that any of the above named defendants have any interest in any of the above described property.

Said parties are required to answer on or before the 7th day of September, 1912.

MENTOR.

Many people are remarking: "What a peculiar summer we are having! So very warm, when it is at all warm, and then so cold perhaps the same day! No wonder there is a good deal of sickness!"

The Methodist Sundayschool picnic was the event of last week, for it turned out to be a church picnic as well, and over 150 sat down to dinner together under the ample shelter of the Mentor Park pavilion. After dinner there were numerous games and races which were much enjoyed, and acquaintances were renewed, thereby enriching life more than one can tell.

Mrs. Marion Hodges is now enjoying a visit from her sister, Mrs. Munson, whose home is in Toledo.

Mrs. Elbridge Stalohoff of Buffalo, together with her son Bruce, is a guest at her father's house at the Center.

Mr. John Frost has been quite ill we understand, and seems to be failing very fast. Mr. Frost is near the nineties, and cannot be here much longer.

The young people are to have a lawn fete on the Burridge lot again this year, and we hear the same complaint as last year, namely that there is not half enough room for such an affair, and "Why in thunder don't they buy that Oliver lot anyway?"

Our Lake county treasurer is spending his summer vacation at Mt. Clemens, a favorite resort with Mentor folks.

Mrs. Forest White of Cleveland, is enjoying a short visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Howard, for a few days.

Mr. Henry Everett has begun drilling for gas, we understand, and that all the hue and cry about Little Mountain oil wells means nothing more nor less than that speculators are after natural gas in this county knowing well that the supply is getting painfully low in Pennsylvania, and this region would supply a good field if only enough of the stuff could be found to pay for piping as far as Cleveland. In that case Painesville and Mentor, being near by, would hope to get much cheaper fuel.

Mr. Joseph Trabert is away on vacation and the market at the West end of the village is being cared for by Charles Searles and his son.

Mr. and Mrs. William Gable of West Virginia, have recently been guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Glenn and family for a few days.

The first meeting of the Miscellany club is to be held at the home of Mrs. Gilbert in West Mentor, and is to be a social affair, with but one paper, and the roll call responded to by naming summer play grounds of America. The programs are very satisfactory. Canada is to be studied as "miscellaneous" and has been honored by having her national emblem, the Maple leaf, emblazoned on the outside of the covers.

Mrs. Warren Rexford spent Saturday at Helsley with her niece, Mrs. Hayden.

The society of Latter Day Saints of Kirtland, held their summer picnic at Mentor Park on Thursday last. Nothing could be more annoying to these neighbors than to be called Mormons, and really it isn't a bit fair, for they are not.

Mr. Arthur Baxter of Lorain, a former Mentor gentleman, was in our village one day last week, calling on friends.

Miss Frances Case goes to one of the hospitals in the city this week for an operation for tonsilitis and other throat troubles.

Mrs. Jackett went to a hospital on Saturday expecting to remain some weeks there, and her mother, Mrs. Cassius Harris, is with her most of the time, we understand.

Miss Carleton and Miss Dresskol of Willoughby are now guests at the hospitable home of Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Carleton.

Quite a number of our people attended the Plains lawn fete last week, and came away as enthusiastic as ever over the splendid chicken pie supper they found waiting them down there.

The Star Baking Co. of Cleveland has added another delivery wagon to its equipment here.

Mrs. Arthur Hart is spending a restful two weeks we are told up at Lakeside, and that she was accompanied there by her daughter, Mrs. Ed Markell and her two little folks.

Mrs. Raymond Rush of Hudson, is visiting her sister, Mrs. Harry King, at Southwood, and Miss Louise Ellsworth, a niece of Mrs. King, is also a guest there.

At the last school board election Mr. John Miller was elected in the place of Mr. Norman Frost, whose time had expired, and Mr. James Campbell has succeeded Mr. Lamereaux.

Mrs. Frank Hardy of Chicago and her daughter, have recently been the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Galen Tower for several days.

Mrs. Doctor Lowe has returned from making a short visit with her only sister, Mrs. V. J. Fitzsimmons, of Geneva.

Mrs. Delia Tyler Corning has completed her stay with friends here and returned to her Collinwood home.

Mrs. Ira Woodruff has been the guest of her daughter, Mrs. Hart Mynderse, for some weeks and is soon to be with her son Fred Woodruff and his family, who are on the Warren Dickey farm, where she will be pleased to meet old friends.

The very thriving Young People's Branch here in Mentor, enjoyed a straw ride down to the Lake one evening last week, the better to get acquainted with the two young preachers and their two young brides.

The next missionary meeting is to be held on the afternoon of the 8th at the home of Miss Nellie Rexford, when Miss Richmond and Mrs. B. A. Smith will have charge of the program.

The Chagrin Falls new owner of the Webster place, more generally spoken of as the Wallace Dille place, is still making improvements in and around the premises, shingling the house at present, but no one seems to know whether he intends coming here for a permanent home, or whether he is just putting the property in shape for renting.

Mrs. Likens, the old lady who fell and broke her hip recently, is getting along nicely, and has no idea, we are told, of giving up and remaining a helpless invalid all the rest of her days. Such pluck in a lady of over 80 years is as unusual as it is commendable.

Miss Luella Kerr still continues slowly to improve, much to the joy of her many friends.

Mrs. Robert Case has returned from spending a few days with old friends and relatives down in Hudson.

Miss Whitmarsh of Polk, Pa., is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Charles Glenn.

Mrs. Ben Ruetenik of Goodhold farm, is enjoying a visit at date from her sister, whose home is in Cincinnati.

Miss Elizabeth Pease, a teacher in Brookline Mass., is the guest of Mrs. T. D. Morley at Cheney Wold, and also of her sister, Mrs. Charles Church, both of whom were school mates in Willoughby at one time.

If you are a housewife you cannot reasonably hope to be healthy or beautiful by washing dishes, sweeping, and doing housework all day, and crawling into bed dead tired at night. You must get out into the open air and sunlight. If you do this every day and keep your stomach and bowels in good order by taking Chamberlain's Tablets when needed, you should become both healthy and beautiful. For sale by all druggists.

Detecting Shortcomings

Do you wish to find out a person's weak points? Note the failings he has the quickest eye for in others. They may not be the very failings he is himself conscious of, but they will be their next-door neighbors. No man keeps such a jealous lookout as a rival.—J. C. and A. W. Hare.

Enormous Loss by Fire.

Fire losses and the cost of the fire prevention in the United States amount annually to $450,000,000, or more than the total production of gold, silver, copper and petroleum in a year.

Killed With Billiard Ball.

M. Lefant and M. Molfant in September, 1843, quarreled over billiards and forthwith selected the balls of that game for a duel. They drew lots for the first throw. Molfant won, and so accurate was his aim that his missile struck Lefant in the forehead, killing him instantly.

During the summer months mothers of young children should watch for any unnatural looseness of the bowels. When given prompt attention at this time serious trouble may be avoided. Chamberlain's Cholic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy can always be depended upon. For sale by all dealers.

FOR AWKWARD SQUAD

DRILL SERGEANT'S ADVICE TO THE MILITIA RECRUIT.

Instructions for the Making of a Good Soldier That Contain Much Valuable Inside Information Couched in Homely Phraseology.

Instructions to a newly enlisted man, just published, issued for the information of the organized militia of New York, contains some interesting inside information.

Adjutant General Verbeck states in a foreword that the instructions are couched in a homely phraseology, such as a drill sergeant might use in a talk to a recruit in whom he is interested.

Here, then, is the drill sergeant to action:

"Don't get mad because you don't understand the reason for a command. It may have a deeper meaning than you can fathom. Just do it and let it go at that.

"The object of drill and discipline is not to worry you. The captain is not sitting up all night to invent contraptions to persecute you.

"If you are weak and easily thrown off your base, get back into control of yourself as quickly as you can. If you are the kind that boils over at the slightest rubbing the wrong way, put up the bluff that you are cool as a cucumber. Disguise your anger.

"Don't stay mad long; it uses up too much energy. Save your energy as you would ammunition. Remember that it is a sign of strength to hide your temper. Don't copy after some few officers who bluster and storm with brave oaths. They peter out on the firing line. Hot heads make cold feet. Be afraid of the quiet kind.

"Rub yourself off the slate and you'll get along with the men of your company. It is only the conspicuous, fresh recruit who talks too much with his mouth that is sent on errands for 'skirmish line,' 'saber ammunition,' 'tent wrenches' and other imaginary ordnance property.

"If you are easy going and a good sport, you will take these harmless jokes to a good natured way and get along with your bunkie and other comrades. If you can control your temper and have the nerve to stand a little teasing without sputtering, you won't run up against any of the cheap, high school variety of hazing.

"Wear your hat straight on your head, not cocked saucily on the side. Don't wear it on the back of the head. Don't stick cartridges in the hatband. Don't have the service hat used as an autograph album.

"Learn to stand steadily, not like a ramrod, but without strain. Don't spit in ranks; don't wiggle. Don't follow the inspector with your eyes.

"When your company is dismissed from drill, don't turn a handspring, howl with joy or fire off blank cartridges. On the other hand, don't limp off, cussing out your captain, thus advertising that you are all in. Just disappear, evaporate.

"Don't roll up your shirt sleeves unless you are doing dirty work and want them kept clean. Never point your gun at anyone. Keep it locked. You must habitually imagine that it is loaded. When you are on the range, keep the bolt drawn back except when you are actually shooting.

"Don't fence with your bayonet or swing it about recklessly, as it is as sharp as a razor.

"Initiative tells you what to do and when to do it. It's the brains in the head, not in the heels. It's the stuff out of which captains are made. When you're in the trenches and you can't hear yourself think for the rattle, it tells you when to cease firing and when to dash forward, stooping low to the ground until you come to the next cover. Initiative tells you when you're to 'follow me.' It dopes out the plan. It carries it out. Initiative is the happy thought put into action.

"Obedience, nerve and initiative, but the greatest of these is initiative."

Mother's Only Chance.

John, the twelve-year-old son of a widely known corporation lawyer of Kansas City whose public life often brings his picture in the daily press, caused his father much amusement and pride when he returned home from school the other night. Running to his father the boy pointed to a picture of himself printed in the daily paper.

"Pa, I guess I can get my picture in the paper, too," the boy proudly said. "I won the first prize in the school debate."

The boy's mother came up and laughingly said: "Well, I do not think that is fair. Your papa has his picture in the paper so many times, and here you begin. What can I do to get my picture published?"

The boy pondered a moment and then said: "Well, mama, I guess you will have to start taking patent medicine. You can get your picture in the paper then."

Hardness of a Diamond.

A carpenter runs his plane over a piece of wood and out come the pretty curly shavings. Now if a plane is made with a diamond blade instead of a steel blade, and the blade is set just right, the plane when run over glass will turn out fine, thin shavings, something like those made by a plane on wood. This gives some idea of the wonderful hardness of a diamond, yet there is something harder than a diamond; it is another diamond or even the same diamond, for a diamond may be extra hard in one part and not so hard in another part.

Some Good in Family Quarrels.

"Family quarrels," remarked the social observer, "are not always such a bad thing, for by them the surcharged air is cleared, and, after the mental bruises have healed, either peace is complete, or there has been made a good riddance of some bad rubbish."

Turkey Behind the Times.

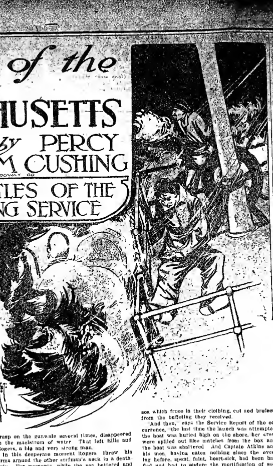
HEROIC BATTLES OF THE LIFE-SAVING SERVICE



© by Ridgway Co

IF YOU run through the history of the United States life saving service you will find that, with the exception of occasional widely separated years, the coast of Massachusetts lays claim to more disasters than any stretch of seaboard within the scope of beach patrol, Long Island and New Jersey not excepted. This is partly on account of the particularly heavy sea-traffic in the vicinity, but it is chiefly due to Cape Cod. It is this crooked finger of land that has beckoned a thousand ships to their doom and which in the hollows of its dunes holds many a tragic story of lives snuffed out in desperate grapple with wave and wind.

The night of Tuesday, March 11, 1902, was wild and storm-strewn. Running up along the coast, the ocean-going tug Sweepstakes was making bad weather with her tow of the two big barges, Wadena and John C. Fitzpatrick. For hours the triple-expansion engines of the tug had been churning her screw in the drift of the heavy head sea and shortly before daylight her captain discovered that she was making no headway. He then decided to lie to and, while feeling about for an anchorage in the gloom, the barges ran aground on the edge of Shovelful Shoal, off the southern end of Monomoy island, Massachusetts.

When daylight came, the crew of the Monomoy life saving station boarded the barges, but finding it impossible to float them on the flood tide, took their crews ashore.

It was six days later that the disaster occurred. Wreckers sent from Boston were at work on the barges. The tug Peter Smith was on the ground, having replaced the Sweepstakes. On the night of the 16th the weather thickened and a gale swept in from the sea.

The night passed without incident, but early on the morning of the 17th Keeper Eldridge of the Monomoy station received a telephone from the captain of the Smith asking him if everything was all right on the Wadena. This alarmed Eldridge, as he did not know any one had been left on the barge all night. He started at once for the point of the island, three miles away, to look over the situation. The Wadena lay half a mile off shore from the point. She seemed to be riding easily on the bar, but the distress was flying from her rigging. This was a signal Eldridge could not ignore.

It was a terrific pull through the breakers that rolled in across the shoals to the Wadena, but the life-savers accomplished it and put their boat under the lee of the barge at about noon. Keeper Eldridge then directed the men to get into the surfboat and told them that he would take them ashore. The rail of the big barge was a dozen feet from the water and it was here that the trouble began.

The men on the barge lowered themselves overside on a rope, but as Captain Olsen, a very large man, was halfway down, he lost his hold and fell on the second thwart of the lifeboat, breaking it, and making it impossible for the rowers to use it. In addition, the boat was crowded and the wind, which had been momentarily increasing, was tumbling huge combers into the windward of the barge. It was into this maelstrom of breakers that it was necessary for the handicapped crew of the life-saving station to pull their overloaded boat, and they made a swift and able attempt to accomplish it. At the instant the starboard oarsmen were swinging the head of the life-boat to meet the sea, a giant comber lifted under the quarter and dashed a barrel of water overside. That was the signal for a panic among the rescued men that, before it subsided, cost twelve lives.

The Portuguese wreckers, in a frenzy of fear, stood up in the boat, rocking it to and fro in their endeavors to escape the momentary inrush of water, and though the life-savers fought to force them into the bottom of the craft, this could not be done before the next shouldering wave caught the bow of the boat, swung her broadside and turned her over.

Then ensued a desperate struggle for life. A hundred yards to leeward the breakers were smashing themselves into white foam on the bar. There was just one chance in a million that the boat could be righted before the sea carried her into them. Once she reached them it would be all over. Hampered by the wreckers, the life-savers fought desperately in those few minutes left before the combers should be reached. Three times they righted the boat and strove heroically to bail her, but each time she was again overturned. They were fighting the last tragic fight when they were swept into the smothering foam of the bar.

At that instant seven men, including all from the Wadena, went to face their maker. Five of the hardiest of the life-savers still clung to the capsized boat. They were Keeper Eldridge and Surfmen Ellis, Kendrick, Foye and Rogers. By a superhuman effort Kendrick crawled to the bottom of the overturned craft, but the next sea swept him to join the seven who had gone a moment before. Foye was the next. "Good-by, boys," he gasped as a smother of foam took him. That left Ellis, Rogers and Eldridge the keeper, and Eldridge was fast losing strength.

In a brief lull in the wash of the sea Ellis crawled to the bottom of the boat. Below him, a foot away, was the keeper, a friend since boyhood. At the risk of his own life, Ellis dropped into the water again, pushed Eldridge up on the bottom with his last strength, and again crawled out himself. The next second a sea washed both off and the keeper, after losing and regaining his grasp on the gunwale several times, disappeared in the maelstrom of water. That left Ellis and Rogers, a big and very strong man.

In this desperate moment Rogers threw his arms around the other surfman's neck in a death grip. For moments, while the sea battered and the foam strangled them, they fought the last grim fight for life, Ellis to break the grip of his frenzied comrade, Rogers to retain it. Suddenly, when it seemed that both must drown, Rogers' strength left him. His arms relaxed; his eyes glazed. "I'm going!" he gasped and sank.

A moment later the boat drifted inshore of the outer breakers and for a brief space was in smoother water. Ellis once more crawled out on the bottom and succeeded in pulling the centerboard out so that he could hold on to it and better maintain his position.

Now you will remember that at the time of the stranding of the Wadena, the John C. Fitzpatrick, her sister barge had also gone aground. She had gone over the outer bar and was lying between it and the inner breakers. On board her was Capt. Elmer F. Mayo, of Chatham, who was in charge of lightening her. The Fitzpatrick was so far away from the Wadena that Captain Mayo, and two other men who were with him, did not see the life-saving boat go out, nor did they have any knowledge of the grim tragedy that was being enacted, until, glancing over the rail, Captain Mayo saw an overturned life-boat with a single man clinging to it.

The capsized boat was some distance from the barge, but Mayo did not hesitate. "I'll get that fellow," he announced coolly.

On the deck of the Fitzpatrick lay a small twelve-foot dory, the only boat aboard, a totally unfit craft for the furious sea that was thundering across the shoals. Kicking off his boots, Mayo and the other men, who begged him not to go as it would be certain death, ran the dory overside.

How the captain of the wrecking crew kept his fragile craft afloat, those who watched him from the Fitzpatrick could never understand. But he did keep her afloat, and the set of the tide and the gale carried him down toward the capsized life-boat to which Ellis clung now with the last of his ebbing strength.

The life-saver said afterward that he saw a dory thrown over the side of the Fitzpatrick as he drifted near her, but that a moment later the scud and the spindrift were driven so thick and ceaselessly before his eyes that he saw nothing, until suddenly out of the mist a tiny, bobbing boat loomed a dozen feet away. Then the occupant of this boat shot her skilfully alongside the swamped life-boat and the exhausted surfman toppled into her.

Mayo, with the half-conscious life-saver lying limp in the bottom of the dory, had kept his word to his mates on the Fitzpatrick.

Necessarily, the most thrilling stories of the coast-watchers are those in which loss of life is entailed and therefore, in a measure, they are accounts of the failures of the men of the service. But they are stories of noble failures and behind some of them lie tragedies other than those of death.

Perhaps one of the greatest of these is woven about the career of Captain David H. Atkins, until November 30, 1880, keeper at the Peaked Hill Bar station, Cape Cod.

This man had followed the sea from boyhood, whaling, fishing and coasting. In 1872 he became keeper of the Peaked Hill Bar station.

Then came a wild day in April, 1879, and as it appears in the chronicles of the department at Washington, a blot fell across the record of Keeper Atkins.

On this April day the Schooner Sarah J. Fort stranded near Peaked Hill Bar. A terrific sea, coupled with an onshore hurricane and a temperature very low for the time of the year, faced Atkins and his crew as they discovered the schooner and took their apparatus to the beach.

Without hesitation the keeper ordered the surfboat launched, but the sea was so heavy that it was thrown back on the beach. Time and again in the twenty hours of watching and battling with the storm that followed the keeper led his men into the breakers with the boat, but each time they were beaten back, drenched with the winter sea which froze in their clothing, cut and bruised from the buffeting they received.

"And then," says the Service Report of the occurrence, "the last time the launch was attempted the boat was hurled high on the shore, her crew were spilled out like matches from the box and the boat was shattered. And Captain Atkins and his men, having eaten nothing since the evening before, spent, faint, heart-sick, had been baffled and had to endure the mortification of seeing a rescue effected by an unworn volunteer crew in a fresh boat brought from the town. The investigation revealed that the men upon the wreck might have been properly landed by the life-lines but for Keeper Atkins' failure to employ the Lyle gun which had recently been furnished the station, through a singular inapprehension of its powers."

It was a bitter pill for the service—the defeat of its men by a volunteer crew.

The night of November 30, 1880, was clear but windy. A heavy gale was piling the surf over the outer bar off the Peaked Hill Bar station. Surfmen Fisher and Kelley left the station at four o'clock to make the eastward and westward patrol. Kelley started from the door first. As he did so he heard the slatting of sails and the banging of blocks above the wind. At the westward he saw the lights of a vessel close inshore.

Shouting to Fisher to give the alarm, he ran down the beach, burning his Coston light. Keeper Atkins glanced at the surf and ordered out the boat. The men dragged it eastward until they were opposite the stranded vessel, which proved to be the sloop C. E. Trumbull of Rockport. The crew manned the boat.

The story of what took place out there under the darkness on Keeper Atkins' last errand of rescue is best told, perhaps, in the personal account of Isaiah Young, one of the survivors. The narrative of this man, in his own words, is taken from the Life Saving Report of 1881. It reads:

"When we launched, the vessel was still some to the eastward. We went off in this manner to take advantage of the tide that was running to the eastward between the bar and the shore. It was low tide. The sea was smooth on the shore, but on the bar, where the vessel lay, it was rough enough to be dangerous.

"We hauled up from the boat until the bow lapped on to her quarter. Keeper Atkins called to them to jump in.

"We landed four persons. This trip could not have consumed more than fifteen minutes.

"When we pulled up again, after being thrown back, Taylor stood in the bow with the line ready to heave. I cautioned Keeper Atkins to have a care for the boom. He said, 'Be ready with the boat-hook; I will look out for the boom.' I was just taking up the hook when a sea came around the stern, threw the stern of the boat more toward the boom as the vessel rolled to leeward and the boom went into the water.

"As the vessel rolled to windward and the boom rose it caught under the cork belt near the stroke rowlock and threw us over, bottom up.

"We rolled the boat over, right side up, and I was the first to get into her. Others got in; I am not positive how many. She did not keep right side up more than two minutes when a sea rolled us over again. We got on again and were washed off two or three times before I struck out for the shore. I asked Mayo to strike with me, as I knew him to be an excellent swimmer, but he said that we could not hold out to reach the shore and he would stay by the boat. Keeper Atkins was holding by the boat.

"Kelley had already struck out. I heard Taylor groan near me as I started, but did not see him.

"I saw a gap in the beach which must have been Clare Bell Hollow, two miles from Station No. 7. When about three seas from the shore my sight began to fail and soon I could see nothing, but I kept swimming.

"I recollect Surfman Cole saying, 'For God's sake, Isaiah, is this you?' and of his taking me up. I knew nothing more until I found myself in the station, after being resuscitated. I should think that I remained by the boat half an hour before I struck out. The cork belt was all that enabled me to reach the shore. The cork belts in the boat are a good thing and should be kept on."

Thus Keeper Atkins died with his boots on, as he said he would die if necessary, in the performance of his duty.

"Potato King" a Japanese

George Shima Cultivates His California Acres Scientifically and With Profit.

If present indications do not fail, George Shima, the Japanese potato grower of the delta section west of Stockton, Cal., will realize about one-half million dollars net from ten thousand acres this season.

Many other seasons during the past dozen years have ceded with Mr. Shima many thousands of dollars ahead for his few months of activity. When it is remembered that only a few years ago this Japanese grower of today was a laborer working in the spud fields, the worth of the present grower, who is frequently heralded as the "potato king," and accredited with having a corner on the market, will be more readily recognized.

Shima is not a speculator—he is a producer. He has good business sense and sells when the market is high, rather than when glutted and low. He takes advantage of the season by storing his yields when prices are poor and hastening them to market when quotations are in his favor.

He chooses good lands, cultivates them scientifically and uses brains and industry in everything that he does. Between his potato crops he gets more out of the land than others, because, with intelligent effort, he plants beans, onions and other rotating crops, and so conducts his vast acreage that every minute of the year it is income property; and while he is getting all out of the soil that it will produce by scientific methods of cultivation he at no time impoverishes it.

A Paradox.

"There is one thing I certainly do not understand."

"What is that?"

"When a man is too deep for people, they say he is over their heads."

Health & Beauty Hints

By Katherine Morton

While not perfumes exactly, toilet waters are always scented, and their use is very beneficial to the skin, particularly in the summer, when it needs all the refreshment it can get. The scented waters are diluted with plain water for use, for some of the vinegars are so strongly perfumed as to seem disagreeable when used full strength.

Of all the fragrant toilet waters none is so much used as rose water, and when this is pure it possesses the greatest cosmetic virtues. One formula for this delicious toilet water calls for four pounds of rose petals and ten quarts of water. The water is first distilled and then poured cold upon the petals, which are shaken around in the liquid. Then the vessel is loosely covered and put in a cool, dark place for several weeks, until the liquid becomes odorous. Then it is again distilled, and the drippings are gathered in small bottles and closely corked.

Another formula calls for putting the rose petals in an earthern jar and covering them with a weak brine of common salt. The roses may be gathered every day, and the petals added as they come handy.

An improved still can be made by fastening an India rubber tube to the spout of a tea kettle and passing it through cold water to condense the steam. The distillate, or drippings should be received in a glass or earthen receptacle; for if toilet waters come in contact with copper, zinc or lead, they will oxidize the metals. Stills for home use, however, can be bought very cheaply in the shops—from a dollar and a half up.

Many other garden blooms with pungent odors, or even faintly delicate ones, can be used for exquisite and helpful toilet waters—mignonette, lilies of the valley, clove-pinks, valerian, heliotrope, honeysuckle, violets, gardenias, jasmine, etc. In New Orleans and Charleston Creole ladies often drop the more richly scented blooms into pure alcohol, allowing them to digest or soak in the spirits, when the odor thoroughly permeates the alcohol.

A toilet liquid much used by the ladies of the olden times, and often called to this day "angel water," is much esteemed for its beauty value. It can be made at home in the following manner:

| | |
|---|---|
| Rose-water | 8 ounces |
| Orange-flower water | 5 ounces |
| Myrtle water | 2½ ounces |
| Essence of ambergris | 1 drachm |
| Essence of musk | ½ drachm |

Mingle the various substances and agitate the bottle for several hours, continuing the shaking during the day quite frequently for some weeks. Keep the bottle closely stoppered and in a warm, dark place. Let it stand for two weeks or longer, then decant the liquid, and if it is not perfectly clear filter it. Properly made, angel water should be almost colorless.

There are many uses for bay rum, one being that it is admirable for massaging the scalp after the shampoo, when one is likely to catch cold or the hair needs some little dressing to keep it in order. But if it is used too often or too lavishly on the head it will dry out the locks. Bay rum of a very good sort is cheap enough at the drug store, but if one is clever at turning out beauty preparations this formula would give about as pure a thing as could be had:

| | |
|---|---|
| Oil of bay | 240 grains |
| Oil of orange | 18 grains |
| Oil of pimenta | 16 grains |
| Alcohol | 1 quart |
| Water | 25 fluid ounces |

Dissolve the oils in the alcohol, add the water. Then stir into the liquid about two ounces of precipitated phosphate of lime and filter. This will improve with age.

Timely Advice and Hints for the Hostess

By Mme. MERRI

Gift for a Man.

Will you name a few articles that a young woman may with propriety give to a man who is about to leave for a distant city to study law?

SWEET SIXTEEN.

It is supposed that the man in question will have a "den" of some description and there are a number of things to provide which are useful as well as ornamental. For instance, a bronze incense burner to hold cigar ashes, a stunning metal desk set, a brass candlestick with a bayberry candle, a metal letter holder, book ends of wood or metal, a framed sentiment, etc. In fact, there is almost no limit to acceptable objects outside of the ever-present pillow, of which, like teaspoons for a girl, "there can never be too many."

Send Self-Addressed Stamped Envelope.

I find your department very helpful. I would like to know of a book of nice parlor games that could be played at house parties for boys and girls.

A CONSTANT READER.

There are several books of games and amusements intended to help those who entertain but who have little time or thought to give to the matter. Just send me a self-addressed envelope in care of the paper (stamped) and I will send you the names and prices of three or four.

Card to Send With Flowers.

Will you please tell me what to write on a card to send with flowers when a death occurs?

ANXIOUS TO KNOW.

Your card if sent from the florist with the flowers which you order by telephone or mail need have nothing upon it beside your name, but if you wish you may send a card which has pencilled upon it "With deep sympathy" or "Accept our sincere sympathy in this your great sorrow."

Where to Send the Present.

I have received so much help by reading your page that I come to you now.

My brother will marry in the fall, as he will go to our home and I am not able to go to the wedding shall I send the present home or give it to them when they come back to the city?

ENGIE.

Seems to me as long as the bridal couple are to make their home in the same town that I would wait and give them your gift when they arrive, as it will save them packing it and bringing back with them. However, it will be perfectly proper to send it to the bride before the wedding if you prefer.

Reply E. L. O.

A girl only twelve years old is entirely too young to have a beau or go to dances. Perhaps young people think I am too strict, but remember I have been over the road and know and a girl loses all her freshness and attractiveness by going out when she should be in bed by eight o'clock.

From a Mere Man.

Will you kindly advise me the duties of the "best man" at a home wedding? I am to wear a dress suit. Will you state the accessories that go with it?

HARRY.

The best man is supposed to be the moral support and adviser of the bridegroom, he sees to the details, such as having the necessary credentials at hand required by the state and clergyman, pays the latter, stands by the bridegroom and enters with him; he takes the maid of honor (if there is one) under his especial protection after the ceremony. In fact, he is supposed to be the official thinker for the bridegroom. Pearl studs and cuff links, a white bow tie, white kid gloves and white waistcoat, with patent leather pumps, go with full evening dress.

The Proper Thing to Do.

Being in doubt I come to your helpful department for information. Is it necessary to write anything upon the card that is sent with a wedding gift? If so, what? Must an invitation to a wedding be acknowledged?

A. O.

It is not necessary to say anything on the card, on the other hand, it is perfectly proper to do so. The words "Sincere good wishes" or "Hearty congratulations" seem to bring the donor into closer touch with the recipient, but as with all things, this is a matter of personal feeling. Dame Curtsey has said time and again that an invitation to a home wedding demanded an immediate "acceptance" or "regret" the same as for any social function at a home. A wedding at the church does not require a reply.

Reply to "Miss Anxious."

Nineteen is decidedly too young for a man to think of matrimony and really too young for a girl; one month is not much difference in ages, but I think it is usually more satisfactory to have the husband a few years older.

A man should place his hat on the floor, it is not the girl's place to hold it.

Some men have time to call after taking a girl to a party, but it is not necessary.

Sleeve holders are an appropriate gift.

Be careful with your kisses.

Reply to "A Boy."

If a girl turns you down because you are financially embarrassed, I think you need not worry about losing her friendship. When one is in trouble is when one's friends should stand by them.

MME. MERRI.

New Color Schemes.

Navy blue and violet are dominating colors in millinery, and are mixed very artistically with light threads of cerise, orange, green and gray straw. Even the new flowers show the influence of these contrasting mixtures, and often some novelties in their arrangements.

Poppies of shot taffetas succeed the white poppies of velvet. Each petal rests on another large petal of green crepe de chine, forming a border all round, while the heart or center of the flower is in ostrich feathers, either black or yellow. This is an amusing novelty for the spring millinery.

Use of Gold.

Gold is immensely used in ordinary dress this season, and gold shoes with stockings of the same tint are among the most noticeable contents of shoemakers' windows; also pale lemon colored stockings and shoes in suede to match. There never was a period in which the details of dress were more insisted upon than our own; it all adds to the cost of a very luxurious age.

ONLY THING IS TO FIND HER

Every Man Has an Affinity Somewhere on the Earth, Is a Law of Nature.

Every man has a best girl waiting for him somewhere in the world. The moment that he is born, the catalogue clerk in Time's great factory assigns him to a best girl or else puts him on the waiting list.

There is no escaping your best girl. No matter where she may be born or how far apart from her you were when you started, the inevitable attraction will work your destiny, and when you meet you will both know it.

All that is lacking is the material realization, and inasmuch as all ideas eventually find their way to the surface, yours is bound to come.

Sometimes a man's best girl is homely; sometimes her mouth is not a cupid's bow, and her features are irregular; that makes no difference; he will love her just the same when he meets her.

Also, she may be another man's wife. Such things have been known.

Here's hoping that it will not happen to you.—Life.

Just So He Sold It.

Lady of the House—Why, I wouldn't read the book if I subscribed for it.

Book Agent—That's all right, ma'am. We don't put that clause in the contract.

Couldn't Signal.

An old darky with an old gray mule hitched to a ramshackle wagon stood on the incline of Capitol hill, in Washington, during one of the worst sleet storms in January.

The old man huddled in his rabbit skin cap shivering, the mule trembling with the cold. Two congressmen, waiting for a belated car, were attracted by the strange outfit and wondered, as time went on and the darky made no effort to depart, what ailed the old fellow.

One of the congressmen walked over and said: "Why don't you move on, uncle?"

The old darky pointed a trembling finger at his "team" and replied: "'Cause dis yere mule won't go 'les' I whistle at him, and it's so cold I cayn't whistle!"—Everybody's.

Jolt to Romance.

"How about that young doctor? Has he proposed?"

"Not yet. Papa nearly ruined everything last night."

"How was that?"

"Just as the doctor was pleading for a peep at my eyes, papa came in and asked him to take a look at my tonsils."

The Sad Part of It.

"Oh, you will learn to forget me in time," she said.

"I know I shall," he replied, "but I shall never forget the money I have spent trying to make you think me a prince."

An Ominous Assurance.

"I think," said the young statesman, "that some of my speeches will be recalled with interest in years to come."

"They will," replied Senator Sorghum, "unless you are exceptionally lucky."

SYNOPSIS.

Dan Blair, the 22-year-old son of the fifty-million-dollar copper king of Blairtown, Mont., is a guest at the English home of Lady Galorey. Dan's father had been courteous to Lord Galorey during his visit to the United States and the courtesy is now being returned to the young man. The [illegible] in his mind. He meets Lily, Duchess of Breakwater, a beautiful widow, who is attracted by his immense fortune and takes a liking to her. When Dan was a boy, a girl sang a solo at a church, and he had never forgotten her. The Galoreys, Lily and Dan attend a London theater where one Letty Lane is the star. Dan recognizes her as the girl from his town, and going behind the scenes introduces himself and she remembers him. He learns that Prince Poniotowsky is suitor and escort to Letty. Lord Galorey and a friend named Ruggles determine to protect the westerner from Lily and other fortune hunters. Young Blair goes to see Lily; he can talk of nothing but Letty and this angers the Duchess. The westerner finds Letty ill from hard work, but she recovers and Ruggles and Dan invite her to supper. She asks Dan to build a home for disappointed theatrical people. Dan visits Lily, for the time forgetting Letty, and later announces his engagement to the duchess. Letty refuses to sing for an entertainment given by Lily. Galorey tells Dan that all Lily cares for is his money, and it is disclosed that he and the duchess have been mutually in love for years. Letty sings at an aristocratic function, Dan escorting her home. Dan confronts Galorey and Lily together. Later he informs Letty that his engagement with Lily is broken, asks the singer to marry him, and they become engaged. Ruggles thinks the westerner should not marry a public singer, and endeavors to induce Letty to give him up. She runs away, fearing she is not good enough for Dan, and Ruggles makes the latter believe she has abandoned his love. Finally Dan finds Letty in Paris, where he is persistent in pressing his suit. The westerner meets Poniotowsky at Letty's rooms and a challenge results. Dan, with his mind in a turmoil, arranges for the duel.

CHAPTER XXIX.—Continued.

One of his companions offered Blair a cigar. He refused, the idea sickened him. Here the gentlemen exchanged glances, and one murmured: "Is he afraid?"

The other shrugged.

"Not astonishing—he's a child."

At this Dan glanced up and smiled—what Lily, Duchess of Breakwater, had called his divine young smile. The two secretly were ashamed—he was charming.

As they got out of the motor Dan said:

"I want to ask a question of Prince Poniotowsky—if it is allowed. I'll write it on my card."

After a conference between Prince Poniotowsky's seconds and Dan's, the slip was handed the prince.

"If you get out all right, will you marry Miss Lane? I shall be glad to know."

The Hungarian, who read it under the tree, half smiled. The naivete of it, the touching youth of it, the crude lack of form—was perfect enough to touch his sense of humor. On the back of Dan's card Poniotowsky scrawled:

"Yes."

It was a haughty inclination, a salute of honor before the fight.

The meeting place was within sight of the little rustic pavilion of Les Trois Agneaux, celebrated for its pre salé and beignets; the advertisements had confronted Dan everywhere during his wanderings these miserable days. Under a group of chestnut trees in bright feathery flower Prince Poniotowsky and his seconds waited, their frock coats buttoned up and their gloves and silk hats in their hands. As Blair and his companions came up the others stood uncovered, grim and formal, according to the code.

Twenty-five paces. They were measured off by the four seconds, and at their signal Dan Blair and the prince took their positions, the revolvers raised perpendicularly in their right hands.

Still more indistinctly the boy saw the sharp-cut picture of it all . . . the diving bell was sinking deeper—deeper—into the sea.

"If I aim," he said to himself, "I shall kill sure—sure."

Blair heard the command: "Fire!" and supposed that after that he fired.

CHAPTER XXX.

Sodawater Fountain Girl.

His next sensation was that a warm stream flowed about his heart.

"My life's blood," he could dimly think, "my heart's blood." Redder than coral, more precious, more costly than any gift his millions could have bought her. "I've spent it for the girl I love." The stream pervaded him, caressed him, folded his limbs about, became an enchanted sea on which he floated, and its color changed from crimson to coral pale, and then to white, and became a cold, cold polar sea—and he lay on it like a frozen man, whose exploration had been in vain, and above him Greenland's icy mountains rose like emerald, on every side.

That is it—"Greenland's icy mountains." How she sang it—down—down. Her voice fell on him like magic balm. He was a little boy in church, sitting small and shy in the pew. The tune was deep and low and heavenly sweet. What a pretty mouth the soda-fountain girl had—like coral; and her eyes like gray seas. The flies buzzed, they droned so loudly that he couldn't hear her. Ah, that was terrible—he couldn't hear her. . . No—no, it wouldn't do. He must hear the hymn out before he died. Buzz—buzz—drone—drone! Way down he almost heard the soft note. It was ecstasy. Sky—high up—the faint. Ah, Sodawater Fountain Girl—sing—sing—with all your heart so that it may reach his ears and charm him to those strands toward which he floats.

The expression of anguish on the young fellow's face was so heartbreaking that the doctor, his ear at Dan's lips, tried to learn what thing this poor, fading mind looked for.

From the bed's foot, where he stood, Dan's chauffeur came to the gentleman's side, and nodded:

"Right, sir, right, sir—I'll fetch Miss Lane—I'll 'ave 'er 'ere, sir—keep up, Mr. Blair."

He was going barefoot, a boy still following the plow through the mountain fields. Miles and miles stretched away before him of dark, loamy land. He saw the plow tear up the waving furrows, tossing the earth in sprinkling lines. He heard the shrill note of the phoebe bird, and looking heavenward saw it darting into the pale sky.

"What a dandy shot!" he thought. "What a bully shot!"

Prince Poniotowsky had made a good shot. . . .

Ah, there was the smell of the hayfields—no—violets that sweetly laid their petals on his lips and face. He was back again in church, lying prone before an altar. If she would only sing, he would rise again—that he knew—and her coral shoes would not dance over his grave.

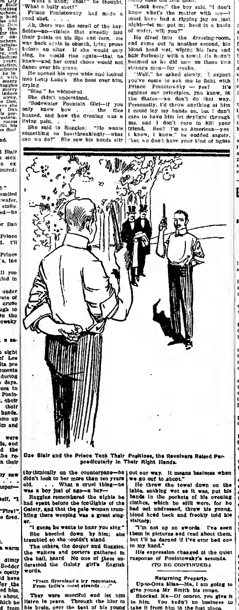
He opened his eyes wide and looked into Letty Lane's. She bent over him, crying.

"Sing," he whispered.

She didn't understand.

"Sodawater Fountain Girl—if you only knew how . . . the flies buzzed, and how the droning was a living pain. . . ."

She said to Ruggles: "He wants something so heartbreakingly—what can we do?" She saw his hands stir rhythmically on the counterpane—he didn't look to her more than ten years old. . . . What a cruel thing—he was a boy just of age—a boy—



Dan Blair and the Prince Took Their Positions, the Revolvers Raised Perpendicularly in Their Right Hands.

Ruggles remembered the nights he had spent before the footlights of the Gaiety, and that the pale woman trembling there weeping was a great singer.

"I guess he wants to hear you sing."

She kneeled down by him; she trembled so she couldn't stand.

The others, the doctor and Ruggles, the waiters and porters gathered in the hall, heard. No one of them understood the Gaiety girl's English words.

"From Greenland's icy mountains,
From India's coral strands . . ."

They were merciful and let him listen in peace. Through the blur in his brain, over the beat of his young ardent heart, above the short breaths the notes reached his failing senses, and lifted him—lifted him. There wasn't a very long distance between his boyhood and his twenty-two years to go, and he was not so weak but that he could travel so far.

He sat there by his father again—and heard. The flies buzzed, and he didn't mind them. The smell of the fields came in through the windows and the Sodawater Fountain Girl sang—and sang; and as she sang her face grew holy to his eyes—radiant with a beauty he had not dreamed a woman's face could wear. Above the choir stall she stood and sang peerlessly, and the church began to fade and fade, and still she stood there in a shaft of light; and her face was like an angel's, and she held her arms out to him as the waters rose to his lips. She bent and lifted him—lifted him high upon the strands. . . .

CHAPTER XXXI.

In Reality.

Dan awoke from his dream, and sat suddenly up in bed in his shirt sleeves, and stared at the people in his room—a hotel boy and two strangers, not unlike the men in his dream. He brushed his hand across his eyes.

"Sit down, will you? Do you speak English?"

They were foreigners, but they did speak English, no doubt far more perfectly than did Dan Blair.

"Look here," the boy said, "I don't know what's the matter with me—I must have had a ripping jag on last night—let me put my head in a basin of water, will you?"

He dived into the dressing-room, and came out in another second, his blond head wet, wiping his face and hair furiously with a towel. He hadn't beamed as he did now on these two strange men—for weeks.

"Well," he asked slowly, "I expect you've come to ask me to fight with Prince Poniotowsky — yes? It's against our principles, you know, in the States—we don't do that way. Personally, I'd throw anything at him I could lay my hands on, but I don't care to have him let daylight through me, and I don't care to kill your friend. See? I'm an American—yes I know, I know," he nodded sagely, "but we don't have your kind of fights out our way. It means business when we go out to shoot."

He threw the towel down on the table, soaking wet as it was, put his hands in the pockets of his evening clothes, which he still wore, for he had not undressed, threw his young, blond head back and frankly told his visitors:

"I'm not up on swords. I've seen them in pictures and read about them, but I'll be darned if I've ever had one in my hand."

His expression changed at the quiet response of Poniotowsky's seconds.

Up-to-Date Miss—Ma, I am going to give young Mr. Smith his congé.

Shocked Ma—Of course, you give it to him. You hadn't no business to take it from him in the first place.

Diet of the Teetotaler

He Tells What He Ate and Drank During Day of Golf and Business.

"I was just recalling what I had taken in the way of refreshment today," said a teetotaler to his wife when he came home to dinner on one of the hottest days, "and it makes me astonished that there are not more cases of upset stomachs.

"You know I got up early and went up to play golf. Well, for breakfast I had a lamb chop, cereal, coffee, toast and a couple of bananas.

"After I'd played the six 'hill' holes I had a drink of ice water, and after playing the fifteenth hole we repaired to the shanty of the flagman on the railroad and had one of his lemonades, which he makes for the thirsty golfers and through which trade he probably makes more than his wages amount to.

"After we'd finished I had a dish of ice cream and two large glasses of excellent milk. Then I took a shower bath, dressed and went down town, hurrying for a pineapple ice cream soda and a glass of ice water.

"For lunch at my usual downtown restaurant I took a lettuce and tomato sandwich, iced tea, a good sized section of watermelon and a piece of cocoanut pie. About fifteen minutes after four o'clock I took an egg chocolate at a soda fountain.

"And here I am, ready for dinner and not aware of any ill effects from the variety of foods and drinks I've taken."

A Kansas Mystery Solved.

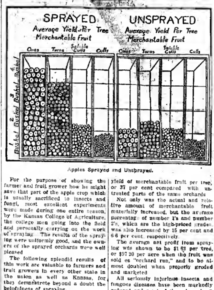
About five years ago Harry Cottman, a West Wichita grocer, missed a kit of salt mackerel from the front of his store and he never was able to trace it. Some small boys "swiped" that kit of mackerel and it is supposed they ate it, and one of the boys, now grown up to be a young man, has recently paid for it.

The young man sent a $1 bill to Mr. Cottman with a note of explanation.—Kansas City Journal.

EXPERIMENTS SHOW SPRAYING SAVES MUCH OF APPLE CROP

Results in Kansas Give Increase in Actual and Relative Amount of Fruit Raised—All Seriously Injurious Insects and Fungous Diseases Have Been Markedly Reduced.



Apples Sprayed and Unsprayed.

For the purpose of showing the farmer and fruit grower how he might save that part of the apple crop which is usually sacrificed to insects and fungi, most excellent experiments were made during one entire season, by the Kansas College of Agriculture, the college men going into the field and personally carrying on the work of spraying. The results of the spraying were uniformly good, and the owners of the sprayed orchards were well pleased.

The following splendid results of this work are valuable to farmers and fruit growers in every other state in the union as well as Kansas, for they demonstrate beyond a doubt the helpfulness of spraying.

Commercial results from seven widely separated orchards, including both commercial and home types and composed of the varieties of apples recognized as standard in Kansas, carefully sprayed showed an average gain of four bushels in actual yield of merchantable fruit per tree, or 37 per cent compared with untreated parts of the same orchards.

Not only was the actual and relative amount of merchantable fruit materially increased, but the average percentage of number 1's and number 2's, which are the high-priced grades, was also increased by 15 per cent and 6.6 per cent, respectively.

The average net profit from spraying was shown to be $1.63 per tree, or $97.20 per acre when the fruit was sold as "orchard run," and to be almost doubled when properly graded and marketed.

All seriously injurious insects and fungous diseases have been markedly reduced and most of them have been made almost negligible.

Prepared lime-sulphur plus arsenate of lead has produced the best results on apples subject to Bordeaux injury and nearly free from apple blotch, while Bordeaux mixture plus varieties attacked by apple blotch.

ECCENTRIC FARM WORK THAT PAID

English Gentleman Used Novel Method of Ridding Farm of Injurious Potato Beetle.

(By J. H. HAYNES.)

On a neighboring farm lived an English gentleman who certainly had some novel methods of working.

His farm consisted of some clay lands. In the center of this farm was a very rich, black field that had formerly been a swamp.

The soil was mainly made up of decayed vegetation, and when drained was as loose as an ash heap.

In this field he annually grew potatoes and watermelons. When the Colorado potato bug came around he headed them off in this way.

He planted the potatoes in drills and leveled the land smooth. When the potatoes began to come up he ran along the rows a cultivator and covered all the young shoots under.

In a week or so when they made a second appearance he did the same thing, using a larger shovel on the cultivator. This was done the third time using a single shovel plow which left the rows properly hilled up.

The bugs never got a chance at the potatoes—got disgusted and looked for other fields to work on.

The covering of the shoots seemed to help, for when they were let to the light and air they grew tremendously thrifty.

He raised watermelons and lots of them, but not for the usual purpose they are grown.

He pressed the juice from the melons, boiled it down in copper evaporators to a fair syrup, and with this syrup he used apples for thickening, to make apple butter, and it was of a quality hard to beat.

He supplied large quantities of it to the nearby markets and at good prices. The syrup was of finest quality and much of it was used.

Lime Sulphur as Spray.

Lime sulphur is being used more and more by orchardists as a summer spray. It is cheaper than the bordeaux mixture, does not clog the nozzles like bordeaux, and the liability of injury to the fruit from its use is much less. It is the material used for the control of San Jose scale, blister mite and leaf curl of peach in dormant sprays, and when diluted to summer strength is very effective in controlling apple scab.

CARING FOR PIGS DURING SUMMER

Business Should be Conducted in Careful and Business Like Way for Ultimate Success.

(By A. J. LEGG.)

Many farmers think that they cannot afford to feed the pigs liberally during the summer season. The pigs are allowed to shift for themselves in many instances and of course do not make much growth but one may see a pretty good profit in feeding at the present high prices of both feed and pork.

The hogs will just about live on the pasture they can gather from the field and what grain is given them goes to growth and any one who has tried it has found that only a moderate ration fed to the shoats on pasture will make a good growth throughout the season.

Early spring pigs of any good breed can be made to average a pound of gain a day by the time they are eight or ten months old and a large part of this can be made on pasture.

The pig that is fed enough food to keep it growing rapidly from the start to finish is usually the most profitable porker.

In some sections where there is sufficient waste crop to fatten the hogs it may be profitable to allow the shoats to shift for themselves.

However, usually the hogs that are allowed to shift for themselves and get fat on the waste are easy victims of cholera and swine plague. There is a section in the western part of my country in West Virginia where the hogs are allowed the free range of the forests and that locality is visited by cholera every year or two.

There are quite as many hogs that die from cholera there as ever reach the pork barrel. Hog raising as a business must be treated in a business way and if it is conducted without cost there is little profit.

If there is a fair profit in feeding hogs the business should be conducted in as careful and business like way as the feeding of cattle and sheep.

Kill Canada Thistles.

About the only way to kill a Canada thistle is to hit it with a hoe every time it comes up to breathe. If there are many of them they must be kept below the surface in some other way. If they are allowed to flourish they will develop into an enemy that will put the "yellow peril" into the shade for a while.

SUBSOILING WITH DYNAMITE

A method of subsoiling that is attracting a great deal of attention is dynamite blasting. The claim made for this practice is that it virtually changes a farm from a 6 or 8-inch layer of top soil to a 6-foot layer because of the food in the lower strata made available by blowing daylight into them. The dynamite has a three-fold effect on the soil. It not only pulverizes it, making it ideal for root growth, but it irrigates and drains it at one and the same operation. The cost of 'shooting-up' an acre of ground, labor and all included, is said to approximate $15 an acre. So far the main objection to the use of dynamite on the farm is the fear of it, says the Missouri Valley Farmer. It is dangerous unless handled right, but so is gasoline, a shotgun, or a mule for that matter. It is not exploded as easily as commonly supposed. Dropping it on the ground or similar accidents have no affect on it. The various manufacturers of the explosive issue printed instructions on the use of dynamite in farming based on tests and experiments.

The illustration shows a piece of ground before and after being treated by dynamite.

WHITE PIMPLES ON HEAD

Ransom, Ill.—"The trouble started on our baby when he was only about two weeks old. Started like little white pimples, looked like an old scab of blood and matter. His whole head was covered for a few months, then it went to his ear, shoulders, and his whole body. It seemed to come out thick and sticky on his head, while on the other parts of his body it was more like water coming out of the skin. He would scratch until the eruption would be all covered with blood and gradually spread. The least little stir or rub would cause the sores to bleed, spread and itch. Never had a full night's sleep, restless all night.

"The sores were horrid to look at. It lasted until he was about two and a half years old. Then we saw an eczema advertisement in the paper to use ——, but it did no good. Then we used Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment. We put the Cuticura Ointment on thick at bed time and put a tight hood on so he could not scratch the sores. Then we washed it clean with Cuticura Soap and warm water twice a day and he was completely cured." (Signed) Mrs. E. F. Sulzberger, Dec. 30, 1911.

Result of the Primary.

It had been a hard day at the polls. The addition of nearly a thousand women's votes to the poll made the counting a prolonged proposition.

"Well, Jemes," said Mrs. Wellichy, as her husband returned from his arduous labors as a teller, "how did the vote go?"

"Nine hundred and two votes for Bildad, seven hundred and fifty-three for Slathers, eight recipes for tomato ketchup, four wash lists and a milliner's bill," said Wellichy. "It was a mighty interesting vote."—Judge.

Ideal of the Philistine.

"What is your idea of classical music?" "Well," replied Mr. Cumrox, "I don't profess to know much about it. But it always seems to me that when a man writes classical music he simply takes a tune and sees how much he can muss it up."—Washington Star.

Diplomatic.

"All women are beautiful," declares the leading photographer of England. That's why he's the leading photographer.

Sunday Trading Discouraged.

For selling an egg and an orange to a child on a recent Sunday a dealer was fined 1s. and 9s. costs, or seven days in prison, at Berwick, Scotland. The chief constable said Sunday trading was being put down in the town and there had been complaints about the accused.

One That Trailed, Probably.

From an account of a wedding coming to the society's editor's desk: "The bride wore a beautiful white lingering gown."

A Little Bit of Love.

Is it not the deepest, bitterest cry of many a heart—"nobody cares for me!" There are hosts of men and women ready to give it, who could go bravely on in life's wind and rain, if somewhere a little bit of love awaited for them to keep the heart warm. Let us not begrudge to give this precious bit.—Mark Guy Pearse.

BELIEFS OF THE MOROCCANS

Curious Ideas of the Arabs Regarding the Earth, Sleep and Other Matters.

The Arabs at Morocco believe that the earth is balanced on the horns of a bull, which itself rests on a fish on the surface of the sea, the sea being borne up by the Divine Power. When the bull is tired he changes the earth from one horn to the other, with the result that there is an earthquake!

During sleep the soul leaves the body and visits other souls. What we see and hear whilst dreaming are the things which the soul sees and the conversations in which it takes part during its peregrinations. Consequently, we ought never to awaken a sleeper rudely, for if he happens to be dreaming at that moment his soul may not have time to return to the body, and in consequence the man will die.

Moroccan wizards contend that ghosts can only be devils, never the souls of dead people. They are human in appearance, with the exception of their eyes, which are directed downwards, and their feet, which are forked or shaped like the hoof of a camel. These ghosts speak, but they are intangible. They are of all colors—yellow, red, green, white and black—and their principal occupation consists in playing tricks on human beings.

At Marrakech there is a house in which the owners placed a bath; but they were unaware that the property belonged to the devils. A young woman came to have a bath, but no sooner had she stepped into the water than she disappeared. Hearing her cries for help, the neighbors rushed in, whereupon she appeared on the surface of the water. As soon as the people tried to seize her she disappeared, and so on for some time. There was nothing to be done but to close the house, which thus fell into the hands of the talebs, who had spread this story among the credulous population of the town for their own end.—Wide World Magazine.

The Cat of St. Paul's.

St. Paul's chapel and churchyard, at Broadway and Fulton streets, New York, have a variety of utilities. Besides being a show place of historic interest to the stranger, they give rest and soothing at the noon hour to many a weary worker in the big buildings which surround them. Not the least of their usefulness, however, in the opinion of a certain majestic Thomas cat, is that they afford a place wherein he may disport himself. He is an ornamental being of rich, golden hue, and he is by no means unaware of his beauty. With stately grace he stalks about the premises, as one who is responsible for their proper upkeep, and gazes haughtily at mere human intruders. When satisfied they are sufficiently cowed to attempt no damage to his estate he mounts a timeworn sarcophagus and curls himself up for his afternoon nap. His yellow coat, snuggled in a nest of winding ivy, fairly illumines the greenery and against the memorial slabs he presents the combination of gray and gold of which French couturieres are so fond. The verger says Thomas belongs to some tenant in one of the big office buildings, but he is a regular habitué of the churchyard.

Our Smallest Library.

A curious little building is situated at Pinebluff, North Carolina, and is believed to be the smallest public library in the world. Pinebluff is only a small place, with a population of fewer than one hundred in summer, and when the ladies of the village decided that they ought to have a public library they found themselves without a building suitable for the purpose. Finally, a gentleman offered them a band-stand which he had built in the hope that Pinebluff would soon become a city, and the offer was accepted with thanks. By giving entertainments and so on, the ladies were able to raise funds to purchase materials to fill in the openings of the band-stand, and generally fit it up into a snug little building. Over 500 books have been given and the tiny library, of which Pinebluff is very proud, is now in full working order.—From the June Wide World.

Looking for a Grievance.

There is nothing quite so easy to find as a grievance. It can be made to order in a second's time, no material other than the imagination being necessary.

By being on the watch for insults and injuries one has little time for the sweet enjoyments of life.

Plenty of work is the best remedy for sensitive individuals—work and self-control—determination and will. Half of one's griefs are only imaginary. Have you ever wished you might have returned to you the precious hours spent in suffering over nothing?

We all need work. We all need rest. But above all we need the proper light of understanding that keeps us clear from the pits of argument, the swamps of morbidness, the stumbling blocks of worry and grief.

Helpless.

"By Jove," said Binks, "that was tough. Here's a big lot of pianos destroyed by fire up in Syracuse. The fire department was utterly helpless."

"What was the trouble?" asked Zanypate, biting instantly.

"Why the hose couldn't play on the piano," explained Binks, whereupon everybody in the club was invited in to enjoy wassail at the expense of the party of the second part.—Harper's Weekly.

Getting Out of It.

When a woman is cornered and doesn't know what to say she makes a noise like a laugh.

SCORES HOWLAND

Attorney Wm. Gordon, Democratic Candidate for Congress, Stands for Tariff Reform and Gives Record of His Republican Opponent, Paul Howland.

TO THE DEMOCRATIC CONGRESSIONAL COMMITTEE, TWENTIETH CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICT OF OHIO

Gentlemen:—Having assumed, in part, the responsibility for presenting my candidacy for Congress to the people of the Twentieth Congressional District in the light most favorable to me, consistent with the facts, I desire to submit some facts and circumstances which are beyond dispute from the public record of my opponent for such use as you may deem proper in the campaign.

In the first place, I have endeavored to make my own position upon public questions now engaging the attention of the people clear beyond question, and the Democratic national platform adopted at Baltimore has my most hearty approval. I think it is a clear and explicit declaration of Democratic principles, and when contrasted with the Republican platform adopted at Chicago points out the distinction between the two parties in this campaign in a manner which leaves no excuse for a misunderstanding upon the part of any intelligent voter. The Democratic platform declares in favor of taxation for public purposes only; that there should be immediate reduction of the tariff with a view to reducing the high cost of living and in the interest of the consumer and for the purpose of relieving the public from the extortion of the trusts, which behind the shelter of the tariff wall, have artificially increased prices. The Republican platform adopted at Chicago, while admitting that the tariff is too high, fails to point out wherein it is excessive, or to furnish any definite assurance of relief to the public; in fact the Chicago platform is a stand-pat declaration of principles designed to obtain more money for campaign purposes from the protected interests and the election of Mr. James B. Reynolds, a member of Taft's Tariff Board, as secretary of the Republican National Executive Committee and President Taft's veto on all the triff bills passed by Congress in any way reducing the rates of duties in the Payne-Aldrich tariff law, furnish indisputable evidence that we are going to have another fat-frying, boodle dispensing campaign on the Republican side with money furnished by the tariff fed trusts of this country.

The present Congressman from this district, Paul Howland, is a candidate for a fourth term. His public record, upon which he is appealing to the voters is consistently one of the support of private interests and opposed to the public interest on every vital question now engaging the attention of the American people. He voted March 3, 1909, for a Ship Subsidy Bill, which would have cost the American people about $3,000,000.00 per annum and which bill was defeated in the House of Representatives by the Democratic and Independent Republican votes, although the Republicans had a majority of more than fifty in the House. He voted for the Payne-Aldrich Tariff law on July 31, 1909, and since the enactment of that law he has persistently voted against every proposition and bill designed to lessen the extortion authorized by its provisions. In the framing of the Payne-Aldrich Law Mr. Howland voted with Payne on every single schedule and item involved in the framing of that bill except the lumber schedule, and on April 9, 1909, he voted with Payne against admitting lumber from North and South America free of duty. In the special session of Congress called by President Taft in 1911 for the purpose of passing the bill providing for reciprocity with Canada, Howland voted for the President's measure, which removed the tariff from cattle, wheat and other raw farm products and then voted against the bill passed by the Democrats and Independent Republicans removing the tariff from flour and meat and also against the bill removing the tariff from articles of generl necessity used by the frmers.

He voted against the investigation of the sugar trust, he voted for schedule K which imposes a practically prohibitive duty among woolen goods, averaging nearly one hundred per cent throughout the schedule, and has since voted against every measure to reduce the rates in this schedule. He also voted for the extortionate cotton schedule of the Payne-Aldrich Law, which largely increased the rates of duties upon cotton goods and has since persistently voted against every measure introduced for the reduction of rates in this schedule, although the Tariff Board, of which he is such a strong advocate, and which board was appointed by President Taft, reported to the President that with the exception of a few of the very high priced articles of cotton manufacture, cotton goods are produced in the United States cheaper than anywhere else in the world.

Mr. Howland, during the campaign of 1910, for the purpose of obtaining votes in this district, was a strong advocate of Roosevelt and his policies. This year, for the purpose of securing his own renomination through the support of postmasters and other federal office-holders throughout the district, he advocated the renomination of President Taft. Howland's record in Washington is as reactionary as that of Cannon, Dalzell or Payne, and his vote has been cast with these gentlemen on nearly every question that has come up in Congress since he has been a member of it. For the purpose of obtaining votes he poses at home as a progressive, but his votes in Congress refute his protestations made upon the stump.

For such assistance as you gentlemen can render me in placing the facts to which I have referred before the people of the Twentieth Congressional District, I shall be profoundly grateful to you.

Very sincerely yours
WILLIAM GORDON

ABOUT PEOPLE AND PLACES.

Thomas Sutch of Willoughby, was in the city on business last Friday.

H. P. Collacott and family left Tuesday on an auto trip to Milwaukee, Wis.

—o—

There is a good time coming. It is the Perry Harvest picnic, Wednesday, Aug. 12.

—o—

W. J. Bryan will deliver an address at the Silver Lake Chautauqua in Summit county.

—o—

Eddie Francis of Toledo, is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Francis of Newell street.

—o—

Miss Hazel Downing of the Telegraph-Republican force, is taking a two-weeks' vacation.

—o—

Messrs. Thayer and Collister have charge of the repair work at the High school building.

—o—

It is not so much the high cost of living as the cost of high living that's keeping many people poor.

—o—

We are looking forward to the day when Frank Crofoot will be appointed receiver for the Republican party.

—o—

The Herald is always glad to receive local items of general interest. If you know of news tell us about it.

—o—

C. H. Stocking, former county commissioner, has purchased an E. M. F. from Robert Sherwood of The American Garage.

—o—

Some of the automobile owners seem to find more pleasure in frightening people to death than in running over them.

—o—

The movement to put a Bull Moose candidate for congress in the field makes Paul Howland's chances grow thinner than ever.

—o—

We think we have nice cement walks here in Painesville, but Perry can show some work along this line that would be hard to beat.

—o—

Preparations are being made for St. Mary's annual lawn fete and carnival to be held August 19 and 20. Watch for ads, and wait for a good time.

—o—

Now is a good time to invite your friends to come to the Lake county fair. Every patriotic family should keep "open house" during fair week.

—o—

The onion crop in Lake county is undoubtedly assured, and the yield will be the largest in years in proportion to the acres under cultivation.

—o—

Among the new advertisers this week is the Parisian Dry Cleaning Co., of Painesville. Mr. L. Johnson well and favorably known here is the manager.

—o—

A new residence is about to be built on Mentor avenue just west of the B. & O. viaduct. The Davis residence just east of the viaduct is nearly completed.

—o—

Mrs. F. C. Carroll, Miss Florence Carroll, Miss Lillie Harper, and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Carroll of Willoughby, left on Tuesday for an auto trip to Buffalo and Chautauqua.

—o—

Cecil Armsey, well known here, and a former employe of John Rich, now located in business at Altoona, Pa., is spending a few days with his mother, Mrs. Anna Armsey, of Nebraska St.

—o—

In about one month Lake county will be holding a fair. Of course everybody is going but now is the time for the farmers to make arrangements to exhibit their best products.

—o—

The personal property of the late G. W. Barton is to be sold at public sale today. Among the things to be sold are many valuable books, walnut and mahogany furniture, oil paintings, etc.

—o—

A few copies of the Ohio state fair premium list have been sent to Geo. A. Bates for distribution and may be had by those who desire them as long as they last by calling at the recorder's office.

—o—

Mr. E. Cunningham of the National restaurant, has made a great improvement at his popular eating place. The new front and the new lunch counter gives the place quite a metropolitan appearance.

—o—

Homer J. Gault will arrive from his post on the Rio Grande project at Elephant Butte, New Mexico, about September 1, to spend a month's vacation with his family at the Hondtands.

—o—

The Rock Creek Signal says that Mr. Fenton, secretary of the Chardon, Jefferson & Meadville Railway Co., informs that newspaper that surveying will be started on the proposed road in the near future.

—o—

The Holmes County Farmer is bragging about Millersburg's vinegar factory, which will turn out 150,000 gallons of vinegar before the close of the present season. They don't need a pure food law down in Holmes.

—o—

We can look for the amendments to the constitution to carry in Lake county by a big majority. The T-R is publishing a lot of stuff against the amendments. Count on the T-R getting on the wrong side at the wrong time.

—o—

Mrs. Wynne Smith, wife of Mayor W. B. Smith, was thrown from a horse she was riding early Monday evening and was badly injured. Her injuries while painful, are not considered serious, and her recovery seems assured.

—o—

The people of Painesville and vicinity will have a chance to hear one of the best public speakers in the country when Mayor Newton D. Baker of Cleveland, speaks here Tuesday, Aug. 13. The time is 2:30 p. m. Place, at the grand stand on the Park.

—o—

James McVitty of Perry, built a new cement walk along the street in front of his residence and another from the street to the front porch. J. H. Brown got busy and had a cement walk in front of his store, now nearly every one in the village is putting down walks or contemplating doing so.

—o—

It is the duty of every citizen to study the proposed amendments to the constitution. There may be a few amendments that are not easily understood from the titles given, but these may be the very ones to which you would give your hearty support when, by a little study, you learn the intent of the amendment.

—o—

East Erie street between furnace hill and Elm street is a speedway for automobiles and motorcycles. Some machines are driven over that course at a rate far in excess of that allowed by law even on country highways. We suggest that Chief Appleton see what he can do to suppress the practice.

—o—

The pictures received with the money raised by the Finch recital for Washington street school building are now on exhibition at J. E. Lightner's store. The titles of the pictures are as follows: "Sir Galahad," "Pilgrims Going to Church," "Spirit of '76," "Christ in the Temple," "George and Martha Washington," and the "Doge's Palace."

—o—

That part of Painesville township just west of the city's limits, is making remarkable gains in an industrial way. The new greenhouses, the Lake County Fair buildings and the improvements at the W. D. Cole and Martin Kohankie nurseries give this part of the township a very prosperous appearance. In this part of the township are also located some of the best gardens, onion farms, fruit orchards, and two farms where the growing of tobacco is successfully carried on.

—o—

Every now and then new evidence is afforded that the men and women who solicit for alleged charitable causes need careful supervision. Many a conscientious giver has been aiding solicitors for so-called charities who were unworthy and their representations fraudulent. Many of these persons come from a distant section and information regarding the cause which they present is not readily obtainable. At Cleveland a case illustrating the frauds committed in the name of charity is cited. It is that of a colored man who five years ago obtained an option on a dozen acres of land in the South and the very next day took a train North and began to solicit funds for an industrial school. This man is still soliciting, but the foundations for the school are not laid.

—o—

J. F. Howard and wife of Chillicothe, Mo., parents of F. M. Howard of Mentor, are visiting in Mentor, Chardon, and Painesville. Mr. and Mrs. Howard have lived together for 63 years, and while in Chardon visited the cemetery where the father and mother of Mr. Howard are buried. The burial was made in 1867 and the tombstones were so weather beaten and old that the 87-year old man came to Morley & Warren in Painesville and ordered a fine new granite monument to be placed on the graves. The wording on the monument is "Freeman Howard, born, 1782, died 1867; Eunice Risley Howard, born 1788, died 1866." A remarkable fact connected with this family is that five generations of the Howards have been prominent members of the Masonic order, beginning with the great-great-grandfather of F. M. Howard, of Mentor.

"I was cured of diarrhoea by one dose of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," writes M. E. Gebhardt, Oriole, Pa. There is nothing better. For sale by all dealers.

Woman Suffrage Column

By Miss Lucy Buell

The speech by Miss Eleanor Brannon given in the park last Friday evening during an intermission in the band concert was listened to by a large and attentive audience. It was not so much an argument as an appeal for justice, and one man in the audience was heard to say that any one who heard that talk would have to vote for the women if he had any sense of fair play.

To those who have not studied the history of our Ohio constitutions the following brief sketch may be of interest:

The first constitution (if it can be called a constitution when it was not submitted to the people) was drawn up in 1801 and 1802 by a few men in Chillicothe. It served until 1852 when a regular constitution was drawn and adopted. The woman suffrage article was demanded in this constitution but was peremptorily refused and the discussion it called forth was of so disgraceful a nature that it was expunged from the records. It was in preparation for this convention of 1852 that the second woman's rights convention in the world was held, in 1850, in the old town of Salem, in the eastern part of the state.

The third constitutional convention was held in 1873. It was a remarkable body of men, judicial in cast, with famous judges and lawyers in the preponderance. The constitution it presented was so technical in phraseology that the people could not understand it, and as it was not explained to them they naturally rejected it.

The present constitution, if it is accepted, will be the third under which the State has been administered for more than 100 years. The delegates assembled at Columbus, January 1st, 1912, and they sat until the end of May. It was a very different body from that of 1873. Men of the old school called it a collection of cranks; men of the new order of things said it was the finest body that ever assembled to draw up a document embodying the will of the people of any state. Many of the amendments were formulated with little or no opposition. Over some of them the struggle was intense. This was notably the case with amendments dealing with the liquor question, the initiative and referendum, home rule, and woman's suffrage. Of these the first and last will be most hotly contested at the polls.

Herbert Bigelow was president of the convention. Hon. Wm. Kilpatrick was chairman of the committee on the electoral franchise, our committee. There were twenty-one members of this committee. All but one recommended woman suffrage to the convention. The convention itself, in four readings, adopted the woman suffrage amendment by a vote of two to one. The sentiment in the convention in favor of suffrage grew steadily. Those who were lukewarm in the beginning were ardent at the close.

DIED AT FAIRPORT

John F. Wood Highly Respected Citizen Passed to Great Beyond Monday.

John F. Wood, Sr., aged 83 years, well known and highly respected citizen of Fairport Harbor, died Monday morning of this week at the home of his son, William Wood.

Mr. Wood has been in failing health for some time and his death was not unexpected. He had in his younger days been a very active man and even in his advanced years it seemed difficult for him to get away from his industrious ways. He had lived in Fairport many years and while of a quiet, unassuming disposition, still his influence had always been in favor of those things which were for the betterment of the village.

The deceased is survived by two sons, Wm. M. of Fairport and John J. of Painesville.

The funeral services were held at the home Wednesday afternoon.

Dr. R. A. Greenwood, veterinarian has recently located in this city with an office at N. St. Clair and Phelps street and may be reached on Home phone. Dr. Greenwood is a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania, and for some time recently was connected with the famous Walker-Gordon stock farm at Plainfield, N. J. He is skillful at surgical work and has a thorough knowledge of the business.

Public Meeting

Hon. Newton D. Baker, Mayor of Cleveland, will discuss the proposed amendments to the Constitution, on the Park at Painesville, Ohio, Tuesday, August 13, at 2:30 p. m. Hon. Elbert F. Blakely will preside. Everybody invited.

CON. CON. DELEGATES SAY LICENCE PLAN PLEASES "WETS" AND "DRYS"

Columbus, O., Aug. 5.—Members of the constitutional convention who are daily dropping into the capital since the completion of their gigantic task report that they are being literally besieged by the home folks for the details of of the saloon license proposal which is to be submitted at the polls September 3, along with the 40 other amendments which represent their five months of work.

Members say, almost without exception, that the license amendment will be overwhelmingly carried; that the proposal as finally adopted has been molded into such excellent shape that it will receive the support of the less radical "drys" as well as the less radical "wets."

In other words, it will be ratified at the polls by the middle-of-the-road element exactly as it was finally whipped into shape by the middle-of-the-roaders among the delegates in the convention.

Gives Real Regulation.

The proposal in its final form provides that saloons shall be licensed wherever they exist, thus bringing every saloon in Ohio under effective regulation and restrictions such as have never been possible under the present constitution.

The chief points of the proposal may be summarized as follows:

1. Any licensee more than once convicted shall have his license taken away, at once and forever! This gives the state the club to be held over the dive-keeper which social economists have sought for years.

2. No alien can be granted a license.

3. Licenses can be granted only to persons of good moral character, thus laying the constitutional groundwork for a law denying licenses to ex-convicts, criminals, etc. Under the present constitution any person may enter the saloon business by simply paying the tax and opening his front door.

Limits Their Number.

4. Saloons are limited to one in each 500 of population in each township or municipality. Figures prepared show that this will relieve a serious condition in many localities where there are far too many saloons, and where this ratio will permit plenty to supply every legitimate demand for drinking places.

5. Any municipality may further decrease the number of saloons through its local governing body.

6. Provides for a local licensing authority, by declaring that the saloon shall be in the county where the board is located, or in an adjoining county.

7. Eliminates the brewery-owned saloon, by providing that a license shall not be granted to any person pecuniarily interested in the liquor business at any other place. This is done to prevent a brewery, or any other corporation, from having a chain of saloons in any city or scattered throughout the state.

Prohibition Laws Unchanged.

Not the least important features of the proposal are the safeguards to existing laws, and the specific guarantee of the rights to further enact all forms of regulatory and prohibitory laws. The four present local option units are specifically mentioned, and it is definitely provided that while prohibition is in force in any of these districts, either now or at any future time, the license system shall not operate therein during the period they are in force.

In other words, if the proposal is ratified by the people, license and local option will go hand in hand. The saloons can be voted out at any time where a majority of the people so decree, but where they are permitted they will be forced under the stringent restrictions which the license system will provide.

OHIO STATE FAIR

To be Held At Columbus Aug. 26-31.

Many New and Interesting Features Will This Year be Provided for the Ladies.

If yield per acre is increased the soil is not wearing out. Barn yard muck is as much a necessity as college diplomas and edged tools. The Ohio State Fair is one institution to which all citizens should be contributors. It points the way to better things. It will help the farmer to secure greater reward for his hard labor. The State Fair is a storehouse of suggestion. It is the cross-roads where inventors display their latest wares.

Every person who has attended this big Exposition is a walking bill-board in favor of the Fair. Those who attend will testify that it is a good investment to spend money seeing it.

Thousands of dollars have been expended in 1912 to make the grounds more beautiful and the buildings larger.

Weeks before the Fair opens available space for exhibits is crowded. Hundreds of farmers who want to purchase a good breeding animal visit the Fair looking for a bargain and value received.

Amusements and entertainments will not be lacking either in quality or abundance.

Many new and interesting features will this year be provided for the ladies. Railway service will be improved.

A trip to the State Fair combines pleasure with business. [illegible] reports received [illegible] as many boys will be permitted to attend. Fathers have come to realize that the boy should be taken into partnership in pleasure trips as well as in the hard work of the field.

The secretary has called for 1000 men to qualify for positions. Graduates of country schools are especially desired. At the recent examination two-thirds of the graduates of Chicago grammar schools failed in the simple tests.

No more limping for Tom Moore of Cochran, Ga. "I had a bad sore on my instep that nothing seemed to help till I used Bucklen's Arnica Salve," he writes, "but this wonderful healer soon cured me." Heals old running sores, ulcers, boils, burns, cuts, bruises, eczema or piles. Try it. Only 25 cents at Oehring's Pharmacy.

COUNCIL MEETING.

Many Subjects are Considered but Little is Done.

W. C. Wright and George W. Crosby presented arguments to the council Monday night in favor of lowering the Tiber. The matter was referred to the public grounds committee.

Mayor Smith reported that the police in the future would try the doors of the business places at night between the hours of 7 and 8 and also about 10. A request had been made to have the doors tried earlier.

Many other matters discussed, brought out the fact that the city is short of funds. There was talk of borrowing money to meet current expenses of the different departments.

Make the Old Farm Pay.

It can't be done on a run-down, worn out soil. In Europe old land is best because it has been improved. In America old land is poorest because it has been impoverished, exploited, exhausted. Our farms are like the Baby Bear's "porridge" in the story of the Three Bears. "Somebody has been eating my porridge and has eaten it all up." It's right to use the fertility of the soil. That's what it is there for, but with our farms we must learn both to [illegible] our cake and keep it. This can be done, the old adage to the contrary notwithstanding. We must learn to get the maximum crop and maintain the fertility of the soil. The Ohio Experiment Station at Wooster has a long line of experiments showing how this can be done. Do not fail to see and study the fertility exhibits at the big state [illegible] at the County Fair.

The social conventions are strictly enforced by the municipality in [illegible] one obliging man patrons to wear coats. No dances off color are allowed. It is an enterprise to be cordially endorsed.

WAS GLAD TO ESCAPE ALIVE

Exciting Experience of English Officer Who Intruded on Sacred Monkeys of India.

In various parts of India monkeys are regarded as objects of worship. One of the principal monkey temples is at Nuddea. Such veneration is shown here to Hunuman, the monkey god, that visitors may not enter the court of the temple without removing their shoes.

On one occasion an English officer, in passing up the country near Nuddea, chanced to stroll into a bamboo jungle, when his boat had "put to" for the night. He had not advanced far before he heard a terrific uproar all about him, and was not a little alarmed to behold a whole army of the largest monkeys he had ever seen making toward him from all quarters.

Some jumped on the ground before him, others swung by the bamboos over his head, and many closed up the path in his rear. Several females had young ones clinging to them, but this fact did not seem to render them less agile than the others.

The Englishman knew not what to do. He yelled at the top of his voice for assistance. To his intense relief, each time that he yelled the monkeys retreated a bit. This encouraged him to persevere in his shouting, but he observed that when he himself began to retreat the monkeys would again begin to close in upon him.

Then he stood still and gave one tremendous shout, whereat the monkeys went back again. This time the man had gained fully 20 yards and was about to repeat the call when there appeared a new figure upon the scene in the person of an aged, decrepit woman hobbling through the midst of the animals.

This aged person shook two or three of the monkeys by the paws as she passed. No sooner had she come within hearing of the Britisher than she opened upon him the vials of her wrath for disturbing the sacred animals in their retirement. She bade the intruder depart, and that quickly, an order which he lost no time in executing. The monkeys all seemed implicitly to obey the old woman's bidding, making a way for the man's retreat.

The old woman, it appeared, was employed by the Brahmins to supply the monkeys with their food each day. They were worshiped by all of the people in the country round, who brought offerings of rice and sweetmeats to them continually.—Harper's Weekly.

Cruelty to Parents.

That whimsical philosopher James Douglas, in London Opinion, writes of the crying need of a new society, urging that it is high time to do away with the society for the prevention of cruelty to children and substitute therefor one for the prevention of cruelty to parents. He remarks that donations and subscriptions for such a beneficent organization would pour in from those who know by sad experience how sorrowful is the lot of the father who finds himself abandoned to the ferocity of his children. "Too long," he writes, "has the cry of the parents fallen upon deaf ears. Do you hear the parents crying, O my brothers? The young lambs are playing in the meadows, but the old people are weeping bitterly. Many a fat city merchant conceals behind his waistcoat a heart that is lacerated by the savagery of his children. Many an alderman dilutes his turtle soup with tears of anguish as he thinks of the torments his children are preparing for him in the dark precincts of his suburban home."

Collapsible Army Cart.

A collapsible military cart has been invented by an officer of the army service corps in London. The cart will be tested during the grand manoeuvres of the army next September. The cart is built entirely of tubular steel and canvas, and is extremely light to haul, though it will carry up to a ton dead-weight. Several of these can be carried in a motor lorry of the type now in use in the army and would be instantly available for use in any desired direction. It is claimed by the inventor that no country is too rough for the cart, and that it is practically indestructible.

It costs very little to build these carts, since all the parts are interchangeable; a temporary breakdown would not be a very serious matter since spare parts could easily be carried on the motor wagons.

He Guessed Right.

Bacon—I see a new book has a small looking-glass set in the title page.

Egbert—That is to prevent the women from turning over to read the last chapter the first thing, I suppose.

A Long Session.

"You'll have to go now, Mr. Hig-gins," said the girl with a yawn.

"What! so early?" exclaimed the man.

"Yes, you see, papa is a union man and he'll only allow eight hours for courting."

Keep Him Busy.

"What are the principal activities of the official position our friend occupies?"

"Those involved in holding on to it," replied Senator Sorghum.

Noisy Things.

Bacon—I see some one has made the discovery in England of the lawn mowing proclivities of the guinea-pig.

Egbert—Well, come to think of it I guess they do make as much noise as a lawnmower.

That's Different.

"That's the slowest-moving man I ever saw you've got there," said one farmer to another.

"Slow?" replied the other. "Well, say, you ought to see him when the dinner-bell rings!"

NEW PARTY ENTERS ARENA OF POLITICS

NATIONAL PROGRESSIVE ORGANIZATION IS CALLED TO ORDER BY SENATOR DIXON.

BEVERIDGE DELIVERS SPEECH

Temporary Chairman of Bull Moose Convention Says "We Battle for the Actual Rights of Man, Knowing Well the Cost."

Chicago.—The National Progressive party took its place in the arena of American politics here August 5, when its first national convention assembled in the Coliseum, where the Republican national convention was held. Colonel Roosevelt did not attend the first session of the convention.

Former Senator Albert J. Beveridge of Indiana was elected temporary chairman of the convention after Senator Dixon had called the assemblage to order and prayer had been offered. Senator Beveridge, greeted with prolonged cheers, delivered his "keynote" speech, bristling with the most advanced ideas of progressivism.

The big convention hall was crowded. The delegates were most enthusiastic, frequently interrupting the proceedings with cheers and applause.

Hall Gayly Decorated.

The scene in the hall except for the lack of a jam in the galleries, was almost identical with that of the Republican convention. The seating arrangements for the delegates and alternates had been changed but little. Many of the standards had been raised on the identical spots where they stood during the tumultuous convention which renominated President Taft.

The hall was gayly decorated with flags and bunting. Large canvas portraits were a feature of the decorations. Back of the stage were those of Washington, Jefferson and Lincoln. The Washington, Jefferson and Lincoln portraits have been linked on all the convention tickets and badges. Suspended from the band gallery at the far end of the hall, where all could see, was an oil painting of Colonel Roosevelt. The artist did not at all flatter the Progressive leader.

Over the main entrance was a stuffed head of a splendid specimen of a bull moose. Shortly after noon the delegates began to pour into the hall in increasing numbers.

Beveridge Delivers Speech.

"The first words of the constitution are, 'We are the people,' and they declare that the constitution's purpose is 'to form a perfect union and to promote the general welfare.' To do just that is the very heart of the Progressive cause," declared Albert J. Beveridge, temporary chairman of the Progressive national convention in his keynote speech calling that body to order. Mr. Beveridge told in detail the purpose and program of the Progressive party. "Abuse," said he, "will only strengthen it, ridicule only hasten its growth, falsehood only speed its victory.

"Knowing the price we must pay, the sacrifice we must make, the burdens we must carry, the assaults we must endure—knowing full well the cost—yet we enlist and we enlist for the war. For we know the justice of our cause and we know, too, its certain triumph."

Stand for Nobler America.

Mr. Beveridge spoke in part as follows:

"We stand for a nobler America. We stand for an undivided nation. We stand for a broader liberty, a fuller justice. We stand for social brotherhood as against savage individualism. We stand for an intelligent co-operation instead of a reckless competition. We stand for mutual helpfulness instead of mutual hatred. We stand for equal rights as a fact of life instead of catchword of politics. We stand for the rule of the people as a practical truth instead of a meaningless pretense. We stand for a representative government that represents the people. We battle for the actual rights of man. That we may do this we found a party through which all who believe with us can work with us, or, rather, we declare our allegiance to the party which the people themselves have founded."

The speaker discussed the Republican and Democratic parties, the "boss system" and "special interests," saying among other things: "At the present moment notorious bosses are in the saddle of both old parties in various important states which must be carried to elect a president. Neither of the old parties' nominees for president can escape obligation to these old party bosses, nor shake their practical hold on many powerful members of the national legislature. Under this boss system, no matter which party wins, the people seldom win, but the bosses almost always win."

Women Defeat Recall.

San Francisco, Cal.—By an overwhelming vote the citizens of Oakland refused to recall Mayor Frank Mott and Commissioners Frederick Turner and William J. Baccus.

The recall election was held at the instigation of the Socialists and Industrial Workers of the World sympathizers, who resented the action of Mott and the commissioners in preventing street meetings and jailing the ring leaders. To the women of Oakland is due in a great measure the defeat of the recall.

Marines Stop Disorder.

Washington, D. C.—American bluejackets and marines were landed in Nicaragua for the protection of citizens of the United States and their property. The expedition, part of the force of the gunboat Annapolis under Lieut. James A. Campbell, was landed in Corinto, the principal seaport on the Pacific side, and transported by rail to Managua, the capital. Lawlessness and threatened anarchy disappeared and quiet took their places with the arrival of the bluejackets, according to Minister Weitzel's report.

STANLEY PROBERS FLAY STEEL TRUST

MAJORITY REPORT DENOUNCES THE COMBINE AS AN ENEMY OF UNION LABOR.

CONDEMNS MORGAN PROFITS

Charges Roosevelt With Growth of Monopoly and Holds Gary Dinners Responsible for the Control of Prices.

Washington, D. C.—Having the steel trust as an enemy of organized labor, accusing it of lowering sociological conditions of its employes and contributing to American industry workmen and work methods un-American and foreign to the best interests of labor, the report of the majority of the Stanley steel probe committee of the house of representatives has just been submitted to the house.

Condemns Morgan Profits.

The report also hits J. P. Morgan and associates hard for being beneficiaries of enormous profits due to overcapitalization of subsidiary companies of the steel corporation, and Judge E. H. Gary and his dinners are credited with a scheme by which prices and territory were controlled by the steel corporation after pooling agreements were discarded.

Former President Roosevelt is indicted for making control of the steel trust absolute and is charged with being responsible for the gigantic stature which the trust has attained.

The report was presented by the chairman of the committee, Representative Stanley of Kentucky. It was more than a year ago that the inquiry began.

The report of the majority deals with the steel trust from its inception and describes the various steps by which J. P. Morgan and his associates built up the corporation. In addition to recommendations for legislation suggested as remedial, the Democratic members of the committee make general accusations against the men responsible for the organization.

Principal stockholders of the steel corporation are accused of exerting a powerful and injurious influence on the business of the United States by means of control exercised through interlocking directorates of railway and industrial organizations.

The activity of the corporation in politics is laid bare and its influence described, and the steel trust as a tariff beneficiary and its part in the making of the Payne-Aldrich tariff act are touched by the Democrats.

The committee recommends legislation to cure trust evils and to meet existing conditions. It condemns the steel corporation, but does not invade the jurisdiction of the United States court, in which there is now pending a government suit for its dissolution.

Sums Up Conclusions.

In summing up its conclusions, the majority report says:

The control of corporations by the federal government is not approved. Whatever may be the evil results of the elimination of competition from the steel business it does not justify such a remedy and could not be cured by it. Such a control seems socialistic in its nature, is beyond the power vested by the constitution in the federal congress.

The abuses can in a great measure be remedied by giving to the operations of the United States Steel Corporation and other like corporations the widest publicity and to the strict enforcement of laws specifically inhibiting the employment of cunning devices by which an unfair advantage over competitors is secured.

The bureau of corporations possesses the authority to thoroughly investigate the internal affairs of industrial concerns doing an interstate business. Had the character of the steel corporation and the nature and the extent of its operations been known to the people and to the president of the United States at the time of the absorption of the Tennessee Coal & Iron Co. it is highly improbable that the chief executive would in 20 minutes have given his consent to a merger fraught with infinite injury to the steel industry and to the public alike.

The enormous earnings of the steel corporations are due not to a degree of integration or efficiency not possessed by its competitors, but to the ownership of ore reserves out of all proportion to its output or requirements and in the control and operation of common carriers, divisions of rates, and the liberal allowances obtained from other concerns through inequitable and inordinate terminal allowances. The business of production and transportation should be absolutely separate and distinct, and no industrial concern should be permitted to own or operate an interstate carrier.

Legislation Recommended.

The legislation recommended by the majority consists of three bills. One of them, the Brandeis bill, is designed to give an injured party the right to institute suit to prevent the organization of a combination in restraint of trade.

Another bill would provide that "no person who is engaged as an individual or as a member of a partnership or as a director or other officer or an employe of a corporation in the business, in whole or in part, of manufacturing or selling railroad cars or locomotives or railroad rails or structural steel, or mining and selling coal shall act as a director or other officer or employe of any railroad company which conducts an interstate commerce business."

The third bill is intended to hit at the system of interlocking directorates and would separate industrial from railroad business.

Women Attack Sir Rufus.

Reading, England.—Attorney General Sir Rufus Isaacs, by his foresight in providing himself with a bodyguard, saved himself from unpleasant consequences of an attack upon him by suffragists at the dedication of a new police court building here.

The suffragists massed themselves and rushed the guard in football formation.

The woman who led them got through and nearly landed a blow in Sir Rufus' face. She was dragged back before she quite succeeded.

Graft in City's Stables.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Graft among minor employes of the department of public safety was disclosed when Michael Beadon, for 22 years connected with the municipal stables, was arrested, charged with larceny of property of the city. He confessed, the local police say.

Beadon owns a farm near Camden, N. J., and it is alleged that horses stolen from the city were taken there, rested up and then sold back to the city to be used in the police and fire service.

MRS. GRACE IS FREED

FOUND NOT GUILTY OF SHOOTING HER HUSBAND.

Wounded Man Still Declares Wife Fired Bullet Which Has Caused Paralysis.

Atlanta, Ga.—"God bless you, gentlemen," cried Mrs. Daisy Ulrich Opie Grace at 4:40 in the afternoon when the jury found her not guilty of the charge of shooting her husband.

There was a note of hysteria in Mrs. Grace's voice and she seemed on the verge of a collapse, but her lawyers patted her on the shoulder and urged her to restrain herself and she soon became calm.

Then the crowd in court cheered the verdict and surged about Mrs. Grace, many of the women weeping.

At last the deadly whiteness of Mrs. Grace's face was relieved by a flush and she began to smile.

Then she approached each of the 12 jurors and gave them thanks.

"I feel like kissing and hugging you all," she said. "I trusted you all the time. I knew you would not believe what they said about me."

The verdict was generally expected. It was conceded that the state failed to sustain the charge that Mrs. Grace had drugged and shot her husband and locked him in to die in order to get $25,000 insurance on his life.

Mrs. Grace's statement had a tremendous effect on the jury and its main statements were generally credited.

The case was given to the jury at 2:30 p. m. by Judge Roan, whose charge favored Mrs. Grace. The jurors ate dinner and about 3:30 began consideration of the case. After a little discussion it was found that all agreed Mrs. Grace was not guilty and the verdict of acquittal was ordered.

Grace was not in court. He was taken back to his hotel and there heard of the verdict.

"I don't care what the jury said," he declared. "She's as guilty as hell and she knows it."

Grace announced that he would make a statement about the case and at once sue for divorce.

Cotton Revision Bill Passes House.

Washington, D. C.—Representative Lenroot (Wis.) led the fight of the Republicans against the Democratic cotton downward tariff revision bill presented by Chairman Underwood of the ways and means committee. He represented the La Follette idea that there should be carried protection for manufacture of cotton products and said that the Underwood bill did not give to the manufacturer the proper protection and safeguards against importations. The Underwood bills passed house by vote of 156 to 72.

Business Is Going Ahead.

New York City.—Bradstreet's says: This week's reports again spell progress and a more clearly defined movement toward enlarged business is reflected in most sections save parts of the south.

In short, according to reports, under the stimulus of actual or expected big crops, business is going ahead, optimism is becoming more widespread, industrial operations are proceeding apace and more profitable prices are being obtained for textiles and for steel products.

'CONFESSION OF FAITH'

KEYNOTE FOR HIS FOLLOWERS IS SOUNDED BY TEDDY.

Tremendous Ovation Is Given Roosevelt When He Addresses Bull Moose Convention.

CONSPICUOUS POINTS IN PROGRAM OF ROOSEVELT.

Recall of judicial decisions. Its extension to apply to federal as well as state courts. The establishment of machinery to make easier of amendment both the national and state constitutions, especially with the view of prompt action on certain judicial decisions.

Use of the government to assist workmen to become part owners of the business in which they are employed.

The government system should be shaped so that the public servant, when he cannot conscientiously carry out the wishes of the people, shall at their desire leave his office and not misrepresent them in office. In some quarters this is interpreted as an extension of the recall to legislative, executive and judicial offices of the national government, from the president down.

Control of the trusts through retention of the Sherman anti-trust law and establishment of an interstate industrial commission to regulate industrial corporations as the interstate commerce commission regulates railroads.

Adoption of a number of measures to secure social and industrial justice to the wage workers, including minimum wage scales for women, minimum wage commission to fix standards of wages for all workers, old age pensions, a living wage, prohibition of night labor for women and children, eight-hour shifts for workmen in industries in which men are employed 24 hours a-day; national and state workingmen's compensation laws; guarantee by law of one day's rest in every seven, old age insurance.

A national law for presidential primaries, election of United States senators by direct vote, the short ballot, corrupt practice acts, qualified adoption of the initiative, referendum and recall.

Woman suffrage.

Strengthening of the pure food laws.

Establishment of a national health department.

Creation of a permanent tariff commission.

Measures to relieve the high cost of living.

Development by the federal government of the Mississippi river as a deep water way.

Fortification of the Panama canal. Free passage through the canal for coastwise traffic and imposition of equal tolls for all other ships of whatever nation.

Navy to be built steadily until reduction of armaments is made possible by international agreement.

Teddy Given an Ovation.

Chicago.—Col. Theodore Roosevelt was given a tremendous ovation which lasted 57 minutes when he appeared upon the platform of the Coliseum shortly after noon August 6 to make his "confession of faith." Bands played, delegates, including women, stood on chairs and yelled and waved flags and bandanas, and gave the call of the bull moose. Colonel Roosevelt concluded his address at 3:39 p. m. and there was another prolonged demonstration. When Colonel Roosevelt had left the Coliseum the business of the convention was resumed, the report of the credentials committee unseating the negro delegates from the south being received and adopted.

Calls Old Parties Husks.

"The two old parties are husks, with no real soul within either, divided on artificial lines, boss-ridden and privilege controlled, each a jumble of incongruous elements and neither daring to speak out wisely and fearlessly what should be said on the vital issues of the day."

So spoke Theodore Roosevelt before the National Progressive party convention here in uttering his keynote for his followers and supporters.

As opposed to this incongruity and insincerity of action he asserted that the National Progressive platform will be a "contract with the people" with definite and concrete provisions to be carried out if the people ratify the contract on election day "as if it were actually enforceable under the law."

Ideas of Trust Control.

Colonel Roosevelt's "confession of faith" embraced more radical ideas than any of his previous utterances. He reiterated his doctrine of the recall of judicial decisions and advocated that it be extended to include the federal judiciary as well as that of states. He further intimated, by asserting that the recall should apply to administrative officials, that he would apply this doctrine to all legislative and executive officers from the president down.

His ideas of trust control included the retention of the Sherman law and provision of a commission to exercise jurisdiction over interstate corporations.

He presented a program of legislation to secure social justice which carried proposals varying from an eight-hour day to sick and accident insurance and old age pensions.

Colonel Roosevelt discussed the principles of the new third party under 12 subdivisions: The Helplessness of the Old Parties, The Right of the People to Rule, The Courts and the People, Constructive Control of the Trusts, Right of the Wage-Worker, The Farmer, The Tariff, The High Cost of Living, Currency, Conservation, Alaska, International Affairs.

Woodrow Wilson Notified.

Seagirt, N. J.—Everything was in readiness for the ceremonies notifying Woodrow Wilson of his nomination for president by the Democratic convention, which occurred at 3 p. m. August 7 in this city. Senator Elect Ollie James of Kentucky, chairman of the notification committee, officially notified Governor Wilson of his nomination. Governor Wilson, speaking from the veranda of the executive mansion, delivered his speech of acceptance. About 5,000 people were in attendance.

Girl Chops Off Father's Head.

Richmond, Tex.—Pearl Williams, 13, is held in jail here on a charge of murder.

The child chopped off her father's head with an axe while he slept, because he had refused permission for her to visit her aunt.

Jacob Williams, the father, lived on a farm outside of Richmond. After being placed in jail here, the Williams child refused to discuss the tragedy, except to say that her father would not allow her to take a horse to drive to her aunt's.

The Benefit of Temptation

Overcome by the Grace of God, Which Brings One Into Closer Fellowship With Christ.

If we were not tempted, we would lose much of the deep sympathy we have one for another. It also has a very humbling effect, driving us direct to the Lord for deliverance. We would not know what a wonderful Savior we had were we not hounded by the devil.

Alexander Whyte, speaking on this subject, says: "Luther, speaking to the young preacher of his day, said: 'I did not learn to preach Christ all at once. The Devil has been my best professor of exegetical and experimental divinity. Before that great schoolmaster took me in hand, I was a suckling child, and not a grown man. It was my combats with sin and with Satan that made me a true minister of the New Testament. It is always a great grace to me, and to my people, for me to be able to say to them, I know this text to be true! I know it for certain to be true! Without incessant combat, and pain, and sweat, and blood, an ignorant stripling of a student ever yet became a powerful preacher.' So says one of the most powerful preachers that ever entered the Pauline pulpit."—Living Water.

No man can know the depths of his own nature or understand his weaknesses and needs until he has been thoroughly tested by the fires of temptation. And no man can know by experience the power of divine grace until he has learned to conquer temptation by the grace of God. It is only in the crucible of temptation that the human heart and spirit can be purified, and it is only by overcoming temptation that a strong spiritual manhood or womanhood can be developed. One who has never been tested by any severe temptation cannot know whether there is any real backbone to his character or not.

Therefore we all need to be brought into contact with temptation. We need to be tempted, as Jesus was, on all sides of our nature. But we all meet with temptation enough in our journey through life without seeking it, or putting ourselves in the way of it unnecessarily. We all need every particle of will power we possess, and all the grace that God is able to bestow upon us, to overcome the temptations which we must meet; and if we desire to win in the fight, we must carefully avoid all temptations that we can avoid without neglect of duty. We must think of temptation as a thing to be feared, and must pray earnestly to be saved from it, or to be enabled to resist it.

Paul says, "Let him that thinketh he standeth take heed lest he fall. There hath no temptation taken you but such as man can bear, but God is faithful, who will not suffer you to be tempted above that ye are able; but will with the temptation make also the way of escape, that ye may be able to endure it." We can depend upon God's strength to support us in our hours of weakness and of temptation, if we are striving to live in communion with God and to do his will. If we trust at all in the strength of our own character as a protection against temptation it will inevitably fail us in the time of our greatest need.

That was Peter's mistake. He was so confident of his own courage and steadfastness that even after Jesus had warned him he asseverated his own reliability, saying "Though all men should deny thee, yet will I never." God allowed Satan to tempt Peter, and to gain a great victory over him by forcing him to deny his Lord in the most solemn manner, in order to destroy Peter's self-confidence that he might learn to trust in the grace of God alone. And Peter was a stronger and truer man and a more devoted disciple ever after because of his terrible fall.

Many a weak soul sorely tested disciple has become so conscious of his own weakness and lack of faith in the time of temptation that he has almost lost heart, and yet, by just holding on, even as by the skin of his teeth, he has won a victory by the grace of God which has brought him into closer fellowship with Christ.

Two Phases of "Social Service."

"Social service" is an alliterative and fluent phrase which is often heard in these times. It commonly means service for the body, food for the hungry, clothes for the naked, and coal for the shivering. But is this the only kind of social service that can be rendered? There are multitudes of people who neither hunger nor shiver, but are sad and idle and selfish. What can be done for them? Are not ideals and uplifting influences as much needed today as food and clothes and coal? The church may not be equal to its opportunities, but the opportunity still exists, and the agencies and institutions that can use it are still necessary to a complete life.—The Christian Register.

Just for Today.

Life is built a day at a time. The Scriptures keep this constantly in view in their promises. "I am with you all the days." "His compassions are new every morning." Christian, tired and somewhat disheartened, take not only life, but the Lord, a day at a time. Let the lifetime you deal with be just for today, with its birth when you wake, its maturity in the working hours, and its quiet death when you retire at night to your bed. And for today you possess nothing less than the whole Christ of God; Christ for you, Christ in you, Christ living, loving, keeping you.—Bishop Moule.

In Ways of His Leading.

Do I look into the future? Is there much of uncertainty and mystery hanging over it? "Trust him—all is marked out for me. Dangers will be averted, bewildering mazes will reveal themselves to be interlaced and interleaved with mercy. He leads sometimes darkly, sometimes sorrowfully, most frequently by crossed and circuitous paths we ourselves would not have chosen; but always wisely; always tenderly.—Rev. J. R. Macduff.

TWO TERRIBLE CASES OF RINGWORM CURED

By Resinol. Itching and Disfiguring.

Chicago, Ill., June 5, 1912: "My little daughter had a running sore, which I was told was wet ringworm, on the back of her head from ear to ear, and also one which spread from one hip to the other, extending from the waist down. They itched her continually. She had to be carried on a pillow, and nights she could not sleep on account of the sores. She suffered terribly, and would scratch continually. I bought Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment, and after about two weeks my child was well and hearty." (Signed) Mrs. Emely Skeinik, 2853 Gresham Ave.

Nossville, Pa., May 11 1912: "It is the greatest pleasure for me to testify to the merits of Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment in the treatment of ringworms, from which I suffered for about five weeks until I found a perfect cure in Resinol.

"The trouble began with severe itching, affecting my face and neck. Then burning set in, causing me to lose a lot of sleep. In all, there were a dozen fairly large sores, with many small ones. The sores were very unsightly. I tried several remedies without much relief until a happy thought struck me to try Resinol Soap and Ointment. It made short work of the ringworm." (Signed) E. S. Gilliland.

PROOF POSITIVE.

Bronson—There's something very small about that man, Masson.

Woodson—What's the matter with him?

Bronson—Why, he loaned me a garden hose that needed mending.

Mike Amazed.

Jerry was treating Mike to a trolley ride, says Judge. The conductor, a good-looking young Irishman, came through, collecting the fares. Mike watched his progress with great interest. Presently he turned to Jerry with tears in his eyes.

"Jerry," he said huskily, "I've a lump in me t'roat."

"What for?" demanded Jerry.

WILSON ACCEPTS THE NOMINATION

Is Told by Committee He Is Party's Choice for President.

GIVES HIS IDEAS ON ISSUES

Declares Coming Campaign Is Unusual One and That Candidates Must Face Awakened Nation on Many Important Problems.

Sea Girt, N. J., Aug. 7.—Woodrow Wilson was today officially notified that he had been nominated by the Democratic party as their candidate for president. The speech of notification was delivered by Ollie James, chairman of the notification committee.

In reply Governor Wilson, after thanking the committee, commented on the unusual nature of the coming campaign in which the candidates must address an awakened nation, impatient of partisan make-believe and never more susceptible to unselfish appeals or to the high arguments of sincere justice. The forces of the nation, he said, are asserting themselves against every form of special privilege and private control, and are seeking bigger things than they have ever heretofore achieved.

Two Great Things to Do.

"How do we expect to handle each of the great matters that must be taken up by the next congress and the next administration?" said Mr. Wilson, and he answered his own query as follows:

What is there to do? It is hard to sum the great task up, but apparently this is the sum of the matter: There are two great things to do. One is to set up the rule of justice and of right in such matters as the tariff, the regulation of the trusts and the prevention of monopoly, the adaptation of our banking and currency laws to the varied uses to which our people must put them, the treatment of those who do the daily labor in our factories and mines throughout all our great industrial and commercial undertakings, and the political life of the people of the Philippines, for whom we hold governmental power in trust, for their service, not our own. The other, the additional duty, is the great task of protecting our people and our resources and of keeping open to the whole people the doors of opportunity through which they must, generation by generation, pass if they are to make conquest of their fortunes in health, in freedom, in peace and in contentment. In the performance of this second great duty we are face to face with questions of conservation and of development, questions of forests and water powers and mines and waterways, of the building of an adequate merchant marine, and the opening of every highway and facility and the setting up of every safeguard needed by a great industrious, expanding nation.

Revision of the Tariff.

Coming to the tariff question, the governor said the schedules "have been made up for the purpose of keeping as large a number as possible of the rich and influential manufacturers of the country in a good humor with the Republican party, which desired their constant financial support. The tariff has become a system of favors, which the phraseology of the schedule was often deliberately contrived to conceal."

Reasserting the Democratic conviction that the only legitimate object of tariff duties is to raise revenue for the support of the government, he continued:

There should be an immediate revision, and it should be downward, unhesitatingly and steadily downward. It should begin with the schedules which have been most obviously used to kill competition and to raise prices in the United States, arbitrarily and without regard to the prices pertaining elsewhere in the markets of the world; and it should, before it is finished or intermitted, be extended to every item in every schedule which affords any opportunity for monopoly, for special advantage to limited groups of beneficiaries, or for subsidized control of any kind in the markets or the enterprises of the country, until special favors of every sort have been absolutely withdrawn and every part of our laws of taxation shall have been transformed from a system of governmental patronage into a system of just and reasonable charges which shall fall where they will create the least burden. When we shall have done that, we can fix questions of revenue and of business adjustment in a new spirit and with clear minds. We shall then be partners with all the business men of the country, and a day of freer, more stable prosperity shall have dawned.

Control of the Trusts.

The governor spoke of how recent investigations have revealed the connection between the tariff and the movement of prices, and this brought him to the subject of trusts, concerning which he said in part:

I am not one of those who think that competition can be established by law against the drift of a world-wide economic tendency; neither am I one of those who believe that business done upon a great scale by a single organization—call it corporation, or what you will—is necessarily dangerous to the liberties, even the economic liberties, of a great people like our own, full of intelligence and of indomitable energy. I am not afraid of anything that is normal. I dare say we shall never return to the old order of individual competition, and that the organization of business upon a great scale of co-operation is, up to a certain point, itself normal and inevitable.

Power in the hands of great business men does not make me apprehensive, unless it springs out of advantages which they have not created for themselves. Big business is not dangerous because it is big, but because its bigness is an unwholesome inflation created by privileges and exemptions which it ought not to enjoy. While competition cannot be created by statutory enactment, it can in large measure be revived by changing the laws and forbidding the practices that killed it, and by enacting laws that will give it heart and occasion again. We can arrest and prevent monopoly. It has assumed new shapes and adopted new processes in our time, but these are now being disclosed and can be dealt with.

Concentration of Credit.

But the problem and the difficulty are much greater than that. There are not merely great trusts and combinations which are to be controlled and deprived of their power to create monopolies and destroy rivals; there is something bigger still than they are and more subtle, more evasive, more difficult to deal with. There are vast confederacies (as I may perhaps call them for the sake of convenience) of banks, railways, express companies, insurance companies, manufacturing corporations, mining corporations, power and development companies and all the rest of the circle, bound together by the fact that the ownership of their stock and the members of their boards of directors are controlled and determined by comparatively small and closely interrelated groups of persons who by their informal confederacy may control, if they please and when they will, both credit and enterprise.

There is nothing illegal about these confederacies so far as I can perceive. They have come about very naturally, generally without plan or deliberation, rather because there was so much money to be invested and it was in the hands, at great financial centers, of men acquainted with one another and intimately associated in business, than because anyone had conceived and was carrying out a plan of general control, but they are none the less potent a force in our economic and financial system on that account. They are part of our problem. Their very existence gives rise to the suspicion of a "money trust," a concentration of the control of credit which may at any time become infinitely dangerous to free enterprise. If such a concentration and control does not actually exist, it is evident that it can easily be set up and used at will. Laws must be devised which will prevent this, if laws can be worked out by fair and free counsel that will accomplish that result without destroying or seriously embarrassing any sound or legitimate business undertaking or necessary and wholesome arrangement.

Question of Conservation.

Of conservation and allied matters Governor Wilson said:

I do not know any greater question than that of conservation. We have been a spendthrift nation and must now husband what we have left. We must do more than that. We must develop, as well as preserve, our water powers and must add great waterways to the transportation facilities of the nation, to supplement the railways within our borders as well as upon the Isthmus. We must revive our merchant marine, too, and fill the seas again with our own fleets. We must add to our present postoffice service a parcels post as complete as that of any other nation. We must look to the health of our people upon every hand, as well as hearten them with justice and opportunity.

With regard to the development of greater and more numerous waterways and the building up of a merchant marine, we must follow great constructive lines and not fall back upon the cheap device of bounties and subsidies. In the case of the Mississippi river, that great central artery of our trade, it is plain that the federal government must build and maintain the levees and keep the great waters in harness for the general use. It is plain, too, that vast sums of money must be spent to develop new waterways where trade will be most served and transportation most readily cheapened by them. Such expenditures are no largess on the part of the government; they are national investments.

Merchant Marine.

The question of a merchant marine turns back to the tariff again, to which all roads seem to lead, and to our registry laws, which, if coupled with the tariff, might almost be supposed to have been intended to take the American flag off the seas. Bounties are not necessary, if you will but undo some of the things that have been done. Without a great merchant marine we cannot take our rightful place in the commerce of the world. Merchants who must depend upon the carriers of rival mercantile nations to carry their goods to market are at a disadvantage in international trade too manifest to need to be pointed out, and our merchants will not long suffer themselves—ought not to suffer themselves—to be placed at such a disadvantage. Our industries have expanded to such a point that they will burst their jackets if they cannot find a free outlet to the markets of the world, and they cannot find such an outlet unless they be given ships of their own to carry their goods—ships that will go the routes they want them to go—and prefer the interests of America in their sailing orders and their equipment. Our domestic markets no longer suffice. We need foreign markets. That is another force that is going to break the tariff down. The tariff was once a bulwark, now it is a dam. For trade is reciprocal; we cannot sell unless we also buy.

The very fact that we have at last taken the Panama canal seriously in hand and are vigorously pushing it towards completion is eloquent of our re-awakened interest in international trade. We are not building the canal and pouring out million upon million of money upon its construction merely to establish a water connection between the two coasts of the continent, important and desirable as that may be particularly from the point of view of naval defense. It is meant to be a great international highway. It would be a little ridiculous if we should build it and then have no ships to send through it. There have been years when not a single ton of freight passed through the great Suez canal in an American bottom, so empty are the seas of our ships and seamen. We must mean to put an end to that kind of thing or we would not be cutting a new canal at our very doors merely for the use of our men of war. We shall not manage the revival by the mere paltry device of tolls. We must build and buy ships in competition with the world. We can do it if we will but give ourselves leave.

There is another duty which the Democratic party has shown itself great enough and close enough to the people to perceive, the duty of government to share in promoting agricultural, industrial, vocational education in every way possible within its constitutional powers. No other platform has given this intimate vision of a party's duty.

Free to Serve the People.

In concluding the governor said:

A presidential campaign may easily degenerate into a mere personal contest and so lose its real dignity and significance. There is no indispensable man. The government will not collapse and go to pieces if any one of the gentlemen who are seeking to be entrusted with its guidance should be left at home. But men are instruments. We are as important as the cause we represent, and in order to be important must really represent a cause. What is our cause? The people's cause? That is easy to say, but what does it mean? The common as against any particular interest whatever? Yes, but that, too, needs translation into acts and policies. We represent the desire to set up an unentangled government, a government that cannot be used for private purposes, either in the field of business or in the field of politics; a government that will not tolerate the use of the organization of a great party to serve the personal aims and ambitions of any individual, and that will not permit legislation to be employed to further any private interest. It is a great conception, but I am free to serve it, as you also are. I could not have accepted a nomination which left me bound to any man or any group of men. No man can be just who is not free, and no man who has to show favors ought to undertake the solemn responsibility of government in any rank or post whatever, least of all in the supreme post of president of the United States.

To be free it is not necessarily to be wise. But wisdom comes with counsel, with the frank and free conference of untrammeled men united in the common interest. Should I be entrusted with the great office of president, I would seek counsel wherever it could be had upon free terms. I know the temper of the great convention which nominated me, I know the temper of the country that lay back of that convention and spoke through it. I heed with deep thankfulness the message you bring me from it. I feel that I am surrounded by men whose principles and ambitions are those of true servants of the people. I thank God, and will take courage.

SECRETS DIED WITH LAWYER

Aristocratic Clients of the Late Sir George Henry Lewis Are Relieved of Apprehension.

When Sir George Henry Lewis, solicitor, died recently in London at the age of seventy-eight years it was said much apprehension was felt in aristocratic society because of the fear that after his death he might leave behind him half a century or more of "Memoirs" which might give to the world many delicate family matters with which he had become professionally acquainted. This apprehension has proved to be unfounded and many more or less noble and aristocratic Britons breathe more freely. Sir George, who has left an estate valued at £227,615, says in his will that he has left no memoirs and that all the matters of a delicate nature that have been confided to him will remain undivulged, that he will reveal no confidences.

He has been called the Mr. Tulkinghorn of his period, but the comparison implied hardly held good, for the Mr. Tulkinghorn created by Dickens in Bleak House, the legal adviser of Sir Leicester Dedlock, who "made good thrift out of aristocratic marriage settlements and aristocratic wills," was not altogether as safe a depository of family confidences as was Sir George. Becoming acquainted with the early history of Lady Dedlock, the man in the novel quietly lets her know of the fact and of his intention to reveal it to her husband. This causes the lady to flee from home and results in her death. Shortly after this disclosure Mr. Tulkinghorn is murdered in his room by Hortense, a French waiting maid, whom he has made use of to discover certain family secrets and whom he refuses to reward to the amount to which she believes she is entitled.

Sir George was like Mr. Tulkinghorn in that everybody in society knew him and half the peerage stopped to ask as to the state of his health.

Ostriches Increase Rapidly.

In 1902 five pairs of ostriches were introduced into Madagascar. These have now increased to 123 birds.

Growing Turnips.

To insure their sweetness and brittleness, turnips must be grown in cold weather, either early in the spring or late in the fall, on soil not deficient in phosphoric acid and organic matters. You cannot raise good turnips on depleted soil or in hot, dry weather. The very best place for turnips, or rutabagas, is on newly broken lands. When the breaking is done in July, or even earlier, sow the seed on top of the furrows. Summer fallowed clover sod is also good. Before frost you will have a splendid field of turnips, good alike for the table and for fattening steers or milch cows. Sheep also thrive upon them.

Both Protest Too Much.

"De man dat talks about hisse'f an' how honest he is," said Uncle Eben, "alius sounds like he was roonin' kind o' short o' references."

Value of Words.

Words are wise men's counters—they do not reckon by them; but they are the money of fools.—Thomas Hobbes.

CLOSING LARGE DEAL

ENGLISH SYNDICATE NEGOTIATING FOR BIG TRACT NEAR HAMDEN.

One Hundred Thousand Acres of Land Will Be Developed According to Reports.

Hamden, O.—A plan of development elaborate in its details is said to be included in the purposes of a London, England, syndicate which is closing negotiations for the purchase of land south of Hamden. The abstracts to titles on the lands are just being completed. It is understood that the lands involved are to be developed for mines and minerals and include tracts, containing over 100,000 acres, belonging to the old Scioto, Buckhorn, Howard, Clinton, Junior and Empire furnaces, lying along the line of the Detroit, Toledo and Ironton railroad. E. B. Bingham and J. M. Patridge, of Wellston, who represent the capitalists, say that the purchase money has been subscribed. The enterprise is said to contemplate a vast scheme of cross, bisection railroad, with branches and switches, opening of coal mines, ore and shale lands and the construction of cement plants, including the building of a town near Chaffins Mills, south of Hamden.

HOSPITAL TO BE DELAYED

Trustees at Springfield Reject All Bids and Will Revise Plans.

Springfield, O.—Citing the facts that the plans as approved by the city were rejected by the state building inspector, and that the amount of bids for certain parts of the work on the contemplated improvements at the city hospital were not justified in proportion to the total amount intended for the additions, the board of hospital trustees rejected all bids and instructed Architect Robert C. Gotwald to draft new plans for the work.

The state building inspector insists upon radical changes in the plans as they now stand in order that ample fire protection may be provided. A complete rearrangement will be necessary to conform with the mandates of his office.

Bids for the work will be readvertised as soon as the specifications and plans are revised to meet the objections of the state official.

The board addressed a communication to Mayor Miller telling of its action and setting forth its reasons.

BIRDS CHARMED BY SNAKE.

Lorain, O.—The power of a snake to charm birds was thoroughly demonstrated at the home of Adam Baker, south of this city. Mrs. Baker noticed a flock of swallows, between thirty and fifty, hovering about the corner of the porch. She went near them and they seemed not to fear her. Even when she waved her arms the birds refused to be driven away. Members of the family and Mrs. Chas. Rolhfus, a neighbor, made an investigation and found a four-foot blue racer coiled up in one corner of the porch. Mrs. Baker's son killed the snake and the swallows flew away.

A SUBSTITUTE FOR ICE.

Lebanon, O.—Frank Andrews, of this city, has just perfected a formula for the production of cold. His product is ready for the market.

Housewives who have worried over the high cost of keeping things cool will have their troubled minds relieved, for the invention will make it possible to do the work on about half the usual amount of ice, according to Andrews.

The Andrews invention is a liquid, a pint of which, the inventor says, will last a year in an ordinary refrigerator.

TO MOVE TO COLUMBUS.

Columbus, O.—This city is promised a new and thriving industry in the Newark Tire and Rubber Co., which has just been purchased by the Pharis Brothers Rubber Co. of 121 East Gay street. The business of the Newark company has grown from a small beginning to relatively large proportions. Its products have found a market which is rapidly growing. The new owners of the business expect to move the plant here as soon as a suitable location can be found.

PROMINENT IRON MASTER DEAD.

Ironton, O.—B. B. Burr, president and general manager of the Belfont Iron Works Co., died here, aged 77 years. He had been identified with the iron business of this section for half a century. Two daughters, Mrs. John H. Williams and Mrs. Robert A. Martin, reside at Norwood, O.

PRESIDENT PASSES NEW RULE.

Lima, O.—President Albert Edwin Smith, of Ohio Northern University of Ada, has put the ban on co-educational boarding and rooming houses in the classic village. The college has no dormitories, and students room at large over the village, but the head of the university declares this will not be permitted, and students must secure rooms only at accredited private homes, no one of which will be permitted to lodge both girls and boys at the same time.

ELKS HAVE GREAT OUTING.

Springfield, O.—Three hundred of the horned brethren spent the day just as they pleased at Tecumseh park, when Springfield lodge, No. 51, of the Benevolent Order of Elks, gave its annual outing there. Nothing was omitted from the festivities of the occasion and everything worked together to make the gathering one that was designed to let every one of the entered herd browse to his satisfaction. There was something doing every hour of the day.

THEOPHILUS J. SAEHR

One of Ohio's Most Brilliant Scholars, Who Is Doing Considerable Chautauqua Work This Season.

COMPROMISE PLANNED.

Agreement Is Reached On Matter of Canal Abandonment—City To Get Abutting Strip.

Columbus, O.—A compromise practically has been agreed upon under which it is probable that the injunction suits in the Licking county common pleas court against the state taking further action to dispose of nearly a mile of abandoned canal in Newark will be dismissed.

The strip is 4,000 feet long and will be 50 feet wide after the state has given to the city a strip of 10 feet on either side for streets. It was the contention of the city that sale of the entire canal, which the state claims it has a good title to, would result in hardship to Newark citizens and owners of abutting property.

The compromise will enhance the value of the state's property. Fifty thousand dollars already has been bid for the real estate, but a considerably greater return from it is expected.

FEW SURVIVORS OF TWELFTH.

Marysville, O.—Only 28 survivors of the Twelfth Ohio Cavalry were present at the 27th annual reunion in the armory here. J. A. Hollinger of Co. I, Findlay, was elected president and David M. Hall of Co. F, Columbus, secretary-treasurer. The regiment was originally recruited from every county in the state, was mustered in at Cleveland with 1,463 men in 1861 and mustered out at the end of the war with only 800 men. The next reunion will be held in Findlay in August, 1913.

LEPER PASSED THROUGH OHIO.

Columbus, O.—A real leper passed through Ohio and through Columbus, and Dr. Eugene F. McCampbell, secretary of the State Board of Health, by whose authority the leper's pass was allowed, only smiled reassuringly and said:

"Not any more dangerous to the public than a case of tuberculosis."

The leper, W. T. Kaslwi, is en route from Philadelphia to the leper colony in the Hawaiian islands, under careful medical supervision.

BANQUET OF PEST KILLERS.

Bellefontaine, O.—The Spring Creek Sparrow club held their annual banquet and money prizes were divided among successful pest killers. The secretary's report showed club members had killed the following pests during the last year: Sparrows, 687; rats, 1,051; groundhogs, 118; crows, 134; moles, 77; hawks, 54; owls, 14; weasels, 83; minks, 31.

NEGRO STRUCK BY AUTO.

Dayton, O.—Henry Potter, colored, of Dunbar avenue, is in the Miami Valley hospital suffering from a mashed foot, the result of being knocked down on the Troy pike by an automobile. The injured man is said to have stepped directly in the path of the machine.

DAYTON DEATHS DECREASED.

Dayton, O.—Of the 35 deaths from contagious diseases during the month of July meningitis led the list. However, there was a marked decrease over the figures for corresponding months of previous years.

SHOW HOUSE FOR HAMILTON.

Hamilton, O.—It is possible that Hamilton will get a new Keith theater. It is said that Benjamin Field Ingsfeld, representing the Keith interests, has secured an option on the Mason property at South Third and Court streets.

DOCTORS PLAN BIG PICNIC.

Portsmouth, O.—Hempstead academy is planning to pull off a novel stunt on Monday night, August 12, when it will hold an outing at Millbrook park. The members of the academy will be the guests of the executive committee which is arranging some great features for the occasion. It is promised that some of the greatest oratory ever heard in Portsmouth will be indulged in by the speakers. A large attendance of all concerned is expected by the management.

SUES FOR TOE LOSSES.

Columbus, O.—Jacob R. Diamond, of New York City, values his toes at $25,000 each. He filed suit in the common pleas court here against the Columbus Railway and Light Co. for $100,000 for the loss of four of them.

ESCAPES LUCKILY IN FALL.

Marysville, O.—Fred Thompson, aged 17, employed as a tree trimmer, fell 48 feet from a hickory tree. His only injuries were a slightly sprained ankle and back.

BOARD OF ELECTION

APPOINTED BY SECRETARY OF STATE GRAVES FOR 80 COUNTIES.

Several Contests Were Settled by Central Committees of Both Parties, Regulars Winning.

Columbus.—Secretary of State Chas. H. Graves announced the appointment of members of the boards of deputy state supervisors and inspectors of elections for 80 counties of the state. Eight counties, Cuyahoga, Hamilton, Franklin, Lucas, Montgomery, Stark, Butler and Lorain, are named in May. The terms are for two years.

Although the laws on the subject are specific, contests arose in both Democratic and Republican parties over the positions and it was necessary to call both state central committees to decide contests. Regulars won in both cases in the committees and Mr. Graves followed their recommendations.

The jobs actually seemed to go begging in not a few cases. [illegible]

In these counties neither the county central nor executive committee made a recommendation within the time prescribed by law and the secretary of state was obliged to make the appointment without recognition of the controlling committee.

No Republican members, owing to failure to get any sort of recommendation, were appointed in Portage and Wyandot counties and no Democrat was named in Vinton.

The laws require that members of the boards of election must come from the two dominant parties.

July Showing Is Good.

Incorporation records of the secretary of state for July show $25,173,100 new capital authorized during the month. Charters were issued to 198 new companies organized for profit with a total capital of $7,987,100. Increases in the capital stock of existing corporations amounted to $17,195,000. Great business expansion is shown in this record of additional stock issues. This is emphasized by the fact that the stock decreases amounted to only $948,000 during the entire month. Most of the capital increases were for the purposes of extending business capacity or opening new fields of distribution or as in the case of the Willys-Overland Co. in the purchase of competing concern. The Overland Co. of Toledo doubled its capital stock when it purchased the plant and assets of the Garford Automobile Co. at Elyria.

Ohio May Attend Land Show.

That steps may be taken to give Ohio a good showing in New York at the American Land and Irrigation Exposition, Nov. 15 to Dec. 2, a meeting will be held by the state board of agriculture Aug. 14 at the statehouse. To railroad men and agriculturists and all persons having the interests of the state in this line at heart, invitations have been extended to attend this meeting.

The determination to promote this cause grew out of a visit of T. M. La Jord, of New York, traveling through the Middle Western states to arouse interest in presenting agricultural advantages in the national metropolis.

The purpose of the exposition is to overcome the trend of population toward the cities. In effect, its motive is "back to the soil."

Steamers Are Common Carriers.

Are river steamers run by an amusement company public utilities or are they in the class with other amusement features of the park?

This question was raised by the Coney Island Amusement Co. of Cincinnati in a hearing before the state tax commission. The company contended the commission had no authority to fix the valuation of its steamer business. The commission held the opinion that the two steamers which the company runs on the Ohio river are common carriers.

Because of the claim of the Eastland Navigation Co., of Cleveland, that its steamer is not earning any more than last year, its valuation was allowed to remain at $120,000, practically the same as that of last year.

Plan Large Traction Extension.

Plans are being considered for the development of the Columbus, New Albany and Johnstown Traction railway from its present terminus at Gahanna to Wooster. It is understood that Cleveland traction interests are back of the proposition. Efforts will be made to buy the property if the proposed plans are adopted. Estimates made of the cost of such an extension [illegible]

Municipal Bond Business Good.

[illegible]

Wider Delivery August 15.

Express companies operating in Columbus will not have to deliver packages outside of their former free delivery boundaries until August 15, according to a ruling of the public service commission after passing on the petition for a rehearing. Thursday was the date set by a decision after the first hearing for extension of the free delivery limits.

The second hearing will be held August 6. The American, Adams and Wells Fargo Express Cos. were represented.

REV. A. C. YOUNT

Oil Field Produces Gusher.

The deepsand territory in southeastern Ohio is again coming to the front as an oil field and promises to be very interesting during the remainder of the year. In the northern end of the field, in Muskingum and Licking counties, the prospects for the development of a large production are good. Some of the wells in these two counties start at better than 100 barrels and then settle down to 50 or 60 barrels a day and are steady producers. Just at this time the best deepsand producers are found in Reading township, Perry county, northeast of Bremen, in Fairfield county. In this development the Ohio Fuel Supply Co. has completed and shot its test on the Jacob Barnes farm and it produced 550 barrels the ensuing 24 hours. It is 600 feet north of the Avalon Oil and Gas Co.'s No. 5 on the James W. Adcock farm and is the largest well completed in deepsand territory for more than a year. To the south of this well, the Avalon Oil and Gas Co. has a fine producer on the Adcock farm and one on the Julia Householder farm. This development is on a direct northeast line between the old Bremen, Junction City field, and the new development in Hopewell township, Muskingum county, and is between 15 and 20 miles north and a little west of the Gore-New Straitsville field in Hocking and Perry counties.

Permission Given to Settle.

Giving the state department of banking permission to settle the claims of the defunct Columbus Savings and Trust Co. against the Caso Crono Co. by accepting stock in the new Caso Crane Co. which has been formed, the common pleas court handed down a decision. The amount involved is $20,468.28. Superintendent Baxter of the department, who is in charge of the liquidation of the Columbus Savings and Trust Co., suggested taking stock in lieu of the claims against the Caso Crono Co., for the reason that he believed it will yield par value or thereabouts.

Pensioner Is Aged 102.

William J. C. Jackson, who says he is 102 years old and who is only able to walk about with the assistance of two canes, was an applicant for an increase in pension at the state commissioner of pensions. He recently stayed at the National Soldiers' Home at Dayton and receives $27 a month.

He served in the United States navy. Jackson was assisted to the commissioner's office by two colored boys. As far as known he is the oldest pensioner living in Columbus.

Jones Announces Drastic Rule.

Further to discourage the violation of paroles or trusts of honor from the penitentiary, Warden Jones announced a rule whereby all prisoners returned for such offense will not only be clothed at once in the stripes of the third-grade prisoner, and deprived of the sentence shortening allowed for good behavior, but also deprived of practically all privileges.

Railroads Sued in U. S. Court.

Because their trainmen were worked more than 16 hours consecutively, it is alleged, federal suits were instituted in United States court here against the Hocking Valley and the government claims liability in the sum of $500 for each cause, making a total of $7,500. Only one cause is cited against the T. & O. C. [illegible] of $500 is claimed.

Death Rate Is Decreasing.

A decrease in the number of deaths from tuberculosis in Ohio is shown in the 1911 report of the state bureau of vital statistics. The total death roll from this disease during 1911 was 7,045 as against [illegible] in 1910. [illegible] rank of third in this death [illegible]

Inspectors Kept on the Alert.

[illegible] prices of beef have [illegible] necessity for [illegible] inspectors [illegible] sale of diseased meat, [illegible] State Dairy and Food Commissioner S. E. Strode. Beefsteak [illegible] as high as 30 cents [illegible] temptation on the part of [illegible] advantage of the unscrupulous for profit has been [illegible] could resist. To Inspect Small Boilers.

Dry cleaners and pressers who have steam boilers which maintain a pressure of 60 pounds a square inch will have to submit to boiler inspection, according to an opinion of Attorney General Hogan to the state board of boiler rules.

All boilers having a pressure of less than 15 pounds a square inch, unless they have approved safety devices, will be subject to inspection also, holds Mr. Hogan. These inspections will be by state officials and is compulsory according to the decision.

PUBLIC DEFENDER

Oklahoma has taken the lead in adopting many "radical" or more correctly speaking, "progressive" ideas in government. Many prominent men including President Taft, and many Eastern newspapers have made slurring remarks about this new state but the people of Oklahoma don't seem to care. They are keeping their progressive laws and making more along the same lines. If they get anything that they do not like, they have the initiative and referendum with which to change to more conservative ideas. But they are keeping their progressive laws. They, the people who foot the bills, seem to like the progressive laws. Here is a new idea that has quite lately been adopted.

The penniless and friendless who have been deprived of their legal rights in Oklahoma will henceforth be assured of a square deal.

The public defender stands ready to fight their battles for them to the supreme court if needs be and without pay other than the salary he draws from the state.

The public defender's office was created by the last legislature. It is his duty to assume the defense of the personal liberties and property rights of all who cannot afford to hire lawyers. No other state or nation has any such official.

The first public defender, [illegible] Stolpher has already demonstrated the value of free legal advice for the defenseless. For instance he has already prosecuted and won hundreds of suits for Indian children who were being defrauded by dishonest guardians leagued with corrupt court officials. The grafters have been forced to give up the spoils.

It is quite easy to understand why the above mentioned grafters and corrupt court officials do not like the new laws and ways of the progressive state of Oklahoma. It is safe to say that their ideas of these laws "would not be fit for publication."

WILSON AND IMMIGRATION

A great deal of comment is being heard about a statement in one of Gov. Wilson's books concerning his views on immigration. At the time Mr Wilson wrote the book in question the transatlantic steamship companies were artificially stimulating immigration to this country from Southern Europe by holding out false promises to the prospective immigrants. In huge advertisements these people were told that every immigrant would be given a farm on arrival here and that well-paying jobs awaited everybody. This had the effect of bringing over a lot of people who were ill-fitted to [illegible] and who would have remained at home had they known the real truth.

Mr Wilson protested against this kind of [illegible] and now certain Republican newspapers are trying to make it appear that he wanted to keep all immigrants out of this country.

[illegible]

The [illegible] Telegraph [illegible] always [illegible] on the [illegible] progressive side of public questions and political issues. [illegible] at present the columns of that paper are filled with syndicate specials sent out from Columbus opposing the amendments to the state constitution. All these "specials" are sent out by the "business interests" enjoying special privileges and these interests are willing to pay liberally for this advertising matter in order to deceive the people and misrepresent the constitutional amendments. It is strange that a local newspaper should lend its influence and news columns to oppose all the benefits that would come to Lake county through changes in the constitution, and favor the huge corporations that have grown fat at the expense of the rural interests of the state. The Telegraph has served so long with the political machine of this state that is so closely allied with the corporations, that possibly it is a mere matter of habit with the editor to accept all this syndicate matter without question, but the readers of the Telegraph should send in a few protests to the editor and probably he will awaken to the fact that nine-tenths of the people have turned progressive and that the standpatters are seeing the twilight of their last day.

RANDOM THOUGHTS

By Tom, Dick and Harry.

Lack of space last week prevented the publishing of the whole of Mr. Levengood's article. This installment concludes it.

Our editor has failed to advance one argument against the philosophy of socialism. He has contented himself by trying to show that the Socialists have been wasting their efforts in trying to build up a party. And then he scolds us for not disbanding and joining forces with the Democratic party!

Such arguments may serve as good bait for suckers, but certainly not for men who possess a spark of reason.

The Democratic party is opposed to the interests of the working class but this does not halt their efforts in begging for working class votes. In his speech before the delegates of the Democratic convention, denouncing Ryan, Belmont, and Murphy, Bryan solemnly declared that no candidate receiving their votes and the votes of Murphy's ninety wax figures could have his support.

Woodrow Wilson received these and without these and other votes controlled by the "interests" he could not have been nominated, and if Bryan now supports Wilson he simply stultifies himself before the American people.

Woodrow Wilson was quite agreeable to Ryan, Belmont, and Murphy and the Tammany corruptionists or he would not have received their votes. The evidence clearly proves that Woodrow Wilson has a perfect understanding with the predatory interests.

I wish to impress upon our editor that we are not upon the "Island of Despair" nor are we looking for a "good staunch ship" to rise upon the surface of the water, to take us to the promised land. Such dreams may suit the fancies of reactionary Democrats, but class conscious working men have not the time to waste with them.

The work of the socialists elected to office in this country speaks for itself. The democrats and republicans can plainly comprehend what the future holds for them. It is but a question of time until they will throw off their masks and unite their forces in an effort to stop the rising tide of socialism, as they have already done in Milwaukee and many other places—places where the Socialist party threatened them with defeat.

The laws of economic evolution have decreed the downfall of the capitalist system. Within the ruins will be buried the Republican and Democratic parties.

A new order is evolving from this outgrown system of capitalism. It is clearly the Socialist Commonwealth.

Yours most respectfully
GEORGE LEVENGOOD

PERRY

Speaking to a man who recently arrived from Europe, I asked if he had stopped at Niagara while enroute for Cleveland. He replied "No, you see I had forgotten it was there." That is the way with many of us, we forget it's there, forget its grandeur and beauty. However two Perry young men, Horace Buckles and Roger Trites made a trip to Niagara last week and enjoyed it immensely. It was a vacation worth while.

Mrs. Elsie Missner entertained Miss Helen Flory and Miss [illegible] at her home Tuesday.

Mrs S. W. Hurlburt and [illegible] were in Cleveland Wednesday.

Miss Tressa Merriman is visiting friends in Ashtabula and [illegible] counties.

Mr and Mrs Fred [illegible] and two children of Amboy, spent the week end visiting in Perry at the home of Mr and Mrs Roy Sweet and other friends.

Friends of Rev. Buckles will be glad to learn that the family will not move to Tennessee as was planned but instead will settle on a farm purchased in Madison.

The Misses Agnes and Eva Schoels returned to Toledo Sunday morning. Miss Anna Schoels will spend a couple of weeks more at the Woods'.

Mr and Mrs Fred Lewis spent Sunday with Mr and Mrs J. H. Wood and family.

Rev. C. C. Wilson, a school mate of O. W. Hearn, will occupy the pulpit of the Christian church Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Hearn and family leave for the Southland on Wednesday.

Miss Alice Bower of Madison was Nattie Shook's guest on Sunday.

Mr. Harry Stigers is visiting in town.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Travis visited relatives in Warren last week.

The Sinclair reunion was held at Mrs H. C. Green's home last Wednesday. Miss Ethel Green of Farmville, Va., is spending the summer with Mrs. Green.

The body of Milton Sinclair, brother of Mrs H. C. Green and Mrs Wire, was brought here from Michigan Sunday for burial.

Mr and Mrs J. L. Salkeld were in Geneva Sunday.

Mrs Howard Brooks of Cleveland, spent Sunday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs Mack. Bertha Mack, who has been visiting in the city, returned with her.

Mr. Fred Wilhelm is about to add an automobile to his already well equipped livery.

Mrs A. P. Stephens and daughter Nina, were shopping in Cleveland Monday.

Mistaken Idea About Sap

In this maple sugar section most of us think of the sap going down in the winter, remarks the Warren Tribune. This is not true. It merely doesn't go up. During the active spring vegetation the goes up comparatively rapidly to help form new leaves and shoots to replace evaporated sap. During the summer the supply is kept in normal quantities, but with the approach of autumn the manufacture of its life fluid by the tree decreases and when winter comes it becomes almost negative.

THE LAND OF BEGINNING AGAIN

I wish that there were some wonderful place
Called the Land of Beginning Again
Where all our mistakes and all our heartaches
And all of our poor selfish grief
Could be dropped like a shabby old coat at the door,
And never put on again.

I wish we would come on it all unaware,
Like the hunter who finds a lost trail,
And I wish that the one whom our blindness had done
The greatest injustice of all
Could be at the gates like an old friend that waits
For the comrade he's gladdest to hail.

We would find all the things we intended to do
But forgot, and remembered too late,
Little praises unspoken, little promises broken
And all of the thousand and one
Little duties neglected that might have perfected
The day for one less fortunate.

It wouldn't be possible not to be kind
In the Land of Beginning Again,
And the ones we misjudged and the ones whom we grudged
Their moments of victory here
Would find in the grasp of our loving handclasp
More than penitent lips could explain.

For what had been hardest, we'd know had been best,
And what had seemed loss would be gain;
For there isn't a sting that will not take wing
When we've faced and laughed it away;
And I think that the laughter is most what we're after
In the Land of Beginning Again.

So I wish that there were some wonderful place
Called the Land of Beginning Again
Where all our mistakes and all our heartaches
And all of our poor, selfish grief
Could be dropped like a shabby old coat at the door
And never be put on again.

SUPPLEMENT TO
The Lake County Weekly Herald.

PAINESVILLE, OHIO, THURSDAY, AUGUST 8, 1912.

This is an exact copy of an official notice issued by authority of the Constitutional Convention. The explanatory matter following each amendment has been considered and approved by vote of the Convention.

ADDRESS TO THE PEOPLE

TO THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF OHIO:

The Fourth Constitutional Convention, having been authorized to draft a partial or complete revision of the fundamental law of the State, hereby announces the conclusion and result of its labors.

Forty-one Amendments to the Constitution have been agreed to. These, with an amendment on schedule, will be submitted to popular vote, September 3, 1912.

The form of the ballot will permit a separate vote on each amendment, and the majority of the votes cast upon any amendment will be sufficient for its adoption.

The members of the Convention appreciate profoundly the honor of the service they were called upon to render, and await, with hope of approval, the verdict of a sovereign people.

A facsimile of the ballot to be used at the special election and the text of each amendment to be submitted, accompanied with explanatory matter authorized by the Convention, are herewith set forth.

Attest: C. B. GALBREATH, Secretary. HERBERT S. BIGELOW, President.

Number 1.

Reform in Civil Jury System.

ARTICLE I.

Sec. 5. The right of trial by jury shall be inviolate, except that, in civil cases, laws may be passed to authorize the rendering of a verdict by the concurrence of not less than three-fourths of the jury.

By this amendment no change is made in the right or method of trial by jury in criminal cases, but if the law-making body so desires, provision may be made that in civil cases a verdict may be rendered in the event that not less than nine of the jurymen agree thereon.

Number 2.

Abolition of Capital Punishment.

ARTICLE I.

Sec. 9. All persons shall be bailable by sufficient sureties, except those charged with murder in the first degree, where proof is evident or the presumption great. Excessive bail shall not be required, nor excessive fines imposed, nor cruel and unusual punishments inflicted, nor shall life be taken as a punishment for crime. Until otherwise provided by law, persons convicted of crimes heretofore punishable by death shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary during life.

The foregoing amendment, if adopted by the electorate of the state, will substitute life imprisonment for the death penalty. There will be no more legal executions in the state for crime of any kind.

Number 3.

Depositions by State and Comment on Failure of Accused to Testify in Criminal Cases.

ARTICLE I.

Sec. 10. Except in cases of impeachment, cases arising in the army and navy, or in the militia when in actual service in time of war or public danger, and cases involving offenses for which the penalty provided is less than imprisonment in the penitentiary, no person shall be held to answer for a capital, or otherwise infamous, crime, unless on presentment or indictment of a grand jury; and the number of persons necessary to constitute such grand jury and the number thereof necessary to concur in finding such indictment shall be determined by law. In any trial, in any court, the party accused shall be allowed to appear and defend in person and with counsel; to demand the nature and cause of the accusation against him, and to have a copy thereof; to meet the witnesses face to face, and to have compulsory process to procure the attendance of witnesses in his behalf, and a speedy public trial by an impartial jury of the county in which the offense is alleged to have been committed; but provision may be made by law for the taking of the deposition by the accused or by the state, to be used for or against the accused, of any witness whose attendance can not be had at the trial, always securing to the accused means and the opportunity to be present in person and with counsel at the taking of such deposition, and to examine the witness face to face as fully and in the same manner as if in court. No person shall be compelled, in any criminal case, to be a witness against himself; but his failure to testify may be considered by the court and jury and may be made the subject of comment by counsel. No person shall be twice put in jeopardy for the same offense.

The amendment proposes: 1. That the number of persons to constitute a grand jury and the number necessary to concur in finding an indictment shall be determined by law. At present a grand jury is composed of fifteen persons, at least twelve of whom are necessary to concur in finding an indictment.

2. That provision may be made by law for the taking by the accused and also by the state of the deposition of any witness whose attendance cannot be had at the trial. It is also provided in the amendment that if such depositions are taken, the means and the opportunity must always be secured to the accused to be present in person and with counsel at such taking and to examine the witness, whose deposition is so being taken, in the same manner as if present in court.

3. That if the accused fails to testify such failure may be considered by the court and jury and may be made the subject of comment by counsel, none of which may be done at present.

Number 4.

Suits Against the State.

ARTICLE I.

Sec. 16. All courts shall be open, and every person, for an injury done him in his land, goods, person, or reputation, shall have remedy by due course of law, and shall have justice administered without denial or delay. Suits may be brought against the state, in such courts and in such manner, as may be provided by law.

Under our present system of procedure persons having disputed claims against the state must either have them allowed by the general assembly or must secure permission by special law to bring suit against the state. To simplify this and to prevent unnecessary legislation this amendment is proposed. If adopted, it will authorize individuals to bring suit against the state the same as against private persons, in such courts and in such manner as may be provided by law.

Number 5.

Damage for Wrongful Death.

ARTICLE I.

Sec. 19a. The amount of damages recoverable by civil action in the courts for death caused by the wrongful act, neglect, or default of another, shall not be limited by law.

Under the present constitution in a civil action for death caused by the wrongful act, neglect or default of another, the legislature may limit the amount of the recovery and has exercised that right. If this amendment is adopted, the law-making power can place no limit on the amount of recovery in such cases.

Number 6.

Initiative and Referendum.

ARTICLE II.

Sec. 1. The legislative power of the state shall be vested in a general assembly consisting of a senate and house of representatives but the people reserve to themselves the power to propose to the general assembly laws and amendments to the constitution, and to adopt or reject the same at the polls on a referendum vote as hereinafter provided. They also reserve the power to adopt or reject any law, section of any law or any item in any law appropriating money passed by the general assembly, except as hereinafter provided; and independent of the general assembly to propose amendments to the constitution and to adopt or reject the same at the polls. The limitations expressed in the constitution, on the power of the general assembly to enact laws, shall be deemed limitations on the power of the people to enact laws.

Sec. 1a. The first aforestated power reserved by the people is designated the initiative, and the signatures of ten per centum of the electors shall be required upon a petition to propose an amendment to the constitution. When a petition signed by the aforesaid required number of electors, shall have been filed with the secretary of state, and verified as herein provided, proposing an amendment to the constitution, the full text of which shall have been set forth in such petition, the secretary of state shall submit for the approval or rejection of the electors, the proposed amendment, in the manner hereinafter provided, at the next succeeding regular or general election in any year occurring subsequent to ninety days after the filing of such petition. The initiative petitions, above described, shall have printed across the top thereof: "Amendment to the Constitution Proposed by Initiative Petition to be Submitted Directly to the Electors."

Sec. 1b. When at any time, not less than ten days prior to the commencement of any session of the general assembly, there shall have been filed with the secretary of state a petition signed by three per centum of the electors and verified as herein provided, proposing a law, the full text of which shall have been set forth in such petition, the secretary of state shall transmit the same to the general assembly as soon as it convenes. If said proposed law shall be passed by the general assembly, either as petitioned for or in an amended form, it shall be subject to the referendum. If it shall not be passed, or if it shall be passed in an amended form, or if no action shall be taken thereon within four months from the time it is received by the general assembly, it shall be submitted by the secretary of state to the electors for their approval or rejection at the next regular or general election, if such submission shall be demanded by supplementary petition verified as herein provided and signed by not less than three per centum of the electors in addition to those signing the original petition, which supplementary petition must be signed and filed with the secretary of state within ninety days after the proposed law shall have been rejected by the general assembly or after the expiration of such term of four months, if no action has been taken thereon, or after the law as passed by the general assembly shall have been filed by the governor in the office of the secretary of state. The proposed law shall be submitted in the form demanded by such supplementary petition, which form shall be either as first petitioned for or with any amendment or amendments which may have been incorporated therein by either branch or by both branches, of the general assembly. If a proposed law so submitted is approved by a majority of the electors voting thereon, it shall be the law and shall go into effect as herein provided in lieu of any amended form of said law which may have been passed by the general assembly, and such amended law passed by the general assembly shall not go into effect until and unless the law proposed by supplementary petition shall have been rejected by the electors. All such initiative petitions, last above described, shall have printed across the top thereof, in case of proposed laws: "Law Proposed by Initiative Petition First to be Submitted to the General Assembly." Ballots shall be so printed as to permit an affirmative or negative vote upon each measure submitted to the electors. Any proposed law or amendment to the constitution submitted to the electors as provided in section 1a and section 1b, if approved by a majority of the electors voting thereon, shall take effect thirty days after the election at which it was approved and shall be published by the secretary of state. If conflicting proposed laws or conflicting proposed amendments to the constitution shall be approved at the same election by a majority of the total number of votes cast for and against the same, the one receiving the highest number of affirmative votes shall be the law, or in the case of amendments to the constitution shall be the amendment to the constitution. No law proposed by initiative petition and approved by the electors shall be subject to the veto of the governor.

Sec. 1c. The second aforestated power reserved by the people is designated the referendum, and the signatures of six per centum of the electors shall be required upon a petition to order the submission to the electors of the state for their approval or rejection, of any law, section of any law or any item in any law appropriating money passed by the general assembly. No law passed by the general assembly shall go into effect until ninety days after it shall have been filed by the governor in the office of the secretary of state, except as herein provided. When a petition, signed by six per centum of the electors of the state and verified as herein provided, shall have been filed with the secretary of state within ninety days after any law shall have been filed with the governor in the office of the secretary of state, ordering that such law, section of such law or any item in such law appropriating money be submitted to the electors of the state for their approval or rejection, the secretary of state shall submit to the electors of the state for their approval or rejection such law, section or item, in the manner herein provided, at the next succeeding regular or general election in any year occurring subsequent to sixty days after the filing of such petition, and no such law, section or item shall go into effect until and unless approved by a majority of those voting upon the same. If, however, a referendum petition is filed against any such section or item, the remainder of the law shall not thereby be prevented or delayed from going into effect.

Sec. 1d. Laws providing for tax levies, appropriations for the current expenses of the state government and state institutions, and emergency laws necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health or safety, shall go into immediate effect. Such emergency laws upon a yea and nay vote must receive the vote of two-thirds of all the members elected to each branch of the general assembly, and the reasons for such necessity shall be set forth in one section of the law, which section shall be passed only upon a yea and nay vote upon a separate roll call thereon. The laws mentioned in this section shall not be subject to referendum.

Sec. 1e. The powers defined herein as the "initiative" and "referendum" shall not be used to pass a law authorizing any classification of property for the purpose of levying different rates of taxation thereon or of authorizing the levy of any single tax on land or land values or land sites at a higher rate or by a different rule than is or may be applied to improvements thereon or to personal property.

Sec. 1f. The initiative and referendum powers are hereby reserved to the people of each municipality on all questions which such municipalities may now or hereafter be authorized by law to control by legislative action; such powers shall be exercised in the manner now or hereafter provided by law.

Sec. 1g. Any initiative, supplementary or referendum petition may be presented in separate parts but each part shall contain a full and correct copy of the title, and text of the law, section or item thereof sought to be referred, or the proposed law or proposed amendment to the constitution. Each signer of any initiative, supplementary or referendum petition must be an elector of the state and shall place on such petition after his name the date of signing and his place of residence. A signer residing outside of a municipality shall state the township and county in which he resides. A resident of a municipality shall state in addition to the name of such municipality, the street and number, if any, of his residence and the ward and precinct in which the same is located. The names of all signers to such petition shall be written in ink, each signer for himself. To each part of such petition shall be attached the affidavit of the person soliciting the signatures to the same, which affidavit shall contain a statement of the number of the signers of such part of such petition and shall state that each of the signatures attached to such part was made in the presence of the affiant, that to the best of his knowledge and belief each signature on such part is the genuine signature of the person whose name it purports to be, that he believes the persons who have signed it to be electors, that they so signed said petition with knowledge of the contents thereof, that each signer signed the same on the date stated opposite his name, and no other affidavit thereto shall be required. The petition and signatures upon such petitions, so verified, shall be presumed to be in all respects sufficient, unless not later than forty days before the election, it shall be otherwise proved and in such event ten additional days shall be allowed for the filing of additional signatures to such petition. No law or amendment to the constitution submitted to the electors by initiative and supplementary petition and receiving an affirmative majority of the votes cast thereon, shall be held unconstitutional or void on account of the insufficiency of the petitions by which such submission of the same was procured; nor shall the rejection of any law submitted by referendum petition be held invalid for such insufficiency. Upon all initiative, supplementary and referendum petitions provided for in any of the sections of this article, it shall be necessary to file from each of one-half of the counties of the state, petitions bearing the signatures of not less than one-half of the designated percentage of the electors of such county. A true copy of all laws or proposed laws or proposed amendments to the constitution, together with an argument or explanation, or both, for, and also an argument or explanation, or both, against the same, shall be prepared. The person or persons who prepare the argument or explanation, or both, against any law, section or item, submitted to the electors by referendum petition, may be named in such petition and the persons who prepare the argument or explanation, or both, for any proposed law or proposed amendment to the constitution may be named in the petition proposing the same. The person or persons who prepare the argument or explanation, or both, for the law, section or item, submitted to the electors by referendum petition, or against any proposed law submitted by supplementary petition, shall be named by the general assembly, if in session, and if not in session then by the governor. The secretary of state shall cause to be printed the law, or proposed law, or proposed amendment to the constitution, together with the arguments and explanations, not exceeding a total of three hundred words for each, and also the arguments and explanations, not exceeding a total of three hundred words against each, and shall mail, or otherwise distribute, a copy of such law, or proposed law, or proposed amendment to the constitution, together with such arguments and explanations for and against the same to each of the electors of the state, as far as may be reasonably possible. Unless otherwise provided by law, the secretary of state shall cause to be placed upon the ballots, the title of any such law, or proposed law, or proposed amendment to the constitution, to be submitted. He shall also cause the ballots so to be printed as to permit an affirmative or negative vote upon each law, section of law, or item in a law appropriating money, or proposed law, or proposed amendment to the constitution. The style of all laws submitted by initiative and supplementary petition shall be: "Be it Enacted by the People of the State of Ohio," and of all constitutional amendments: "Be it Resolved by the People of the State of Ohio." The basis upon which the required number of petitioners in any case shall be determined shall be the total number of votes cast for the office of governor at the last preceding election therefor. The foregoing provisions of this section shall be self-executing, except as herein otherwise provided. Laws may be passed to facilitate their operation, but in no way limiting or restricting either such provisions or the powers herein reserved.

SCHEDULE.

The foregoing amendment, if adopted by the electors, shall take effect October 1, 1912.

The purpose of this amendment is to enable the people to propose amendments to the constitution, to propose laws to the general assembly for enactment and also to enable the electors to require any law passed by the general assembly to be submitted to a popular vote.

The amendment provides:

1. That if ten per centum of the electors sign a petition to be filed with the secretary of state proposing an amendment to the constitution, such proposed amendment shall be submitted to the electors at the next election held subsequent to ninety days after the filing of such petition. If the majority of those voting upon the proposed amendment vote in the affirmative, the amendment becomes a part of the constitution.

2. That if at any time not less than ten days prior to the commencement of any session of the general assembly three per centum of the electors shall sign a petition proposing a bill and shall file the same with the secretary of state, it shall be transmitted by him to the general assembly. If the general assembly passes the bill as petitioned for, it shall become a law subject always to the referendum as hereinafter defined. If the general assembly fails to pass the law petitioned for, or passes it in an amended form, a petition containing the signatures of three per centum of the electors in addition to the original three per centum may require the submission to the voters for approval or rejection of the law originally petitioned for, or as modified by any of the amendments proposed by the general assembly. If a majority of those voting on the proposed measure vote in favor of it, then it shall become a law and the law passed by the legislature, if any, pursuant to the petition presented to the general assembly, shall become void.

3. That at any time within ninety days after a law passed by the general assembly has been filed with the secretary of state, six per centum of the electors may sign and file with the secretary of state a petition demanding the submission of such law to the people at their next election for their approval or rejection. If a majority of those voting upon the measure vote against the same, it shall be void.

4. That laws providing for tax levies, appropriations for the current expenses of the state government and institutions and emergency laws necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health or safety shall go into effect immediately if they receive a two-thirds vote of all the members elected to the general assembly.

5. That the initiative and referendum shall not be used to pass laws authorizing the classification of property for taxation or for the levy of any single tax on land or land values. It provides that the initiative and referendum powers are reserved to the people of each municipality to be exercised in the manner now or hereafter provided by law.

6. That each of one-half of the counties of the state must furnish the signatures of not less than one-half of the designated percentage of the electors of such county.

PUBLIC DEFENDER

Oklahoma has taken the lead in adopting many "radical" or more correctly speaking, "progressive" ideas in government. Many prominent men including President Taft, and many Eastern newspapers have made slurring remarks about this new state but the people of Oklahoma don't seem to care. They are keeping their progressive laws and making more along the same lines. If they get anything that they do not like, they have the initiative and referendum with which to change to more conservative ideas. But they are keeping their progressive laws. They, the people who foot the bills, seem to like the progressive laws. Here is a new idea that has quite lately been adopted.

The penniless and friendless who have been deprived of their legal rights in Oklahoma will henceforth be assured of a square deal.

The public defender stands ready to fight their battles for them in the supreme court of [illegible], and without pay other than the salary he draws from the state.

The public defender's office was created by the last legislature. It is his duty to assume the defense of the personal liberties and property rights of all who cannot afford to hire lawyers. No other state or nation has any such official.

The first public defender, [illegible] Stolpher has already demonstrated the value of safe legal advice for the defenseless. For instance, he has already prosecuted and won hundreds of suits for Indian children who were being defrauded by dishonest guardians leagued with corrupt court officials. The grafters have been forced to give up the spoils.

It is quite easy to understand why the above mentioned grafters and corrupt court officials do not like the new laws and ways of the progressive state of Oklahoma. It is safe to say that their ideas of these laws "would not be fit for publication."

WILSON AND IMMIGRATION

A great deal of comment is being heard about a statement in one of Gov. Wilson's books concerning his views on immigration. At the time Mr. Wilson wrote the book in question the transatlantic steamship companies were artificially stimulating immigration to this country from Southern Europe by holding out false promises to the prospective immigrants. In huge advertisements these people were told that every immigrant would be given a farm on arrival here and that well-paying jobs awaited everybody. This had the effect of bringing over a lot of people who were induced to come and who would have remained at home had they known the real truth.

Mr. Wilson protested against this sort of thing and now certain Republican newspapers are trying to make it appear that he wants to keep all immigrants out of this country.

Mr. Wilson is in favor of [illegible] He asks only the [illegible] that have [illegible] provided and [illegible] up [illegible] woman in whom [illegible] of good [illegible]

The Daily Telegraph [illegible] always [illegible] on the [illegible] progressive side of public questions and political issues. [illegible] at present the columns of that paper are filled with syndicate specials sent out from Columbus opposing the amendments to the state constitution. All these "specials" are sent out by the "business interests" enjoying special privileges and these interests are willing to pay liberally for this advertising matter in order to deceive the people and misrepresent the constitutional amendments. It is strange that a local newspaper should lend its influence and news columns to oppose all the benefits that would come to Lake county through changes in the constitution, and favor the huge corporations that have grown fat at the expense of the rural interests of the state. The Telegraph has served so long with the political machine of this state that is so closely allied with the corporations, that possibly it is a mere matter of habit with the editor to accept all this syndicate matter without question, but the readers of the Telegraph should send in a few protests to the editor and probably he will awaken to the fact that nine-tenths of the people have turned progressive and that the standpatters are seeing the twilight of their last day.

RANDOM THOUGHTS

By Tom, Dick and Harry

Lack of space last week prevented the publishing of the whole of Mr. Levengood's article. This installment concludes it.

Our editor has failed to advance one argument against the philosophy of socialism. He has contented himself by trying to show that the Socialists have been wasting their efforts in trying to build up a party. And then he scolds us for not disbanding and joining forces with the Democratic party.

Such arguments may serve as good bait for suckers, but certainly not for men who possess a spark of reason.

The Democratic party is opposed to the interests of the working class, but this does not halt their efforts in begging for working class votes. In his speech before the delegates of the Democratic convention, denouncing Ryan, Belmont and Murphy, Bryan solemnly declared that no candidate receiving their votes and the votes of Murphy's ninety wax figures could have his support.

Woodrow Wilson received these and without these and other votes controlled by the "Interests" he could not have been nominated, and if Bryan now supports Wilson he simply stultifies himself before the American people.

Woodrow Wilson was quite agreeable to Ryan, Belmont, and Murphy and the Tammany corruptionists or [illegible] would not have received their votes. The evidence clearly proves that Woodrow Wilson has a perfect understanding with the "predatory interests."

I wish to impress upon our editor that we are not upon the "Island of Despair," nor are we looking for a "good staunch ship" to rise upon the surface of the water, "to take us to the promised land." Such dreams may suit the fancies of reactionary Democrats, but class conscious working men have not the time to waste with them.

The work of the socialists elected to office in this country speaks for itself. The democrats and republicans can plainly comprehend what the future holds for them. It is but a question of time until they will throw off their masks and unite their forces in an effort to stop the rising tide of socialism, as they have already done in Milwaukee and many other places where the Socialist party threatened them with defeat.

The laws of economic evolution have decreed the downfall of the capitalist system. Within the ruins will be buried the Republican and Democratic parties.

A new order is evolving from this outgrown system of capitalism. It is clearly the Socialist Commonwealth.

Yours most respectfully,

PERRY.

Speaking to a man who recently arrived from Europe, I asked if he had stopped at Nigara while enroute for Cleveland. He replied, "No, you see I had forgotten it was there." That is the way with many of us, we forget it's there, forget its grandeur and beauty. However, two Perry young men, Horace Buckles and Roger Trill made a trip to Niagara last week and enjoyed it immensely. It was a vacation worth while.

Mrs. Elsie Missner entertained Miss Helen Ebey and Miss Bernice Hirsch at her home Tuesday.

Mrs. S. W. Hurlburt and [illegible] were at Cleveland Wednesday.

Mrs. G. H. Salkeld, Mrs. I. W. Langshaw and Mrs. Rice Harper attended their class reunion in [illegible] last week.

Miss Treva Merriman is visiting friends in Ashtabula and Trumbull counties.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Beit and two children of Amboy, spent the week end visiting in Perry at the homes of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Sweet and other friends.

Friends of Rev. Buckles will be glad to learn that the family will not move to Tennessee as was planned, but instead will settle on a farm purchased in Madison.

The Misses Agnes and Eva Scheels returned to Toledo Sunday morning. Miss Anna Scheels will spend a couple of weeks more at the Woods.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lewis spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Wood and family.

Rev. C. C. Wilson, a school mate of O. W. Hearn, will occupy the pulpit of the Christian church Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Hearn and family leave for the Southland on Wednesday.

Miss Alice Bower of Madison, was [illegible] guest on Sunday.

Mr. Harry Stigers is visiting in town.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Travis visited relatives in Warren last week.

The Sinclair reunion was held at Mrs. H. C. Green's home last Wednesday. Miss Ethel Green of Farmville, Va., is spending the summer with Mrs. Green.

The body of Milton Sinclair, brother of Mrs. H. C. Green and Mrs. Wire, was brought here from Michigan Sunday for burial.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Salkeld were in Geneva Sunday.

Mrs. Howard Brooks of Cleveland, spent Sunday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Mack. Bertha Mack, who has been visiting in the city, returned with her.

Mr. Fred Wilhelm is about to add an automobile to his already well equipped livery.

Mrs. A. P. Stephens and daughter Nina, were shopping in Cleveland Monday.

Mistaken Idea About Sap.

In this maple sugar section most of us think of the sap going down in the winter, remarks the Warren Tribune. This is not true. It merely doesn't go up. During the active spring vegetation the goes up comparatively rapidly to help form new leaves and shoots to replace evaporated sap. During the summer the supply is kept in normal quantities, but with the approach of autumn the manufacture of its life fluid by the tree decreases, and when winter comes it becomes almost negative.

THE LAND OF BEGINNING AGAIN

I wish that there were some wonderful place
Called the Land of Beginning Again
Where all our mistakes and all our heartaches
And all of our poor, selfish grief
Could be dropped, like a shabby old coat, at the door,
And never put on again.

I wish we would come on it all unaware,
Like the hunter who finds a lost trail,
And I wish that the one whom our blindness had done
The greatest injustice of all
Could be at the gates, like an old friend that waits
For the comrade he's gladdest to hail.

We would find all the things we intended to do
But forgot, and remembered too late,
Little praises unspoken, little promises broken,
And of the thousand and one
Little duties neglected that might have perfected
The day for one less fortunate.

It wouldn't be possible not to be kind
In the Land of Beginning Again,
And the ones we misjudged and the ones whom we grudged
Their moments of victory here
Would find in the grasp of our loving handclasp
More than penitent lips could explain.

For what had been hardest, we'd know had been best,
And what had seemed loss would be gain;
For there isn't a sting that will not take wing
When we've faced and laughed it away;
And I think that the laughter is most what we're after
In the Land of Beginning Again.

So I wish that there were some wonderful place
Called the Land of Beginning Again
Where all our mistakes and all our heartaches
And all of our poor selfish grief
Could be dropped like a shabby old coat at the door,
And never be put on again.

Sealed proposals for printing the ballots and all necessary blanks for the election to be held in Lake county, September 3, 1912, will be received by the Board of Deputy State Supervisors of Elections of Lake county at the office of said board up to Monday, August 19, 1912, at 2 p. m. Specifications will be on file at the office of said board on and after Saturday, August 17, 1912.

Each proposal for printing must be accompanied by a bond executed in due form by the bidder with at least two good and sufficient sureties satisfactory to the Board of Deputy State Supervisors of Elections in a sum double the amount of his bid, conditioned for a faithful performance, pursuant to contract of such printing as may be awarded to him and for the payment as liquidated damages by such bidder to the Board of Deputy State Supervisors of Elections of any excess of cost over the bid or bids of such bidders which the Board of Deputy State Supervisors of Elections may be obliged to pay for such work by reason of the failure of such bidder to complete his contract, the bond to be null and void if no contract be awarded to him. No bid unaccompanied by such bond shall be entertained by the Board of Deputy State Supervisors of Elections.

E. J. HUNTINGTON,
Chief Deputy.

NOTICE

Hetty H. Hart, the unknown heirs of Hetty H. Hart, deceased, the unknown devisees of Hetty H. Hart, deceased, the unknown executors of Hetty H. Hart, deceased, the unknown administrators of Hetty H. Hart, deceased, the names and residences of all of whom are unknown to the plaintiff will take notice that on the [illegible] day of July, 1912, Martha White, Mary Victoria Davis, Lillie A. Grover and Agnes Baker filed their petition in the Common Pleas Court of Lake County, Ohio, in Cause No. 4121 against the above named parties claiming that plaintiffs are in the actual possession of and the owners in fee simple of the premises hereinafter described and praying that the above named parties be compelled to show their interest, if any, in the premises hereinafter described, and that such interest may be adjudged to be null and void, and that plaintiff's title may be quieted against them.

The defendants Hetty H. Hart, the unknown heirs of Hetty H. Hart deceased, the unknown devisees of Hetty H. Hart deceased, the unknown executors of Hetty H. Hart deceased and the unknown administrators of Hetty H. Hart deceased, claim an estate or interest in the above described premises adverse to plaintiff's rights by reason of the fact that on and prior to April 1st, 1862, the defendant Hetty H. Hart, was seized in fee simple of the above described premises, that on or about the [illegible] day of June, 1861, said Hetty H. Hart executed to one Richard H. W. Jarvis a certain Power of Attorney granting unto said Jarvis power to grant, sell, release and convey any lands belonging to her situated in the Western Reserve in the State of Ohio, and to make deeds therefor, which Power of Attorney is recorded in Book [illegible], page 57, Lake County Deeds; that on the 1st day of April 1862, one R. W. H. Jarvis as Agent for said Hetty H. Hart executed and delivered to Asel Wait, from whom the plaintiffs have derived their title to the above described premises, a deed conveying said above described premises, which deed is recorded in Book [illegible], page 596, Lake County Ohio Records.

Said Premises are described as follows:

Situated in the Township of Willoughby, County of Lake and State of Ohio, being in township No. Nine (9) in the Tenth (10) Range of Townships in the Connecticut Western Reserve, (so called), being known and designated as the East part of Lot Number Four (4) and the West part of Lot No. Five (5) in Tract Number Sixteen (16) in said Township of Willoughby and is bounded as follows, viz: North by Lake Erie, East by the East half of Lot No. Five (5), heretofore sold to [illegible], South by Lot Number Eight (8) and West by a fifty acre tract in said Lot Number Four (4) heretofore sold to Andrew J. Beeman, containing One Hundred and Twenty six and Seventy three Hundredths (126.73) acres of which Sixty six and Eighty eight hundredths (66.88) acres are in Lot Four (4) and Fifty-nine and Eighty five (59.85) acres are in Lot Five (5).

Plaintiffs further say that they and their immediate predecessors in title have held the actual, open, continuous, undisputed and exclusive adverse possession of the above premises for more than Twenty-one (21) years last past, to-wit from April 1st, 1862, as to all of the above named defendants and as to all other persons.

Plaintiffs deny that any of the above named defendants have any interest in any of the above described property.

Said parties are required to answer on or before the 7th day of September, 1912.

OSCAR J. HORN,
Attorney for Plaintiffs.

SUPPLEMENT TO

The Lake County Weekly Herald.

PAINESVILLE, OHIO, THURSDAY, AUGUST 8, 1912.

This is an exact copy of an official notice issued by authority of the Constitutional Convention. The explanatory matter following each amendment has been considered and approved by vote of the Convention.

ADDRESS TO THE PEOPLE

TO THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF OHIO:

The Fourth Constitutional Convention, having been authorized to draft a partial or complete revision of the fundamental law of the State, hereby announces the conclusion and result of its labors.

Forty-one Amendments to the Constitution have been agreed to. These, with an amendment on schedule, will be submitted to popular vote, September 3, 1912.

The form of the ballot will permit a separate vote on each amendment, and the majority of the votes cast upon any amendment will be sufficient for its adoption.

The members of the Convention appreciate profoundly the honor of the service they were called upon to render, and await, with hope of approval, the verdict of a sovereign people.

A facsimile of the ballot to be used at the special election and the text of each amendment to be submitted, accompanied with explanatory matter authorized by the Convention, are herewith set forth.

Attest: C. B. GALBREATH, Secretary. HERBERT S. BIGELOW, President.

Number 1.

Reform in Civil Jury System.

ARTICLE I.

Sec. 5. The right of trial by jury shall be inviolate, except that, in civil cases, laws may be passed to authorize the rendering of a verdict by the concurrence of not less than three-fourths of the jury.

By this amendment no change is made in the right or method of trial by jury in criminal cases, but if the law-making body so desires, provision may be made that in civil cases a verdict may be rendered in the event that not less than nine of the jurymen agree thereon.

Number 2.

Abolition of Capital Punishment.

ARTICLE I.

Sec. 9. All persons shall be bailable by sufficient sureties, except those charged with murder in the first degree, where proof is evident or the presumption great. Excessive bail shall not be required, nor excessive fines imposed, nor cruel and unusual punishments inflicted; nor shall life be taken as a punishment for crime. Until otherwise provided by law, persons convicted of crimes heretofore punishable by death shall be punished by imprisonment in the penitentiary during life.

The foregoing amendment, if adopted by the electorate of the state, will substitute life imprisonment for the death penalty. There will be no more legal executions in the state for crime of any kind.

Number 3.

Depositions by State and Comment on Failure of Accused to Testify in Criminal Cases.

ARTICLE I.

Sec. 10. Except in cases of impeachment, cases arising in the army and navy, or in the militia when in actual service in time of war or public danger, and cases involving offenses for which the penalty provided is less than imprisonment in the penitentiary, no person shall be held to answer for a capital, or otherwise infamous, crime, unless on presentment or indictment of a grand jury; and the number of persons necessary to constitute such grand jury and the number thereof necessary to concur in finding such indictment shall be determined by law. In any trial, in any court, the party accused shall be allowed to appear and defend in person and with counsel; to demand the nature and cause of the accusation against him, and to have a copy thereof; to meet the witnesses face to face, and to have compulsory process to procure the attendance of witnesses in his behalf, and a speedy public trial by an impartial jury of the county in which the offense is alleged to have been committed; but provision may be made by law for the taking of the deposition by the accused or by the state, to be used for or against the accused, of any witness whose attendance can not be had at the trial, always securing to the accused means and the opportunity to be present in person and with counsel at the taking of such deposition, and to examine the witness face to face as fully and in the same manner as if in court. No person shall be compelled, in any criminal case, to be a witness against himself; but his failure to testify may be considered by the court and jury and may be made the subject of comment by counsel. No person shall be twice put in jeopardy for the same offense.

The amendment proposes: 1. That the number of persons to constitute a grand jury and the number necessary to concur in finding an indictment shall be determined by law. At present a grand jury is composed of fifteen persons, at least twelve of whom are necessary to concur in finding an indictment.

2. That provision may be made by law for the taking by the accused and also by the state of the deposition of any witness whose attendance cannot be had at the trial. It is also provided in the amendment that if such depositions are taken, the means and the opportunity must always be secured to the accused to be present in person and with counsel at such taking and to examine the witness, whose deposition is so being taken, in the same manner as if present in court.

3. That if the accused fails to testify such failure may be considered by the court and jury and may be made the subject of comment by counsel, none of which may be done at present.

Number 4.

Suits Against the State.

ARTICLE I.

Sec. 16. All courts shall be open, and every person, for an injury done him in his land, goods, person, or reputation, shall have remedy by due course of law, and shall have justice administered without denial or delay. Suits may be brought against the state, in such courts and in such manner, as may be provided by law.

Under our present system of procedure persons having disputed claims against the state must either have them allowed by the general assembly or must secure permission by special law to bring suit against the state. To simplify this and to prevent unnecessary legislation this amendment is proposed. If adopted, it will authorize individuals to bring suit against the state the same as against private persons, in such courts and in such manner as may be provided by law.

Number 5.

Damage for Wrongful Death.

ARTICLE I.

Sec. 19a. The amount of damages recoverable by civil action in the courts for death caused by the wrongful act, neglect, or default of another, shall not be limited by law.

Under the present constitution in a civil action for death caused by the wrongful act, neglect or default of another, the legislature may limit the amount of the recovery and has exercised that right. If this amendment is adopted, the law-making power can place no limit on the amount of recovery in such cases.

Number 6.

Initiative and Referendum.

ARTICLE II.

Sec. 1. The legislative power of the state shall be vested in a general assembly consisting of a senate and house of representatives but the people reserve to themselves the power to propose to the general assembly laws and amendments to the constitution, and to adopt or reject the same at the polls on a referendum vote as hereinafter provided. They also reserve the power to adopt or reject any law, section of any law or any item in any law appropriating money passed by the general assembly, except as hereinafter provided; and independent of the general assembly to propose amendments to the constitution and to adopt or reject the same at the polls. The limitations expressed in the constitution, on the power of the general assembly to enact laws, shall be deemed limitations on the power of the people to enact laws.

Sec. 1a. The first aforestated power reserved by the people is designated the initiative, and the signatures of ten per centum of the electors shall be required upon a petition to propose an amendment to the constitution. When a petition signed by the aforesaid required number of electors, shall have been filed with the secretary of state, and verified as herein provided, proposing an amendment to the constitution, the full text of which shall have been set forth in such petition, the secretary of state shall submit for the approval or rejection of the electors, the proposed amendment, in the manner hereinafter provided, at the next succeeding regular or general election in any year occurring subsequent to ninety days after the filing of such petition. The initiative petitions, above described, shall have printed across the top thereof: "Amendment to the Constitution Proposed by Initiative Petition to be Submitted Directly to the Electors."

Sec. 1b. When at any time, not less than ten days prior to the commencement of any session of the general assembly, there shall have been filed with the secretary of state a petition signed by three per centum of the electors and verified as herein provided, proposing a law, the full text of which shall have been set forth in such petition, the secretary of state shall transmit the same to the general assembly as soon as it convenes. If said proposed law shall be passed by the general assembly, either as petitioned for or in an amended form, it shall be subject to the referendum. If it shall not be passed, or if it shall be passed in an amended form, or if no action shall be taken thereon within four months from the time it is received by the general assembly, it shall be submitted by the secretary of state to the electors for their approval or rejection at the next regular or general election, if such submission shall be demanded by supplementary petition verified as herein provided and signed by not less than three per centum of the electors in addition to those signing the original petition, which supplementary petition must be signed and filed with the secretary of state within ninety days after the proposed law shall have been rejected by the general assembly or after the expiration of such term of four months, if no action has been taken thereon, or after the law as passed by the general assembly shall have been filed by the governor in the office of the secretary of state. The proposed law shall be submitted in the form demanded by such supplementary petition, which form shall be either as first petitioned for or with any amendment or amendments which may have been incorporated therein by either branch or by both branches, of the general assembly. If a proposed law so submitted is approved by a majority of the electors voting thereon, it shall be the law and shall go into effect as herein provided in lieu of any amended form of said law which may have been passed by the general assembly, and such amended law passed by the general assembly shall not go into effect until and unless the law proposed by supplementary petition shall have been rejected by the electors. All such initiative petitions, last above described, shall have printed across the top thereof, in case of proposed laws: "Law Proposed by Initiative Petition First to be Submitted to the General Assembly." Ballots shall be so printed as to permit an affirmative or negative vote upon each measure submitted to the electors. Any proposed law or amendment to the constitution submitted to the electors as provided in 1a and 1b, if approved by a majority of the electors voting thereon, shall take effect thirty days after the election at which it was approved and shall be published by the secretary of state. If conflicting proposed laws or conflicting proposed amendments to the constitution shall be approved at the same election by a majority of the total number of votes cast for and against the same, the one receiving the highest number of affirmative votes shall be the law, or in the case of amendments to the constitution shall be the amendment to the constitution. No law proposed by initiative petition and approved by the electors shall be subject to the veto of the governor.

Sec. 1c. The second aforestated power reserved by the people is designated the referendum, and the signatures of six per centum of the electors shall be required upon a petition to order the submission to the electors of the state for their approval or rejection, of any law, section of any law or any item in any law appropriating money passed by the general assembly. No law passed by the general assembly shall go into effect until ninety days after it shall have been filed by the governor in the office of the secretary of state, except as herein provided. When a petition, signed by six per centum of the electors of the state and verified as herein provided, shall have been filed with the secretary of state within ninety days after any law shall have been filed by the governor in the office of the secretary of state, ordering that such law, section of such law or any item in such law appropriating money be submitted to the electors of the state for their approval or rejection, the secretary of state shall submit to the electors of the state for their approval or rejection such law, section or item, in the manner herein provided, at the next succeeding regular or general election in any year occurring subsequent to sixty days after the filing of such petition, and no such law, section or item shall go into effect until and unless approved by a majority of those voting upon the same. If, however, a referendum petition is filed against any such section or item, the remainder of the law shall not thereby be prevented or delayed from going into effect.

Sec. 1d. Laws providing for tax levies, appropriations for the current expenses of the state government and state institutions, and emergency laws necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health or safety, shall go into immediate effect. Such emergency laws upon a yea and nay vote must receive the vote of two-thirds of all the members elected to each branch of the general assembly, and the reasons for such necessity shall be set forth in one section of the law, which section shall be passed only upon a yea and nay vote, upon a separate roll call thereon. The laws mentioned in this section shall not be subject to the referendum.

Sec. 1e. The powers defined herein as the "initiative" and "referendum" shall not be used to pass a law authorizing any classification of property for the purpose of levying different rates of taxation thereon or of authorizing the levy of any single tax on land or land values or land sites at a higher rate or by a different rule than is or may be applied to improvements thereon or to personal property.

Sec. 1f. The initiative and referendum powers are hereby reserved to the people of each municipality on all questions which such municipalities may now or hereafter be authorized by law to control by legislative action; such powers shall be exercised in the manner now or hereafter provided by law.

Sec. 1g. Any initiative, supplementary or referendum petition may be presented in separate parts but each part shall contain a full and correct copy of the title, and text of the law, section or item thereof sought to be referred, or the proposed law or proposed amendment to the constitution. Each signer of any initiative, supplementary or referendum petition must be an elector of the state and shall place on such petition after his name the date of signing and his place of residence. A signer residing outside of a municipality shall state the township and county in which he resides. A resident of a municipality shall state in addition to the name of such municipality, the street and number, if any, of his residence and the ward and precinct in which the same is located. The names of all signers to such petitions shall be written in ink, each signer for himself. To each part of such petition shall be attached the affidavit of the person soliciting the signatures to the same, which affidavit shall contain a statement of the number of the signers of such part of such petition and shall state that each of the signatures attached to such part was made in the presence of the affiant, that to the best of his knowledge and belief each signature on such part is the genuine signature of the person whose name it purports to be, that he believes the persons who have signed it to be electors, that they so signed said petition with knowledge of the contents thereof, that each signer signed the same on the date stated opposite his name, and no other affidavit thereto shall be required. The petition and signatures upon such petitions, so verified, shall be presumed to be in all respects sufficient, unless not later than forty days before the election, it shall be otherwise proved and in such event ten additional days shall be allowed for the filing of additional signatures to such petition. No law or amendment to the constitution submitted to the electors by initiative and supplementary petition and receiving an affirmative majority of the votes cast thereon, shall be held unconstitutional or void on account of the insufficiency of the petitions by which such submission of the same was procured; nor shall the rejection of any law submitted by referendum petition be held invalid for such insufficiency. Upon all initiative, supplementary and referendum petitions provided for in any of the sections of this article, it shall be necessary to file from each of one-half of the counties of the state, petitions bearing the signatures of not less than one-half of the designated percentage of the electors of such county. A true copy of all laws or proposed laws or proposed amendments to the constitution, together with an argument or explanation, or both, for, and also an argument or explanation, or both, against the same, shall be prepared. The person or persons who prepare the argument or explanation, or both, against any law, section or item, submitted to the electors by referendum petition, may be named in such petition and the persons who prepare the argument or explanation, or both, for any proposed law or proposed amendment to the constitution may be named in the petition proposing it. The person or persons who prepare the argument or explanation, or both, for the law, section or item, submitted to the electors by referendum petition, or against any proposed law submitted by supplementary petition, shall be named by the general assembly, if in session, and if not in session then by the governor. The secretary of state shall cause to be printed the law, or proposed law, or proposed amendment to the constitution, together with the arguments and explanations, not exceeding a total of three hundred words for each, and also the arguments and explanations, not exceeding a total of three hundred words against each, and shall mail, or otherwise distribute, a copy of such law, or proposed law, or proposed amendment to the constitution, together with such arguments and explanations for and against the same to each of the electors of the state, as far as may be reasonably possible. Unless otherwise provided by law, the secretary of state shall cause to be placed upon the ballots, the title of any such law, or proposed law, or proposed amendment to the constitution, to be submitted. He shall also cause the ballots so to be printed as to permit an affirmative or negative vote upon each law, section of law, or item in a law appropriating money, or proposed law, or proposed amendment to the constitution. The style of all laws submitted by initiative and supplementary petition shall be: "Be it Enacted by the People of the State of Ohio," and of all constitutional amendments: "Be it Resolved by the People of the State of Ohio." The basis upon which the required number of petitioners in any case shall be determined shall be the total number of votes cast for the office of governor at the last preceding election therefor. The foregoing provisions of this section shall be self-executing, except as herein otherwise provided. Laws may be passed to facilitate their operation, but in no way limiting or restricting either such provisions or the powers herein reserved.

SCHEDULE.

The foregoing amendment, if adopted by the electors, shall take effect October 1, 1912.

The purpose of this amendment is to enable the people to propose amendments to the constitution, to propose laws to the general assembly for enactment and also to enable the electors to require any law passed by the general assembly to be submitted to a popular vote.

The amendment provides:

1. That if ten per centum of the electors sign a petition to be filed with the secretary of state proposing an amendment to the constitution, such proposed amendment shall be submitted to the electors at the next election held subsequent to ninety days after the filing of such petition. If the majority of those voting upon the proposed amendment vote in the affirmative, the amendment becomes a part of the constitution.

2. That if at any time not less than ten days prior to the commencement of any session of the general assembly three per centum of the electors shall sign a petition proposing a bill and shall file the same with the secretary of state, it shall be transmitted by him to the general assembly. If the general assembly passes the bill as petitioned for, it shall become a law subject always to the referendum as hereinafter defined. If the general assembly fails to pass the law petitioned for, or passes it in an amended form, a petition containing the signatures of three per centum of the electors in addition to the original three per centum may require the submission to the voters for approval or rejection of the law originally petitioned for, or as modified by any of the amendments proposed by the general assembly. If a majority of those voting on the proposed measure vote in favor of it, then it shall become a law and the law passed by the legislature, if any, pursuant to the petition presented to the general assembly, shall become void.

3. That at any time within ninety days after a law passed by the general assembly has been filed with the secretary of state, six per centum of the electors may sign and file with the secretary of state a petition demanding the submission of such law to the people at their next election for their approval or rejection. If a majority of those voting upon the measure vote against the same, it shall be void.

4. That laws providing for tax levies, appropriations for the current expenses of the state government and institutions and emergency laws necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health or safety shall go into effect immediately if they receive a two-thirds vote of all the members elected to the general assembly.

5. That the initiative and referendum shall not be used to pass laws authorizing the classification of property for taxation or for the levy of any single tax on land or land values. It provides that the initiative and referendum powers are reserved to the people of each municipality to be exercised in the manner now or hereafter provided by law.

6. That each of one-half of the counties of the state must furnish the signatures of not less than one-half of the designated percentage of the electors of such county

7. That a true copy of all laws or proposed laws or proposed amendments to the constitution and an argument for and an argument against each shall be prepared and mailed as far as possible to all of the electors of the state.

8. That if this amendment is approved by the people it becomes effective as an amendment to the constitution on October 1, 1912.

Investigations by Each House of General Assembly.

ARTICLE II.

Sec. 8. Each house, except as otherwise provided in this constitution, shall choose its own officers, may determine its own rules of proceeding, punish its members for disorderly conduct, and, with the concurrence of two-thirds, expel a member, but not the second time for the same cause; and shall have all powers, necessary to provide for its safety and the undisturbed transaction of its business, and to obtain, through committees or otherwise, information affecting legislative action under consideration or in contemplation, or with reference to any alleged breach of its privileges or misconduct of its members, and to that end to enforce the attendance and testimony of witnesses, and the production of books and papers.

This amendment confers on each branch of the general assembly a power, not possessed by either under the present constitution, of securing information along all lines of proposed legislative action. In particular it grants authority to investigate alleged misconduct on the part of its members through the compulsory attendance of witnesses and the production of books and papers, or other evidence bearing on the case.

Limiting Veto Power of Governor.

ARTICLE II.

Sec. 16. Every bill shall be fully and distinctly read on three different days, unless in case of urgency three-fourths of the house in which it shall be pending, shall dispense with the rule. No bill shall contain more than one subject, which shall be clearly expressed in its title, and no law shall be revived, or amended unless the new act contains the entire act revived, or the section or sections amended, and the section or sections so amended shall be repealed. Every bill passed by the general assembly shall, before it becomes a law, be presented to the governor for his approval. If he approves, he shall sign it and thereupon it shall become a law and be filed with the secretary of state. If he does not approve it, he shall return it with his objections in writing, to the house in which it originated, which shall enter the objections at large upon its journal, and may then reconsider the vote on its passage. If three-fifths of the members elected to that house vote to repass the bill, it shall be sent, with the objections of the governor, to the other house, which may also reconsider the vote on its passage. If three-fifths of the members elected to that house vote to repass it, it shall become a law notwithstanding the objections of the governor, except that in no case shall a bill be repassed by a smaller vote than is required by the constitution on its original passage. In all such cases the vote of each house shall be determined by yeas and nays and the names of the members voting for and against the bill shall be entered upon the journal. If a bill shall not be returned by the governor within ten days, Sundays excepted, after being presented to him, it shall become a law in like manner as if he had signed it, unless the general assembly by adjournment prevents its return; in which case, it shall become a law unless, within ten days after such adjournment, it shall be filed by him, with his objections in writing, in the office of the secretary of state. The governor may disapprove any item or items in any bill making an appropriation of money and the item or items, so disapproved, shall be void, unless repassed in the manner herein prescribed for the repassage of a bill.

The amendment provides that a bill may be passed over the governor's veto by a three-fifths vote of all the members elected to each house instead of two-thirds as required at present, except always in the case of measures which by the constitution require a two-third vote on their original passage. The provision of the present constitution that a bill vetoed by the governor shall have as many votes in each house as it had on its first passage in order to be passed over the veto and become a law, is entirely omitted in the new amendment. Any item or items appropriating money may be vetoed and the remainder of the bill approved, as at present. Under the proposed amendment, when a bill is vetoed after adjournment of the general assembly it cannot be carried over to the next session, as is now done.

Mechanics' and Builders' Liens

ARTICLE II.

Sec. 33. Laws may be passed to secure to mechanics, artisans, laborers, sub-contractors and material men, their just dues by direct lien upon the property, upon which they have bestowed labor or for which they have furnished material. No other provision of the constitution shall impair or limit this power.

This amendment is necessary to permit laws to be passed securing to laborers, mechanics and subcontractors their wages for work done and to materialmen the amount justly due them for material furnished. It is the prevailing opinion that under decisions of the supreme court of this state the general assembly has not the power at present to pass a mechanics' lien law which will furnish adequate protection for the persons named above.

Welfare of Employes.

ARTICLE II.

Sec. 34. Laws may be passed fixing and regulating the hours of labor, establishing a minimum wage, and providing for the comfort, health, safety and general welfare of all employes; and no other provision of the constitution shall impair or limit this power.

This amendment will permit the passage of humane laws in conformity with modern industrial development to improve the conditions of employment of men, women and children. In the absence of such a provision in our state constitution a number of such laws have heretofore been held void.

Number 11.

Workmen's Compensation.

ARTICLE II.

Sec. 35. For the purpose of providing compensation to workmen and their dependents, for death, injuries or occupational diseases, occasioned in the course of such workmen's employment, laws may be passed establishing a state fund to be created by compulsory contribution thereto by employers, and administered by the state, determining the terms and conditions upon which payment shall be made therefrom, and taking away any or all rights of action or defense from employes and employers; but no right of action shall be taken away from any employe when the injury, disease or death arises from failure of the employer to comply with any lawful requirement for the protection of the lives, health and safety of employes. Laws may be passed establishing a board which may be empowered to classify all occupations, according to their degree of hazard, to fix rates of contribution to such fund according to such classification, and to collect, administer and distribute such fund, and to determine all rights of claimants thereto.

This amendment will permit legislation providing that workmen, who have been injured or who have contracted an occupational disease in the course of their employment, and the dependents of workmen, who have been killed or who may have died from injuries received or occupational diseases contracted in the course of such employment, shall be compensated out of a fund maintained by compulsory contributions from the industries of the state, which fund shall be under the control and supervision of the state.

Number 12.

Conservation of Natural Resources.

ARTICLE II.

Sec. 36. Laws may be passed to encourage forestry, and to that end areas devoted exclusively to forestry may be exempted in whole or in part, from taxation. Laws may also be passed to provide for converting into forest reserves such lands or parts of lands as have been or may be forfeited to the state, and to authorize the acquiring of other lands for that purpose; also, to provide for the conservation of the natural resources of the state including streams, lakes, submerged and swamp lands and the development and regulation of water power and the formation of drainage and conservation districts; and to provide for the regulation of methods of mining, weighing, measuring and marketing coal, oil, gas and all other minerals.

This amendment confers on the law-making power of the state authority to encourage and promote forestry, to protect streams and lakes and to regulate the use of water power. Provision may also be made by law for the drainage of submerged and swamp lands and the regulation of the methods of mining, weighing and marketing all minerals.

Eight Hour Day on Public Work.

ARTICLE II.

Sec. 37. Except in cases of extraordinary emergency, not to exceed eight hours shall constitute a day's work, and not to exceed forty-eight hours a week's work, for workmen engaged on any public work carried on or aided by the state, or any political sub-division thereof, whether done by contract, or otherwise.

This amendment is made necessary by a decision of the Supreme Court of Ohio declaring unconstitutional the eight hour law for public work, which was passed by the general assembly in 1904.

Number 14.

Removal of Officials.

ARTICLE II.

Sec. 38. Laws shall be passed providing for the prompt removal from office, upon complaint and hearing, of all officers, including state officers, judges and members of the general assembly, for any misconduct involving moral turpitude or for other cause provided by law; and this method of removal shall be in addition to impeachment or other method of removal authorized by the constitution.

This amendment makes mandatory the passage of laws for the removal from office, upon complaint and hearing, of all public officers for any misconduct in office involving moral turpitude or for other cause prescribed by law. It is in addition to impeachment.

Number 15.

Regulating Expert Testimony in Criminal Trials.

ARTICLE II.

Sec. 39. Laws may be passed for the regulation of the use of expert witnesses and expert testimony in criminal trials and proceedings.

This amendment will allow the general assembly at any time to enact laws giving to the courts power to name the experts in a criminal case, and to regulate the introduction of expert testimony in criminal cases.

Number 16.

Registering and Warranting Land Titles.

ARTICLE II.

Sec. 40. Laws may be passed providing for a system of registering, transferring, insuring and guaranteeing land titles by the state or by the counties thereof, and for settling and determining adverse or other claims to and interests in, lands the titles to which are so registered, insured or guaranteed, and for the creation and collection of guaranty funds by fees to be assessed against lands, the titles to which are registered; and judicial powers with right of appeal may by law be conferred upon county recorders or other officers in matters arising under the operation of such system.

The purpose of this amendment is to remove the constitutional objections found by the supreme court to exist against the adoption in Ohio of what is known as the "Torrens Land Title System." Its principle features are:

1. Registering of the title in the name of the owner, upon his application and the decree of a court, and issuing to him a certificate of title good as against all the world.

2. The creation of a guarantee fund by fees to be paid by the applicants to register, out of which fund are made good the losses, if any, of persons who may be wrongfully cut out of interests in the registered lands.

3. The registering in the registrar's office of all things which affect the title as they occur from time to time after registration, and the noting of these, upon request, on the duplicate certificate held by the owner.

4. The issuing of new certificates of title by the registrar upon each sale and transfer of land.

5. Registration is voluntary upon the part of owners of land. When a title is once registered no further abstracts or examinations of title are necessary.

The adoption of this amendment will not abolish nor require the abolition of the present system of recording land titles and transfers.

Abolishing Prison Contract Labor.

ARTICLE II.

Sec. 41. Laws shall be passed providing for the occupation and employment of prisoners sentenced to the several penal institutions and reformatories in the state, and no person in any such penal institution or reformatory while under sentence thereto, shall be required or allowed to work at any trade, industry or occupation, wherein or whereby his work, or the product or profit of his work, shall be sold, farmed out, contracted or given away; and goods made by persons under sentence to any penal institution or reformatory without the State of Ohio, and such goods made within the State of Ohio, excepting those disposed of to the state or any political sub-division thereof or to any public institution owned, managed, or controlled by the state or any political sub-division thereof, shall not be sold within this state unless the same are conspicuously marked "prison made". Nothing herein contained shall be construed to prevent the passage of laws providing that convicts may work for, and that the products of their labor may be disposed of to, the state or any political sub-division thereof, or for or to any public institution owned or managed and controlled by the state or any political sub-division thereof.

This amendment will eliminate the elements of private profit from the labor of inmates of the prisons and reformatories of Ohio. It will permit the employment of prisoners, in the production of things needed by any state, county or municipal institution, or in the building of public roads. It will also compel the conspicuous marking as "Prison Made," of all goods offered for sale in this state which have been made in prisons outside of Ohio.

Limiting Powers of General Assembly in Extra Sessions.

ARTICLE III.

Sec. 8. The governor on extraordinary occasions may convene the general assembly by proclamation and shall state in the proclamation the purpose for which such special session is called, and no other business shall be transacted at such special session except that named in the proclamation, or in a subsequent public proclamation or message to the general assembly issued by the governor during said special session, but the general assembly may provide for the expenses of the session and other matters incidental thereto.

The object of this amendment is to restrict the general assembly in special session to the consideration of such business only as may be stated in the proclamation under which it was convened, or as may be submitted to it by any further proclamation or message which the governor may issue during such session.

Change in Judicial System.

ARTICLE IV.

Sec. 1. The judicial power of the state is vested in a supreme court, courts of appeals, courts of common pleas, courts of probate, and such other courts inferior to the courts of appeals as may from time to time be established by law.

Sec. 2. The supreme court shall, until otherwise provided by law, consist of a chief justice and six judges, and the judges now in office in that court shall continue therein until the end of the terms for which they were respectively elected, unless they are removed, die or resign. A majority of the supreme court shall be necessary to constitute a quorum or to pronounce a decision, except as hereinafter provided. It shall have original jurisdiction in quo warranto, mandamus, habeas corpus, prohibition and procedendo, and appellate jurisdiction in all cases involving questions arising under the constitution of the United States or of this state, in cases of felony on leave first obtained, and in cases which originated in the courts of appeals, and such revisory jurisdiction of the proceedings of administrative officers as may be conferred by law. It shall hold at least one term in each year at the seat of government, and such other terms, there or elsewhere, as may be provided by law. The judges of the supreme court shall be elected by the electors of the state at large for such terms, not less than six years, as may be prescribed by law, and they shall be elected, and their official term shall begin, at such time as may now or hereafter be fixed by law. Whenever the judges of the supreme court shall be equally divided in opinion as to the merits of any case before them and are unable for that reason to agree upon a judgment, that fact shall be entered upon the record and such entry shall be held to constitute an affirmance of the judgment of the court below. No law shall be held unconstitutional and void by the supreme court without the concurrence of at least all but one of the judges, except in the affirmance of a judgment of the court of appeals declaring a law unconstitutional and void. In cases of public or great general interest the supreme court may, within such limitation of time as may be prescribed by law, direct any court of appeals to certify its record to the supreme court, and may review, and affirm, modify or reverse the judgment of the court of appeals. All cases pending in the supreme court at the time of the adoption of this amendment by the people, shall proceed to judgment in the manner provided by existing law. No law shall be passed or rule made whereby any person shall be prevented from invoking the original jurisdiction of the supreme court.

Sec. 6. The state shall be divided into appellate districts of compact territory bounded by county lines, in each of which there shall be a court of appeals consisting of three judges, and until altered by law the circuits in which circuit courts are now held shall constitute the appellate districts aforesaid. The judges of the circuit courts now residing in their respective districts shall be the judges of the respective courts of appeals in such districts and perform the duties thereof until the expiration of their respective terms of office. Vacancies caused by the expiration of the terms of office of the judges of the courts of appeals shall be filled by the electors of the respective appellate districts in which such vacancies shall arise. Until otherwise provided by law the term of office of such judges shall be six years. Laws may be passed to prescribe the time and mode of such election and to alter the number of districts or the boundaries thereof, but no such change shall abridge the term of any judge then in office. The court of appeals shall hold at least one term annually in each county in the district and such other terms at a county seat in the district as the judges may determine upon, and the county commissioners of any county in which the court of appeals shall hold sessions shall make proper and convenient provisions for the holding of such court by its judges and officers. Each judge shall be competent to exercise judicial powers in any appellate district of the state. The courts of appeals shall continue the work of the respective circuit courts and all pending cases and proceedings in the circuit courts shall proceed to judgment and be determined by the respective courts of appeals, and the supreme court, as now provided by law, and cases brought into said courts of appeals after the taking effect hereof shall be subject to the provisions hereof, and the circuit courts shall be merged into, and their work continued by, the courts of appeals. The courts of appeals shall have original jurisdiction in quo warranto, mandamus, habeas corpus, prohibition and procedendo, and appellate jurisdiction in the trial of chancery cases, and, to review, affirm, modify, or reverse the judgments of the courts of common pleas, superior courts and other courts of record within the district as may be provided by law, and judgments of the courts of appeals shall be final in all cases, except cases involving questions arising under the constitution of the United States or of this state, cases of felony, cases of which it has original jurisdiction, and cases of public or great general interest in which the supreme court may direct any court of appeals to certify its record to that court. No judgment of a court of common pleas, a superior court or other court of record shall be reversed except by the concurrence of all the judges of the court of appeals on the weight of the evidence, and by a majority of such court of appeals upon other questions; and whenever the judges of a court of appeals find that a judgment upon which they have agreed is in conflict with a judgment pronounced upon the same question by any other court of appeals of the state, the judges shall certify the record of the case to the supreme court for review and final determination. The decisions in all cases in the supreme court shall be reported, together with the reasons therefor, and laws may be passed providing for the reporting of cases in the courts of appeals. The chief justice of the supreme court of the state shall determine the disability or disqualification of any judge of the courts of appeals and he may assign any judge of the courts of appeals to any county to hold court.

Under the existing judicial system which this amendment proposes to change, an action first tried in the court of common pleas, is carried thence to the circuit court for review, and thence to the supreme court for the same purpose, and either of the two courts may reverse the judgment and send it all back to the beginning in the court of common pleas. The amendment is to shorten that process by converting the circuit court into a court of appeals of three judges, and providing that its judgment in ordinary cases shall be final. This reduces proceedings to "one trial and one review", and eliminates the expensive proceeding in the supreme court with its long delay due to the overcrowded condition of the docket of that court. This will leave that high tribunal with work enough to occupy its time fairly, and permit it to dispose of its cases with greater promptness. A chief justice is added to the supreme court with power to direct the movements of the judges of the inferior courts so as to place them where they are most needed. No other new judge of any sort is created by this amendment and no one is legislated out of office. Cases involving constitutional questions may be carried directly from the court of appeals to the supreme court, but the latter cannot reverse the former and hold a statute unconstitutional if more than one of its judges object, but a judgment of the court below holding a statute unconstitutional, may be affirmed by a majority of the supreme court. The latter may also cause any case of public or great general interest to be certified up to it from the court of appeals, for final decision. This is a practice akin to that which prevails in the supreme court of the United States and in fact the system proposed is modeled upon the federal system which has been operating with much success for the past twenty years.

Judge of Court of Common Pleas for Each County.

ARTICLE IV.

Sec. 3. One resident judge of the court of common pleas, and such additional resident judges as may be provided by law, shall be elected in each county of the state by the electors of such county; and as many courts or sessions of the court of common pleas as are necessary, may be held at the same time in any county. Any judge of the court of common pleas may temporarily preside and hold court in any county; and until the general assembly shall make adequate provision therefor, the chief justice of the supreme court of the state shall pass upon the disqualification or disability of any judge of the court of common pleas, and he may assign any judge to any county to hold court therein.

Sec. 7. There shall be established in each county, a probate court, which shall be a court of record, open at all times, and holden by one judge, elected by the electors of the county, who shall hold his office for the term of four years, and shall receive such compensation, payable out of the county treasury, as shall be provided by law. Whenever ten per centum of the number of the electors voting for governor at the next preceding election in any county having less than sixty thousand population as determined by the next preceding federal census, shall petition the judge of the court of common pleas of any such county not less than ninety days before any general election for county officers, the judge of the court of common pleas shall submit to the electors of such county the question of combining the probate court with the court of common pleas, and such courts shall be combined and shall be known as the court of common pleas in case a majority of the electors voting upon such question vote in favor of such combination. Notice of such election shall be given in the same manner as for the election of county officers. Elections may be had in the same manner for the separation of such courts when once combined.

Sec. 12. The judges of the courts of common pleas shall, while in office, reside in the county for which they are elected, and their term of office shall be for six years.

Sec. 15. Laws may be passed to increase or diminish the number of judges of the supreme court, to increase beyond one or diminish to one the number of judges of the court of common pleas in any county, and to establish other courts, whenever two-thirds of the members elected to each house shall concur therein; but no such change, addition or diminution shall vacate the office of any judge; and any existing court heretofore created by law shall continue in existence until otherwise provided.

SCHEDULE.

If the foregoing amendment shall be adopted by the electors the judges of the courts of common pleas in office, or elected thereto prior to January first, 1913, shall hold their offices for the term for which they were elected and the additional judges provided for herein, shall be elected at the general election in the year 1914, each county shall continue as a part of its existing common pleas district and subdivision thereof, until one resident judge of the court of common pleas is elected and qualified therein.

The changes in sections 3, 7, 12 and 15 of article IV, are intended to abolish the common pleas districts designated in the constitution and all exisiting subdivisions thereof; to make an election district of each county which shall have at least one common pleas judge who shall be elected and reside therein during his term. The common pleas judges are to be state officials and where their services are needed outside of their own county, they may be assigned for duty by the chief justice of the supreme court. If a judge is disabled by illness or disqualified to try a case by reason of interest or prejudice or otherwise, some other judge may be assigned to his place. The proposed change will add only twenty-two common pleas judges to the present number in the state; but as counties of less than sixty thousand population are authorized to combine the probate court with the court of common pleas, it is thought the increase will not be quite that many. The constitution forbids the general assembly to subdivide a common pleas judicial district into less than three divisions, and the unequal growth of counties in population and business makes these restrictions work great hindrances and delays in the trial of causes in many counties of the state. Other proposed changes in sections 1, 2 and 6 of article IV, will add materially to the volume of work to be done by the common pleas judges, and there will be greater need than at present for at least one resident judge in each county, and such additional number for the larger counties as may be authorized by the general assembly. No change is made in the probate court except that in counties having a population of less than sixty thousand the voters may combine it with the common pleas court.

Abolition of Justices of the Peace in Certain Cities.

ARTICLE IV.

Sec. 9. A competent number of justices of the peace shall be elected by the electors in each township in the several counties, until otherwise provided by law. Their term of office shall be for four years and their powers and duties shall be regulated by law; provided that no justice of the peace shall be elected in any township in which a court, other than a mayor's court, is, or may hereafter be, maintained with the jurisdiction of all causes of which justices of the peace have jurisdiction, and no justice of the peace shall have, or exercise, jurisdiction in such township.

SCHEDULE.

If the amendment to article IV, sections 1, 2 and 6, be adopted by the electors of this state and become a part of the constitution, then section 6 of article IV of the constitution is repealed, and the foregoing amendment, if adopted, shall be of no effect.

This amendment prohibits the election of justices of the peace in municipalities where municipal courts, other than mayor's courts, have been or may be established. It applies only to certain large cities.

Number 22.

Contempt Proceedings and Injunctions.

ARTICLE IV.

Sec. 21. Laws may be passed, prescribing rules and regulations for the conduct of cases and business in the courts of the state, regulating proceedings in contempt, and limiting the power to punish for contempt. No order of injunction shall issue in any controversy involving the employment of labor, except to preserve physical property from injury or destruction, and all persons charged in contempt proceedings with the violation of an injunction issued in such controversies shall, upon demand, be granted a trial by jury as in criminal cases.

This amendment provides that laws may be passed prescribing rules and regulations for the conduct of cases and business of the courts, and further provides that no injunction shall be issued in labor disputes except to protect physical property, and that persons charged with contempt shall be entitled to a trial by jury.

Woman's Suffrage.

ARTICLE V.

Sec. 1. Every citizen of the United States, of the age of twenty-one years, who shall have been a resident of the state one year next preceding the election, and of the county, township or ward in which he or she resides such time as may be provided by law, shall have the qualifications of an elector and be entitled to vote at all elections.

This amendment takes out of article V, section 1, of the present constitution two words, which are, "white male", the purpose being to give the women of the state the right to vote on the same conditions under which the suffrage is exercised by men.

Number 24.

Omitting word "White."

ARTICLE V.

Sec. 1. Every male citizen of the United States of the age of twenty-one years, who shall have been a resident of the state one year next preceding the election, and of the county, township or ward in which he resides, such time as may be provided by law, shall have the qualifications of an elector and be entitled to vote at all elections.

SCHEDULE.

If the amendment to article V, section 1, to the constitution—Woman's Suffrage, be adopted by the electors and become a part of the constitution, then the foregoing amendment, if adopted, shall be of no effect.

This amendment takes out of article V, section 1, the one word "white". Its adoption is desirable, in case the woman's suffrage amendment should be defeated, to make the state constitution conform to that of the United States.

The object in adding the schedule is to make the foregoing amendment unnecessary in case the woman's suffrage amendment should be ratified by the electors.

Number 25.

Use of Voting Machines.

ARTICLE V.

Sec. 2. All elections shall be either by ballot or by mechanical device, or by both, preserving the secrecy of the vote. Laws may be enacted to regulate the preparation of the ballot and to determine the application of such mechanical device.

This amendment permits laws to be passed authorizing the use of ballots or voting machines at elections. Under a recent decision of the supreme court of this state voting machines cannot be used for the reason that the constitution now requires all elections to be by ballot.

Number 26.

Primary Elections.

ARTICLE V.

Sec. 7. All nominations for elective state, district, county and municipal offices shall be made at direct primary elections or by petition as provided by law, and provision shall be made by law for a preferential vote for United States senator; but direct primaries shall not be held for the nomination of township officers or for the officers of municipalities of less than two thousand population, unless petitioned for by a majority of the electors of such township or municipality. All delegates from this state to the national conventions of political parties shall be chosen by direct vote of the electors. Each candidate for such delegate shall state his first and second choices for the presidency, which preferences shall be printed upon the primary ballot below the name of such candidate, but the name of no candidate for the presidency shall be so used without his written authority.

Under this amendment all nominations for offices of the state or any subdivision thereof having a population of over two thousand, must be made by primary election or by petition. But nominations for offices in districts with a population less than the number named are not so made unless the qualified electors thereof so desire. It is further provided that all delegates to national conventions of the different political parties are to be chosen by primary and provision is made for a preferential vote for United States Senator and also to require that candidates for the office of delegate to national conventions shall state their preference as between different candidates for the presidency.

Organization of Boards of Education.

ARTICLE VI.

Sec. 3. Provision shall be made by law for the organization, administration and control of the public school system of the state supported by public funds; provided, that each school district embraced wholly or in part within any city shall have the power by referendum vote to determine for itself the number of members and the organization of the district board of education, and provision shall be made by law for the exercise of this power by such school districts.

This amendment, if adopted, will give the law-making body of the state complete control over the organization and administration of the state's public school system, and is designed to make clear that local communities cannot destroy the unity of the state system.

The second part of the amendment applies to city school districts only, and allows the electors of each city district to determine, as shall be provided by law, the size and organization of its board of education. The powers of such city boards of education are not enlarged by this amendment.

Creating the Office of Superintendent of Public Instruction to Replace State Commissioner of Common Schools.

ARTICLE VI.

Sec. 4. A superintendent of public instruction to replace the state commissioner of common schools, shall be included as one of the officers of the executive department to be appointed by the governor, for the term of four years, with the powers and duties now exercised by the state commissioner of common schools until otherwise provided by law, and with such other powers as may be provided by law.

SCHEDULE

If the foregoing amendment be adopted by the electors it shall take effect and become a part of the constitution on the second Monday of July, 1913.

This amendment provides for a more effective supervision of the public school system of the state, by creating the office of superintendent of public instruction as one of the state executive departments. At present there is no provision in the constitution on the subject, the state commissionership of public schools being a statutory office subject to abolition at any time by the general assembly. The new office provided in this amendment will be appointive by the governor and the term will be four years. The amendment, if adopted, will take effect on the second Monday of July, 1913, at which time the first superintendent of public instruction will take the place of the commissioner of common schools, whose term expires on that date, and the latter office will then cease to exist.

To Extend State Bond Limit to Fifty Million Dollars for Inter-County Wagon Roads.

ARTICLE VIII.

Sec. 1. The state may contract debts to supply casual deficits or failures in revenues, or to meet expenses not otherwise provided for, but the aggregate amount of such debts, direct and contingent, whether contracted by virtue of one or more acts of the general assembly, or at different periods of time, shall never exceed seven hundred and fifty thousand dollars; and the money, arising from the creation of such debts, shall be applied to the purpose for which it was obtained, or to repay the debts so contracted, and to no other purpose whatever; provided, however, that laws may be passed to contract debts and authorize issues of bonds to an amount which in the aggregate of all issues shall not exceed fifty million dollars for the purpose of constructing, rebuilding, improving and repairing a system of inter-county wagon roads throughout the state. Not to exceed ten million dollars of such bonds shall be issued in any one year, and there shall be levied and collected annually by taxation an amount sufficient to pay the interest on said bonds and to provide a sinking fund for their redemption at maturity and laws shall be passed to provide for the maintenance of said roads. Such wagon roads shall be determined under general laws and the cost of constructing, rebuilding, improving, repairing and maintaining the same shall be paid by the state. The provisions of this section shall not be limited or controlled by section 6 of article XII.

Section 1, article VIII, of the constitution limits state indebtedness to seven hundred and fifty thousand dollars.

This amendment raises the limit of indebtedness for the specific purpose of constructing, rebuilding, improving and repairing a system of inter-county wagon roads, to fifty million dollars, and, if adopted, will authorize legislation providing for an issue of state bonds, not to exceed, in the aggregate of all issues, fifty million dollars. Not more than ten million dollars in bonds can be issued in any one year. The cost of constructing and maintaining this system of inter-county wagon roads shall be paid by the state and provision shall be made for the redemption of said bonds. The object is to authorize and empower the state to construct and maintain an inter-county system of permanent wagon roads, the cost of which shall be levied upon the entire tax duplicate.

Based upon statistics given by the Ohio Tax Commission and computing interest and sinking fund charges on fifty million dollars at three and one-half per cent., on thirty-five year bonds, issued in amounts of five million dollars each year, the proportion of the tax on account of such bonds, borne by the different classes of property within the state will be as follows:

| | Duplicate. | Proportion. |
|---|---|---|
| Real estate in cities and villages.. | $2,544,547,115 | 41.0 per cent. |
| Farm lands ....................... | 1,676,590,965 | 27.1 per cent. |
| Public utilities ................. | 912,862,833 | 14.7 per cent. |

Regulating Insurance.

ARTICLE VIII.

Sec. 6. No laws shall be passed authorizing any county, city, town or township, by vote of its citizens, or otherwise, to become a stockholder in any joint stock company, corporation, or association whatever, or to raise money for, or to loan its credit to, or in aid of, any such company, corporation, or association: provided, that nothing in this section shall prevent the insuring of public buildings or property in mutual insurance associations or companies. Laws may be passed providing for the regulation of all rates charged or to be charged by any insurance company, corporation or association organized under the laws of this state or doing any insurance business in this state for profit.

This proposed amendment will permit public property to be insured in mutual insurance associations and companies, a right which has been questioned under the present constitution. In this respect mutual insurance will thus be placed on the same basis with all other kinds and the state will also be authorized to regulate insurance rates.

Abolishing Board of Public Works.

ARTICLE VIII.

Sec. 12. So long as this state shall have public works which require superintendence, a superintendent of public works shall be appointed by the governor for the term of one year, with the powers and duties now exercised by the board of public works until otherwise provided by law, and with such other powers as may be provided by law.

SCHEDULE.

Section 13 of Article VIII is hereby repealed.

This amendment abolishes the state board of public works and provides that the powers and duties now exercised by that board, together with such other duties as may be prescribed by law, shall be exercised by a superintendent of public works, to be appointed by the governor for a period of one year.

Number 32.

Taxation of State and Municipal Bonds, Inheritances, Incomes, Franchises and Production of Minerals.

ARTICLE XII.

Sec. 1. No poll tax shall ever be levied in this state, or service required, which may be commuted in money or other thing of value.

Sec. 2. Laws shall be passed, taxing by a uniform rule, all moneys, credits, investments in bonds, stocks, joint stock companies, or otherwise; and also all real and personal property according to its true value in money, excepting all bonds at present outstanding of the state of Ohio or of any city, village, hamlet, county, or township in this state or which have been issued in behalf of the public schools in Ohio and the means of instruction in connection therewith, which bonds so at present outstanding shall be exempt from taxation; but burying grounds, public school houses, houses used exclusively for public worship, institutions used exclusively for charitable purposes, public property used exclusively for any public purpose, and personal property, to an amount not exceeding in value five hundred dollars, for each individual, may, by general laws, be exempted from taxation; but all such laws shall be subject to alteration or repeal; and the value of all property, so exempted, shall, from time to time, be ascertained and published as may be directed by law.

Sec. 6. Except as otherwise provided in this constitution the state shall never contract any debt for purposes of internal improvement.

Sec. 7. Laws may be passed providing for the taxation of the right to receive, or to succeed to, estates, and such taxation may be uniform or it may be so graduated as to tax at a higher rate the right to receive, or to succeed to estates of larger value than to estates of smaller value. Such tax may also be levied at different rates upon collateral and direct inheritances, and a portion of each estate not exceeding twenty thousand dollars may be exempt from such taxation.

Sec. 8. Laws may be passed providing for the taxation of incomes, and such taxation may be either uniform or graduated, and may be applied to such incomes as may be designated by law; but a part of each annual income not exceeding three thousand dollars may be exempt from such taxation.

Sec. 9. Not less than fifty per centum of the income and inheritance taxes that may be collected by the state shall be returned to the city, village or township in which said income and inheritance tax originate.

Sec. 10. Laws may be passed providing for excise and franchise taxes and for the imposition of taxes upon the production of coal, oil, gas and other minerals.

Sec. 11. No bonded indebtedness of the state, or any political subdivisions thereof, shall be incurred or renewed, unless, in the legislation under which such indebtedness is incurred or renewed, provision is made for levying and collecting annually by taxation an amount sufficient to pay the interest on said bonds, and to provide a sinking fund for their final redemption at maturity.

Section 1 of this amendment seeks to abolish the poll tax including the tax which one may "work out" on the road and in lieu of which he may pay a sum of money.

Section 2 differs from the corresponding section of the present constitution in but two particulars. It makes taxable all state, municipal and school bonds hereafter issued, while the present constitution exempts them. It also makes it possible for the general assembly to exempt five hundred dollars from the personal property of each individual while the present constitution permits only two hundred dollars to be thus exempted.

Both the present constitution and this amendment require that all property shall be taxed by a uniform rule.

The remaining sections of this amendment authorize the general assembly to pass laws levying income and inheritance taxes, graduated or otherwise, on condition that at least fifty per centum of the revenue thus obtained shall be returned to the city, village or township from which it came. Excise and franchise taxes and a tax on the gas, oil, coal and other minerals produced in the state are also authorized.

The last section requires any subdivision of the state which issues bonds to make immediate preparation for their payment by levying an annual tax sufficient to pay the interest as it accrues and to provide a sinking, or reserve fund which, at the time when the bonds become due, shall be sufficient to pay them.

Regulation of Corporations and Sale of Personal Property.

ARTICLE XIII.

Sec. 2. Corporations may be formed under general laws; but all such laws may, from time to time, be altered or repealed. Corporations may be classified and there may be conferred upon proper boards, commissions or officers, such supervisory and regulatory powers over their organization, business and issue and sale of stocks and securities, and over the business and sale of the stocks and securities of foreign corporations and joint stock companies in this state, as may be prescribed by law. Laws may be passed regulating the sale and conveyance of other personal property, whether owned by a corporation, joint stock company or individual.

This amendment is offered for the purpose of authorizing legislation that will permit the classification of corporations and the regulation by law of the issue and sale of stocks and bonds as well as supervision over their organization and business. The further purpose is to authorize such legislation as will prevent the sale of fraudulent stocks and bonds by either domestic or foreign corporations.

The amendment further recognizes the right of the law-making power to regulate the sale of other forms of personal property.

Double Liability of Bank Stockholders and Inspection of Private Banks

ARTICLE XIII.

Sec. 3. Dues from private corporations shall be secured by such means as may be prescribed by law, but in no case shall any stockholder be individually liable otherwise than for the unpaid stock owned by him or her; except that stockholders of corporations authorized to receive money on deposit shall be held individually responsible, equally and ratably, and not one for another, for all contracts, debts, and engagements of such corporations, to the extent of the amount of their stock therein, at the par value thereof, in addition to the amount invested in such shares. No corporation not organized under the laws of this state, or of the United States, or person, partnership or association shall use the word "bank", "banker" or "banking", or words of similar meaning in any foreign language, as a designation or name under which business may be conducted in this state unless such corporation, person, partnership or association shall submit to inspection, examination and regulation as may hereafter be provided by the laws of this state.

This amendment provides first, that single liability shall apply to the stocks of all Ohio corporations, except those authorized to receive money on deposit, to which class double liability shall apply; and second, that all private persons or associations using a business name including the word "bank", "banker" or "banking", must submit to inspection, examination and regulation.

Regulating State Printing.

ARTICLE XV.

Sec. 2. The printing of the laws, journals, bills, legislative documents and papers for each branch of the general assembly, with the printing required for the executive and other departments of state, shall be let on contract to the lowest responsible bidder, or done directly by the state in such manner as shall be prescribed by law. All stationery and supplies shall be purchased as may be provided by law.

The constitution at present requires that the printing for the executive and other departments of the state shall be let on contract to the lowest responsible bidder. This power is still retained in the foregoing section, but the state is given the added authority to do its own printing.

Eligibility of Women to Certain Offices.

ARTICLE XV.

Sec. 4. No person shall be elected or appointed to any office in this state unless possessed of the qualifications of an elector; provided that women who are citizens may be appointed, as notaries public, or as members of boards of, or to positions in, those departments and institutions established by the state or any political subdivision thereof involving the interests or care of women or children or both.

This amendment will permit the appointment of women as superintendents and members of boards of those institutions of the state, or any of its subdivisions, where the interests and care of women and children are involved. It will also allow the appointment of women as notaries public.

License to Traffic in Intoxicating Liquors.

ARTICLE XV.

Sec. 9. License to traffic in intoxicating liquors shall be granted in this state, and license laws operative throughout the state shall be passed with such restrictions and regulations as may be provided by law, and municipal corporations shall be authorized by general laws to provide for the limitation of the number of saloons. Laws shall not be passed authorizing more than one saloon in each township or municipality of less than five hundred population, or more than one saloon for each five hundred population in other townships and municipalities. Where the traffic is or may be prohibited under laws applying to counties, municipalities, townships, residence districts, or other districts now prescribed by law, the traffic shall not be licensed in any such local subdivision while any prohibitory law is operative therein, and nothing herein contained shall be so construed as to repeal, modify or suspend any such prohibitory laws, or any regulatory laws now in force or hereafter enacted, or to prevent the future enactment, modification or repeal of any prohibitory or regulatory laws. License to traffic in intoxicating liquors shall not be granted to any person who at the time of making application therefor is not a citizen of the United States and of good moral character. License shall not be granted to any applicant who is in any way interested in the business conducted at any other place where intoxicating liquors are sold or kept for sale as a beverage nor shall such license be granted unless the applicant or applicants are the only persons in any way pecuniarily interested in the business for which the license is sought and no other person shall be in any way interested therein during the continuance of the license. If such interest of such person shall appear, the license shall be deemed revoked. If any licensee is more than once convicted for a violation of the laws in force to regulate the traffic in intoxicating liquors, his license shall be deemed revoked and no license shall thereafter be granted to him. License to traffic in intoxicating liquors shall not be granted unless the place of traffic under such license shall be located in the county in which the person or persons reside whose duty it is to grant such license, or in a county adjoining thereto. The word "saloon" as used in this section is defined to be a place where intoxicating liquors are sold, or kept for sale, as a beverage in quantities less than one gallon.

At said election a ballot shall be in the following form:

INTOXICATING LIQUORS

| | |
|---|---|
| | For License to traffic in intoxicating liquors. |
| | Against License to traffic in intoxicating liquors. |

The voter shall indicate his choice by placing a cross-mark within the blank space opposite the words "For License," if he desires to vote in favor of the article above mentioned and opposite the words "Against License," within the blank space if he desires to vote against said article. If a cross-mark is placed opposite both phrases or neither phrase, then the vote upon the subject shall not be counted.

If the votes for license shall exceed the votes against license, then the article above mentioned shall become Section 9 of Article XV of the constitution, and the present Section 9 of said article, also known as Section 18 of the schedule shall be repealed.

LICENSE PROPOSAL 151 AND ITS PROVISIONS.

1. License to traffic in intoxicating liquors shall hereafter be granted and license laws shall be passed operative throughout the state with such restrictions and regulations as may be provided by law.

2. No alien or person not of good moral character can secure a license.

3. License cannot be granted to any person pecuniarily interested in the liquor business conducted at any other place.

4. Any licensee more than once convicted, shall have his license revoked and not thereafter granted.

5. There shall not be more than one saloon to each five hundred population in a municipality or township.

6. A municipality may further limit the number of saloons therein.

7. The licensing authority shall be located in the county, or in a county adjoining thereto.

8. Where the traffic is or may be prohibited under laws applying to counties, municipalities, townships, residence districts or other districts now prescribed by law license shall not be granted therein while such prohibitory law is operative therein.

9. Nothing contained in the proposal repeals, or modifies existing prohibitory or regulatory laws, or prevents their future repeal or enactment.

10. There is added to the above provisions, that nothing contained in the amendment prevents the future enactment, modification or repeal of any prohibitory or regulatory laws.

Civil Service.

ARTICLE XV.

Sec. 10. Appointments and promotions in the civil service of the state, the several counties, and cities, shall be made according to merit and fitness, to be ascertained, as far as practicable, by competitive examinations. Laws shall be passed providing for the enforcement of this provision.

This amendment makes mandatory the passage of laws placing, as far as practicable, all appointive officers in the service of the state and the several counties and cities, under civil service regulation and subject to competitive examination.

Out-Door Advertising.

ARTICLE XV.

Sec. 11. Laws may be passed regulating and limiting the use of property on or near public ways and grounds for erecting bill-boards thereon and for the public display of posters, pictures and other forms of advertising.

This amendment authorizes the passage of laws, regulating and limiting the use of property on or near public ways and grounds for display posters and advertising. It enlarges existing legislative power.

Methods of Submitting Amendments to the Constitution.

ARTICLE XVI.

Sec. 1. Either branch of the general assembly may propose amendments to this constitution; and, if the same shall be agreed to by three-fifths of the members elected to each house, such proposed amendments shall be entered on the journals, with the yeas and nays, and shall be submitted to the electors, for their approval or rejection, on a separate ballot without party designation of any kind, at either a special or a general election as the general assembly may prescribe. Such proposed amendments shall be published once a week for five consecutive weeks preceding such election, in at least one newspaper in each county of the state, where a newspaper is published. If the majority of the electors voting on the same shall adopt such amendments the same shall become a part of the constitution. When more than one amendment shall be submitted at the same time, they shall be so submitted as to enable the electors to vote on each amendment, separately.

Sec. 2. Whenever two-thirds of the members elected to each branch of the general assembly shall think it necessary to call a convention to revise, amend, or change this constitution, they shall recommend to the electors to vote on a separate ballot without party designation of any kind at the next election for members to the general assembly, for or against a convention; and if a majority of all the electors voting for and against the calling of a convention shall have voted for a convention, the general assembly shall, at their next session, provide, by law, for calling the same. Candidates for members of the constitutional convention shall be nominated by nominating petition only and shall be voted for upon one independent and separate ballot without any emblem or party designation whatever. The convention shall consist of as many members as the house of representatives, who shall be chosen as provided by law, and shall meet within three months after their election, for the purpose aforesaid.

Sec. 3. At the general election to be held in the year one thousand nine hundred and thirty-two, and in each twentieth year thereafter, the question: "Shall there be a convention to revise, alter, or amend the constitution," shall be submitted to the electors of the state; and in case a majority of the electors, voting for and against the calling of a convention, shall decide in favor of a convention, the general assembly, at its next session, shall provide, by law, for the election of delegates, and the assembling of such convention, as is provided in the preceding section; but no amendment of this constitution, agreed upon by any convention assembled in pursuance of this article, shall take effect, until the same shall have been submitted to the electors of the state, and adopted by a majority of those voting thereon.

At present when the general assembly submits to the electors for their approval or rejection any proposed amendment to the constitution the same has to be published in newspapers for a period of six months prior to general election and then becomes a part of the constitution if a majority of the electors voting at such general election vote in favor of the same. Under the above amendment if it is adopted, the time of publication is reduced from six months to five weeks and in lieu of requiring a majority of all the electors who vote at such general election any submitted amendment will become a part of the constitution if a majority of the electors voting thereon shall vote in its favor. In addition all proposed amendments must be submitted on a separate ballot without party designation thereon and at either a special or general election.

This amendment also makes mandatory what formerly was optional with the general assembly as to the method of selecting members of future constitutional conventions. It requires that they shall be nominated by petition only and shall be voted for upon one independent and separate ballot without any emblem or party designation whatever.

This amendment further provides, as does the present constitution, for the submission to the people every twenty years of the question as to whether or not a convention shall be held to revise the constitution. Under the present constitution a majority of the electors voting at the election is required to decide the question but under this proposed amendment only a majority of those voting on the question is required to decide it.

Municipal Home Rule.

ARTICLE XVIII.

Sec. 1. Municipal corporations are hereby classified into cities and villages. All such corporations having a population of five thousand or over shall be cities; all others shall be villages. The method of transition from one class to the other shall be regulated by law.

Sec. 2. General laws shall be passed to provide for the incorporation and government of cities and villages; and additional laws may also be passed for the government of municipalities adopting the same; but no such additional law shall become operative in any municipality until it shall have been submitted to the electors thereof, and affirmed by a majority of those voting thereon, under regulations to be established by law.

Sec. 3. Municipalities shall have authority to exercise all powers of local self-government and to adopt and enforce within their limits such local police, sanitary and other similar regulations, as are not in conflict with general laws.

Sec. 4. Any municipality may acquire, construct, own, lease and operate within or without its corporate limits, any public utility the product or service of which is or is to be supplied to the municipality or its inhabitants, and may contract with others for any such product or service. The acquisition of any such public utility may be by condemnation or otherwise, and a municipality may acquire thereby the use of, or full title to, the property and franchise of any company or person supplying to the municipality or its inhabitants the service or product of any such utility.

Sec. 5. Any municipality proceeding to acquire, construct, own, lease or operate a public utility, or to contract with any person or company therefor, shall act by ordinance and no such ordinance shall take effect until after thirty days from its passage. If within said thirty days a petition signed by ten per centum of the electors of the municipality shall be filed with the executive authority thereof demanding a referendum on such ordinance it shall not take effect until submitted to the electors and approved by a majority of those voting thereon. The submission of any such question shall be governed by all the provisions of section 8 of this article as to the submission of the question of choosing a charter commission.

Sec. 6. Any municipality, owning or operating a public utility for the purpose of supplying the service or product thereof to the municipality or its inhabitants, may also sell and deliver to others any transportation service of such utility and the surplus product of any other utility in an amount not exceeding in either case fifty per centum of the total service or product supplied by such utility within the municipality.

Sec. 7. Any municipality may frame and adopt or amend a charter for its government and may, subject to the provisions of section 3 of this article, exercise thereunder all powers of local self-government.

Sec. 8. The legislative authority of any city or village may by a two-thirds vote of its members, and upon petition of ten per centum of the electors shall forthwith, provide by ordinance for the submission to the electors, of the question, "Shall a commission be chosen to frame a charter." The ordinance providing for the submission of such question shall require that it be submitted to the electors at the next regular municipal election if one shall occur not less than sixty nor more than one hundred and twenty days after its passage; otherwise it shall provide for the submission of the question at a special election to be called and held within the time aforesaid. The ballot containing such question shall bear no party designation, and provision shall be made thereon for the election from the municipality at large of fifteen electors who shall constitute a commission to frame a charter; provided that a majority of the electors voting on such question shall have voted in the affirmative. Any charter so framed shall be submitted to the electors of the municipality at an election to be held at a time fixed by the charter commission and within one year from the date of its election, provision for which shall be made by the legislative authority of the municipality in so far as not prescribed by general law. Not less than thirty days prior to such election the clerk of the municipality shall mail a copy of the proposed charter to each elector whose name appears upon the poll or registration books of the last regular or general election held therein. If such proposed charter is approved by a majority of the electors voting thereon it shall become the charter of such municipality at the time fixed therein.

Sec. 9. Amendments to any charter framed and adopted as herein provided may be submitted to the electors of a municipality by a two-thirds vote of the legislative authority thereof, and, upon petitions signed by ten per centum of the electors of the municipality setting forth any such proposed amendment, shall be submitted by such legislative authority. The submission of proposed amendments to the electors shall be governed by the requirements of section 8 as to the submission of the question of choosing a charter commission; and copies of proposed amendments shall be mailed to the electors as hereinbefore provided for copies of a proposed charter. If any such amendment is approved by a majority of the electors voting thereon, it shall become a part of the charter of the municipality. A copy of said charter or any amendment thereto shall be certified to the secretary of state, within thirty days after adoption by a referendum vote.

Sec. 10. A municipality appropriating or otherwise acquiring property for public use may in furtherance of such public use appropriate or acquire an excess over that actually to be occupied by the improvement, and may sell such excess with such restrictions as shall be appropriate to preserve the improvement made. Bonds may be issued to supply the funds in whole or in part to pay for the excess property so appropriated or otherwise acquired, but said bonds shall be a lien only against the property so acquired for the improvement and excess, and they shall not be a liability of the municipality nor be included in any limitation of the bonded indebtedness of such municipality prescribed by law.

Sec. 11. Any municipality appropriating private property for a public improvement may provide money therefor in part by assessments upon benefited property not in excess of the special benefits conferred upon such property by the improvements. Said assessments, however, upon all the abutting, adjacent, and other property in the district benefited, shall in no case be levied for more than fifty per centum of the cost of such appropriation.

Sec. 12. Any municipality which acquires, constructs or extends any public utility and desires to raise money for such purposes may issue mortgage bonds therefor beyond the general limit of bonded indebtedness prescribed by law; provided that such mortgage bonds issued beyond the general limit of bonded indebtedness prescribed by law shall not impose any liability upon such municipality but shall be secured only upon the property and revenues of such public utility, including a franchise stating the terms upon which, in case of foreclosure, the purchaser may operate the same, which franchise shall in no case extend for a longer period than twenty years from the date of the sale of such utility and franchise on foreclosure.

Sec. 13. Laws may be passed to limit the power of municipalities to levy taxes and incur debts for local purposes, and may require reports from municipalities as to their financial condition and transactions, in such form as may be provided by law, and may provide for the examination of the vouchers, books and accounts of all municipal authorities, or of public undertakings conducted by such authorities.

Sec. 14. All elections and submissions of questions provided for in this article shall be conducted by the election authorities prescribed by general law. The percentage of electors required to sign any petition provided for herein shall be based upon the total vote cast at the last preceding general municipal election.

SCHEDULE.

If the foregoing amendment to the constitution be adopted by the electors and become a part of the constitution, it shall take effect on November 15, 1912.

Cities and villages under the proposed amendment are given the right to frame their own charters, own and regulate their own public utilities and to adopt by ordinances such local police, sanitary and other similar regulations, not in conflict with general laws, as they may deem necessary. To the general assembly is specifically reserved the authority to limit the power of cities to levy taxes and incur debts for local purposes, to control elections, to examine into the financial condition and transactions of all municipalities, and, by general laws, to make such provisions for police and sanitary regulations and other similar matters as may be for the general welfare of the state.

FORM OF GOVERNMENT.

Municipalities may determine their form of government by any one of three ways:

a. They may, upon vote of the people, elect fifteen citizens to frame a charter, which must be submitted to the voters for approval.

b. They may adopt, by a majority vote, a form of government provided by the general assembly. This may be the commission form of government, the federal plan, the so-called Newport plan, or as many other plans as the general assembly may provide.

c. They may decide to be governed as at present, by a municipal code, framed and adopted by the general assembly. Such a code automatically takes effect in all municipalities which do not frame their own charters or take the trouble to submit to the people one or the other of the forms provided by the general assembly.

CONTROL OF PUBLIC UTILITIES

Municipalities are given the power to acquire, construct, own, lease and operate any or all of their public utilities. This authority is subject to the limitations fixed by the general assembly on the power of the municipality to levy taxes and incur indebtedness. A city may raise money for such purpose by issuing mortgage bonds beyond the limit of bonded indebtedness fixed by law, provided that such mortgage bonds are made a lien only on the property and revenues of the utility itself.

IMPROVEMENTS AND EXCESS CONDEMNATION

Cities are given the right to appropriate private property for a public use and at the same time to appropriate an excess over that actually to be occupied by the improvement in order to protect the improvement made. Bonds, however, for such excess must be a lien only on the property acquired for the improvement and the excess.

This will enable a city to take property for a civic center, a park or street opening and a sufficient amount of the adjacent property to protect the improvement. This excess can then be sold under proper restrictions by the city.

Number 41.

SCHEDULE.

The several amendments passed and submitted by this convention when adopted at the election shall take effect on the first day of January, 1913 except as otherwise specifically provided by the schedule attached to any of said amendments. All laws then in force, not inconsistent therewith shall continue in force until amended or repealed, provided that all cases pending in the courts on the first day of January, 1913, shall be heard and tried in the same manner and by the same procedure as is authorized by law. Any provision of the amendments passed and submitted by this convention and adopted by the electors inconsistent with, or in conflict with, any provision of the present constitution, shall be held to prevail.

No issue is or can be raised on the adoption of this amendment. Its object is to fix the interval which must elapse between date of submission of these amendments and the time at which, if adopted, they shall go into effect, in order that different departments of the state government may have an opportunity to adjust themselves to any changes that may be made. All electors are respectfully requested to vote "Yes" on this particular matter.

An I H C Manure Spreader Is an Investment—Not an Expense

A MACHINE that makes two dollars where one was made before is not an expense—it is a good investment.

Careful tests made at the Ohio Experiment Station showed an average increased crop yield of $15 an acre when eight loads of manure were properly spread. Spreading with a fork, it would take at least sixteen loads to an acre to produce the same result. By fertilizing twice as much ground with the same quantity of manure and doing the work better, an I H C manure spreader soon pays for itself. Add to this saving an increase of $15 an acre in the value of your crops, and you at once see why we urge the purchase of an

I H C Manure Spreader

Kemp 20th Century, Corn King, or Cloverleaf

Ask the I H C local dealer to show you the self-aligning, removable boxes on the main axle; notice that the axles are roller bearing to reduce the draft; study the apron construction, and note the large rollers on which it runs. I H C spreaders can be used in any corner of the barnyard. There is no reach to interfere. The seat folds out of the way when filling the spreader.

If you appreciate machines of extra merit; machines that spread manure in ample range of quantities; machines which can be equipped with drilling attachments for use in market gardens, and above all, machines which are made in sizes convenient for every farm, investigate I H C spreaders. Go to the local I H C dealer and look carefully over the machines he shows you. Get catalogues and full information from him, or, write

MENTOR.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Rudolph are in Cleveland this week with the family of their son, Mr. Max Rudolph, while he and his wife are off on a trip.

Mr. Grant Cole is in Michigan with friends for a few days, but is expected home sometime this week, we understand.

Miss Henrietta Parker is spending her vacation down here with her father, Col. Parker and his family. Miss Henrietta is taking the course of study and instruction prescribed for a trained nurse at the Lakeside hospital in Cleveland, and is now on her second year.

Mrs. Charles Luth of Painesville, her husband and children, were recent guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Stoll.

The Lawn fete given by the young people to raise the 35 good dollars with which to pay the rent on their baseball grounds and other expenses, was quite a success on Wednesday evening last. Something near $125 being cleared over and above all expenses.

The Y. P. B. society is fast increasing its membership both here and on the Plains, as 60 young people met at the home of Mrs. A. D. Carleton last week one evening for a social time and to become better acquainted.

Mrs. Harry King entertained her Sunday school class and that of her sister at "Southwood" on the afternoon of Thursday last, when there were present the Misses Martha Spindle, Louise Damon, Helen Sneil, Dorothea Sanborn, Virginia Sawyer, Florad Glenn, Maud Hardy, Mazie Parmetee, Anna Norton, and Louise Ellsworth of Hudson. A number of nice games were played, and delicious refreshments were served at ten time while the "Costermonger Songs" of Mrs. Rush were greatly enjoyed by everybody present.

Mrs. Sarah Green has been spending some time with friends in Cleveland.

Miss Frances Case is still in the hospital, but is getting along very nicely, and friends are hoping she will soon be at home, well and strong as ever.

Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Barber and family, accompanied by their friends, Mr. and Mrs. Clayton of Painesville, were out here at the home of Mrs. Barber's aunt, Mrs. John Tyler, on Sunday last.

Miss Luella Kerr is still slowly improving, and her mother was enabled to attend church on Sunday morning for the first time in over two years.

Mrs. Charles Glenn is enjoying a visit from her sister, Miss McGinnis whose home is in Polk, Pa. Miss McGinnis is a trained nurse for children, has a regular place in some city hospital, and is very successful indeed, in her chosen profession.

Miss Josephine Baker and Miss Dorothy Foss were in Cleveland all day on Saturday last, on a shopping expedition.

The Rosenthal family have returned from their stay at the Lake, and Dan McCarty has come home with rather more color in his cheeks, and declares he has gained 30 pounds. However, he walks rather wobbly yet, so his friends declare.

It is said that Mrs. Mark Tribbey and daughter have gone east to live and that Mr. Tribbey himself, has gone to the home of his brother in Iowa where he is at work, not being able to find anything to do in Cleveland. Their home here is rented, and probably for sale.

Mrs. Bostwick has a family in part of her rooms over the new block, she having decided to form two suites of them instead of one as at first planned, as there are more people wanting cheap rents than such nice quarters as those. Indeed, if some one would put up a few houses for rent at about ten dollars a month, we think it might be a good plan.

Mrs. Charles Rexford and small son of Cleveland, have been recent guests of their former neighbor, Mrs. J. W. Lowe and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Curtiss are having a visit from their sister, Mrs. Dunkleberd (or some such name) from Iowa just now. When this lady lived in Mentor she was known as Mrs. Woods, and nearly everybody calls her by the old name now.

Miss Dorothea Sanborn of Chagrin Falls is spending the week with her school friends here, and reports that while she was very homesick at C. F. all the rest of the family seem contented, and it is undecided as yet, whether they will remain there longer than during the summer or not. The friends are hoping not.

The wedding of our Mentor Mayor was duly celebrated on Wednesday last. The ceremony was performed by the bride's dear old grandfather, Rev. Dunbar of Madison who is now over eighty years of age, and the same one who was such a favorite with Mentor folks when his son lived and preached here. Mr. and Mrs. Dunbar provided for the entertainment of all the guests invited from Mentor, but through some mistake it was not generally known, and as it was impossible to go to Lisbon and be present at the wedding and still get home the same day, most of those who were invited felt obliged to forego the pleasure of witnessing the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. T. D. Morley, however, journeyed down to Lisbon, remained all night, called on some old college friends and returned late the next day, having had a most delightful time. The newlyweds are reported as having gone up the Lakes for a trip.

Mrs. Ernest Shuman of Cleveland, is a guest of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Stoll.

Mrs. Raymond Rush of Hudson, and her niece, Miss Louise Ellsworth, have been guests of Mrs. Harry King for a week or ten days past, but have returned home.

A. L. Haskell and his sister, Miss Emily, have recently been in Concord, visiting their brother, William Haskell, who is in very poor health.

Mrs. F. E. Drury of "Drury Lane," White Hill, spent some little time with her friends, the King girls, last week. Mr. Drury has recently bought an island in the Georgian Bay where they are making a summer camp for fishing and resting, some eight or ten miles away from folks and the noise of the city. They were to take possession last week, are to remain during August, and are accompanied by their son and his family.

Last Sunday six person were received into the Methodist church, all but one of them received the ordinance of baptism at the hands of the young preacher, Mr. Schaffner. They were Mr. and Mrs. Rose Lynn and Lloyd Carleton, Miss Anna Ledue, and Elsie Eddy. There are others we understand, about to come into the church, which speaks well for the young pastor, and maybe there won't be a howl if he is not sent back here by Conference! We'd hate to be Conference, that's certain.

Mrs. Emery Harrington is spending some time in the city with her friend, Mrs. Minerva Prentice.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry King and small daughter, have gone to Silver Lake Park for the summer Chautauqua and expect to remain away about two weeks. Their home, Southwood, is being cared for by friends.

Dr. Moore of Willoughby was out at Lacwood, the home of Mr. Edmund Tuille on Sunday, being accompanied there by his family and a few other friends.

Mrs. Lila Phelps has recently moved over to Mentor from Kirtland and will find quite a lot of old friends already located and happy here.

Otto Miller and his friend Edward Fitzgerald were thrown from the motorcycle of the latter and badly hurt the night of the lawn fete here. One has a broken arm and the other a broken leg. The young men went crashing into a carriage driven by Miss Blanche Miller. The night was quite dark, and now our people are saying that all vehicles should carry lights fore and aft, same as automobiles, and it does look reasonable.

PROF. G. W. KNIGHT FAVORS LICENSE

Was Active Dry Member Of Constitutional Convention's Temperance Committee

ADDS MUCH TO REGULATION

Addresses Men's Bible Class in Columbus, Pointing Out Good Feature of The Proposed Amendment.

Twenty-five to 35 per cent reduction in the number of saloons in Ohio by the adoption of the Anderson license proposal in the state constitution, was predicted by Professor George W. Knight of Ohio State University, Franklin county delegate to the constitutional convention, who addressed the two men's Bible classes of Ivy Avenue M. E. Church. Although the membership of the two classes is less than 100, nearly 150 men filled the classroom to hear Professor Knight advocate a measure concerning the worth of which voters are divided.

"Real state-wide prohibition I believe impossible at present," said Professor Knight, "and I favor the best regulation possible. As applied in the Anderson amendment, I believe in the license system.

Praises Regulation Feature.

"The amendment provides that wherever the traffic in intoxicating liquors is permitted, it must be licensed. There is nothing in it to prevent a city or county or other district from voting dry and it will not permit a saloon to continue in existence after the territory in which it is located goes dry.

"Under it, the wettest legislature could not increase the number of saloons to more than one to each 500 of population, while a dry legislation could make the proportion much less.

"This proposal adds new regulatory machinery without destroying the old. I believe it is better to have a limited number of regulated saloons than an unlimited number of unregulated saloons."

Professor Knight spoke of the restrictions as to who might be saloonkeepers. The amendment provides that saloonkeepers must be citizens of the United States at the time of applying for license. "There are nearly 200 saloonkeepers in Columbus," he said, "who do not answer to this qualification. It provides that the saloonkeeper must be of good moral character, thus "disqualifying the convict and ex-convict," said Professor Knight, "and requiring that the applicant for a license submit some evidence of decency."

Druggists Favor Amendment

"At present there seems to be no machinery to put the violater of regulatory laws out of business," he continued. "The new law provides that, upon the second violation of any regulation, the license is automatically revoked.

"The amendment declares that no one may obtain a license who is interested directly or indirectly in any other branch of the liquor traffic, thus putting an end to brewery and syndicate-owned saloons, from which come the worst evils of the traffic.

"Druggists, both wholesale and retail, favor the amendment because it defines the saloon and makes it clear that the druggist is not a saloonkeeper."—Ohio State Journal, July 8.

Shocking Sounds.

In the earth are sometimes heard before a terrible earthquake, that warn the coming of peril. Nature's warnings are kind. That dull pain or ache in the back warns you the kidneys need attention if you would escape those dangerous maladies, dropsy, diabetes or Bright's disease. Take Electric Bitters at once and see backache fly and all your best feelings return. "My son received great benefit from their use for kidney and bladder trouble," writes Peter Bondy, South Rockwood, Mich. "It is certainly a great kidney medicine." Try it. 50 cents at Gehring's Pharmacy.

OHIO PHYSICIANS

It is probable that at the next meeting of the state board of health what will be in line [illegible] action will be taken to make more effective the work of the board and of various associations in fighting tuberculosis, according to Dr. Frank Warner of Columbus, president of the board. The plan under consideration is the adoption of an order requiring physicians to report all cases of tuberculosis as they are now required to report smallpox.

As part of the work [illegible] the board expects [illegible] tions to fam[illegible] tubercular pa[illegible] the spread of the [illegible] vented.

If adopted by the board as a requirement physicians [illegible] for failure to make a report [illegible] culosis cases. The penalty for first offense is a fine not to exceed $[illegible] and for the second a fine or imprisonment not to exceed 30 days or both.

SANDUSKY STAR JOURNAL

Under a license system here in Sandusky fully half of the saloons now operated would be closed. In many other cities the situation would be the same. Notwithstanding this the brewers and the retail dealers favor the new plan. Not only this but business men and many people who hope for regulation and a reasonable number of saloons are heartily in favor of the license plan. Under such conditions, it seems certain that the proposition will carry. With the local option principle retained, real reformers see a chance to farther improve conditions.

WHY COWS STOOD IN WATER

Artistic Limitations Responsible for Characteristic Attitude of the Humble Bovine.

In a north of England town there was a shiftless man who would never accept gifts outright, although he was always depending on charity, says Al Priddy in his book, "Through the Mill," relates the Youth's Companion.

He painted landscapes, and my aunt, when benevolently inclined, would hire him to decorate our walls with rural scenes, highly colored in glaring tints, as if nature had turned color blind. There were cows in every scene, and Aunt Millie noticed that all the cows were up to their knees in water. Not one stood on the vivid green hills.

"Jorvey," she remarked to the old man, "why do you always put the cows in the water?"

"It's this way, Mrs. Brindin," the old artist responded. "You see, ma'am, I never learned to paint hoofs."

TOO MUCH.

I asked Loraine to smile to me,
For I with love was daft.
She smiled! She more than smiled, for she
Just held her sides and laughed!

Works in the Garden Now.

Grown old in the service of his master and mistress, James was a privileged retainer.

He was waiting at table one day, when a guest politely asked for a fish fork. Strangely enough the request was ignored.

Then the hostess noticed the episode and remarked in a most peremptory manner:

"James, Mrs. Jones hasn't a fish fork. Get her one at once!"

"Madam," came the emphatic reply, "last time Mrs. Jones dined here we lost a fish fork."

James has now been relegated to the garden.

FAMILY RUNT

'Kansas Man Says Coffee Made Him That.

"Coffee has been used in our family of eleven—father, mother, five sons and four daughters—for thirty years. I am the eldest of the boys and have always been considered the runt of the family and a coffee toper.

"I continued to drink it for years until I grew to be a man, and then I found I had stomach trouble, nervous headaches, poor circulation, was unable to do a full day's work, took medicine for this, that and the other thing, without the least benefit. In fact I only weighed 116 when I was 25.

"Then I changed from coffee to Postum, being the first one in our family to do so. I noticed, as did the rest of the family, that I was surely gaining strength and flesh. Shortly after I was visiting my cousin who said, 'You look so much better—you're getting fat.'

"At breakfast his wife passed me a cup of coffee, as she knew I was always such a coffee drinker, but I said, 'No, thank you.'

"'What!' said my cousin, 'you quit coffee? What do you drink?'

"'Postum,' I said, 'or water, and I am well.' They did not know what Postum was but my cousin had stomach trouble and could not sleep at night from drinking coffee three times a day. He was glad to learn about Postum, but said he never knew coffee would hurt anyone." (Tea is just as injurious as coffee because it contains caffeine, the same drug found in coffee.)

"After understanding my condition and how I got well he knew what to do for himself. He discovered that coffee was the cause of his trouble as he never used tobacco or anything else of the kind. You should see the change in him now. We both believe that if persons who suffer from coffee drinking would stop and use Postum they could build back to health and happiness." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

"There's a reason." Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

JOHNSON IS GREAT PITCHER

Has Added to His Terrific Speed Excellent Control, Slow Ball and Quick Breaking Curve.

"Walter Johnson is today a perfect pitcher," said one of the veteran umpires of the American league recently in discussing the Washington marvel. "If you could have a hurler made to order you couldn't design one who would be a bit more effective than the big Swede, whose name is a terror to the best batsmen in the country.

"Johnson isn't using his terrific speed much nowadays. In fact, he seldom cuts one loose with all his might unless he happens to be in a tight place and opposed to a hitter who is weak on the fast ones. He throws a lot of fast balls with a break on them still, but they are not of the old armor-piercing type that made him famous.

"At one time he had to depend almost entirely on the velocity of his ball and his control to make him formidable, but now he has acquired a good curve and a nice change of pace. For some time he has been experimenting with a slow ball, and now he has got command of it. Think of the deadly efficiency of a slow one coming after a ball that has been turned through a mile a minute.

"Walter's curve is not the widest in the world, but it is a quick one, and the break plenty large enough to accomplish the desired purpose. His control, which always has been good, seems to be improving.

Walter Johnson.

"On top of this he has a splendid disposition for a pitcher. Nothing seems to rattle him. Some pitchers get up in the air if they think an umpire has missed a strike in a pinch, but Walter just smiles, knowing that he can lay the next one over if he has to. He is by all odds the greatest pitcher in the game today and to my mind there never lived one who was any better. As near as any human being can hope to achieve in any line of endeavor Johnson has achieved it as a pitcher."

PLAYED IN VARIOUS LEAGUES

Jack Graney Has Every Other Member of Cleveland Team Beaten as to Experience.

"Jack" Graney has every other member of the Cleveland outfit outclassed and tied to the starting mark when it comes to variety of experiences. A year ago Jim McGuire led the field. Though younger in years, "Jack" has already performed in seven different leagues with the following clubs: Erie, Pa.; Fulton, N. Y.; Rochester, Wilkesbarre, Cleveland, Columbus, Portland, Cleveland.

Beat it if you can. And he's still so young and frisky. Even Nap Lajoie, the vet in years of the squad, doesn't compare with "Jack." Larry has confined his efforts to three clubs, Fall River, Athletics and Cleveland. "Tuck" Turner and Joe Birmingham, the other vets, also stand near the foot of the list. "Tuck's" record shows a trial with Pittsburg, subsequent development at Columbus, and finally a trip to Cleveland. Joe Birmingham displayed his talent with the A. J. and G. team of the N. Y. State league before Cleveland grabbed him.

Tris Speaker Best Player.

Billy Murray, one of the best judges of a ball player in the country and who is now acting as scout for the Pirates, awards the palm for being the best player to Tris Speaker. Says Billy: "You can praise Ty Cobb, Joe Jackson and the other great outfielders in the big leagues, but none of them is in the class with Tris Speaker of the Red Sox. Speaker is the best player on the diamond today. As a hitter, fielder, thrower and base runner he has Cobb and the others beat. I've seen all the stars of twenty-five years, and the Beaneater is the king."

Artie Hofman Is Ill.

Artie Hofman, who was secured by the Pirates from the Cubs through a trade, has been ordered to his home in Akron, Ohio, for rest. Since Hofman's recent collapse in New York his condition has been such that he was bordering on a complete nervous breakdown. Clarke decided the best thing to do was to send Hofman home. A few months before the trade was pulled off with the Cubs Hofman had to be carried from a theater in Chicago and taken to a hotel in a taxicab after a nervous collapse. It is said that Hofman's illness is such as to preclude the possibility of the Pirates' benefiting to any great extent by his services during the present year.

MILLER HUGGINS AS BIG LEAGUE MANAGER

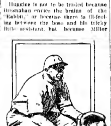
Veteran Second Baseman Huggins of Cardinals.

Miller Huggins is playing his last year with the Cardinals. That is, the tiny second sacker will depart if Manager Roger Bresnahan can put through a deal this winter that will strengthen the National league troupe.

Huggins is not to be traded because Bresnahan envies the brains of the "Rabbit," or because there is ill-feeling between the boss and his tricky little assistant, but because Miller Huggins has the managerial bee buzzing in his bonnet.



Manager Kling of Boston.

There are not many more years of major league baseball left in Huggins. Miller knows that, also Roger. But there is a head on the shoulders of the pee wee that contains a lot of smart baseball, and one that holds as much baseball knowledge, inside and outside, as almost any of the present day managers.

There is a standing order between Bresnahan and Huggins now that if the second-sacker can arrange a trade for himself that will strengthen the Cardinals it will go through. Last winter it was thought that Huggins would become leader of the Cincinnati Reds, and when Miller was in the running for the job he was given permission from Bresnahan to open negotiations for a trade.

When Hank O'Day was appointed Huggins lost out. But he continues to seek a position as general director and if any bids are received he will be allowed to depart, of course, providing Bresnahan is pleased with what he is offered.

If Huggins leaves the Cardinals after this year, then Lee Magee will become the second baseman. Magee is outclassed by Huggins in experience, but Lee is speedier than his opponent, is a better hitter and is going to become one of the best base runners in the circuit.

Then Bresnahan thinks that he has the coming greatest second baseman in the game in Magee. He is an ardent admirer of the Cincinnati lad for the simple reason that he has copied Roger's style perfectly, being full of vim and dash and wide awake all the time.

For the present and probably for the rest of 1912 Magee will do left field duty.

Huggins probably would have gone to Boston when the Cardinals were in the east but for John M. Ward and his co-worker, James Gaffney, being attacked with cold feet. The bosses of the Braves and Johnny Kling are not working in harmony, and it has been hinted often that Kling is not a shrewd or smart leader.

The opening for Huggins is Boston, unless Garry Herrmann ousts Hank O'Day in Cincinnati. Both teams have material that could strengthen the Cardinals, and when Roger Bresnahan gets ready to talk with his foes for Huggins, he is not going to put a 10-20-30 tag on pee-wee Miller.

MODERN BASEBALL IS FASTER

Nothing to Be Accomplished by Wordy Controversy on Merits of Old and Young Players.

There may be some good accomplished from a wordy controversy whether or not baseball is faster than it used to be, but just exactly how this is to effect the cost of living is not so perfectly apparent, says the Milwaukee Sentinel.

The old fellows who have had their day and who are continually looking backward, seem to think that they played faster and better in the olden time, but the young men who are now engaged in making baseball history are dead sure the old timers were truck horses in comparison with them.

There is no reason why the old timers could not hit a ball just exactly as hard, run just as fast and field just as accurately. It may be that owing to the development of pitching they would not have an opportunity to hit and run as often, and inside baseball may be developed more than it was in the olden times, but grant all this and what's the answer?

It pleases us who remember some of the old timers to think they were just as good as the best, but it may be that we are mistaken. At that it is pretty hard to see what is going to be accomplished by the discussion. If the men of today are much better than they used to be, let it go at that. Nothing can be accomplished by arguing this question any more than can be by indulging in a controversy over politics or religion.

Stovall's Great Help.

One shudders to think what would have happened to the St. Louis Browns this season if it hadn't been for First Baseman George Stovall. He has bolstered up the infield by his marvelous play, saving his mates many errors. Then, too, his hard hitting, when others of the team have been helpless, has helped win many games which otherwise would have been lost.

Hemphill's Troubles.

Charlie Hemphill, the former Yankee, is having considerable trouble with his Atlanta team. His pitching staff is not working as he would like it to, and this has been the main reason why the club has not been more successful.

NOTES of the DIAMOND

Walter Johnson of the Washington Senators has only one bad habit. He chews gum.

If the Athletics have a $10,000 infield the Boston Red Sox have a $1,000,000 outfield.

Bill Armour, the former Detroit-Toledo manager, is scouting for the St. Louis Cardinals.

The Washington fans still believe that the Senators will cop the American league bunting.

Mike Simon, who was slated for the discards last fall, has proved a handy man for the Pirates.

Rehg, whom the Pirates turned over to St. Paul, is hitting hard and stealing numerous bases.

It has been rumored and denied that Hughey Jennings is to manage the Boston Braves next season.

Detroit has bought a third baseman named Deal. Jokes are now in order. Deal kindly with the boy, however.

Over in Philadelphia the fans are still hoping that the Athletics will come through and win the flag again.

The Cubs and the Pirates are having a merry little struggle between themselves in the National league pennant race for second place.

Managerial duties must have taken the kick out of Jimmy Callahan's bat. The White Sox pilot is not hitting up to his last season's mark.

Dowd, the young Brockton shortstop Manager Harry Wolverton has annexed to the Highlanders, give promise of becoming a star.

Harry Gaspar, the former Red pitcher, who is now with the Toronto team, has caught on in fine style, and is pitching grand ball.

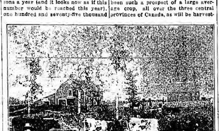
Vincent Campbell, the Boston outfielder, has improved wonderfully in his work in the field. He covers an immense amount of ground and is a sure catch of a fly ball.

Pitcher Nick Altrock, who was with the world's champion White Sox in 1906, has been given his unconditional release by Manager Carr of Kansas City.

Canada Has Sufficient Coal for 6000 Years

It Has Enough Agricultural Land for the Settling of Millions.

A report dealing with the coal resources of Canada has been issued by the Dominion Department of Mines. The estimates given are only based on what is known. In the western and northern regions, which have been little explored, there may be vast deposits of which nothing whatever is known at present. The officials of the department estimate that of bituminous coal there is in Canada 73½ billion tons, of anthracite 401 million tons; sub-bituminous and lignite over 100 billion tons. The quantity of coal now annually mined in Canada is about 12 million tons. With an estimated quantity of unmixed good coal, of 74 billion tons, it would require 6,166 years to exhaust the supply. If the inferior grades were included, supply would last for 14,575 years. Of course the coal demands of Canada will keep on increasing, but it will be a good many years before the quantity of Canadian coal mined will equal present output of the United States mines. Their annual output is about 500,000,000 tons. At that rate it would take only 145 years to exhaust the estimated Canadian supply of good coal, and about 350 years to get to the end of the total supply. And with the increasing population, made up of about four hundred thousand persons a year (and it looks now as if this number would be reached this year), one hundred and seventy-five thousand being an estimate of the immigration from the United States for 1912, the consumption of coal will naturally increase.



The Dairy Helps the Farmer in Western Canada.

The agricultural districts of Canada have now become so well known throughout the world, and the vacant area of splendid land is still so great that it may be expected that the numbers mentioned will increase from year to year, and it will not be many years before the immigration figures will reach the million mark.

It may be asked what is there to warrant this large immigration? With millions of acres of land, capable of producing twenty-five to forty bushels of wheat to the acre, or, if in oats, from forty to ninety, and even as high as a hundred bushels per acre, or, the same splendid yields of flax or barley, there is ample inducement to attract these hundreds of thousands who are filling the present agricultural settlements and pushing forward into the newer settlements year by year, and leave room still for the hundreds of thousands who will follow. There remains not only the agricultural wealth of the country, but there are also the social advantages, the home-making privileges, apart altogether from the financial opportunities, there is the life and the energy born from the knowledge that the settler is more than a unit in the upbuilding, in the making of a country that will soon rank amongst the first to the nations of the world. There is no desire on the part of the writer to dwell upon the success that has followed the American settler in the Provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta and the coast Province of British Columbia, or to speak of the thousands of individuals whose hundreds of dollars have made them thousands, but attention must be paid to the fact that these people have done well. They are followed by their families and their friends, who also are doing well.

Where, a few years ago, seemingly only months ago, there was nothing but the open prairie, or if we speak of the more central portions of these provinces, the park districts, there are today well filled and cultivated farms, large farms, too, and the herds of cattle. Cities and towns are the result of the opening up of this rich field of agriculture, and it is a high class of agriculture, carried on by the use of brains, and, where energy has not been endowed, it has become in that splendid air a case of inoculated energy.

The rapid advancement of railways makes the situation easy. Today one may be located thirty miles from one of the many branches of the different systems. A year from now, the whistle of the locomotive and the long train of cars may pass the farm, the elevator is but a short drive from the home, a splendid market is established, and all the advantages of an old settled community are at hand.

The prospects this year from an agricultural standpoint are exceedingly bright, and, relieved of untoward conditions, the farmer is already counting his bank roll, planning for more extensive operations for next year, and figuring on paying out for his farm. He is calculating what the increased value of his holdings, as a result of a successful crop, will add to his assets. Already some fields of wheat have been harvested, barley has been cut, and the yield is above his expectation. In fact, the feeling at the time of writing is that never in the history of any country on the continent has there been such a prospect of a large average crop, all over the three central provinces of Canada, as will be harvested this year. The railroads are adding to their already large mileage and have got ready for handling the crop thousands of box cars. The government agents and the railways are making arrangements for from fifty to sixty thousand extra farm hands in order that the crop may be successfully and quickly harvested, business men are laying in larger stocks than usual, real estate men are active preparing for the rush of business that is sure to follow, and everywhere there is the note of optimism, which seems to be perfectly justifiable.

There is, as has been said, a vast area of the country still open for settlement and homesteading lying in the center north. Speaking of this part a writer, who made the trip when the crop was in its green stage, said:

"Just now, the whole country is a beautiful sight, as it presents itself in full dress of living green, varied in shade, many places elegantly fringed and interspersed with plantings of shrubbery and patches of sweet-scented flowers in rose, yellow, white, pink, scarlet, cardinal and purple. In traveling over the virgin soil, I have seen some of the most charming rolling prairies, sloping hills, deep ravines, mirrored lakes, artistic flower fields, and natural parks that one could wish to behold, and all placed there without the aid of man. The land in general is heavily matted with grass, mixed with vetches and pea vines, nearly up to the knee, and many millions of acres of which are going to waste while beef, pork and mutton are soaring at prices heretofore unknown. The comparatively small acreage under cultivation reminds one of a few small garden patches.

"When we consider the estimated crop of 300,000,000 bushels of wheat for 1912, to be produced on these western prairies from these garden patches, some faint idea can be formed by an imaginative mind as to the immense possibilities and rich heritage of a glorious western Canada."

The estimate of the wheat crop, as made by the writer quoted, is excessive, but with even 250 million bushels, there will be a great deal of satisfaction on the part of the settlers.

Uniforms and Diplomacy.

The gazettes have announced that the emperor of Germany has deigned to name Mnn. de Kiderlen-Waechter major of the Seventy-first Thuringian infantry. To please his august master, the minister sometimes wears his uniform, but it gives no illusion of elegance. The other day, to console himself, he said: "I believe my colleague, M. Poincare (the French ambassador) would appear more ridiculous than I do if he were obliged to dress as an artillerist."

Prince von Buelow, who is colonel of hussars, rode in the grand review at the head of his regiment. Some years ago, at Strasburg, the emperor remarked some squadrons that were moving in zigzags across the field in a manner scarcely correct. They were the hussars of M. von Buelow. "Ach!" cried William II, "mit Buelow immer die krumme wege der diplomatie!" (Oh, with Buelow it is always the crooked ways of diplomacy!)—La Cri de Paris.

His Occupation Gone.

Hungry Herbert—I would work, ma'am, but there is little doing in my profession at present.

The Housewife—What is your profession?

Hungry Herbert—Taking care of the galloping horse effects in a theater. The automobile plays have just about ruined my business.

Nothing Personal, But—

Sheridan Knowles once wanted a certain book and could not get it. A friend advised him to try a circulating library. This advice Knowles took, to the extent of paying a three months' subscription at a library of which the proprietors were Saunders & Ottley, and then went into the country, where he stayed three months without drawing a book. Returning to town he called for the book, and was informed that his subscription had expired. At this he was very furious. He had paid a guinea, he said, and had nothing to show for the outlay. Referred by the clerk to one of the proprietors, he denounced the affair as "a confounded swindle." The proprietor then asked him if he intended to be personal. "No," replied Knowles, "on the contrary, if you are Saunders, d—n Ottley, and, if you are Ottley, d—n Saunders."

How Could He Tell?

Post—Is her father a country gentleman?

Parker—I really can't say. I've only seen his behavior in town.

WHERE DOCTORS FAILED TO HELP

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Mrs. Green's Health—Her Own Statement.

Covington, Mo.—"Your medicine has done me more good than all the doctor's medicines. At every monthly period I had to stay in bed four days because of hemorrhages, and my back was so weak I could hardly walk. I have been taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and now I can stay up and do my work. I think it is the best medicine on earth for women."—Mrs. JENNIE GREEN, Covington, Mo.

How Mrs. Cline Avoided Operation.

Brownsville, Ind.—"I can say that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done me more good than anything else. One doctor said I must be operated upon for a serious female trouble and that nothing could help me but an operation.

"I had hemorrhages and at times could not get any medicine to stop them. I got in such a weak condition that I would have died if I had not got relief soon.

"Several women who had taken your Compound, told me to try it and I did and found it to be the right medicine to build up the system and overcome female troubles.

"I am now in great deal better health than I ever expected to be, so I think I ought to thank you for it."—Mrs. O. M. CLINE, S. Main St., Brownsville, Ind.

Red Cross Seals Being Printed.

Seventy-five million Red Cross seals are now being printed for the holiday sale of these anti-tuberculosis stickers for 1912. The National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, which in co-operation with the American Red Cross will conduct the sale, makes this announcement and states further that the outlook this year is bright for a higher sale than ever before.

The seal this year is said to be the best of its kind that the Red Cross has ever issued. The design is in three colors, red, green and gray. A Santa Claus head in the three colors is shown in the center surrounded by holly wreaths. In each corner is a small red cross. The seal bears the greeting, "Merry Christmas, Happy New Year, American Red Cross, 1912."

He Was Willing to Work.

The Democratic members of the house of representatives have been besieged ever by a horde of office seekers, willing to serve their country.

"It is refreshing," said one representative in discussing the office question, "to hear of an aspirant for public office who frankly admits his ambition, yet disdains to seek a position in which he will have nothing to do but to draw his salary.

"Two wayside pilgrims were talking over things when one of them asked:

"'Dick, you ain't a-hankerin' after no government place, are ye?'

"'I don't mind sayin' I'd take one of 'em ef I could git it,' responded the other, 'but I don't want no job that's all fat. I'm willin' to earn my wages.'

"'An' what sort o' job would be about your size?'

"'Well, I'd like to fill fountain pens for some assistant secretary of the treasury.'"—Judge.

SYNOPSIS.

Dan Blair, the 22-year-old son of the fifty-million-dollar copper king of Blairtown, Mont., is a guest at the English home of Lady Galorey. Dan's father had been courteous to Lord Galorey during his visit to the United States and the courtesy is now being returned to the young man. The youth has an ideal girl in his mind. He meets Lily, Duchess of Breakwater, a beautiful widow who is attracted by his immense fortune and takes a liking to her. When Dan was a boy, a girl sang a solo at a church and he had never forgotten her. The Galoreys, Lily and Dan attend a London theater where one Letty Lane is the star. Dan recognizes her as the girl from his town, and going behind the scenes introduces himself and she remembers him. He learns that Prince Poniotowsky is suitor and escort to Letty. Lord Galorey and a friend named Ruggles determine to protect the westerner from Lily and other fortune hunters. Young Blair goes to see Lily. He can talk of nothing but Letty and this angers the Duchess. The westerner finds Letty ill from hard work, but she recovers and Ruggles and Dan invite her to supper. She asks Dan to build a home for disappointed theatrical people. Dan visits Lily, for the time forgetting Letty, and later announces his engagement to the duchess. Letty refuses to sing for an entertainment given by Lily. Galorey tells Dan that all Lily cares for is his money, and it is disclosed that he and the duchess have been mutually in love for years. Letty sings at an aristocratic function, Dan escorting her home. Dan confronts Galorey and Lily together. Later he informs Letty that his engagement with Lily is broken, asks the singer to marry him, and they become engaged. Ruggles thinks the westerner should not marry a public singer, and endeavors to induce Letty to give him up. She runs away, fearing she is not good enough for Dan and Ruggles makes the latter believe she has abandoned his love. Finally Dan finds Letty in Paris where he is persistent in pressing his suit. The westerner meets Poniotowsky at Letty's rooms and a challenge results. Dan, with his mind in a turmoil, arranges for the duel. He fancies the duelists' meeting, and that Letty is weeping over him after he has received his death wound. Awakening from his dream, he meets the seconds of Poniotowsky in reality.

CHAPTER XXXI—Continued.

"Gee. Whew!" he exclaimed, "he does, does he? Twenty paces—revolvers—why, he's a bird—a bird!"

A slight flush rose along Dan's cheeks. "I never liked him, and you don't want to hear what I think of him. But I'll be darned if he isn't a bird."

His eyes caught sight of a blue envelope on the table. He tore the telegram open. It was Ruggles' answer to his question:

"Quite true. Tell you about it. Arrive your hotel around noon."

The dispatch informed him that he was really a pauper and also that he had a second for his duel with Poniotowsky. His guests stood formally before the young barbarian.

"Look here," he continued amiably, "I can't meet your Dago friend like this, it's not fair. He hasn't seen me shoot; it isn't for me to say it, but I can't miss. Hold," he interrupted, "he has, too. He was at the Galoreys' at that first shoot. Ah—well, I refuse, tell him so, will you? Tell him I'm an American and a cowboy and that for me a duel at twenty paces with a pistol would mean murder. I like his pluck—it's all right—tell him anything you like. He ought to have chosen swords. He would have had me there."

They retired as formally as they had entered, and took his answer to their client, and after a bath and careful toilet Dan went out, leaving a line for Ruggles, to say that he would be at the hotel to meet him at noon.

CHAPTER XXXII.

The Prince Accepts.

The Hungarian, in the Continental, was drinking his coffee in his room when his friends found him. He listened to what they had to say coolly. His eye-glass gave him an air of full dress even at this early hour. Poniotowsky had not fallen into a deep sleep and had a dream as Dan Blair had—indeed he had only reached his room the night before when a letter had been brought him from Miss Lane. He was used to her caprices, which were countless, and he never left her with any certainty that he should see her again, or with any idea of what her next move would be. The letter read:

"It's no use. I just can't. I've always told you so, and I mean it. I'm tired out—I want to go away and never see any one again. I want to die. I shall be dead next year, and I don't care. Please leave me alone and don't come to see me, and for heaven's sake don't bore me with notes."

When Poniotowsky received this note he had shrugged, and decided that if he lived after his duel with the young savage he would go to see the actress, taking a jewel or a gift—he would get her a Pomeranian dog, and all would be well. He listened coolly to what his friends had to say.

"C'est un enfant," one of them remarked sneeringly.

"In my mind, he is a coward," said the other.

"On the contrary," answered Poniotowsky coolly, "he shoots to perfection. You will be surprised to hear that I admire his refusal. I accept his decision, as his skill is unquestioned with arms. I choose to look upon this reply as an apology. I would like to have you inform Mr. Blair of this fact. He's young enough to be my son, and he is a barbarian. The incident is closed."

He put Letty Lane's note in his pocket, and leisurely prepared to go out on the Rue de Castiglione to buy her a Pomeranian dog.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

The Things Above Ground.

Higgins let him in, and across the room Blair saw the figure of the actress against the light of the long window. Her back was to him as he came up, and though she knew who it was, she was far from dreaming how different a man it was that came in to see her this morning from the one she had known.

"Won't you turn around and bid me goodby?" he asked her. "I'm going away."

She gave him a languid hand without looking at him.

"Has Higgins gone?"

"Yes. Won't you turn round and say how-de-do, and good-by? Gosh," he cried as she turned, "how pale you are, darling." And he took her in his arms.

The vision he had had of her in her coral-colored dress at Maxim's gave place to the more radiant one which had shone on him in his curious dream.

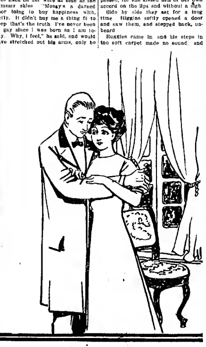
"Are you very ill?" he murmured. "Speak to me—tell me—are you going to die?"

"Don't be a goose, boy."

"I've had a wire from Ruggles," Dan said, "he tells me it's true. I have nothing but my own feet to stand on, and I'm as poor as Job's turkey." Looking at her impressively, he added, "I only mind because it will be hard on you."

"Hard on me?"

"Yes, you'll have to start poor. Mother did with father, out there in Montana. It will be rough at first, but others have done it and been happy and we've got each other." The eyes fixed on her were as blue as the summer skies. "Money's a darned poor thing to buy happiness with, Letty. It didn't buy me a thing fit to keep, that's the truth. I've never been so gay since I was born as I am today. Why, I feel," he said, and would have stretched out his arms, only he hold her with them, "like a king. Later I'll have money again, all right—don't fret—and then I'll know its worth. I'll bet you weren't all unhappy there in Blairtown before you turned the heads of all those Johnnies." He put one hand against her cheek and lifted her drooping head. "Lean on me, sweetheart," he said with great tenderness. "It will be all right."



"Money's a Darned Poor Thing to Buy Happiness With, Letty."

A coral color stole along her cheek. It rose like a sweet tide under his hand. She looked at him fascinated.

"It's not a real tragedy," he went on. "I've got my letter of credit and old Ruggles will let me hang on to that, and you'll find the motor cars and jewels will look like thirty cents when we stand in the door of our little shack and look out at the Value Mine." He lifted her hand to his lips, held it there, and the spark ignited in her; his youth and confidence, his force and passion, woke a woman in Letty Lane that had never lived before that hour.

He murmured: "I'll be there with you, darling—night and day—night and day."

She found breath to say, "What has happened to you, Dan—what?"

"I don't know," he gravely replied. "I guess I came up pretty close against it last night; things got into their right places, and then and there I knew you were the girl for me, and I the man for you, rich or poor."

He kissed her and she passively received his caresses, so passively, so without making him any sign, that his magnificent assurance began to be shaken—his arms fell from her.

"It's quite true," he murmured, "I am poor."

She led him to the lounge and made him sit down by her. He waited for her to speak, but she remained silent, her eyes fixed on her frail hands, ringless—tears forced themselves under her eyelids, but she kept them back.

"I guess," she said in a veiled tone, "you've no idea all I've been through, Dan, since I stood there in the church choir."

American though he was, and down on foreign customs—he wouldn't fight a duel—he got down on his knees and put his arms around her there.

"I know what you are, all right Letty. You are an angel."

She gave way and burst into tears and hid her face on his shoulder, and sobbed.

"I believe you do—I believe you do. You've saved my soul and my life. I'll go with you—I'll go—I'll go!"

Later she told him how she would learn to cook and sew, and that together they would stand in the door of their shack at sunset, or that she would stand and watch for him to come home; and, the actress in her strong, she sprang up for a minute and stood shielding her eyes with her slender hand to show him how. And he gazed, charmed at her, and drew her back to him again.

"You've made dad's words come true." Dan wouldn't tell her what they were—he said she wouldn't understand. "I nearly had to die to learn them myself," he said.

She leaned toward him, a slight shadow crossed her face as if memories laid a darkling wing for a moment there. Such shadows must have passed, for she kissed him of her own accord on the lips and without a sigh.

Side by side they sat for a long time. Higgins softly opened a door and saw them, and stepped back, unheard.

Ruggles came in, and his steps in too soft carpet made no sound, and he looked at the pair long and tenderly before he spoke. They sat there before him like children, holding hands.

Letty Lane's hat lay on the floor. Her hair was a halo around her pale, charming face; she had caught youth from the boy, she was laughing like a girl—they were making plans. And as the subject was Love, and there was no money in the question, and as there was sacrifice on the part of each, it is safe to think that old Dan Blair's son was planning to purchase those things that stay above ground and persist in the hearts of us all.

THE END

Stumped.

"You know that grocer of ours?" exclaimed a Lakewood lady, excitedly, last Saturday night.

"Yes," answered her husband. "What about him?"

"He gave me short weight this evening!"

"Why don't you call him down for it?"

"I didn't notice it until after I had paid him a plugged half dollar and then what could I do?"

Prepared For the Worst

Music Hall Manager Sells Smelling Salts to Patrons of His "Awful Spectacle."

When it comes to advertising dramatic thrills, consider the manager of a music hall and moving picture show. Horrors are that manager's specialty. Posters and a piratical barker do their share toward creating goose flesh, but they are not nearly so effective as the youth who offers bottles of smelling salts for rent. Right out in the middle of the sidewalk he stands, thrusting his volatile wares—stoppered, fortunately—beneath your nose.

"Goin' inside?" says he. "Take this—you'll need it; faint without it. Only five cents. Brace you up for the awful spectacle."

You stop, you wonder. What can the awful spectacle be like? The chances are that you had no notion of going in that show or any other show just then, but the prospect of seeing something so blood-curdling that you can't live through it without smelling salts appeals to your imagination. You drop all business and go in.

New Light on Them.

Horace was contemplating his Odes.

"I never could see much in these things myself," he said, "but the Twentieth century translations of them, by George, are splendid!"

Which seems to show a certain lack of flexibility in the more or less moribund language in which he wrote.

Health & Beauty Hints

By Katherine Morton

The beauty of the skin depends to a great extent upon the health of the sebaceous glands. These are little underlying ducts supplying the skin with the grease needed, and if their secretions are suppressed, the pores are stopped up and some complexion defect or other will result.

One must keep the pores of the skin unhampered of old oil and dead cuticle to have a good complexion, and when they seem inactive there is nothing to do but to resort to massage and very thorough bathing with hot water and a good soap. Cold water is useless against the deep seated dust and grease of the skin, even with the aid of soap. Moreover, it tends to contract the pores, making it still harder for them to yield their contents. So as a preparation for helpful massage which is meant further to clear the stopped-up pores, the face bath must not only be hot but very complete.

There is much contention that soap is injurious to the skin, but this is by no means true. The influences of soap are tonic, antiseptic and cleansing, so that a soap must really be very bad to hurt the skin—contain, in fact, the strong alkali which scorches and irritates. A good face bath with very hot water and a bland soap leaves a smooth skin like marble, and with repeated and systematic bathing the rough one is much improved. Work thick soap suds or a soap jelly well into the pores and rinse with repeated waters. Dab it partly dry with a soft old towel, and then sit down with a pot of good cold cream or a little almond oil, and proceed with the massage.

Begin by massaging the muscles of the cheek just in front of the upper half of the ear, using the three first fingers of both hands. Rub outward and upward in a circular manner, with a firm yet gentle touch covering a spot about the size of a silver dollar. If the muscles are correctly located, the upward motion will pull the skin taut about the corners of the mouth, rubbing out the drooping line at the side of the nose. If the face is heavily lined here, massage will in time so strengthen the muscles that the furrows will be much softer, or disappear entirely.

Next massage the temple muscles in the same way. These are still more easily detected by the even greater influence they exert on the lines each side of the nose. The regular and systematic massage of them will prevent the formation of crow's feet, those fine lines at the corners of the eyes which laughing faces with thin skin take on so often at an early age.

Some unguent or other is undoubtedly required with massage, for otherwise the cuticle would be much irritated, and the benefits of any face cream are increased tenfold if it is used with massage. For the face constantly made-up with cosmetics, rouge and a fancy powder or liquid white, it is also necessary to cleanse the skin first with the grease before using water upon it, for otherwise the bath will only force the makeup down into the pores.

If the face skin is very delicate, do not dash cold water upon it after the hot bath, as this interferes with the circulation and is considered harmful by all the beauty people. Where the skin is very inactive two face steams could be taken a week, the massage immediately following these.

An astringent of a harmless and invigorating sort is often needed after massage, especially if the pores are inclined to be big, and all authorities agree that a first-class cologne is the best for this. A formula for farina cologne, which is much used in this way, follows below:

| | |
|---|---|
| Oil of bergamot | 1 ounce |
| Oil of neroli | 6 drams |
| Oil of rosemary | 6 drams |
| Oil of lemon | 3 drams |
| Oil of cloves | 1 dram |
| Oil of lavender | 1 dram |
| Rectified spirit | 1 gallon |

The druggist would put up this formula more perfectly than it could be done at home, or else supply a bottle of German cologne, which would be very nearly as good.

Corded Weaves Coming.

It is said on good authority that corded weaves will be popular in the autumn. These new ribbed fabrics will include materials so light in weight as to be suitable for dress draperies and heavier ones adapted for suits, outer wraps and trimmings.

Arranging the Veranda.

Do not crowd the veranda to overflowing with odds and ends, or all its comforts and charm will be dispelled. Arrangements should always be perfected to make it desirable as an outdoor living-room, well lighted at night and suitable for breakfast, luncheon, tea and even dinner. And if in a vicinity where mosquitoes and flies swarm, screens must completely inclose the porch space.

Dark Slippers.

At the present moment slippers of the paler tints are not considered good styles in Paris and footwear in richer shades of dark red, blue and violet combined with gold and silver are worn with gowns introducing those tones. These metal brocades can trace their popularity to the rich Oriental effects introduced by the evening gown.

Rose Parasol.

The rose parasol is one of the novelties of the season. This is made of taffeta in a lovely pink, and it is entirely covered with scallops, the edges of which are slightly gathered to resemble rose petals.

Timely Advice and Hints for the Hostess

By Mme. MERRI

From Brown Eyes.

Is it proper for me to go with a young man who is engaged to another? Am going with a young man whom I like very much; how am I to find out whether he cares for me? He has told me that he loved me, but I don't know whether to believe it or not. Haven't been going with him very long. Is it all right to go driving at night? Suggest something for a "gypsy tea;" also something odd to entertain about six girls and boys. How should the invitations be written? Am going to have a visitor for a week. What must I do to entertain her all the time? I live in a small place where there are very few amusements. BROWN EYES.

I should not think you would want to accept attention from a man who was engaged; it does not look right and I would not do it. I would not be in haste to believe all a man told me if I had known him but a short time; better go slow and let time settle the question of how much he thinks of you. I do not believe in girls going driving alone at night without a chaperon. I do not know what you mean by "gypsy" tea, suppose you write and tell me about one for the benefit of the other readers of the column. For six girls and boys it is not necessary to write the invitations unless for a formal dinner party. Just ask them over the telephone or when you see them. Summer entertaining is always very informal. Do you think your visitor will wish to be amused "all the time?" I should have my friends meet her at a porch party in the afternoon or an evening card party or something like that.

A Variety of Questions.

Have read and enjoyed your answers in the paper so much have decided to ask you to please answer a few questions for me.

Which color eyes and hair are counted the stronger and which are most generally liked by the majority of people?

How often should a young man call upon a young lady during the week, and how late should he remain?

Would it look well for a girl to tell her friend of all her former love affairs when he seems very anxious to hear about them and insists that he should know?

Do you think a girl who is seventeen too young to have young men callers?

If you have not been introduced to a young man is it proper to speak to him when he always speaks?

Hope you will not mind helping me out in this. I thank you very much. "DIXIE GIRLIE."

Scientifically I do not know whether it has ever been proven which are the stronger, light or dark haired people. I think dark hair and eyes are greatly admired and I have heard much in favor of the golden blond, although that type is said to lose its youth sooner than the darker haired, but I have seen it work both ways. It all depends upon how deeply interested a young man is. I should say that two or three times a week is often enough and ten-thirty late as he should stay on ordinary occasions. A girl must do as she thinks wise about her former love affairs. I do not think many affairs are to a girl's credit; I mean serious ones. Seventeen is plenty young enough for a girl to be in society. It all depends upon who the young man is whether you should speak to him. There is generally a way for a man to meet a girl by being properly introduced. I do not mind helping you out in the least.

The Proper Visiting Card.

I went to have some calling cards engraved, but am in doubt as to what to have on them. I have two younger sisters. Would it be proper for me to have my full name with the prefix "Miss" or just to have "Alice M. Ward," or simply "Miss Ward?" I would be very thankful if you would help me out. I always read your paper with interest. ELEANOR.

As you are the oldest daughter it is your right to be "Miss Ward" and it shows that you have younger sisters. If you are eighteen this is the way your card should read.

Reply to "Country Boy."

It is too late to help you in regard to wedding anniversary gift. I am sorry, but hope you found something suitable.

Questions From Gladys.

I read your department every Sunday and would like to ask some questions. First, do you think it is all right for a girl fourteen to have boys at her party? Second, please give two or three games or contests to have when the boys and girls first come to keep it from being stiff. Third, does the hair grow quicker plaited or hanging loose (at night)? Thank you for the help I have gotten from your department. I like it so much. GLADYS S. B.

It is perfectly right to ask boys to your party, and they like to be asked. I put all the contests I can lay my hands on right into the department, perhaps the "Nautical" one in today's paper will help you. It is best to braid the hair very loosely at night after a thorough brushing to remove the dust of the day. Thank you for your kind words regarding the department.

Reply to "G. H." and "R. L."

I am very sorry I cannot answer your questions because I do not know; the best way to find out is to write direct in care of the stock company.

PROOF ENOUGH.

Mrs. Love—Yes, Fred's love is cooling.

FACE A SIGHT WITH TETTER

Moberly, Mo.—"My trouble began with a small pimple on the left side of my face and it spread all over my face and to my neck. It would be scarlet red when I got warm. My face was a sight. It looked very unpleasant, and it felt uncomfortable. My face was something awful; it just kept me in agony all the time. Some said it was tetter and some said it was that awful eczema, but I rather think it was tetter. I had been troubled with it for about two years and tried many remedies, but got no relief until I used Cuticura Soap and Ointment.

"When I would wash my face with the Cuticura Soap and apply the Cuticura Ointment it would cool my skin and draw great big drops of matter out of the skin. You would think I was sweating, it would run down my face just as though I had washed it. It itched and smarted and I suffered in the day time most. I used the Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment for a month and I was cured of it." (Signed) Mrs. J. Brooksher, April 15, 1912.

Making Himself at Home.

Doris was radiant over a recent addition to the family and rushed out of the house to tell the news to a passing neighbor.

"Oh, you don't know what we've got upstairs!"

"What is it?"

"It's a new baby brother!"—and she settled back upon her heels and folded her hands to watch the effect.

"You don't say so! Is he going to stay?"

"I guess so"—very thoughtfully. "He's got his things off."

Their Feeling.

Well, old sport, how do you feel? I've just eaten a bowl of ox-tail soup and feel bully.

YOUR CLOTHES

Most of us think of clothes economy as cheapness in original cost, but few of us stop to consider that cheap clothes mean cheap materials, sometimes cleverly hidden behind a presentable appearance. True clothes economy means to pay a fair price for garments that are made right all the way through. They must retain their shape and character as long as one should wear a well made garment. The safe way is to buy UP-TO-DATE Clothes. It is not that they may be worn for several seasons, but they will remain fresh and shapely while they are worn. It is the hand tailoring and splendid materials that go into the UP-TO-DATE clothes that gives them CHARACTER, STYLE and DEPENDABILITY. Remember this and let your next selection be chosen from our large stock.

NEWTON D. BAKER

GOOD SIZED CROWD HEARS THE NOTED MAYOR SPEAK.

Makes a Strong Appeal for the Initiative and Referendum and Equal Suffrage—Favors License

Mayor Newton D. Baker of Cleveland, spoke at the Congregational church here Tuesday afternoon at 2:30, to a fairly good sized audience.

Mr. Baker spoke for one hour and held the closest attention of everyone present. His style of speaking is of the conversational kind that pleases and carries conviction. He favored giving the right of suffrage to the women in strong language and was most heartily applauded. He picked out one or two amendments that he did not favor. He favored license, but said that he spoke of it only in an advisory way.

Mr. Baker made many friends by his simple and candid manner.

There will be a mammoth exposition of the cream of this country's products at the new Lake County Fair Sept. 17-20.

HARVEST PICNIC

AT PERRY TOWNSHIP PARK AUGUST 21

To be a Day of Amusement, Music, Sports, Contests and An Hour Devoted to Feast of Reason

Bills are out announcing the Fourth Annual Harvest Picnic at Perry, to be held at the township park, Wednesday, Aug. 21.

Mrs. J. F. Durfee, David Blackmore and Prof. Rautinik are to speak during the afternoon.

There will be a baseball game at 3 p. m. Madison High against Perry High.

The features of the day to awaken the greatest interest will be the contests and exhibits.

Following are among the amusements for the day: 100 yard dash for boys under 16, human wheelbarrow race, walking race for girls, walking race for men, shoes and stocking race for boys under 16, clothes line race for married women, baseball throw for girls, passer ball contest, hopping up the steps, 200-yard swim, farthest dive in water, tub race, tug of war for men—captains Rautinik and Schearer. Suitable prizes to be given for above events; sport committee to be judges.

Agriculture and Fair Exhibits

Best peck of early potatoes, prize, $1.00; best peck of onions, prize $1.00; best plate of early apples, prize $1.00; best dozen ears of sweet corn, prize $1.00; Tallest stock of corn, prize $1.00; best loaf of bread, girls under 20, prize $2.00; best display of flowers (wild flowers may be included if named), prize $2.00; best article on strawberry raising, boys under 20, prize $2.00; best driving horse, (judges to be selected) prize, $2.00.

WHEAT GROWING CONTEST

For Boys.—Increase the Yield to Save the Soil.

Five thousand Ohio boys are wanted to enter a one-acre wheat growing contest this year in Ohio. The great success of the Boys' Corn Growing Contest has encouraged the Ohio State Board of Agriculture to promote the same contest in growing wheat. The Ohio State Millers' Association and Ohio grain dealers, many Ohio bankers and business men, have pledged support to this enterprise. Many lessons and valuable experiences are being gained from the Boys' Contest on corn.

Ohio can be made a great wheat producing state. The wheat failure this year is no sign that a good crop cannot be grown next year.

The prize to be offered to the boy who wins in each county is a free trip to the nation's capital. Every farmer's son should get ready to go into this fight. It costs nothing to try. The wheat will grow and the crop will ripen while the boy is in school.

Meetings will be held in every county in Ohio to arrange the details of this contest. For further information address the Secretary, A. P. Sandles, Columbus, Ohio.

MRS. DWYER DEAD.

Aged and Highly Respected Resident of West Jackson Passes Away.

Mrs. Mary Dwyer, aged 90 years, an aged resident of West Jackson street, outside the corporation, passed away Sunday morning. The funeral services were held Tuesday morning at 9:30 from St. Mary's church. Mrs. Dwyer is survived by a daughter, Mrs. M. J. Giblin, and three sons, John, William and Frank.

The grand aggregation of unparalleled attractions, unrivaled exhibits, spicy racing, educating and entertaining features and unprecedented attendance will be at the New Lake County Fair at Painesville, O., Sept. 17, 18, 19, 20.

DR. E. B. ROOT

Died At the Hospital Last Friday.

Painesville has lost another prominent citizen. Dr. E. B. Root died last Friday at 5 o'clock a. m., after a long period of failing health. For the past few months his afflictions assumed a serious condition. He was 81 years of age.

Dr. Root leaves many warm personal friends. He possessed a strong personality. He was, in fact, a large man, both physically and mentally. We clip the following from the Telegraph-Republican:

Dr. Root was born at East Granville, Mass., Sept. 2, 1831, and was nearly 81 years of age, and unusually active up to the time of his last illness. On April 23, 1863, he enlisted in the 168th New York Infantry, as surgeon and served during the War of the Rebellion. He was a member of Dyer Post, G. A. R., of this city, and also of the Royal Arcanum. During his younger days he was prominently identified with the Masonic lodge in the East. Dr. Root came to Painesville in 1865 and has enjoyed an extensive practice in his chosen profession for nearly 50 years. He had a host of friends who will much regret his passing away.

The funeral services were held from the late residence, 115 Erie St., this city, at 2:20 o'clock Sunday afternoon.

Everybody is talking about the new Lake County Fair at Painesville, O., Sept. 17-20, and about everyone is planning to go.

MUCH REJOICING

BIG SUM OF MONEY TO BE PAID TO DEPOSITORS OF BANK

Over Fifteen Hundred People Will Receive About Twenty Per Cent of Former Claim Which will Make Settlement Complete

Claims aggregating a little more than $83,000, including interest at 1 per cent for the past nineteen years, outlawed for at least ten years, will be paid to between 1,500 and 2,000 depositors of the old Lake County bank at Painesville, this week.

The $83,000 to be paid represents 20 per cent of the $253,000 indebtedness for which the bank failed during the panic of 1893. Depositors years ago received 40 per cent. from the bank's assignee, and another 40 per cent for claims which were bought up.

Attorney Reuben Hitchcock, grandson of Aaron Hitchcock, head of the bank, is engineering the settlement, money for which is being furnished voluntarily by heirs of Aaron Wilcox and Z. S. Wilson, who ran the bank. The money is to be paid starting Thursday at the Painesville branch of the Cleveland Trust Co.

Marriage Licenses

Geo. A. Knobloch, Jr., 26, Cleveland; Anna Lockintosh, 22, Fairport.

Bernolt W. Taylor, 25, Painesville, Eleanor May Seymore, 18, Painesville.

Walter H. Lohse, 19, Mentor, Helen Nye, 18, Perry.

To Drill for Oil.

L. G. Neeley of St. Mary's was in Chardon Thursday, locating a site to drill for oil in the vicinity of Chardon. A 100-pound pressure gas well on the Everett farm in Kirtland was struck Wednesday.—Chardon Record.

The big opening exhibition day of the New Lake County Fair at Painesville, O., is Wednesday, Sept. 18, with the best program of the exhibition. Attractions and big parade, also speeches by parties of nation-wide reputation. It's the first Lake County Fair in 18 years, and no one should miss it.

Mrs. Judge Tuttle Dead.

Just as the Herald goes to press we learn of the death of Elisabeth A. Wilder Tuttle, wife of Judge G. N. Tuttle. She died at 1:30 p. m. Wednesday.

Mrs. Tuttle had been in poor health since last January. Her condition took a turn for the worse on Friday of last week. She was 78 years of age. She was born at Vernon, N. Y., but had resided in Lake county nearly all her life.

Besides the husband she is survived by two sons, Martin A. and Walter S., and one daughter, Mrs. Mary C. Mehaffey, all well known here in Painesville. The deceased is also survived by one brother, Henry Wilder, and one sister, Mrs. Edith Griswold, both of Painesville.

Mrs. Tuttle was a woman of true fiftieth anniversary of their wedding on Christmas eve last year.

Mrs. Tuttle was woman of true worth and was loved and respected by all who knew her.

The funeral will be held at the Tuttle residence on North St. Clair street, Friday, at 2 o'clock p. m.

ABOUT PEOPLE AND PLACES.

You can meet your old friends on the fair grounds, Painesville, Sept. 17-20.

The Markell reunion is being held today, the 15th inst., at the home of F. B. Markell in Kirtland.

—o—

Everybody everywhere take a hike to the Painesville Fair, you have tried the rest, now go to the best.

—o—

Wm. Ruff of Collinwood and one of the Cleveland Councilmen was in Painesville on business Saturday.

—o—

The indications now are that cabbage will be lower in price per ton than hay. Feed the cows cabbage.

—o—

George P. Hoffman, superintendent of Fairport schools, returned from Akron, where he spent part of his vacation.

—o—

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Carroll of Jefferson street are entertaining Miss L. G. Wallace, Mrs. Carroll's sister, of New York City.

—o—

There will be a good show at the Lake County Fair Sept. 17-20. Send this word everywhere. Let every one boost the fair.

—o—

The Cowles House under the new management is making many friends. Mr. Lang is now giving the hotel his personal attention.

—o—

The new photograph of the Parmly House made for "Lake County Illustrated" is considered the best picture ever made of this famous hostelry.

—o—

The hotels and restaurants of Painesville are having a big trade. Automobile parties make it a point to reach this city about meal time.

—o—

A big shipment of plums was made from Painesville via C. P. Co. Monday of this week. The fruit came from Bret Center's farm in Concord.

—o—

Ralph Abramson, the popular manager of the Up-to-Date advertising department, left Saturday for Michigan, where he will spend his vacation.

—o—

Col. J. S. Burrows, editor of the Telegraph-Republican, returned last Friday evening from Cedar Point where he attended a meeting of the Ohio Associated Dailies.

—o—

The Washington street school building now has in addition to the elegant new pictures nearly 500 feet of slate blackboard. The work of placing the slate was in charge of the Educational Supply Co.

—o—

Wm. F. Wollpert, the enterprising Wickliffe general merchant, will have nearly a half page in the new publication, "Lake County Illustrated." Nearly every Wickliffe merchant is wide awake when a good advertising proposition presents itself.

—o—

Cornelius Garmen, who created quite a disturbance on Sunday and who has spent one term in the State hospital at Newburg, was again taken into custody by Chief Pat Appleton and was sent to the asylum Monday for a second time.

—o—

Automobile tourists are evidently much attached to Mine Host Rogers, of the Parmley. At dinner Sunday there were nearly 90 and at supper 60 guests. This is the kind of trade that not only helps our hotel keepers but does much to keep Painesville on the map.

—o—

M. Toubman, proprietor of the Savings Bank Store, Fairport, is building a new concrete building on High street opposite his store. The building is a most substantial one and will be a credit to the town. Mr. Toubman proposes to use the building when completed for a moving picture theatre.

—o—

Rev. E. Lee Howard of the First church is to be most heartily commended for his efforts in securing a general discussion of the amendments to the constitution. A man's usefulness to a community should be measured by his efforts to establish knowledge and truth.

—o—

There are no party dividing lines on the constitutional amendments. The nearer we can come to breaking down party prejudice in Lake county the better for all the people of the county. Toleration for every man's opinion on every issue was never as liberal as in this day, and a wider brotherhood of man is the result.

—o—

Recorder Geo. Bates informs a Herald reporter that over 400 oil leases have been filed on land in Lake county, in the townships of Kirtland, Leroy and Concord during the past few months. Such activity in this direction indicates that some parties have great faith in the future development of the oil and gas wells that are being put down in this vicinity.

—o—

Rev. Ray E. Whitney, a former Painesville boy, spoke at the union services last Sunday evening. The Congregational church was filled and the sermon was well received. It is a matter of great pride to Painesville people to have a young man go out into the world and give as good an account of himself as has Rev. Whitney. There opens up before this young man a great field for the accomplishment of good.

—o—

Judge E. G. Huntington and C. M. Granel are seeing a great deal of Europe during the present summer months. A card from our popular police justice conveys the impression that he is captivated by the beauty and grandeur of Berlin, the capital and largest city of the German Empire. The Judge must remember that Berlin has been a long time building. Just wait till Cleveland, for instance, is a thousand years old and then see what you see!

A VALUABLE HEN

GOOD AS A HEN AND A STOREHOUSE FOR EGGS.

If Her Kind Could be Duplicated the High Price of Eggs Would be Solved.

Johnny Spaller of Newell street wanted chicken for a picnic dinner so most naturally he selected a nice fat young hen. In fact the hen was remarkably fat, or had the appearance of being fat. It was the heaviest Mr. Spaller ever killed.

When the hen was being prepared for cooking a strange fact came to light. It was then that Mr. Spaller became very sorry that he had selected that particular chicken. The hen promised well if it could have lived. It had beyond doubt a bright future. It could easily have broken the record in laying eggs. It was loaded for action, and undoubtedly the time for action was close at hand. It contained four large hard shell eggs, four large soft shell eggs, four eggs nearly full size, and about four dozen small eggs ranging in size from a Burbank plum down to the size of a small pea.

With eggs ranging in price from 25 cents to 40 cents per dozen, this hen certainly was a valuable one, but the hen is dead.

"Of all sad words of tongue or pen,
The saddest are these: It might have been."

"I was cured of diarrhoea by one dose of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," writes M. E. Gebhardt, Oriole, Pa. There is nothing better. For sale by all dealers.

The liberal purses offered insure speedy horses and record breaking races at the New Lake County Fair, Sept. 17-20.

PAINESVILLE DAY

AT WILLOUGHBEACH THURSDAY AUG. 22, PROMISES GOOD

It Will be a Great Carnival of Music—Twelve Bands Secured—Many Lively Contests.

Thanks to the efforts of Prof. Wm. Parsons, the annual outing of Painesville Business Men will be of more than ordinary interest this year. In fact, the first annual reunion of the Western Reserve Band Association will be held at Willoughbeach park on the same day as the Business Men's picnic. This will insure beyond doubt one of the largest crowds that Painesville has ever sent to a place of amusement.

The committee is most active in arranging contests and other amusement features.

You will never forget nor regret visiting the great new Lake County Fair at Painesville, O., Sept. 17-20.

Farm Boys Entered.

The contest for the boys' free trip to the Ohio State Fair will be settled at the Court House next Saturday, August 17. All boys who want to enter should file their application with the county auditor before that time.

Up to Tuesday, August 13, the following boys have entered from Lake county: Earle L. Johnson, Painesville; Harold Morehouse, Perry.

Woman Suffrage.

After the band concert Friday evening Mrs. Max Beurn of Connecticut will speak on Woman Suffrage under the auspices of the socialist local.

That's Something.

The Charleston News and Courier tells of a promoter who had a million dollars and who now has only a watch. Still, we suppose, that is going some.—Manchester Union.

Woman Suffrage Column

By Miss Lucy Buell

All who are interested in the cause of woman suffrage must regret deeply the methods which have been resorted to by the suffragists of England but from the standpoint of history, it is interesting to compare this outbreak of the disenfranchised with another that occurred 81 years ago.

In 1831 the disenfranchised men of England made a strenuous effort to secure the ballot—a pamphlet published at that time tells of the attacks made upon the lords who opposed the reform; their dwellings were boarded up as a measure of protection and

"when they stir out of these feudal castles, the Anti-Reformers are forced to be escorted by bands either of soldiers or policemen. With the assistance of the latter, His Royal Highness, the Duke of Cumberland, was so fortunate as to get down to the House of Lords, but poor Lord Londonderry was driven back by a shower of missiles and had the noble lord been hit anywhere but on the head, the blow might have had serious consequences.

"Thus far the people have for the most part, contented themselves with hissing and groaning, and breaking windows and burning in effigy. But will they continue so moderate under a fresh disappointment? We fear not."

In 1912 the disenfranchised women of England reverted to violence to secure the ballot and we read

"The task of guarding the Premier and Cabinet Ministers has become a serious question for Scotland Yard. Not since the days of the Fenian outrages have so many detectives been required to shadow political personages, and according to one Conservative paper, 'It is common knowledge that these incessant attacks and the police surveillance that is necessary are seriously affecting the nerves of the members of the Cabinet. At any moment they know that they may the subject of possibly dangerous assaults and that their wives and families may be the victims of suffragette attentions.'

No functions at which ministers are to appear take place without a special mobilization of the detective and police force. Guests at the Royal Garden party at Windsor Castle were required to present cards of invitation before being admitted to the grounds, and at the State Ball at Buckingham Palace special precautions were taken to prevent the entry of a possible disturber."

History does, indeed, repeat itself. Here is another bit of history.

Only 70 years ago suffrage in Rhode Island was limited to men owning real estate worth $134, and to their eldest sons. Thomas Wilson Dorr was the man who headed a movement for a more extended suffrage. He was thrown into prison as a dangerous agitator and suffered such hardships there that he died shortly after his release three years later.

Almost every argument used against votes for women might have been used against the reform Dorr demanded. He might have been told that when any person asked for an enlargement of the franchise, the burden of proof was upon them to show by incontrovertible evidence, that the new voters would vote more wisely and more righteously than the old ones. He might have been asked to furnish proof positive that men who did not own $134 worth of real estate were morally superior to those who did. Was there any adequate evidence that younger sons would vote more wisely than the eldest son? Would it not merely multiply the vote without changing the result? Could he guarantee that the votes of the landless men and younger sons would purify politics, and prove a panacea for all social ills? They certainly have not done so. Yet today everyone admits that Dorr's rebellion was righteous, and last month Rhode Island dedicated a monument to him, because he secured the redress of a great injustice. The justice is equally as clear in the case of the women, and before many years have gone by everyone will see this.

The happy holidays of the season will be at the new Lake County Fair, Painesville, O., Sept. 17, 18, 19, 20.

What a Woman Knows.

Men think that women always talk about men when they are alone, says a writer in Harper's Bazar. Would that that were true! For women are never so interesting as when they discuss the single aspect which men show to women, for that is the only subject that women know.

PERRY.

The budding season has opened. Nurserymen are cutting bud sticks and hiring budders and winders, for in a nurserymans community the season is a busy one.

Miss Jessie Tenney was the guest of friends in Madison last week.

Mr. Owen Foringer of Conneaut, spent a few days at his uncle, Mr. J. C. Shook's home last week.

Friends of Artie Rought, formerly a Perry boy, will be sorry to hear that he has been suffering from blood poisoning in his hand. The hand is steadily improving, however.

Miss Treva Merriman has returned from her visit with friends in Jefferson.

Mrs. A. F. Hamley and daughters Josephine, and Kathryn returned Sunday from a vacation spent in Cleveland and vicinity.

Nellie Hamley is spending a couple of weeks in the city.

As rare as the sunshine this summer is a contented farmer. You remember last year it was too dry; the ever present topic of conversation was the drouth. Now comes the farmers discontented query, "Will this rain never stop? What will become of our crops?" It is well to judge the future by the past—the crops turned out all O. K. last year, and what happened previously can happen again; so if people can keep sunny within, in spite of the rain without, all will be well.

Mrs. Ike Shook and Mrs. John Claus drove to Montville to a reunion on Thursday.

Raymond Tohman of Warrensville, is spending a couple of weeks at his uncle, Mr. F. Hamley's.

Blamed a Good Worker.

"I blamed my heart for severe distress in my left side for two years," writes W. Evans, Danville, Va., "but I know now it was indigestion, as Dr. King's New Life Pills completely cured me." Best for stomach, liver and kidney troubles, constipation, headache or debility. 25c at Gehring's Pharmacy.

TO GUIDE THE YOUNG LOVER

Wise Man Has Very Considerately Laid Down Certain Rules to Be Remembered.

When you discover a serious liking to a young woman never discourse your passion to her by way of letter. It will either give the woman an idea that you are a bashful booby or that you have not any address in conversation; both of which defects are sufficient to ruin you in the estimation of only tolerable good sense.

At the time of your courtship be careful never to discourse with the woman upon serious subjects, or matters that are not immediately pertinent to the purpose you are upon. If she asks you what news, you must not tell her a long story out of the Dutch or English gazettes about the decline of trade and fall of stocks, or the death of Mynheer Van der Possum. She looks for no such answers. You must relate a melancholy tale of two or three young gentlemen of fortune and handsome expectations that have lately drowned themselves in the Schuylkill or thrown themselves headlong from their third-story windows and been dashed to pieces on the pavement for the sake of a certain inexorable fair one whose name you cannot recollect, but the beauty and shafts of whose eyes these poor young gentlemen could not possibly withstand. Such intelligence as this will instantly put her into good humor.

Have a care that you do not pester her with descriptions of the Alps, the Apennines and the River Po. A woman is not supposed to know anything of such matters, besides you must be a very cold lover if those far fetched things can command your attention a moment in the company of a fine woman. Whatever she believes proper to assert, it is your business to defend and prove to be true. If she says black is white, it is not for men in your probationary situation to contradict her. On the contrary, you must swear and protest that she is right, and in demonstrating it be cautious of using pedantic arguments, making nice logical distinctions, or affecting hard and unintelligible terms.—From Philip Freneau's Essays.

Good Advice Was Retroactive.

At the new Union station recently two workmen had an angry dispute that culminated in a fight. In the mix up one of the combatants was hurt on the head and a bystander advised him to secure a warrant for his antagonist's arrest. While the matter was being discussed by those who had gathered around a big fellow, who had heard and seen the whole affair, made his way to the injured one and said:

"You don't want to get no warrant, Bill. You just go to the drug store and get yourself two pieces of plaster—good big ones. Put one piece on your head an' the other on yer mouth, an' you'll be all right."—Kansas City Star.

Wants Smaller Jack-Rabbits.

A New Mexico homesteader received from the department of agriculture a quantity of dwarf milo maize seed, with a request to plant it and report the result. Here is his report:

"Mr. Wilson:

"Dear Sir—I planted your dwarf maize and it did fine. It was the dwarfest maize I ever saw.

"But the jack rabbits ate it as fast as it got ripe.

"Please send another lot of seed, and send along a lot of dwarf jack-rabbits to match the maize."—Farm and Fireside.

Stopped by a Sarcastic Sign.

The residents of one of the small California towns near Los Angeles were annoyed at the constant speeding of motor drivers over the good roads of that section and so after losing several chickens and dogs under the wheels of passing cars, they made a protest by erecting a sarcastically-worded signboard, reading, "Slow down to 65 miles." Many a driver would disregard the ordinary caution to run at the legal rate of twenty miles an hour is forced to grin at the humor of this appeal, and proceeds at a more reasonable speed.

Seemingly Hopeless Case.

At a law banquet given at Chicago, the following story was told by William Lester Bodine:

"An Irish couple had been keeping company for a long while. The courtship progressed for years but no wedding bells were heard. Finally an inquisitive friend asked Mike why they didn't get married. 'Shure and it's a case of vacillatin' timperament,' he replied. 'Whin I'm drunk she won't have me an' whin I'm sober I won't have her.'"

Convincing Demonstration.

"Now, Mr. Freshe," said the professor, "can you demonstrate that X equals 0?"

"Sure," said Mr. Freshe. "I write home asking the governor for an X and get nothing. Q. E. D."

"Excellent," returned the professor. "I'll give you the same for your mark."—Harper's Weekly.

Consider Flooding of Sahara.

Reflected Fame.

"Who was that very plain-looking man you spoke to so cordially just now?"

"That! Why, that's one of our leading citizens. I've forgotten his name, but his son was in the hop-skip-and jump at Stockholm."

Which Party?

"Ali Baba," said the grand vizier in great excitement, "says he has discovered forty thieves."

"Ali Baba!" echoed the caliph. "What party's candidate is he?"

MACVEAGH FOUND TO BE GUILTLESS

SECRETARY OF TREASURY GIVEN CLEAN BILL BY EXPENDITURES COMMITTEE.

CHARGES OF ANDREW DENIED

House Investigators in Their Report Just Completed Praise the Work of Department and Employes and Make Suggestions.

Washington, D. C.—The house committee on expenditures in the treasury department has completed its report of the investigation of the department and it will be presented to the house soon.

Disclosure of the cause of the alleged friction between Secretary MacVeagh and his immediate subordinates has been awaited with much interest. None of the allegations made by Assistant Secretary A. Piatt Andrew when he was forced to retire from the department are substantiated in the committee's report.

The administration features of the development are generally praised by Chairman Cox and his associates. Secretary MacVeagh and his subordinates are given credit for having reduced the running expenses of the department and for having increased the general efficiency of the employes.

Makes Some Suggestions.

The committee favors the abolition of all assay offices except in New York. A complete reorganization of the customs offices is favored. The committee suggested that the fee system be replaced by a graduated salary system in paying customs officers. Many of the districts where 50 years ago a large amount of imports and exports were handled are totally useless to the business interests of the country, the committee reports, and suggests smaller, useless offices be closed, while the money spent on them should be expended in the important offices.

The supervising architect's office, the American Institute of Architects and the board of award are severely scored by the committee. The supervising architect's office has charge of the design and construction of public buildings. The board of award passes upon designs for public buildings which are drawn by private architects.

Conclusion of Report.

The practice in vogue at the department of inviting architects to submit drawings and designs in competition with each other is a needless consumption of time in both the department and the office of the architects, the committee reports, as well as a useless expenditure of the people's money.

The board of award, sitting in judgment upon a design or plan of a proposed building, and in the last analysis awards the contract to the successful competitor, is composed of men who are members of the American Institute of Architects.

Through the workings of the board of award this institute, as far as the construction of public buildings is concerned, is a closed corporation, the report concludes.

SENATE PASSES CANAL BILL

Adds Amendments Having Important Bearing on Interstate Commerce and Anti-Trust Act.

Washington, D. C.—The senate passed the Panama canal bill by a vote of 47 to 16 after adding to it some sweeping amendments having important bearing on the interstate commerce and anti-trust act.

By a vote of 43 to 18 an amendment, offered by Senator Smith of Georgia, was adopted, limiting the house provision against railroad ownership of boat lines to those operated through the canal. The most important amendment was offered by Senator Reed of Missouri. This was carried by a vote of 35 to 28. It forbids any ship to go through the canal which is owned directly or indirectly by any company or corporation in violation of the anti-trust act.

An amendment offered by Senator Bourne was also adopted by a vote of 36 to 25 which gives absolute control to the interstate commerce commission over companies not running a business through the Panama if they own directly or indirectly any water line of transportation. It gives the commission authority either to compel such corporation to dispose of their holdings or else to bring it under whatever consideration the interstate commerce commission may decide upon. The bill carries with it of course the bill providing for free tolls for American ships contrary to the protest of Great Britain. The free toll amendment was carried by the senate previously by a conclusive majority.

Unusual Case in Surgery.

Los Angeles, Cal.—For the second time in the history of medicine and surgery a complete embryonic infant [illegible] removed from a male patient [illegible] with a dermoid cyst. Isaac Wilderstein, a patient at the county hospital here, has been affected with a growth at the side of the head which physicians thought to be a benign tumor.

Upon being opened, however, there was removed an embryonic infant, at the three months period, some hair and several teeth well shaped.

Wife Shoots Hubby on Dare.

Cincinnati, O.—Frank Licher, aged 35, of Aurora, Ind., was shot six times in the abdomen by his wife at the home of Dr. Ralph Tilley of Petersburg, Ky., as the result of a dare. Licher and his wife have been separated for some time and, according to Licher, he went to the home of Dr. Tilley to beg his wife to return to him. She told the physician that the man was annoying her and he handed her a revolver. "I dare you to shoot me," said her husband, and she shot. Licher was sent to a hospital.

HOUSE UNSEATS CATLIN

DECIDES BY VOTE OF 121 TO 71 TO OUST MISSOURIAN.

Patrick Gill, Democratic Opponent in Last Election, Is Given Position of Congressman.

Washington, D. C.—With Republican members voicing indignant protest against alleged unfair treatment of one of their colleagues, Democratic members of the house unseated Congressman Theron Catlin, the young millionaire and society favorite of St. Louis and Washington, and gave his seat to Patrick Gill, his Democratic opponent at the last election.

Democrats of a house committee on elections based their action on the alleged violation of the election laws of Missouri, which limit expenditures in congressional campaigns to $662 per candidate. Catlin's relatives are said to have spent $10,200 to secure his election. Catlin's father is a millionaire tobacco merchant of St. Louis. Congressman Catlin's engagement to Miss Laura Merriam, daughter of former Governor Merriam of Minnesota, a Washington beauty, was announced recently.

The house gave the entire day over to consideration of the Catlin election case. It was decided strictly on party lines. The Republican motion to seat Catlin was 70 to 121, and the Democratic motion to unseat him carried by 121 to 71. Some Democrats failed to vote on the motion to seat Gill, which resulted 104 for to 79 against. Mr. Catlin was present during the discussion and while the vote was being taken, but did not participate in the proceedings. Debate on the report of the election committee was confined to matters carried on the records of the case. It was charged by the Democrats that Mr. Catlin must have known of the large expenditures in his behalf made by members of his family because he lived with his family in St. Louis during the campaign. He was shown, also, to have entertained extravagantly at his social and other clubs during the campaign. It was argued for Mr. Catlin that he had no knowledge of the expenditures made in his interests by his relatives and rich friends and that his personal expenditures were within the statutory provision.

MEXICAN REBELS KILL 56

Massacre Twenty Passengers and Every Man of Military Guard Convoying Railroad Train.

Mexico City.—Twenty passengers and every man of a military guard of 36 soldiers convoying the passenger train were shot to death, cut to pieces with machetes or burned alive in an attack by a band of Zapatistas under Eufamio Zapata near Ticuman, 110 miles from this city.

A rail was loosened in the track and the train, running about 40 kilometers an hour, went into the ditch. Though not a rebel was in sight when the engine left the rails, a moment later they swarmed by hundreds out of the hills on either side of the track and poured a murderous rifle fire into the overturned coaches. Lieut. Reynaldo Espinos, commanding the guard, extricated his men from the wreck, lined them up behind the coaches and returned the fire of the rebels until every one of his men had been killed and he himself wounded, to die later under the machete of a rebel.

Conductor Marin and Collector Dominguez, who were not seriously wounded by the rifle fire, escaped, crawled into a culvert, and after the rebels had looted and burned the train, crept through the brush to Xautepec, 12 miles away, whence they telephoned the news to this city. Before the coaches were burned the rebels looted the express and mail cars and then went along the coaches, slashing at heads wherever they appeared through the broken windows, cutting off fingers and hands for the jewelry they wore, and finally setting fire to the train, shooting and sabering any who attempted to crawl from the flaming coaches.

MORGAN'S CAPTOR IS DEAD

Attorney Lewis Hamilton Bond Won Distinction During Civil War by Catching Famous Raider.

Cincinnati, O.—A long and eventful career was ended when Attorney Lewis Hamilton Bond, who had the distinction of being the captor of Gen. John Morgan, the famous rider, died at his home here. In 1862 he was appointed by Governor Todd to superintend the recruiting of troops, and later was appointed second lieutenant, company B, 88th Ohio Volunteer infantry. In 1863 he was detailed to command a battalion of the Third Ohio and shortly afterward was sent from Parkersburg, W. Va., to pursue Gen. Morgan, who at that time was operating in Ohio. His command followed Morgan for five days and captured him.

Man Wipes Out His Family.

Pittsburgh, Pa.—Frank Kenyon shot his wife through the heart and his baby and then killed himself with the same revolver in the Lafayette hotel.

Kenyon, accompanied by his wife and child, registered at the hotel from Turtle Creek, a suburb. No cause is known for the crime.

A telegram found in the room indicated that the pair had been separated for a short time, for the woman was informed by a "Dr. W. G." in Cleveland that her husband would meet her.

Murders Son and Herself.

Pittsburgh, Pa.—Mrs. Mary Hurley killed her six-year-old stepson with an ax and then ended her life by slashing her throat with a razor at their home near Gregg station, this county.

William Hurley, the husband, who was in a field, witnessed the killing of his son and arrived at the house in time to prevent his wife from completely decapitating the boy. The husband claimed his wife was jealous because of the attentions he paid to his two children, a boy and a girl.

1912—Turkey, 3,000 killed, 50,000 homeless.

* * *

Berlin, Germany.—Three thousand are now known to have been killed in the earthquake in southeastern Turkey, according to a message from Constantinople to the Tageblatt.

Fifty thousand are homeless and starving, it was added.

An active crater is reported to have appeared on the Asiatic side of the Sea of Marmora.

Conditions in the earthquake region are vastly worse than has yet been realized, later dispatches stated.

Many persons are still alive under the ruins starving. The Turkish government is doing its utmost to relieve the sufferings but is wholly unable to cope with so serious a situation.

Unless outside aid is speedily extended, it is said thousands must perish from exposure and lack of food.

Shocks have been felt all over the region for several days, and have increased in severity. Constantinople has escaped serious damage, but towns nearby have been reduced to ruins.

Gallipoli, the population of which was 12,000, was wrecked and in a fire which followed many lost their lives. Two cities near Adrianople were demolished and fire sweeping the ruins killed more than 300.

The survivors are flocking to Constantinople with tales of terrible suffering. All are destitute, and some have died of starvation.

It is believed the loss of life may be still greater than at first reported, because of the difficulty of getting news from the stricken district.

Constantinople is in a state of great excitement over the disaster.

Added to the unquiet state of political affairs, this disaster has caused a panic among government officials.

Among the cities reduced to ruins are Myriophito, where 600 are reported to have perished, and 300 were injured; Shary Koy, where 1,500 were killed or injured; Ganos Hora, where 300 were killed or hurt; Tchorin, destroyed by fire, with a loss of 50 lives; Tchonak Kalessi, destroyed by quake and fire.

STEEL TRUST FOE IS BROKE

Man Who Organized Company to Fight Corporation Files Petition in Bankruptcy.

Chicago, Ill.—Franklin A. Umsted, who in 1908 organized in New York a $15,000,000 steel company to fight the United States Steel corporation, has just filed a petition in bankruptcy in the United States district court. He gave his liabilities as $1,551,960 and his assets as $210 in household furniture.

The liabilities included money borrowed to finance the company. It is said the late United States Senator A. J. McLaurin of Mississippi lost $40,000 in the company. Other large claims scheduled are International Trust Co., Baltimore, $105,000; American Finance Co., New York, $100,000, and the Union Trust Co., New York, $225,000.

Umsted organized the company under the laws of Maine. His idea was to combine all the available independent steel properties, including the Tennessee Coal, Iron & Railroad Co. of Alabama.

Fireworks Are Fatal to Six.

Auburn, N. Y.—Six are dead as a result of explosion of fireworks, which were being prepared in an Italian colony for the celebration of the Feast of the Assumption by the congregation of the church of St. Francis di Assisi.

Doctor Is Martyr to Science.

Washington, D. C.—After a hurried trip from Montana to Washington to seek treatment for the Rocky mountain spotted fever, Dr. T. B. McClintic of the public health and marine hospital service, died here, a martyr to science, having succumbed to the disease he had been fighting.

Dr. McClintic had been engaged for two years in trying to perfect a cure for the spotted fever. This year he had practically eradicated it from a part of Bitter Root valley, Montana, where it had been prevalent.

OVERRIDES TAFT'S VETO

HOUSE PASSES WOOL BILL PRESIDENT REFUSED TO SIGN.

Nineteen Republicans Join With Democrats and Succeed in Again Putting Measure Through.

Washington, D. C.—A ruling by Speaker Clark which eliminated from the final vote 10 members who had voted "present" enabled the Democrat and insurgent Republicans of the house to pass the wool bill over the president's veto. The vote was 174 to 80, 18 Progressive Republicans joining with the Democrats. There was wild excitement when the speaker declared that the two-thirds vote necessary included only those members who had voted "aye" or "no." Democrats cheered for several minutes, while the speaker called violently for order. Afterwards the speaker elaborated his ruling and cited the fact that bills may be passed in the house by two-thirds of any number of votes, provided a quorum is present.

Seven Democrats and three Republicans constituted the 10 who voted "present." The Democrats are Representative Ashbrook, Estopinal, Humphreys, Johnson of South Carolina, Rucker of Missouri, Slayden and Sparkman. The Republicans were Fordney, Haugen and Hawley.

The 13 Republicans who favored the Democratic measure are: Akin, Anderson, Anthony, Cooper, Davis of Minnesota, Helgessen, Kent, La Follette, Lindbergh, Miller of Minnesota, Lafferty, Morse of Wisconsin, Norris, Reese, Sloan, Steenerson, Warburton, Woods of Iowa and Young of Kansas.

The senate passed the postoffice appropriation bill, carrying in the neighborhood of $160,000,000. The bill has established a parcels post and also permits employes of the postoffice department to organize provided they do not affiliate with any outside labor organization.

FOR MUNICIPAL OWNERSHIP

Secretary Fisher Recommends Free Coal Lands Be Operated by Cities for Benefit of Citizens.

Washington, D. C.—Secretary of the interior Walter L. Fisher came out for municipal ownership of coal mines and officially recommended that the government give to certain cities and towns free coal lands, which are to be operated for the benefit of their citizens.

This recommendation was contained in a letter sent by him to the house committee on public lands.

Secretary Fisher believes that cities situated in public land states that contain government lands, desiring to mine coal to supply municipal needs and the needs of their citizens, should be given limited areas of government coal land, provided only that the coal be mined and disposed of under proper regulations.

TO HELP PENNILESS FAMILY

Fund Is Being Raised in Washington for Widow and Daughters of Late Justice Harlan.

Washington, D. C.—Washington society, as well as the legal profession, is interested in the movement on foot to raise a fund for the widow and daughters of the late Associate Justice John M. Harlan of the United States supreme court, who left his family practically penniless. Justice Harlan sacrificed a fortune by his long service on the bench. Justice Harlan's estate did not total $3,000.

The members of the bar who practice before the supreme court are getting up the $40,000 fund.

Says Meat Trust Is a Boon.

Aurora, Ill.—The meat trust, far from being the oppressor of the people, is a boon to mankind. The higher the price of meat goes, the fewer divorces there will be. This is the theory of Dr. H. Kress of Chicago, who lectured here on "Why High-Priced Meats Are a Boon in Disguise."

"The eating of flesh foods produces a quarrelsome disposition and quarrelsome people are those who most often get into the divorce court."

Tornado Hits Texas Towns.

Fort Worth, Tex.—A fierce tornado swept north and east of here, causing property damage that will easily total $1,000,000. The towns most severely damaged were Merrill, Greenville and Rhome. Not a building was left standing undamaged in Merrill, though strangely enough, there were no casualties.

Two Mangled to Death.

New York City.—Two workmen were mangled to death and five others seriously injured at the bottom of a 260-foot shaft leading out of the new aqueduct at 106th street and Central park West, when a big steel drill struck a charge of forgotten powder.

Appoints Smith's Successor.

Washington, D. C.—President W. H. Taft formally appointed, without the confirmation of the senate, Luther Conant, Jr., of New York, as commissioner of corporations to succeed Herbert Knox Smith, resigned to join the progressive party.

The president withdrew Mr. Conant's nomination because it was discovered that the law does not now require the senate's approval.

Previous commissioners of corporations were appointed with the advice and consent of the senate.

Gibbons on Race Suicide.

Southampton, N. J.—Cardinal Gibbons regards race suicide as comparable with the slaughter of the innocents by King Herod, and thoroughly endorses Roosevelt's position on the subject.

"Race suicide is a most inhuman practice," said the venerable prince of the Roman Catholic church, "and one which wantonly sacrifices the human race. It is a violation of the laws of nature and of nature's God; and defeats the ends and aim of Divine Providence."

WALTERMIERE FOR THE SECOND PLACE

FINDLAY ATTORNEY IS NAMED FOR LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR BY OHIO REPUBLICANS.

DAUGHERTY CHIEF DIRECTOR

Columbus Man is Selected as Head of New Executive State Committee—Parmenter Succeeds Walter Brown.

Columbus.—The Republican state central committee, in session here, named Beecher W. Waltermiere, Findlay attorney and strong Taft man, for lieutenant governor, to succeed Gen. R. B. Brown, who recently was boosted to the head of the ticket.

Harry M. Daugherty, Columbus, was made chairman of the new state executive committee.

Waltermiere's nomination had been decided upon at a conference of Taft leaders. The committee in naming him only ratified the decision of the leaders.

The committee elected Sherman Granger, fifteenth district, to succeed Walter F. Brown as national committeeman.

BROWN IS A VETERAN NEWSPAPER WORKER.

Columbus, O.—Gen. Robert Burns Brown, Republican candidate for governor, is 68 years of age. He was born at New Concord. Most of his life has been spent in newspaper work. He has been editor of the Zanesville Courier for 30 years. As a member of the Fifteenth O. V. I. he served three years in the Civil war. In this he won distinction for bravery and in recognition of which congress awarded him a gold medal.

He was Ohio department commander of the G. A. R. for ten years and six years ago he served one year as National G. A. R. commander.

He never has had a public office, though he has been a candidate for political honors. Four years ago he lost to James Joyce of Cambridge in the race for congress in the Fifteenth district. He is a member of the Ohio-Columbian centennial commission.

W. L. Parmenter, fourth district, was made permanent chairman of the state central committee to succeed Walter Brown. George Hamilton, seventeenth district, was elected permanent secretary to succeed I. N. Foster, resigned.

William H. Miller, Wilmington, was elected secretary of the state executive committee, and W. F. Burdell, Columbus, treasurer.

Noah H. Swayne, Toledo, was elected central committeeman from the ninth to succeed Walter F. Brown, resigned. Albert E. Sartain, committeeman from the twelfth to succeed Malcolm Karshner, resigned, and James Anderson of Bellaire, committeeman from the sixteenth to succeed George Tinlin, resigned.

Warren G. Harding, Marion, and Charles Ash, Fostoria, were placed on the executive committee at the request of Alexander Kiskadden, committeeman from the thirteenth, who is for Roosevelt and is expected to resign from the state central committee.

Eulogize Taft.

In accepting the campaign chairmanship, Daugherty read a speech in which he eulogized President Taft and Gen. R. B. Brown, the Republican nominee for governor. Warren G. Harding said:

"We would rather go down to defeat than win on a hypocritical appeal to the prejudices of the masses."

Waltermiere is a lawyer and was a Taft candidate for delegate to the national convention, but was defeated in the primaries.

Executive committeemen were selected as follows:

First district—Not selected.
Second—Alvin Kreis, Cincinnati; other not selected.
Third—Sam Flickinger, Dayton; Abe Rothwell, Hamilton.
Fourth—W. B. Rush, Greenville; Charles Herbst, Wapakoneta.
Fifth—William Geiger, Defiance; Dr. R. R. Richeson, Van Wert.
Sixth—Walter Remley, Georgetown; D. Q. Morrow, Hillsboro.
Seventh—R. H. McCloud, London; W. W. Wood, Piqua.
Eighth—Ernest M. Thompson, Bellefontaine; J. W. Monroe, Marysville.
Ninth—Not selected.
Tenth—A. R. Johnstone, Ironton; Oren B. Gould, Wellston.
Eleventh—Not selected.
Twelfth—C. W. Putnam, Columbus; R. E. Jones, Columbus.
Thirteenth—Warren G. Harding, Marion; Charles Ash, Fostoria.
Fourteenth—Not selected.
Fifteenth—Frank Ransbottom, Roseville; W. E. Sykes, Marietta.
Sixteenth—Not selected.
Seventeenth—George D. Ifeise, Newark; E. B. Landis, Wooster.
Eighteenth—Andrew M. McCarty, Canton; William Davis, Youngstown.
Nineteenth—Not selected.
Twentieth—F. P. Shoemaker, Chagrin Falls; Norman F. Nichols, Medina.
Twenty-first—William Leverens, Cleveland; Thomas W. Fleming, Cleveland.

Three in Auto Are Killed.

Columbus, O.—Three men were killed here when an automobile in which they were riding was struck by a B. & O. train. The dead:

Frank I. Irwin, chief engineer of the Ralston Steel Car Co.

C. C. Beauchamp, inspector for Albee & Co., Detroit.

Benj. F. Klee, employe of the car company.

The three men were on their way to inspect some cars when they were run down. Their bodies were hurled into a cornfield.

Rockefeller Wins Election.

Tarrytown, N. Y.—It took John D. Rockefeller just 15 minutes to elect Mrs. Ellen Milton, his candidate for school trustee for three years. The election was the result of an order from the state educational department which declared that the election in May ended in a tie between Irving T. Bryant, a farmer, and Mrs. Milton. On the face of the returns Bryant was elected by one vote, but the state department said that one vote declared void should have been counted for Mrs. Milton.

OLD MARSHALL HOMESTEAD

House in North Manchester, Ind., Where Democratic Candidate for Vice-President Was Born.

North Manchester, Ind.—Though it has withstood the storms of more than sixty years, and two bouts with the house movers, the little house in which Thomas R. Marshall, governor of Indiana, and Democratic candidate for vice-president, was born, stands today well to the north end of Walnut street, in North Manchester, Indiana, in a better state of preservation than many houses of half its age and experience.

In 1854 the house stood on the lot fronting on Main street, that is now occupied by the Lawrence National bank, and was occupied by Dr. Daniel Marshall, who, besides doctoring the sick, was also a merchant of considerable importance, being connected with his brothers in managing the biggest store of this locality at that time. As time went on they disposed of this store, and after the war broke out the doctor moved with his family to Pierceton, when the future governor was slightly over six years of age. Men who have grown gray remember Thomas Marshall as a boy, but he was too young when his folks left for him to build a new home to take the place.

Birthplace of Thomas R. Marshall.

The building in which he was born was moved from its first location to give room to a business building, and was occupied for several years by John H. Shively, but when he wanted to build a new home to take the place of the old building it passed into new hands, being sold to Bart Krisher, son of D. W. Krisher. He moved it to its present location, made a few repairs, put on some fresh paint and the house is as neat and attractive in looks today as many of the newer buildings around it.

PRISONER, FREE, COMES BACK

Workhouse Trusty Returns After Trip to Town for Supplies.

St. Louis, Mo.—Alexander Hunter, who still had sixteen months of a workhouse sentence to serve, is pursuing a plan of behavior which will win for him probably an early parole.

When the city authorities decided to turn Chesley island into a farm where inebriates could be kept, its superintendent, Calvin J. White, decided to send Hunter to the farm as a trusty to supervise the work.

Hunter cheerfully accepted the task and began to build a fence. The posts having been put down, he found himself in need of a wire stretcher.

Taking a boat, he rowed alone and unwatched down the river to Kimmswick, but could not find what he wanted there. He then took a trolley, came to St. Louis, bought the wire stretcher and returned.

"How in the world did you get here?" Superintendent White asked when he stepped off the car and went to the workhouse. "Came up on the trolley," Hunter answered.

"What do you want?" White asked. Hunter explained and was returned the money he had spent for car fare. He went back to the island and now reports that he has most of the wire around the new stockade put up.

Hunter was sentenced to a two years' term in the workhouse on four charges of larceny, six months on each count.

HAS MARRIED 4,000 COUPLES

Tennessee Minister Builds Hotel Especially for Eloping Couples.

Bristol, Tenn.—Rev. Alfred Harrison Burroughs of Bristol, now in his eightieth year, has married 4,000 couples in the last twenty-three years. "I had no thought of making this a business," said the aged minister. "I was licensed to marry people many years ago, and when the first runaway couple sought me in 1889, I consented to marry them more as a matter of accommodation than anything else.

"Some of my friends were present and witnessed the marriage. They complimented me and told me that I ought to make marrying a business. After that I did not decline to offer my services whenever a couple came my way. Month by month the business grew until I sometimes married from three to six couples a day."

So rapidly did the minister's marrying business increase that he built a hotel designed especially to accommodate eloping couples.

WOULD INSURE MOTHERS

Ohio Man Thinks Wage-Earning Wives Would Welcome This Form of Policy.

Massillon, Ohio.—Frederic Donahoe of this city, who believes that the loss of income incurred in the cause of many salary-earning wives shunning motherhood, has evolved a plan of insurance by which the women would be reimbursed. He has outlined his plan to several large insurance companies. This infancy disability insurance would be payable to the mother during the period she is incapacitated from pursuing her vocation. Donahoe cites the loss incurred by actresses and other professional women of large earning capacity as an argument for his plan.

CONTRACTS TO BE LET

BY STATE HIGHWAY DEPARTMENT WILL BE GIVEN OUT AT COLUMBUS HEREAFTER.

Will Depart From Time-Honored Custom of Traveling About to Receive Bids For Work Locally.

Columbus.—Departing from the time-honored custom of awarding contracts for state and road improvements locally, in the various counties where work is to be done, the state highway department in the future will centralize the labor by receiving all bids and letting all contracts in Columbus. State Highway Commissioner Marker declared that the new scheme will save time and be conducive to better results.

The new procedure will be given its first tryout August 22, when contracts aggregating $200,000 for road improvements in a number of counties of the state will be authorized. Heretofore, a representative of the department has been obliged to travel to local meetings of award to supervise them. The saving in time and money under the new method will be considerable.

News From Oil Fields.

The Columbus Brick and Terra Cotta Co. is developing a new oil territory eight miles south and west of the wells at Gore, in Hocking county, and about 12 miles northeast of the old Clinton sand wells located at Stella, in Jackson township, Vinton county. The company has just completed and shot its wildcat and obtained an initial production of 30 barrels. It is believed that this well has a connection with the two other developments, one to the northeast and the other to the southwest. In Falls Gore township, Hocking county, the Blennerhassett Oil and Gas Co. has completed and shot its No. 7 on the H. K. Starr farm and has a show for a very light producer. At New Straitsville, Coal township, Perry county, the Bowen-Moore Oil and Gas Co. has completed a well on the James Sharrard lot and has a show for a 60-barrel producer.

The deep sand territory now has more wells producing 50 or more barrels a day than at any time in the past two months. Davidson, Gates & Moran No. 4 on the Upson Coal and Mining Co. land is holding up at 250 barrels, and the Lone Star Oil and Gas Co.'s No. 1 on the Martin Faire lot at 100 barrels. In Reading township, Perry county, the Ohio Fuel Supply Co.'s No. 3 on the Jacob Barnes farm is producing 445 barrels. The Avalon Oil and Gas Co.'s Nos. 1 and 2, James W. Adcock, 130 and 200 barrels respectively. No. 1, Julia Householder, 100 barrels. In the northern end of the field, in Hopewell township, Muskingum county, the Planet Oil Co.'s No. 1 on the A. L. Ankrum farm is producing 60 barrels, and the Columbus Gas and Fuel Co.'s No. 1 on the J. S. Loughman farm in Hopewell township, Licking county, 60 barrels. The Planet Oil Co. has shot No. 2 on the A. L. Ankrum farm and it produced 40 barrels the first 12 hours.

Can Not Expect Fee.

Every school teacher in the state will be interested in a ruling given State School Commissioner Miller by Attorney General Hogan. A year ago the latter held that a compulsory fee could not be exacted from teachers for attendance at the county institutes, which are held in August. In the ruling he holds that if the teachers wish to pay a fee they may do so. The funds raised in this way go to provide for a larger number of instructors, better means of instruction and longer period for the institutes. This ruling will be announced at every county institute. Attorney General Hogan was a teacher before he took up law.

Fake Sheriff Is Caught.

J. R. Swaney is the real name of the alleged forger who managed to cash two bogus checks bearing the forged signatures of Woodrow Wilson, one for $100 in Columbus by getting a statehouse attache to indorse it, and the other in New Jersey.

Adjt. Gen. Weybrecht received a telegram telling of his arrest at Dover, N. J. He has been sent back to the New Jersey reformatory, from which he had been paroled.

When in Columbus the man posed as Sheriff Giles, of Beaumont, Tex., and said he came to give a horse to Gov. Harmon.

Form Hydro-Electric Company.

The Sandusky River Power Co., with a capital of $9,000,000, all subscribed, has been organized at Fremont, with F. R. McMullin, of Chicago, as president. The company has at work a force of 300 men constructing an immense dam and power house for the hydro-electric plant that will harness the waters of the Sandusky river, two miles south of Fremont.

Will Build Concrete Road.

By the letting of a contract by the state highway commission for the construction of 2.14 miles of concrete road in the Winchester pike, a new era in road building in Franklin county probably has been opened. This will be the first solid concrete road in the county and the state. The surface will be of tar. The cost of concrete construction is only 22 per cent more than that of water-bound macadam, of which most roads of the county are constructed, as is shown by contractors' bids submitted.

Mines Report Car Shortage.

Reports received from Eastern Ohio coal fields say that the scarcity of coal cars is retarding shipping. As a result some of the mines that ought to be running full time are operating about four days a week. All coal that is being mined is rushed to the lakes, and operators declare that the demand for fuel is in excess of anything heretofore known. The roads are also complaining that they find difficulty in having cars returned from the lake ports.

MISS CARRIE BARGE

Talented Graduate of Ohio Wesleyan Who is Field Secretary of Home Missions Among College Girls.

Elect Faculty Members.

Kent, O.—The first members of the faculty of the New Kent State Normal school were chosen, when President J. E. McGilvrey and the board of trustees met here. Four members were chosen, as follows:

Dean and director of agriculture, John P. Johnston, now at the head of the college of agriculture at the Western Illinois State Normal at McComb, Ill.; head of the college of education, George Edward Marker, now dean of the Dakota Wesleyan university; director of the training school, Miss May H. Prentice, formerly of the Cleveland City Normal school and Cleveland City Training school; registrar and assistant to the president, Miss Helen M. Atkinson, graduate of the University of Illinois.

Big Increase in Auto Licenses.

Showing net profit to the state of $260,000 from the sale of automobile license tags during the seven months of this year from January 1, compared to $190,000, which was the total net receipts for last year, the net profits are $70,000 ahead of those of last year with five months still to come, according to a report compiled by State Registrar of Automobiles Shearer. The number of licenses issued this year is 58,442 as compared with 45,000 for last year. "We confidently expect to reach the 60,000 mark by January 1," declared Mr. Shearer.

New First National Buys Bonds.

The New First National bank has just been awarded six blocks of 5 per cent Marion county road bonds, with an average life of 4½ years, and totaling $56,700. The New First was the only bidder for the bonds and obtained them at a premium of $1. The same bank shares in an award of street improvement bonds made by the finance committee of the city council of Nelsonville. These are 5 per cent bonds with an average life of 6½ years. The New First National bank obtained $4,293, at $31 premium and $1,637 was awarded to H. C. Comstock, of Nelsonville, at $40 premium.

State Board Makes Awards.

Allowing $70 for a variety of injuries to six workmen from Hamilton, Youngstown and West Carrollton, the state liability board of awards held its regular meeting. Isaac Myers, of Hamilton, drew the largest amount, $40.14. Robert Walhen, of the same city, received the smallest amount, $2. Other awards were: Clarice Gaines, West Carrollton, $9; Joseph Dailey, Youngstown, $12.67; J. M. Rodgers, Hamilton, $6; Everett Stowe, Hamilton, $3.50.

Telephone Case Is Dismissed.

Acting under a recent ruling of Attorney General Hogan, the public service commission will dismiss the case of the Hamilton Home Telephone Co. against the Cincinnati and Suburban Telephone Co., by which the former was seeking to compel the latter to allow it the use of the Cincinnati company's long-distance lines out of that city.

Wheat Crop Is Short.

This year's wheat crop is estimated by the state board of agriculture, in its August crop report, to average only six bushels to the acre. The oats estimate is 30 bushels, and clover hay is put down at 1¼ tons. The apple prospect is 52 per cent of a normal yield, the peach prospect, 35 per cent; pears, 58, grapes, 90, potatoes, 93.

Girls Are Given Paroles.

Paroles for 17 girls between the ages of 14 and 17 from the Girls' Industrial Home near Delaware were granted by the board of administration and a home was found for each. Parole applications from the Boys' Industrial Home at Lancaster were also considered and from the Mansfield Reformatory.

Soldiers Have Sham Battle.

Camp A. C. Sharpe of the Fourth Regiment, Ohio National Guard, four miles northwest of Delaware, is saved. It was stormed by seven companies of infantry and five companies in camp had great difficulty in withstanding the attack, until Col. B. L. Bargar, who acted as referee of the sham battle, blew a recall as the besieging force swooped down on an unprotected point. The line of attack of the seven companies was a mile in length and defenders of the camp found it hard to repel. Many volleys were fired.

O. N. G. Shoot Arranged.

Arrangements are under way by the National Guard of the state for the annual shoot, which will be held at Camp Perry the week of Sept. 16. After debating the question of holding the event for weeks, the executive committee of the Ohio National Guard association has authorized it. Marksmen from all over the state will compete in an effort to break previous records. A good attendance has already been assured, so the management claims.

NAME GENERAL BROWN

REPUBLICAN STATE COMMITTEE FILLS VACANCY ON TICKET AT COLUMBUS MEETING.

Zanesville Editor Receives Support of Taft Members and Roosevelt Followers Resign.

Columbus, O.—The Republican state committee met here Saturday and nominated Gen. R. B. Brown, of Zanesville, as their candidate for governor to take the place made vacant on the ticket by the withdrawal of Judge E. B. Dillon.

Gen. Brown has declared himself in favor of the re-election of President Taft and is regarded as regular by the Republicans. The Roosevelt members of the committee favored Ulysses Grant Denman and when defeated in committee resigned from same.

Gen. Brown has been editor of the Zanesville Courier for thirty years. He served three years in the civil war. He was Ohio department commander of the G. A. R. for ten years and six years ago served one year as national G. A. R. commander.

TWO KILLED BY TRAIN

Auto Stalled on Track and Car and Occupants Are Thrown One Hundred Feet.

Lima, O.—Two persons were killed and another was injured fatally when east-bound Erie Flyer No. 4 struck an automobile near Spencerville. The dead: Enoch Drake, London, O., merchant; Mrs. Mary Coleman, London, O.; Mrs. Enoch Drake was injured fatally.

The party was headed for Spencerville from London. When it neared the Chicago & Erie crossing two miles west of Spencerville, Drake noted the approach of the flyer, but attempted to cross. The engine of his machine stopped and his auto stalled on the track. The flyer hurled the machine 100 yards.

Drake and Mrs. Coleman were killed instantly. Mrs. Drake was found crushed beneath the wreckage of the machine.

The accident happened near the home of Drake's sister.

THE WICKETS GIVE WAY.

Big Dam at Gallipolis Is Damaged to Extent of Half Million.

Gallipolis, O.—The wickets in the pass at Lock and Dam No. 26, located nine miles below Gallipolis, gave way and that part of the construction was almost completely washed out.

The wickets at the dam were raised on account of the extreme low stage of water in the river, and when the bear traps were closed the wickets were torn to pieces like kindling under the heavy pressure of water that formed in the pool above. The wicket space torn out is 800 feet in extent, and it is estimated that it will require at least a year and $500,000 to repair the damages. So far no cause has been assigned for the break. The upper ends of the bear traps were also torn away. Navigation will not be blocked by the accident. Work has already been commenced to clear away the wreckage.

Major Alsinetier, under whose supervision the dam was constructed, arrived on the scene from New Martinsville, and will start an investigation at once as to the cause. It is the first accident of the kind in the history of dam construction in the Ohio river.

FIRE AT NEW HOLLAND.

Washington C. H., O.—Another destructive fire visited New Holland, entailing a loss of almost $20,000. The volunteer fire department got the flames under control after several hours. Following are the losses: Tom C. Gooley's business block, loss $5,000, insurance $3,000; T. C. Gooley's stock, loss $4,000, insurance $2,500; Robert Maddox business block, loss $3,000, insurance $1,500, stock $2,000, insurance $1,000; George McCrea, livery stable and contents, $2,000, insurance $1,500; R. H. Templin, grocery stock, loss $2,000, insurance $1,000; M. S. Bartholomew's residence, damage $500. The offices of Dr. Kaylor, Dr. May, Dr. Teeters and Dr. Irvin were destroyed at a total loss of $2,000, covered by insurance.

AGED MAN IS DEAD.

Columbus, O.—Working in his little shop at his inventions until within a few days of his death, Peter Bending, aged 92, died from the infirmities of age at the home of his daughter, Mrs. [illegible] Barker, 542 Keifer avenue. His shop in the rear of his daughter's residence was the scene of his constant activity and there he completed several inventions. Funeral services were held at the residence and burial made at Green Lawn cemetery.

MAN AND WIFE INJURED.

Columbus, O.—Taking fright at a steam roller being used in road repair outside Gahanna, the horse being driven by Thomas Kelly, aged 45, an employe of the Columbus Transfer Co., ran away and upset the buggy into a ditch. Mr. Kelly and his wife were thrown out. His right shoulder was dislocated and leg badly bruised, while Mrs. Kelly sustained severe cuts about the head and a sprained right arm. The Fletcher Brown ambulance brought them to Columbus.

PLAN FOR BIG PICNIC.

Lima, O.—At another enthusiastic meeting of Lima grocers and butchers, held in the court house assembly room, it was decided that a parade of all dealers and their clerks shall precede the picnic to be given at Faurot park on Thursday, August 29. All the dealers and their guests will meet at the court house on that day and will march to the Faurot park, where the festivities will be held. A band will head the procession in which several hundred will march.

COUNTRY HOME BURNED

Only Things Saved Were From Lower Story as Flames Spread Rapidly.

Springfield, O.—The country home of Louis and Frank Packman, on the County Line road, west of the St. Mary's pike, was destroyed by fire. The cause is not known, but is believed to have been sparks falling from the chimney upon the dry shingles of the roof.

The fire was discovered in time to permit saving most of the household furniture in the lower part of the house. The flames spread so rapidly that it was impossible to remove practically anything from the upper part of the house. Neighbors came and gave what assistance they could. The fire fighting facilities were limited and practically nothing could be done to save the house which was burned to the ground.

AUTO STRUCK BY CAR.

Lima, O.—An automobile driven by J. R. Rakestraw, local optician, was hooked by a west-bound Main and Kibby street car at West and Kibby streets and dragged a distance of 50 feet before the car could be stopped. The accident was peculiar and that Rakestraw was not seriously hurt is remarkable. He was going west on Kibby street and was in the act of turning when he saw the car swiftly nearing him. He put on his reverse to back from the tracks but too late.

WORK STARTED ON LINE.

Portsmouth, O.—Active work was started on the Portsmouth Street Railway Co.'s survey for the new line to Hanging Rock. While two routes will be surveyed it is generally believed that the river line will be the one eventually selected. It penetrates through a more populated section, and, besides, would not cost near the amount to build as the Powellsville route, with its hills and streams to cross.

TEMPERANCE LEGION ELECTS.

Zanesville, O.—The following officers were elected at the closing session of the State Association of the Loyal Temperance Legion: President, Dewitt M. Hover, of Toledo; vice president, Andrew Cresswell, of Cedarville; general secretary, Miss Florence Dow, of Carey; corresponding secretary, Miss Elizabeth Lewis, of Zanesville; treasurer, Scott C. Harman, of North Fairfield; recording secretary, Alta Palmer, of Summit Beach.

FORT LORIMA HAS $75,000 FIRE.

St. Marys, O.—The department store of Wiffman Brothers and three dwellings were destroyed by fire at Fort Lorima, near here, entailing a loss of more than $75,000, with small insurance protection. Fire departments from New Bremen, Minster and Newport responded to a call, saving the town from being completely wiped off the map.

BIG CONTRACT IS LET.

Lima, O.—Contract for the building of the four-story Rickoff modern storage building was awarded to Smith & Sherrick, the local contractors. Work has commenced and will be rushed to completion. The building will probably be ready for occupancy January 1, 1913. The total investment will be $36,000.

KICKED BY A HORSE.

Newark, O.—Leonard Ward, aged 26, a farm hand employed on the farm of Oliver Hayes, was fatally injured when the horse kicked him in the face. His skull was fractured and he died in the city hospital a few hours later.

OFFICERS ARE RESTRAINED.

Dayton, O.—State Fire Marshal John W. Zuber and Deputy F. C. Sizer, of this city, were temporarily enjoined from proceeding with the razing of the old Baldwin property at Fifth and Stone streets on petition of James F. Baldwin. Merits of the case will be gone into August 16. It is argued that the old building is a menace to other property in that locality, but Baldwin declares he did not have sufficient notice of the officials' intentions to raze his building.

SAVES LIFE OF CHILD.

Dayton, O.—Slipping the coat off his back and wrapping it about 4-year-old Virginia Whisler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Julius Whisler, 113 Jasper street, W. H. West, employe of the N. H. C., saved the child from being incinerated. The little girl found a match in a flower bed at her home, struck it and instantly her clothing became a mass of flames. West, leaving his employment, happened along just in time. He was considerably burned about the hands. The child will recover.

CHOICE VARIETIES OF ROSE GROWN IN MILD TEMPERATURE

Characteristics of Many Lovely Plants That May Be Successfully Raised—So-Called Hybrid Teas Deserve Special Attention on Account of Their Hardiness and Rare Beauty.

(By H. ERICHSEN.)

The roses enumerated are such as I have grown on my own grounds and know to be satisfactory in every respect. Before I take up the individual roses, it might be well to make a concise reference to the two grand divisions of Queen Rose's kingdom and point out the difference between the Tea and Monthly Roses and Hybrid Perpetuals.

The former make constant growth and new flower buds all through the summer and are therefore very properly termed ever-blooming. But the appellation of the latter is a misnomer, for they do not bloom perpetually, as the name would indicate, producing only one crop of flowers in June, with an occasional blossom in autumn.

Unfortunately, the tea-roses are not entirely hardy in our northern climate and, if planted at all, require winter protection. The Hybrid Perpetuals, on the other hand, are perfectly hardy and vigorous, and distinguished by fine foliage and magnificent flowers, both as regards size of bloom and color, which explains why they continue to be the most popular roses.

There is, for instance, our old Hybrid Perpetual friend General Jacqueminot, familiarly known as "Jack," which still holds first place among the dark red roses and is simply a mass of bloom when at its best.

Paul Neyron, by far the largest rose in cultivation, and one of the most prolific bloomers, is of a deep, clear pink color and very desirable as a garden rose. It is an exceptionally strong grower, often making straight shoots four to five feet high in one season, each shoot bearing an immense flower. No collection of roses would be complete without it.

Most rosarians if called upon to designate the finest flesh-colored Hybrid Perpetual would unhesitatingly name Clio. The flowers are simply perfection in form, and in color they are a delicate satin blush with a light almond ing of rosy pink at the center. As the plant makes a vigorous growth, possesses handsome foliage and is a fine bloomer, it is one of the best roses for the urban or suburban garden and should not be omitted from any collection.

Baroness Rothschild is another rose of value for the open ground. Owing to the toughness of its large, heavy foliage, it is especially free from mildew and insect attacks. It is perfectly hardy and blooms twice and sometimes thrice in a season.

Among the other Hybrid Perpetuals that may be safely recommended to beginners in rose culture are: Mrs. John Laing, delicate pink, large fine form, very fragrant; Magna Charta, prized on account of its strong, upright growth, and bright, healthy foliage, as well as for its magnificent, fragrant, full, globular, deep pink blossoms; Ulrich Brunner, one of the most abundant bloomers, with flowers bright cherry-red and very fragrant; Frau Karl Druschki, white, free flowering, with bright, heavy foliage and strong, upright growth, and Prince Camille de Rohan, large, moderately full and best described as a blackish crimson in color.

The production of new varieties of roses of merit has been particularly rapid in the past two decades, and many novelties of exceptional value have been introduced. Among them the so-called Hybrid Teas deserve special attention because they are nearly hardy, and among the most beautiful of all roses.

Roses and ferns arranged together display both to advantage.

They are a cross between the Hybrid Perpetuals and the delicate Teas and have inherited the vigor of the former and the charming form and fragrance of the latter. Probably the best known of these roses is the incomparable "La France."

Maman Cochet, a large, full, clear carmine rose, shaded with salmon yellow, is also very free flowering and lasts a long time when cut.

Kaiserin Augusta Victoria is also invaluable as a cut flower. In color it is a pearly white, softly tinted with lemon in the center.

The color of Bella Siebrecht (also offered under the name of Mrs. W. J. Grant) is an imperial pink of the richest shade. It is a vigorous grower, with large, glossy foliage of leathery texture.

Among other roses that are sure to give satisfaction, I would include the "Gruss aus Teplitz," the Golden Sun, Clothilde Soupert (Polyantha), pearl white, with bright pink center; Miniature, another fairy rose, perhaps the smallest of all roses; Harrison's yellow, an Austrian brier-rose of merit; Madame Plantier (Hybrid China), Rosa Rugosa, and the Crimson Rambler, and that pink rambler, the Dorothy Perkins.

NEW JERSEY HEN HOUSE PLAN

(By A. L. CLARK, New Jersey Agricultural Experiment Station.)

So many inquiries have come to me relating to this open front poultry house, that I present herewith the working plans of the same. The plan here given is for a house on a side hill with the front one foot lower than the back. It is especially adaptable for such a location. For a level spot the middle studs (by the windows) need to be only nine feet high instead of ten. This gives the front roof a somewhat less pitch, but that is sufficient if covered with paper. The nests shown are nearly ideal—dark and quiet, yet very convenient.

WORK OF BORER ON APPLE TREES

Little Insects May Be Found in Most Orchards and Are Overlooked Until Damage Is Done.

Apple tree borers may be found in most orchards and their presence is usually overlooked until serious damage has been done. They can work away in old trees for a long time without seriously affecting them but one season's work in a young tree will often prove fatal.

They work just under the bark and their presence may usually be detected by sunken areas about an inch or more in diameter and by the familiar sawdust-like castings at the base of the tree. There is very little that can be done in the way of prevention, although some people claim satisfactory results from painting the trees with various substances and from applications of coal ashes at the base of the tree.

None of these can be relied upon and the best recommendation offered is to examine each tree twice a year in May and September and dig out the borers with a pocketknife. A strong flexible wire may be found useful where the pest has burrowed far into the wood. Some people recommend a knitting needle for this purpose but a more flexible wire would seem better adapted.

Excellent Farm Horses.

Iceland horses are being used extensively in Denmark as they make excellent farm horses, being hardy and resistant to fatigue. The Iceland horse is small, sturdily built and strong. They are bred without selection and live in an almost wild state and from three to four thousand are exported yearly to Denmark, England and Scotland.

Slaughter Sacred Cattle.

Sacred cattle are being slaughtered and shipped to Paris to help out the scarcity of beef. In Madagascar there are herds cousins to India's sacred hump cattle, and the French, as protectors of Madagascar, pronounce the meat of these animals equal to beef.

Unhooking a Door.

A cord is fastened to the hook and then passed through a hole in the door and tied to the knob outside. Pulling the string will remove the hook; slip the string off the hook and the door cannot be opened from the outside.

Locate Pigeon Loft.

Locate the pigeon loft away from the rest of the poultry. They should have a building with a tight roof and rat proof.

Money in Pigeons.

Pigeon keeping is remunerative and instructive work for the boys. They like the work, which is one of the first requisites of success.

Show Devotion to Queen.

Queen Alexandra was very much touched by the devotion of the women of every station of life who sold flowers on Alexandra day for one of her pet charities, the hospitals of London. More than $150,000 was collected, and next year it is said that all of England will celebrate the queen mother's day in the same way.

LEGAL ADVICE.

Lawyer—If you wish to get off with the minimum punishment, I'd advise you to confess everything and throw yourself on the mercy of the court.

Fail to Select Food Nature Demands to Ward Off Ailments?

A Ky. lady, speaking about food, says: "I was accustomed to eating all kinds of ordinary food until, for some reason, indigestion and nervous prostration set in.

"After I had run down seriously my attention was called to the necessity of some change in my diet, and I discontinued my ordinary breakfast and began using Grape-Nuts with a good quantity of rich cream.

"In a few days my condition changed in a remarkable way, and I began to have a strength that I had never been possessed of before, a vigor of body and a poise of mind that amazed me. It was entirely new to my experience.

"My former attacks of indigestion had been accompanied by heat flashes, and many times my condition was distressing with blind spells of dizziness, rush of blood to the head and neuralgic pains in the chest.

"Since using Grape-Nuts alone for breakfast I have been free from these troubles, except at times when I have indulged in rich, greasy foods in quantity, then I would be warned by a pain under the left shoulder blade, and unless I heeded the warning the old trouble would come back, but when I finally got to know where these troubles originated I returned to my Grape-Nuts and cream and the pain and disturbance left very quickly.

"I am now in prime health as a result of my use of Grape-Nuts." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

"There's a reason," and it is explained in the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

ROOSEVELT IN THE FIELD.

Mr. Roosevelt's hat is now in the larger ring and he has upon it the official stork of a new national party born of the great unrest which has riven Republicanism in twain and which is the most important revolt that has affected any political organization since the Whigs met their doom.

It is easy enough to say that the new party is purely a personal affair and that but for Mr. Roosevelt and his ambition it would vanish like a morning mist. But is this the fact? Hardly. The National Progressive party is at least as real as Populism was, as genuine as Greenbackery is now seen to have been and far more honest and consistent than Gold Democracy ever was. It is a very definite and very serious expression of dissatisfaction and disgust of a large and impressive section of a historic party, and behind the dissatisfaction and distrust there are fundamental causes.

The Republican party no longer stands in the minds and hearts of these come-outers for the things that seem to them worth while. Their aspirations have undergone a change. The old watch words have lost their meaning and their power. New ideals have taken possession of the men and women who have cast off all the familiar ties and have plunged forth into an unknown and uncharted sea of political experience. To do this has required courage of the highest type; it has called for a moral courage which is infinitely rarer than than mere physical courage; and there is something really splendid in the finality of the course chosen. There is no paltering, no hesitating, no if, ands or buts; no apology, no attempt whatever to evade the grave issue raised—the issue of party treason.

For in the eyes of the Republicans of the Taft persuasion the act of those who have launched the National Progressive party and placed its standard in the hands of Theodore Roosevelt is one of treason; and against this charge the new party and those enlisted in its cause must make defense. What that defense will be is obvious. It will be the defense of the American colonies when they revolted against the tyranny and the seditious insolence of King George—the assertion of inalienable right.

Just how great a part the new aspirant for the suffrages of the people is to play in the impressive drama now fairly staged remains to be seen. But it will be no inconsiderable one, we may be very sure. Doubtless it will be a more spectacular and a more serious one than any third or side party ever essayed, and one outcome of it may even now be seen. It will drive the old Republican performers into certain eclipse.

---

Remember that the vote on constitutional amendments is Sept. 3, and not a November election.

---

The women delegates in the Bull Moose convention were a good advertisement for the suffrage cause.

---

It will be interesting to watch the race between the Taft ticket and the Prohibitionists for last place in Lake county.

---

The opposition to the constitutional amendments is manufactured by the predatory interests of the state, by sending out misleading statements. Read the official pamphlets sent out which give a synopsis of every amendment and then judge for yourself.

---

No Democrats of National standing or influence are figuring in the Roosevelt convention absolutely none. This is good evidence that the radical wing of the Democratic party will be held fast to the Democratic ticket, and when the stumping begins Mr. Bryan can be depended upon to hold his old followers pretty closely in line against Mr. Roosevelt's appeal to them for support. Mr. Hearst is not unlikely to join Mr. Roosevelt next month, or earlier, but Mr. Hearst has not supported a democratic presidential ticket in a dozen years. Thus far Mr. Roosevelt has not even united the radicals of the Republican party in his support, and there is less and less prospect that La Follette will go with him.

Definition of Tact.

Tact is a combination of good temper, ready wit, quickness of perception and ability to take in the exigency of the occasion instantly. It is never offensive, but is a balm allaying suspicion and soothing. It is appreciated. It is plausible without being dishonest, apparently consults the welfare of the second party, and does not manifest any selfishness. It is never antagonistic, never opposes, never strokes the hair the wrong way and never irritates.

Tact, like a fine manner, eases the way, takes the jar out of the jolts, oils the bearings, opens doors barred to others, sits in the drawing-room when others must wait in the reception hall, gets into the private office when others are turned down. It admits you into exclusive circles, where wealth abounds, even though poor. It secures the position when merit is turned away. Tact is a great manager; it easily controls people, even when combined with small ability, where genius cannot get along.

Women and Municipal Affairs.

Froissy, a small town halfway between Paris and Amiens in France, is said to be the only civilized community in which the municipal affairs are entirely in the hands of women. The mayor is a woman, and so is the superintendent of the railway station, the switchman, the mail carrier and the town barber. Mme. Lesobore is the telegraph messenger and Mme. Druhon Marchardin is the drummer whose duty it is to announce each proclamation of the mayor. Mme. Druhon Marchardin is described as an octogenarian who has held her post through wind and rain for upwards of 20 years. The letter carrier, Mme. Doubour, has held her office for more than ten years and goes about with her letters regardless of the weather.

Not a Criterion.

"What makes you think that man is necessarily a great statesman?" asked Senator Sorghum.

"Because he is a clever lawyer."

"My dear sir, to assume that a clever lawyer is necessarily a great statesman is the same as taking it for granted that a numismatician is a financier."

RANDOM THOUGHTS

By Tom, Dick and Harry.

It might be questioned whether Mr. Levengood is as good an authority on labor questions as Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor. Mr. Gompers has found the Democratic party under the leadership of Mr. Bryan, responsive to Labor's demands.

Mr. Levengood does not understand that Mr. Bryan has fought for nearly twenty years to make the government, federal and state, responsive to the will of the people, and that he has succeeded is shown by the fact that Special Privilege hates him more than any other man.

In helping to bring about the election of U. S. senators by direct vote of the people, and in helping to secure the initiative and referendum Mr. Bryan has done more than all the socialists combined.

Socialism may be a very fine thing but how are we going to get it if selfish interests control the government?

There is a great fight on here in Ohio right now. It is to secure the initiative and referendum, secure the means by which the people can have direct government in case representative government fails to be responsive to the will of the majority. When this battle is won there will be a chance for the people to secure those things that a majority of the people may think will insure to them betterment and promote a greater degree of happiness.

There are two great parties, that is enough, for if there is no chance of making one of these parties responsive to the will of the common people, it will be impossible to build another party that will respond any better, because you do not get new men or better men. The men will be the same old democrat or republican. You change his name, you call him a socialist.

Today Mr. Bryan stands out as the greatest leader the common people ever had. He is fighting for those things which are possible of attainment right now. For the people to own the tools of production and the means of transportation may, or it may not, be desirable. The first thing to accomplish is to get the government in the hands of the people so that these and other propositions can be decided by the people. If the socialist would follow Mr. Bryan, the government would soon be brought to that point where the people, the majority would decide. Nothing pleases the favor seeking classes, that is, the men who live off the work of others, call them the capitalistic class if you will, so much as to see men who do work, the men who labor, divided. Special Privilege always acts as a unit, while the men who labor, and that takes in a good many are organizing new parties, and that means fighting each other.

The favor-seeking classes don't pay any attention to the socialists, but they are watching Mr. Bryan very closely. That tells the story. It is strange that the socialists can't see the point.

Is there any need of a socialist party when reforms are coming as fast as the people are ready to receive them?

For myself I accept the Democratic party and Mr. Bryan as the means of accomplishment; socialism under the leadership of Mr. Debs would sound as good to me if it pointed the way of a majority getting what they want. Socialism don't scare me for the people will never have more of it than they want.

Sad State of Mind.

Peevishness, if indulged in too often, brings on a sort of permanent "grouch." If we allow ourselves to get irritated and disagreeable over infinitesimal troubles, pretty soon everything that doesn't go just our way will be regarded as a particular slam at us and we will get the fixed idea that life is treating us very badly indeed.

Won by Degrees.

"Dashington seems to have finally made a conquest of that Scadmore girl. Wonder how it all came about."

"The first time she saw him she gave him her eye, the next time they met she gave him her arm, it wasn't long before he was holding both of her hands, soon after that he won her heart, and she lost her head and gave herself to him completely."—Judge.

Mistaken Idea About Sap.

In this maple sugar section most of us think of the sap going down in the winter, remarks the Warren Tribune. This is not true. It merely doesn't go up. During the active spring vegetation the goes up comparatively rapidly to help form new leaves and shoots to replace evaporated sap. During the summer the supply is kept in normal quantities, but with the approach of autumn the manufacture of its life fluid by the tree decreases, and when winter comes it becomes almost negative.

Ohio Editors = Discuss = License Plan

Mansfield Evening News.

Perhaps radicals on both sides of the liquor license proposition may not be satisfied with this proposal. It is still to be passed upon by the people and their attitude on this matter, as well as upon others that may be included in the work of the convention, will determine the fate of the measure as indeed the entire work of the convention.

There are certain features of the law that will commend themselves to many people. That there should be regulation there is no question. No practical regulation can be secured either through local option or by state-wide prohibition. That has been demonstrated so often, and is still so evident wherever prohibition is tried, that few, save the salary-getters of the Anti-Saloon league and some ultra theorists will attempt to deny that prohibition, save self-prohibition, is impracticable.

Under a license the liquor traffic can be regulated. If a county, a city, a township or a village desires to be "dry" it is still privileged to indulge in that theory, as none of the prohibitive or regulatory legislation existing is abandoned on account of the proposed license. Where the traffic is licensed it is proposed to hold the dealers strictly accountable, not only through the state license law, but it still remains with municipalities to adopt regulations as to hours of closing saloons and various other features connected with the operation of them.

Hamilton Evening Journal.

The only way to continue the saloon is by high license system, so safeguarded by regulations for the benefit of society, that the saloon man himself will not violate the regulations. When a violation means the violator will lose his license and his business, there is not going to be much violation. Instead there will be a wholesome respect for the laws and ordinances and the saloon will be better conducted.

If, instead of fighting all the time for the impossible, absolute prohibition, the anti-saloon league and its allies would lend a hand toward ensuring high license and strict regulation, then something worth while would result.

The thought has often occurred to many, that perhaps, those active in the anti-saloon league do not want to see the question settled for fear of losing their good paying jobs.

East Liverpool Review.

There seems to be pretty general satisfaction with the form in which the liquor license proposition is to be submitted to the people of Ohio by the action of the constitutional convention. As indicated in a recent editorial, the triumph of the more conservative element in the convention in putting through a restricted license proposal struck a happy medium between the two extremes—the uncompromising "wets" and the unyielding "drys"—which may find favor at the polls next November and become a part of the fundamental law of the state.

The question now before the people of Ohio, is, or will be, as to whether the saloons shall be regulated by license instead of being subject to the whims of succeeding legislatures and the changeable moods of public opinion.

Chardon Republican.

In submitting a liquor license plank to the people, which retains all the prohibitory laws now in force, and provides further needed restrictions in the way of forfeiting a license for a second violation of the liquor law the Constitutional Convention will strengthen and advance the cause of temperance in Ohio. It would separate the liquor selling business from politics, close the saloons in the cities on Sunday, and automatically put the saloonkeeper out of business for good to the state for a second violation of the law. Judge Henry K. Smith, Geauga's delegate in the Constitutional Convention, voted to submit the license amendment, and all fair minded temperance people will thank him for doing so.

Zanesville Times Recorder.

As between the saloon as it existed prior to three years ago and the speak easies as they exist to-day there is little choice. It would be impossible to point with pride to either. It would be hard to imagine anything less desirable than either to any community. The promise held out to us at this time is that the saloon will be regulated and restricted and made to obey strict laws and ordinances enacted for its control. It now appears certain that a license clause will be voted into the state constitution. That would make it possible to limit the number of saloons in any locality to discriminate as to the character of the saloonist and to put him out of business if he violates any of the laws regulating the traffic.

"Nesting" Lifeboats.

MENTOR.

There has been a great amount of rainfall this past week, having rained every day since Wednesday, and nearly every night more or less. Now our people are wishing it would stop, saying this sort of weather will spoil the corn, and then where 'll we be?

The Gilbert reunion is to be held this week, some sixty of the family are expected, and their meeting will be with Miss Elgie Hayford and her brother, while the big dinner will be served in the next house, which is owned by Mrs. Elberta Hayford Fiske and her family.

Lynn Carleton is at the Y. M. C. A. camp near Columbus, and our young preacher, Mr. Schaffner is to have this week down there with the boys, which will be about all the vacation he will get.

Mr. Eward Rudolph was down from the city recently, spending his vacation with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Rudolph, and his aunt, Mrs. Garfield.

Mrs. Robert Case was called to Pennsylvania some two weeks ago by the serious illness of her mother Mrs. Jane Lawrence, and has not been able to return home since then.

Miss Catharine Lynch is in Massillon, this state, caring for a patient there, and rather expects to go to the Pacific coast before long for the winter.

Mrs. H. N. Munson is expecting her brother, Mr. Robert Cullings, from N. Y., and is hoping he may decide to remain here permanently.

Miss Evalyn Smith has just returned from spending a few days over in Willoughby, with her aunt, Mrs. Louise Smith and her family.

Mr. and Mrs. Spencer Randall have been with relatives in Youngstown for a number of days past.

Mr. Lloyd Carleton put in last week, calling it his summer vacation down in Erie with some cousins.

Mrs. George Hoose is spending a week or so at Lakeside, at present.

Mr. and Mrs. John Chambers have been enjoying a visit from their city friend, Miss Denk, quite recently.

Mrs. George Hicks appeared unexpectedly at the home of her brother one day last week, and was prevailed upon to remain over night before returning to Adrian, Mich., her present home, having come to Cleveland on some business or other.

Mrs. Charles Radcliffe, nee Miss Mary Kinsley, of Detroit, the daughter of a former Methodist minister here, is spending a number of days with Mrs. W. H. Johnson, her husband's sister, and other relatives and friends.

Mrs. H. W. Hoyt is in Cleveland at present with relatives.

Dr. Elish Sawyer was down over Sunday recently from Cleveland, with his two brothers Will and Ed Sawyer, and their families. Dr. Sawyer is a very busy man, and seldom gets as far away from his patients as Mentor.

Mrs. Asa Jackett is still in Cleveland, at Huron Street Hospital, and her mother, Mrs. C. Harris is with her most of the time.

The rumor is around that Mr. Frank Case has sold his farm here to some Cleveland parties. Mr. Case owns the old Seymour Rexford farm on the road running south from the Burridge corners, a place that could be made very nice with a little outlay.

Mrs. Leonard Parker, nee Miss Ella Bandle, of Lansing, Mich., is here for a week or ten days visit with her brother, Mr. Will Bandle, of the County Seat, and some old neighbors and friends in Mentor.

Miss Maud Hardy is visiting some of her relatives in Youngstown.

Mr. Will Glover of Akron, is spending some time with Mentor friends.

Miss Carrie Morrison, formerly of Kirtland, now located at Chicago, is expected here soon to spend a portion of her vacation with old friends and patrons.

Our village neighbor, James R. Garfield, headed the Ohio delegation that appeared at the Chicago Convention for Theodore Roosevelt, and of course helped to nominate him. Should Mr. R. be elected (and there seems little doubt of it, as the days go by), it is the general opinion of Mentor folks that Mr. Garfield will be in the next cabinet. Mrs. Garfield accompanied her husband to Chicago, and remained there for a visit with her old home friends.

Miss Mary Rexford has returned after spending a month with relatives in New York State.

Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Rosenthal have been enjoying a visit from their brother and his wife whose home is in Grand Rapids, Mich., and who have returned this past week.

Mr. Otto Miller who was so badly hurt the evening of the Mentor lawn fete, having had his leg broken, is at the "Homestead" here trying to get well again.

Miss Luella Kerr is still slowly gaining and is able to be out on the porch a large part of the time when the weather permits, though not able to eat solid food as yet, or bear much fatigue.

Several of the Mentor folks attended the races at Randall last week, the horses of our neighbor, Mr. W. P. Murray being the main attraction.

Miss Gertrude Jacks is enjoying a visit from her friend, Miss Mattie Van Slybe, of Perry, N. Y., at present.

Miss Hortense Oliver, accompanied by her younger brother, Lockwood, are in Canada at the summer home of their grand parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lockwood, of Cleveland.

Colonel and Mrs. Spaulding have recently had a visit from Mr. and Mrs. Edward Williams of Willoughby, and also at the same time from Mr. and Mrs. Billie Williams, of Burton, Ohio.

The Munson family reunion is to be held at Mentor Park on August 14th, we are told.

The E. H. Cleveland land at the Center, has been sold to Kirtland parties, who, we understand, are intending to build thereon, at some future time. It is indeed, rather nice, that so many of the Kirtland people come over to Mentor when they get ready to settle down and make a home. Speaks well for Mentor.

The Hodges family reunion is to be held here on Wednesday of this week, and the Methodist Sunday school teachers and older scholars are to give the dinner at 35 cents per in order to pay off the old debt on Sunday school supplies.

Mr. John Shumaker of Chicago, and quite recently from Texas, is at the home of his two sisters, Mrs. Cordelia Radcliffe and Mrs. Amelia Grier for his summer vacation, his wife and family still remaining in Texas.

Master Edward Church has been spending the past week or so with the family of his uncle, Dr. Church, in Lorain.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Corning have been recent guests of their daughter, Mrs. John Code, over in Willoughby, now residents of Venamia Court.

Two Mormon elders from Salt Lake City, Utah, Messrs. Morley and Welling, after visiting in Kirtland have been calling on former friends here.

The Mentor baseball team beat all to "flinders" (whatever that is), the Cleveland team that came down here Saturday, even though they had to play on grounds covered two or three inches deep with muddy water! Years ago, we are told by the old residents, that same ground used to be called "Aunt Peggy's goose pond" because dear old Aunt Peggy Parker kept her geese there, and there was always plenty of water for them to wallow in. Now our boys "wallow" after their balls and pay $15 dollars a year for the privilege.

The Missionary meeting was held last week at the home of Miss Nellie Rexford, with the president, Mrs. Frost, in the chair. Miss Richmond had charge of the foreign topic, and Mrs. William Eddy of the home topic, both ladies furnishing good programs, after which Miss Rexford served delicious refreshments.

Word comes from Mr. and Mrs. Harry King at Silver Lake Park Chautauqua, that they are having a delightful outing, that Mr. and Mrs. John Keck are there, and that the course of study and instruction compares very favorably with the New York Chautauqua, and deserves to be well patronized, as no expense is being spared to make it a success.

Mr. and Mrs. T. P. Cadle returned from their lake trip a short time ago, having shortened it somewhat on account of the bitter cold weather up north, and are at "Lockwood," the family home, until such time as their own new house shall be ready to move into.

Work is fast progressing on W. A. Sawyer's house, same being in charge of Edward Lynch and his helpers. We are told that Mr. T. D. Morley is about to build another house to rent, same to be also in charge of Mr. Lynch.

The Harrison Carpenter homestead in West Mentor, is proving very attractive to city buyers, some one being down every day or so to look over the premises. This place is owned by Mr. George P. Black of Pittsburgh, who spared no pains in making it a commodious and delightful country home, especially for summer use.

The King sisters spent the day on Saturday at Echo Hill Farm, guests of Mrs. N. C. Frost and family, and enjoyed again the charming views to be gotten from every window in that fine old homestead. Pity that it has to be sold, but some one will get a prize.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Woodruff are receiving congratulations on the arrival of a little daughter. Mrs. Ira Woodruff is spending a few weeks there with her son and his family who now occupy the Warren Rockey farm.

The annual convention of the Christian and Missionary Alliance will soon be on as their circulars declare same is to begin Saturday and continue until the 24th. As usual there will be eminent speakers from New York City and other Eastern points besides quite a number of foreign missionaries home on furlough. The convention is always held on their own grounds which join Euclid Beach Park, and are called "Beulah" park and are reached from here by the Shore line cars that stop at Adams avenue, where one can transfer, or one can leave the cars at Stop 117 and have the pleasure of a good little walk down straight ahead, to the park. Really, it is well worth while to go down there, if one has never been. A number of our people go every year.

RING'S QUEER ANTICS

EXPERIMENT THAT RAISED INTERESTING QUESTION.

Nobody, as Yet, Has Been Able to Account for the Strange Convolutions of the Wedding Ring—Try for Yourself.

This is a mystery of the wedding ring. Can you solve it? Nobody, as yet, has been able to account for its strange convolutions, but maybe you will be more clever.

What makes the wedding ring swing?

Why does it swing one way for a man, and quite another way for a woman?

Is it the difference in what wise men call "aura?" And a well-known London doctor has recently demonstrated that the aura of the male and female differ widely.

Wedding rings often make the people who wear them, and even other persons, behave in the most unaccountable manner, but few of us have ever seen a wedding ring itself indulge in mysterious performances.

And this is not a trick. Remember that.

It is a scientific experiment, illustrating the laws of physics, physiology or psychology.

Take a silver fork and place it before you on a polished wooden table. The fork should be at right angles from your body, with the handle nearest you.

Seat yourself at the table. Tie a piece of light string about fifteen inches in length to a plain gold wedding ring. After the wedding ring has been tied to the extreme end of the string wrap the other end of the string three times around the first joint of the first finger on the right hand.

Hold the string in place around the first finger with the ball of the thumb of the same hand. Place your right elbow on the table beside the fork, with the forearm in a vertical position, and permit your hand to drop at a right angle from the wrist. This allows the string with the wedding ring attached to hang directly over the fork.

The ring must be suspended about one-quarter of an inch above the fork, and as nearly as possible at its center.

Place your left hand flat and palm downward upon the table beside the fork. Do your best to keep your hand steady, and thus prevent the string with the attached wedding ring from swinging. In spite of your efforts you will find that the wedding ring moves.

If a man is holding the string the wedding ring will commence slowly to sway back and forth along the fork. If a woman holds the string the ring sways across the fork. With some people the movement is slight, while with others it is marked, but at all times it is unmistakable.

Now here's the most curious part. If a woman is holding the string when the movement across the fork has once been firmly established, let a man place his right hand firmly upon her left hand which rests upon the table. The ring will be seen slowly to stop its cross movement and after a few moments the motion will be reversed. The ring will swing the length of the fork.

A similar change of movement will occur in the event of a man holding the string while a woman places her right hand over his left hand.

Can you account for this mysterious behavior of the wedding ring?—Chicago Tribune.

CHAPTER I.

Into the Maelstrom.

They say that coming events cast their shadows before, but certainly I had no intimation when I left my office in the afternoon of April twelfth, of the maelstrom of mystery and tragedy into which I was about to plunge. I was worried and anxious, it is true, but only as every young man is who finds himself for the first time deeply in love. There was no portent of evil, no foreshadowing of the terrible chain of events that all but destroyed my belief in my fellow-man, and left its mark so deep upon my memory that I do not believe time ever can wholly efface it.

Even now that it is all ended, and the shadow which hung so heavily over the household of my sweetheart has been dispelled and the hand whose devilish ingenuity brought shame and grief and wreck to so many innocent lives is paying the penalty behind prison bars—even now I shudder at the sight of anything yellow. A scrap of yellow paper vividly recalls—and I fear always will recall—the painful events of the last few weeks.

I had been waiting ever since my return from court for a telephone message that had not come—the word from Louise which I felt would decide my fate. I had written to her the night before, asking if I might go to her in the afternoon to speak on a subject of importance. I knew she would understand the object of my letter, though all that I had asked was that she would telephone me earlier than four whether she would be at home.

From my window I had watched the great hand on the Metropolitan tower clock creep slowly to twelve. As the chimes began to sing the hour of four I felt that I could bear the suspense no longer. Message or no message, I would go to her at once. Before the vibrant note of "On-n-n-n-e" had died away I closed my desk with a bang. As the fourth stroke reverberated I stood with hat and overcoat on, my hand on the knob of my office door, hoping yet to hear my telephone ring. Impatiently I waited a minute and then dashed toward the elevator. The telephone, I learned afterward, rang almost the minute I was out of the room and Louise's voice called frantically for me, but I was not there to hear.

It was only a short walk up Madison avenue to the home of General Farrish, the father of Louise. With the doubt that possesses every lover on such a mission as this, I walked it, now laggardly, as misgivings filled my heart, now quickening my pace as hope routed my fears. As I turned the corner into the street where the Farrish home is situated my steps were leaden. What right had I to ask Louise Farrish to be my wife? The daughter of a man worth many millions, a girl of exquisite beauty and of many accomplishments, one who could choose a husband where she willed—what right had I to hope that she would ever consent to become the wife of a struggling young lawyer such as I? To be sure, my family was of the best. With my earnings and the modest little fortune my father had left me I would be able to provide for her. But as yet, though my prospects were bright, I amounted to nothing in my profession. It would be years before I could hope to give my wife the luxuries to which Louise Farrish had been accustomed.

On the other hand, I felt that with Louise as my wife I could do great things. I loved her with a great love. I felt that her affection and companionship would be inspiration enough for any man to conquer the world. I hoped that she loved me. I recalled the trifles which seemed to show, at least, that she found pleasure in my society. I tried to comfort myself, too, by remembering that General Farrish was a self-made man, that when he married he was as poor as I, if not poorer. I knew that he liked me and had confidence in me. Was it then, after all, I asked myself, presuming in me to hope that Louise would listen to me and that her father would consent to her becoming my wife—yet, why had she not telephoned?

As I dragged my hesitating feet across the street I was aroused from my reverie by the rush of an automobile that all but knocked me over. With an angry imprecation at such reckless driving I glanced up and recognized the man who occupied it. He was standing beside his chauffeur as if ready to step out. It was Doctor Wilcox, a noted practitioner who attended the Farrish family and whom I had met at their house. I plunged forward in anxious dismay as I saw the machine halt before the Farrish door and the doctor jump out and run up the steps.

My first, my only thought, was of Louise. What could have happened? She must be ill—desperately ill, as the doctor's haste suggested. Did not this explain her failure to telephone? Could it be that she was dead? What thoughts flashed through my mind I cannot analyze further. I only know I reached the house but a step behind the doctor. He had hardly passed through the door when I, too, flung myself into the hall and stood there awaiting, with not voice enough to ask a question of the white-faced, horror-stricken maid who had answered the doctor's ring.

"Where is she?" I heard the doctor ask as he flung his coat to the maid and started up the stairs. Before she could answer him there were hurried footsteps on the upper landing and Louise rushed down, the anxiety in her face lessening at the welcome sight of the doctor.

I gave a silly cry of joy and started up the stairs. Doctor Wilcox was ahead of me, three steps at a time, and, following Louise's silent direction, had disappeared in a room on the second floor, when I, with outstretched arms approached her. I did not think to ask what had happened or who was ill or what the matter was. My only thought was one of joy that she was alive and well. What mattered if Louise was safe? And the emotion that filled me was still more intensified when she ran to me, and throwing herself into my arms, cried out:

"Oh, Harding, thank God, you've come!"

It was almost the first time she had called me by my name, certainly the first that she ever had given herself to my embrace, and I held her closely, thrilled through at the thought that it was to me she turned in time of trouble. Then, all at once, I was aroused by the opening of the door through which Doctor Wilcox had gone and the appearance of a maid, who ran along the hall.

"What is it? What has happened?" I asked.

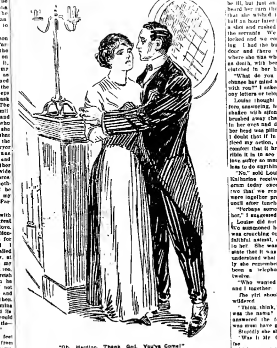
"Katharine," moaned Louise, "Katharine—she has killed herself!"

For a moment I was stunned. The first thought that came to me was the impossibility of it. What place had tragedy in this happy, quiet home? Familiar enough, though I was, with deeds of violence, with self-murder as it thrust itself forward in the courts and in the lurid headlines of the newspapers, that such a thing could intrude on the peace of this well-ordered household seemed beyond my comprehension.

"I telephoned to you, but you were not in your office," sobbed Louise, still clinging to me in the abandonment of grief.

"When did you telephone?" I asked, even under such circumstances rejoicing to learn that she had telephoned.

"Just after she did it. I don't know when it was—it seems ages ago. I couldn't—get you and—I thought—you would never come—then—then—I telephoned for the doctor and father."



"Oh, Harding, Thank God, You've Come!"

Just after she did it! I had been trying to make myself believe it must have been an accident, though from Louise's manner I feared the worst. Yet Katharine Farrish was the last person in the world of whom one would think in connection with suicide. A quiet, reserved girl of great strength of character, several years older than Louise, her dignity and her well-considered actions had led me to believe her far less emotional than her younger sister.

"It was an accident, of course," I said, though doubtfully.

"No!" gasped Louise, shuddering anew at the thought of the horror she had just witnessed. "I heard the shot and found her on the divan in her room. The revolver was still in her hand—her own revolver."

For the first time it came to me with sudden vivid force that in the elder sister's life, behind the smiling mask of reserve she always wore, was hidden some secret sorrow. I understood, now, that far-away look in her eyes. I felt there may have been—there must have been—concealed the knowledge of some mystery that impelled her to this awful deed. Yet little did I suspect whither my efforts to find why Louise's sister had shot herself would lead me. Little did I imagine in what a web of criminal cunning, of baffling crime, of hidden evil, I would find myself.

As I strove to soothe Louise's agitation the doctor appeared at the doorway and imperiously beckoned me. I tried to persuade Louise to wait outside, but she clung to me like a frightened child and insisted on accompanying me into the room.

"Here," said the doctor in the curt tones of authority, "I want you to help me carry her into a quieter place before I operate."

"This way," said Louise, recovering herself as soon as she saw the opportunity to be useful, "into my rooms. They are off the street and much quieter."

I saw the look with which she tried to read the doctor's face and put the question she dared not ask.

"Will she live?"

Doctor Wilcox shook his head gravely.

"She is just alive and that is all. I can not tell yet whether or not we can save her. There must be absolute quiet. I am going to probe for the bullet and see what course it has taken. Please telephone at once for these two men. They are my hospital aides. As soon as they arrive I will operate."

As quickly as we had laid the senseless girl on Louise's bed I telephoned for Doctor Wilcox's assistants and was fortunate in being able to reach both immediately. Louise and the maids meanwhile were kept busy by the doctor preparing for the operation, so it fell to my lot to break the news to General Farrish when he arrived. Louise had merely told him over the telephone that Katharine had met with an accident, so he entered the house almost wholly unprepared for the shock my news gave him.

I had before seen strong men in grief, but never had I witnessed such a wave of heartrending agony as swept over the general. He came into his home erect, military, slightly perturbed, but still in manner and bearing the vigorous old soldier, fully master of his emotions. My words that told him as gently as was possible what had happened seemed to sap all his vitality. His face became ashen pale, his lips quivered, great tears coursed down his cheeks, his shoulders bent under the weight of his grief and he tottered as if about to fall.

While he was fond and proud of both his daughters, the elder had always been his favorite. As is often the case with fathers who have no son, Katharine had been both son and daughter to him. Since her mother's death some years ago she had been practically head of the household. It was on her that he relied for everything and it was with her that he discussed all his business affairs. Such association between them naturally had strengthened the bonds into far more than the ordinary father-and-daughter affection.

"My poor little girl—Katharine—my little Katharine," he moaned in tones of agony that wrung my heart for him.

His first thought was to go to her, but the doctor forbade his presence in the room. I persuaded him to go to his own apartments, leaving him in the hands of his valet and promising to keep him informed as to Katharine's condition.

Deeply as I felt for him, it was of Louise I thought most. I wanted to be with her constantly, to give her the succor of my presence. As soon as Doctor Wilcox's assistants arrived, bringing with them a nurse, Louise and I were both banished from the room. Gently I drew her into a little sitting-room, where, with the door ajar, we waited to see if our aid might be needed. Tearless sorrow now weighed heavily on her.

"Was It Mr. Crandell?" Asked Louise.

"Tell me everything," I said, with my arm about her. "Why did she do it?"

"I don't know," she cried out. "I can't understand it at all! There is some mystery, some terrible mystery that I cannot fathom."

"When did you see your sister last?"

"We had luncheon together. She was sweet and kind, as she always was, but I could see that something was worrying her. We were to have gone shopping together this afternoon but she told me that she had an errand that would make it impossible for her to go with me. I had received your note, so I told her that it would suit me much better to put the shopping off until tomorrow. Right after luncheon she went out—where I do not know. She did not use the car or call a taxi. All I know is that she was gone about two hours. When she came in I was arranging the flowers in the dining room. I heard her enter and come out into the hall. She walked right past me without a word and went up-stairs to her own room. I ran up after her, thinking she might be ill, but just as I got to the door I heard her turn the key. I understood that she wished to be alone. About half an hour later I heard a sound like a shot and rushed up stairs, calling to the servants. We found the door still locked and we could hear her groaning. I had the butler burst open the door and there we found her, just where she was when you saw her, still as death, with her own little revolver clutched in her hand."

"What do you suppose made her change her mind about going shopping with you?" I asked. "Did she receive any letters or telegrams today?"

Louise thought for a moment before answering, her slender form still shaken with silent sobbing. Gently I brushed away the tears that gathered in her eyes and drew her to me until her head was pillowed on my shoulder. I doubt that if in her distress she noticed my action, save in the sense of comfort that it brought her. How terrible it is to see the woman that you love suffer so much and to feel powerless to do anything to help her!

"No," said Louise, "I am positive Katharine received no letter or telegram today except an invitation or two that we read at breakfast. We were together practically all the time until after luncheon."

"Perhaps some one telephoned to her," I suggested.

Louise did not recall any message. We summoned her sister's maid, who was crouching outside the door like a faithful animal, and put the question to her. She was in such a hysterical state that it was difficult to make her understand what we wanted. But finally she remembered that there had been a telephone call just before twelve.

"Who wanted her?" asked Louise and I together.

The girl shook her head as if bewildered.

"Think, think," I commanded. "What was the name? Who was it? If you answered the telephone, whoever it was must have given his name."

Stupidly she shook her head again.

"Was it Mr. Crandall?" asked Louise.

Light came into Hilda's face at once.

"Now I remember," she exclaimed. "Dat was him. It was Mr. Crandall."

That Wooing Ham

Ham, it has always seemed to us, varied more than any other article over which blessings are mumbled in degree to paintableness, fragrance and invitation. The variation is due to the manner of approach. If a person is off his appetite, ham does the best when served as an Arizona breakfast—something else for the man and the ham for the dog.

But supposing you have been hunting, rising early and staying late. You have lost your lunch. You have to trudge home over a hard road. You pass a farmhouse, and from the open door there comes the sound of sizzling ham and the heaven's breath of its perfume. It matters not if that ham sprang from a razorback hog in the wilds of Arkansas, you recognize that the ham is the most glorious flower that grows, the world's desire, the lone fountain of Eden, the pillar of fire by night, the sweet influences of the Pleiades and the deliverance from envy, hatred and malice and all uncharitableness. For the next three miles you can't say a word to your companion because of a watering mouth.—Lockport Journal.

Believes in Work.

Anne Morgan, daughter of the financier, who does much work among poor girls and others who earn considerable money through their own efforts, advises the girls constantly to save something. Her advice to them always is: "In times of prosperity, prepare for adversity." Miss Morgan, in fact, is a firm believer that every wealthy girl should be equipped to earn her own living should anything occur to take her fortune away.

A Boston Baby.

"What's the baby crying about?"

The nurse thoughtlessly told him that Shakespeare's plays are supposed by many to have been written by Bacon. "Get him his Sanskrit blocks. They may divert his attention."

Health & Beauty Hints

By Katherine Morton

All outdoor exercises improve the complexion through strengthening the heart and deepening the breathing. Playing tennis, golf, rowing, and even skipping and running are good for the girl who has an inactive skin.

Going up and down stairs is a good exercise for indoor and so is walking about the room on tiptoes, morning and night, while dressing. Some exercises especially develop the legs and at the same time reduce the size of the hips.

The rheumatic pains girls who grow fast often feel are sometimes due to an over-abundance of lactic acid in the blood. Plain food, exercise and tepid bathing is the necessary regimen for the cure.

Exercise carried to excess—until one feels at times absolutely idiotic from fatigue—is as bad as none at all. Perhaps it is worse so far as active results are concerned, for excessive use of muscles weakens the brain. At the same time too much use of the mind wastes the muscular economy of the body. So the girl who wants to be well and fair to look upon must neither play nor work too long. She must divide her time between the two and judge for herself whether her health is being benefited or injured.

The girl who is looking for a bright, wholesome skin, clear eyes, a slim, pretty figure, a merry heart and the ambition to "do things" must never neglect the functions of nature. Sluggish bowels are responsible for a horde of complexion defects and mental misery, while an insufficient quantity of pure drinking water will harm the kidneys. Castor oil is a marvelous improver of the complexion and for ordinary use a mixture of figs and senna is excellent. Get five cents' worth of the senna and a pound of dried figs and stew the two together, adding sugar and a bit of lemon peel for a palatable taste. Take a teaspoonful of the mixture on going to bed at night.

Freckles and sunburn can be treated to advantage with sour milk, and the wash will be more efficacious if it holds a teaspoonful of benzoin or a few drops of peroxide. Fresh cucumber juice is also good for either blight as well as lettuce water. Stew the vegetables in as little water as is possible, and then use the strained liquid as a lotion after the cleansing bath.

It is no use to study the latest fashions in coiffures if a girl does not keep her hair in a neat and healthy condition. In dusty districts the locks should be washed once a month, but the quality of the hair must decide upon what the constituents of the shampoo must be. Dry hair will respond badly to alkalies—hard soap, soda and ammonia—and after the most favorable washing the scalp needs to be massaged with a little olive oil. Damp or oily hair and moist scalps will admit of a little borax in the washing water, and it would be an advantage to massage the scalp when the hair is dry with a little alcohol or bay rum. Curling irons ruin the hair in time, and so will rough combing. Groom your hair as tenderly as if it were a baby's, passing the comb down the locks with slow, even strokes and avoiding snapping it outward at the ends of the hair. Use kid curlers or soft rags for the crimping.

Don't worry because you cannot buy an expensive face powder. Save up the pennies until you have ten cents and then get a little plain rice powder, or several lumps of magnesia, at the druggist's, pound either of these mediums until it is almost dust, sift it through coarse muslin, and then put the powder in a box which can be covered, and spend your time thinking where you can get a little bunch of sweet fresh flowers for nothing. Rose leaves, jessamine, gardenias, and every other richly scented flower can be used for perfuming the face powder. Break off the petals of the blooms—and shut them up in the box with the powder for two weeks, occasionally shaking it around, but never opening it. At the end of the two weeks you will find a face powder of the exquisite baby variety.

Cold cream of a very useful sort can be made of fresh leaf lard in some of the cold, filtered water you drink, renewing the water several times, and keeping up the whipping until the lard is feathery. Then wash it off in the coldest water you can procure—still filtered—and perfume it with a few drops of extract. Keep in a cold place. Instead of the extract, rosewater, which is excellent for the skin, may be used.

Interest in Belts.

In the Dry Goods Economist the statement is made that the belt finish is rapidly coming into favor for smart dresses; in fact, some of the more dressy models have belt effects, the dress materials being used for this purpose, and in many cases combined with various kinds of leather. The introduction of belts does not mean that the waists will be small, however. The belts are used in an ornamental way only and are not intended to accentuate any curves of the figure.

Evening Gown.

A charming evening gown by Agnes is a combination of black and white chiffon. This is arranged over a foundation of white lace, which forms a panel in front. The bodice is cut in a low V, both back and front.

This is filled in with lace to a becoming height. The waist line of this gown has resumed its normal position. A brilliant touch of ruby velvet is knotted over a rhinestone buckle on the girdle.

Social Forms and Entertainments

For a Crystal Wedding.

Will you please kindly tell me through your column suggestions for entertaining on the fifteenth wedding anniversary?—"Crystal Wedding."

This description of a crystal wedding comes from Mrs. Linscott, who knows all about such things. I hope it will help you in your preparations:

The invitations may be decorated with drawings of small hand-mirrors, tumblers, etc., and for the ornamentation of the house every conceivable kind of glass vessel and mirror may be used. In the table decorations cut or pressed glass should be prominent. In the center of the table a small mirror might be placed, with a large glass bowl upon it filled with flowers. Red carnations with red candle-shades make a very effective color scheme for the crystal background. Little cakes with red icing, red bonbons, and red place cards may also be used. The refreshments should be served on glass dishes, the waiters using glass trays if possible. Tiny glass bottles each containing a red carnation and a sprig of smilax make very appropriate souvenirs. Should the bride desire an appropriate gown for the occasion, it may be trimmed with quantities of glass beads or the glass drops from a chandelier.

For an "Artist" Luncheon.

I have a friend who is going abroad to study art. Can you suggest any novel way to give her a farewell luncheon?—Puzzled.

I think I have just what you want. There were six art students who had been together for several years and this luncheon was given one of the party on the eve of her departure for Europe.

The centerpiece was a plaster cast of "Psyche" and the candlesticks were of china in the shape of tall white columns. The name cards were on little easels and each was decorated with a tiny water color sketch. Candy shaped palettes were the bonbons with natural little dabs of colored candy paint. The ice cream was served on paint pans and the cakes were ornamented with dabs of colored icing.

A beautiful sketch book was given the guest of honor in which each friend had written a sentiment and made a tiny thumb nail drawing.

Refreshments and Place Cards.

I am a member of a club of fourteen who play five hundred. It is my turn to entertain. I should like to serve something new. The refreshments are limited to five articles. Kindly advise me what to serve and something inexpensive for place cards.—Marian.

A large figure five, cut from cardboard any color you wish, with date and name makes a pretty place card. Use gold ink for the lettering.

I think five articles make very elaborate refreshments. I hardly know what will be new to you, but the following menu is mighty good: Jellied chicken in molds, garnished with egg and parsley; cut sandwiches, olives, celery sticks filled with cottage cheese, ice cream cones, coffee.

Menu for Summer Luncheon.

I wish to entertain six guests very simply. Will you outline a menu?—Grateful.

I think if I told you what I had recently that it would suit you. For the first course there were delicious cantaloupe, then sweetbreads on toast, riced potatoes, cucumber and tomato salad, cheese straws, celery sticks filled with cheese, nuts and olives, hot biscuit, iced tea and Spanish cream for dessert.

For a Poverty Party.

Will you please suggest entertainments and refreshments for a "hard time" party?—Mona.

Use a red tablecloth, wooden benches, kitchen chairs, candles, tin and wooden dishes, and have inexpensive prizes—tin horns and articles purchased at the five and ten cent stores. Bean bags, soap bubbles and old fashioned games are the most appropriate. If cards, play "old maid" and "casino."

Reply to V. S. W.

It is not necessary to assist a boy or man with his overcoat; a man is presented to a woman. Girls do go unchaperoned to the theater with boys, but I do not like to see it unless they are of age. Never accept any attention or favors from boys or men whom you do not know. Always be on the safe side.

Reply to "Plain Jane."

Linen Embroidered Scarfs.

The white linen embroidered scarfs with eyelet work, punch work or designs in satin stitch are always in good form and wear well. For a scarf that is a little out of the ordinary one may find most attractive affairs made of bands of cluny lace and openwork scrim. These, especially when over a color of figured cretonne, are especially nice for cottage use. They are finished with an edging of the cluny.

Serum From Wild Duck.

It is said that the wild duck yields a serum which gives immunity from hay fever, asthma and similar troubles.

A WONDERFUL DISCOVERY.
In this age of research and experiment all nature is ransacked by the scientific for the comfort and happiness of man. Science has indeed made giant strides in the past century, and among the—by no means least important—discoveries in medicine is that of Therapion, which has been used with great success in French hospitals and that it is worthy the attention of those who suffer from kidney, bladder, nervous diseases, chronic weaknesses, ulcers, skin eruptions, piles, &c., there is no doubt. In fact it seems evident from the big stir created amongst specialists that THERAPION is destined to cast into oblivion all those questionable remedies that were formerly the sole reliance of medical men. It is of course impossible to tell sufferers all we should like to tell them in this short article, but those who would like to know more about this remedy that has effected so many—we might almost say, miraculous cures, should send addressed envelope for FREE book to Dr. LeClerc Med. Co., Haverstock Road, Hampstead, London, Eng. and decide for themselves whether the New French Remedy "THERAPION" No. 1, No. 2 or No. 3 is what they require and have been seeking in vain during a life of misery, suffering, ill health and unhappiness. Therapion is sold by druggists or mail $1.00. Fougera Co., 90 Beekman St., New York

A GREAT AMERICAN ADVENTURER

"CHINESE WARD," SOLDIER OF FORTUNE AND MAKER OF HISTORY

BY G. T. FERRIS

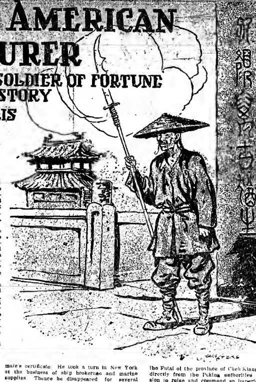
© BY RIDGWAY CO.



IN THE early autumn of 1860 a New York merchant interested in the machinery and junk business received a letter from Shanghai, China, which interested him curiously. It was from an old friend and associate, whom he had believed to be another example of unaccountable disappearance.

Frederick Townsend Ward had gone to Mexico more than two years before to sell some old ordnance to the government. Having accomplished this in due season, he had suddenly dropped out of ken, on the eve of supposedly returning home. Fancy, then, the surprise which greeted these words, if any act of so erratic a person could amaze.

"I have entered into the Chinese service, have very fine prospects at present and hope soon to have a comfortable fortune. I have been transformed from a Yankee into a Chinaman in good style, with a good establishment. I, a few days ago, took the second city of importance in the viceroyalty from the rebels. I have made a pretty good thing of it and hope in a few weeks to take another city."

This [illegible] was a veritable bolt from the blue. A restless, almost penniless vagabond of a man, whom his friends had given up as lost, suddenly emerging in China as a master of men and a conqueror of cities! Our own bloody slaughter house had not yet opened its shambles, but the newspapers were so absorbed in an extraordinary political situation that they gave scarcely a paragraph to such a curious piece of news when it was made known to them.

A few weeks later another similar letter reached the staid merchant:

"I was then [referring to his first letter] about starting up country, but I have since returned, having been badly wounded while attempting to scale the walls of Sing Poo City, and was compelled to return to Shanghai for treatment. I got several shot wounds, the worst one went through the cheek and down through the roof of the mouth. They, that is, the missionaries and some English and Dutch merchants, talk very badly about me and my measures, I having used both rather unceremoniously when found having connections with the rebels, but, Jack, I am independent of them all and consequently do not care a —— for them.

"China is the country for a man who is able to take risks and is gifted with good common sense. I have made more money in a few weeks than I could at brokerage in New York in twenty years."

Sixty years ago American pulpits and church conventions rang with the glad tidings that a Christian movement had sprung, spontaneously as it were out of Chinese soil. The future of missionary effort was thus assured, it was hoped, in the blossoming of a far-reaching native force that would speedily win the heathen to the banners of the cross. These hopes, however, were blasted, as the rise of the religious cult of a Hakka schoolmaster developed into one of the most ruthless and devastating civil wars of history, and the nature of the outrageous travesty, which had perverted a few Christian doctrines into a grotesque blasphemy, came to be understood.

Hung Su Tsuen had sought in vain for that recognition before the literary boards at Canton which was the passport of official ambition. In Canton he had absorbed some crude notion of Christian doctrine from a Methodist missionary, and when he returned home, crazed by disappointment, to live as a humble pedagogue, he began to dream dreams and speak prophecies as one directly inspired from heaven. As time went on, his propagandism drew to its banner hordes from the ranks of discontent and crime, and an army of ragged desperadoes began to move from west to east in the early fifties to establish the claim of the crazy fanatic (who professed to be the younger brother of Jesus Christ and directly consecrated by the Holy Ghost) to be the imperial head of the empire, the annals of Oriental barbarism. It was estimated by conservative opinion that in ten years this infernal regime known as the Taiping rebellion had cost the empire some two and a half billions of dollars and the destruction of several millions of lives by war, starvation and wholesale massacres.

Hung Su Tsuen, as Tien Wang or "Heavenly King," was enthroned at Nanking and he practically controlled the great provinces of Kiang-Su and Sheh-Kiang, the heart of the richest tea and silk production of China. His robber bands indeed raided down to the very gates of Shanghai, and the foreign merchants there were sometimes hard put to it to defend the city, though nominally on amicable terms with the Nanking despot, on whom their trade so largely depended.

One autumn morning at Shanghai in 1859 a slight, dark-complexioned, insignificant-looking man called at the office of Tah-ke, a mandarin of the third button, a banker and merchant well regarded by the foreign residents.

It was Frederick Townsend Ward, who had just landed in Shanghai from San Francisco. He was rough and seedy-looking, with a sailor's roll in his gait, but with a glance of fire and a solid, square-set jawbone to redeem his face. Tah-ke was not encouraging when Ward spoke of his desire to enter the Chinese service as a free lance, and answered that he could get a bellyful of fighting by joining the Shanghai volunteers.

"Thank you for nothing," said Ward, "but I can do that without your help. I didn't come for that sort of advice. I could make you help me and help yourself at the same time. You don't see it now, but you will."

Who then was Ward? Born at Salem, Mass., about thirty-two years before his arrival in China, he came of a race of deep-sea skippers, who had sailed on all oceans, arctic and tropical, and been noted for their handspike and belaying-pin discipline. Daring and resolution ran in his blood.

At the age of sixteen he had won his first mate's certificate. He took a turn in New York at the business of ship brokerage and marine supplies. Thence he disappeared for several years and was heard of in Central America, where he had joined Walker, the filibuster, narrowly escaping the fate of that adventurer. Rumor also associated him with the ill-starred exploits of Wheat and Henningsen in the same region. He had been heard of also in the Crimea as enlisted in the French zouaves, from which he managed to escape by desertion to save himself from drum-head court martial after having slapped his captain in the face.

Not disconcerted by Tah-ke's cold reception, he took things into his own hands. He had enough money to hire a small force of rapscallions, native and foreign, the kind that infest an Oriental seaport like rats, and among them a few deserters from the British military and naval forces, who knew something about drill. The most important of these acquisitions was James Burgevine, a North Carolinian adventurer, who had severed allegiance to the "Heavenly King." Tah-ke had sold to Ward for a bagatelle a batch of condemned muskets and bayonets which armed this ragged and unreliable battalion. Ward and Burgevine whipped them into shape not only by camp drill but by skirmishing with the Taipings at every opportunity, for from their cities of Sung Kiang and Sing Poo, only two or three days' march from Shanghai, the rebels made constant irruptions.

Ward's primary object was to inspire his men with confidence in him and in themselves. He lived on the country and when he captured Taipings he converted them into recruits instead of refusing quarter, as was the habit of the imperialists. Very soon the exploits of Ward's irregulars began to make a buzz in the foreign clubs and counting rooms. He had created his own standing and when he went again to Tah-ke that worthy received him with low salaams.

He went straight to his mark like a bullet, with the manner of one dictating, not accepting, terms. He proposed a formal contract, which Tah-ke was to negotiate with the Futai of Shanghai. Ward was to have $100,000 from the government for every city he captured, of which $25,000 was to go to the Chinese partners. He was to have the first day's looting, after which the captured place would be turned over to the imperialists.

Tah-ke was pledged to finance Ward for one year, furnishing him with arms, ammunition and stores, within a certain limit of cost which the other thought would suffice.

Within a month Ward led his first expedition against Sung Kiang, which was garrisoned by about 5,000 Taipings under the command of an Englishman named Gardiner, an ex-officer of the British army. The attack failed, with serious loss to Ward's 500 assailants.

One thing had happened, however, which proved of vast import to him. He had taken a rebel prisoner of some rank, who confessed to him that one of the bastions had a choked-up subterranean sallyport. If he could make a secret entrance through this, it would save the necessity of a desperate and bloody assault.

General Ward reorganized his little command and, with 5,000 imperialists to co-operate, made his second attempt. Sung Kiang, with its five-mile circuit of wall twenty feet high, was captured; and to Ward's great credit he prevented anything like indiscriminate massacre.

Leaving Sung Kiang with an officer of his own in command, he returned to Shanghai, where his achievement had caused a tremendous sensation.

There comes now an interim in Ward's fighting toils, for half a score of unhealed wounds compelled him to go to Paris for treatment, but we find him back again in the early summer of 1861 where his presence was sorely needed. The foreign powers still pursued their hands-off policy and allowed the Taipings to sound their drums and tom-toms within earshot of the swarming treaty port. In a diplomatic way, indeed, formal recognition of the "Heavenly King" as the dominant power was in the air.

Ward's coming shattered that intention, which, if carried out, would have destroyed the empire. He grasped the situation and, through the Futai of the province of Cheh Kiang, obtained directly from the Peking authorities a commission to raise and command an imperial Chinese levy. His experience told him that, well drilled and daringly handled, the natives had plenty of good soldier stuff and would fight and die in their tracks.

A singular thing happened at this time. At the principal temple of Confucius one day he discovered in one of the consecrated niches a scepter-like staff of ebony with a curiously carved head of jade minutely inscribed. The effect on his native valet was remarkable, and he learned that it was one of the great talismans of the empire. When he appeared with it before his troops the next day they fell to their knees in ranks. Thenceforward he carried no sword, only this magic baton attached to his wrist with a thong. In the eyes of the Chinese, even the Taipings, it made him an invincible leader. Shortly afterward, indeed, it saved his life.

A large detachment from the main force of Chung Wang camped too near his city of Sung Kiang. Sallying forth with two regiments he struck their camp like a thunderbolt at night, cutting the force to pieces.

The clock now struck twelve for Frederick Ward. A courier arrived post haste from the Futai of Shanghai ordering him to report there for co-operation with the Anglo-French contingent. He obeyed with two picked regiments, leaving Sung Kiang strongly garrisoned under Colonel Forester. Admiral Sir James Hope had arrived and had insisted that General Ward should be fully recognized as the most efficient factor of salvation.

The first move was against Kaochiaou, which threatened the supplies of Shanghai. Ward and his Celestials carried the defenses in the most gallant fashion, leaving Sir James Hope's contingent but little to do except gather in two thousand prisoners.

All the English officers were delighted with the splendid dash and confidence marking Ward's attack, and when Sir James Michel, the British commander-in-chief, arrived from Hong Kong with Sepoy reinforcements he agreed cordially with Admiral Hope when these two reviewed Ward's forces at Sung Kiang.

It was advised that Ward be commissioned by the Chinese government to raise from 6,000 to 10,000 men and be invested with a large range of authority.

The result was an extravagantly phrased rescript from Peking that commissioned General Ward to raise and command 6,000 men, named him admiral-general, and made him a mandarin of the "peacock feather." With it came the famous "Yellow Jacket," equivalent in China to the Golden Fleece or the Order of the Garter.

The new force was designated Chun Chen Chun, "The Ever Victorious Army."

It was in April, 1862, that a council of war was held at Sung Kiang, Sir James Hope, General Staveley, the French Admiral Protet, General Ward and Viceroy Lieh being present. It was here that Ward's general plan was fully sanctioned. This showed great grasp of military strategy. The proposition was to capture the cities of Kahding, Sing Poo, Najaor, Tsaolin and lesser fortified places within a radius of forty miles from Shanghai.

Needless to linger on the details of the on Kahding, Sing Poo, Najaor and Tsaolin. General Ward in each case, magic baton in hand, headed the assaulting column through the breach made by artillery, and his men charged to the very gates of Tophet, resistless in their ardor, mad with the joy of battle. In the Tsaolin affair the gallant French admiral Protet was shot dead at his side.

Taki fell before his assault like a house of cardboard, but one of the last hostile bullets fired pierced Ward's chest with a fatal wound. He was taken aboard a British gunboat commanded by Lieutenant Roderick Dew and was brought down to Ningpo.

Splendid funeral obsequies at the temple of Confucius in Sung Kiang were held, at which all the foremost personages of that part of China, native and foreign, attested their grief and paid their homage to the deeds of the man who had practically arrested the disintegration of the empire.

DIDN'T WORK OUT JUST RIGHT

Attempt to Follow Out Magazine's Helpful Hint Made Trouble in One Household.

An awful lot of tommyrot advice creeps into women's magazines nowadays. And women who try to follow such advice, sometimes, meet with tragic results. For instance, not long since a magazine article dwelt at length on the fact that one husband owed both his health and his business prosperity to the fact that 365 days in the year his wife prepared him a delicious piping hot breakfast and sat at the opposite end of the table each morning prettily dressed, with her hair becomingly arranged. A Cherryvale woman was deeply impressed with the article and thought remorsefully of her appearance in the bright revealing morning light at the breakfast table. To be sure she always served a good, wholesome breakfast, but her time had been given to the cooking instead of to her appearance.

But so deep an impression did the article make that Saturday morning she rose a little earlier than usual, resolved to look pretty and surprise hubby. She curled her hair and coiled it high on her head; then she put on some dainty pumps and lavender hose, instead of the slouchy comfort slippers she usually hurried into. After powdering her face she slipped on a becoming negligee with bits of baby blue ribbon calling attention to the silken slip beneath. So interested did she become in adjusting a brand new boudoir cap that she forgot she had not even made the coffee, till she heard a bad swear word from her husband, who'd been impatiently waiting on the porch, and he growled out: "If you're going to primp all day I'll go to the restaurant and get my breakfast," and as the front door banged shut the wife murmured, "Men are so unreasonable; they think of nothing but their stomachs."—Mrs. F. D. Doffett, in Cherryvale, Kan., Journal.

"Living Water"

He That Believeth on Me . . . Out of His Heart Shall Flow Rivers of Living Water.—John 7:38.

GOD'S plan for the world is that it should be saved by Christian people, not by preachers, but by the great body of Christians. So we are given here a definition of the ideal Christian. Perhaps you have thought sometimes that you would like to know, in a few plain words, just what Jesus expects of you as a Christian. Here is an answer plain and simple. It was the time of the feast of the tabernacles. There was a vast number of people in Jerusalem, and they were gathered in the temple area. Above them stand the priests, pouring water out of large jars, to symbolize the outpouring of the Holy Spirit upon Israel. Just then Jesus speaks, and amid the silence of the intently watching throng his voice rings out: "If any man thirst let him come unto me and drink; he that believeth on me, out of his heart shall flow rivers of living water." That packs into a sentence Jesus' ideal of what a true Christian down in this world should be, and may be.

Water is the essential of life. Absence of it means suffering, sickness and death. All the history of the world clusters about its water courses.

Harvest Should Be for All.

In the book of Joshua we read, "For Jordan overfloweth all its banks all the time of the harvest." When there was flood in the river, there was harvest in the land. Has there been a harvest in your life? A harvest of the fruits of the spirit—love, joy, peace, long suffering? "No," you say, "not much of a harvest." Perhaps none at all. Do you know why? Is it not because the Gospel of Jesus Christ has not filled your heart with its floodtide of power? When the blessed stream has filled your being it must find an outlet, it produces a harvest. And it blesses all who come near it.

If you look at a chart showing the circulation of the blood, you will see a wonderful network of lines running in every direction, but they all converge in the great blood vessels that lead to and from the heart. And everywhere the blood goes there is life. Now turn to a map showing the water system of some great valley like the Mississippi. Here again you note a network of little streams and rivers all converging in the great main artery, and that leading to the sea. And everywhere the water goes there is life.

Here is Jesus' picture of the Christian down in the world. As the red stream of life is sent out by the force pump of the heart to give beauty and health and strength to every part of the body, so out of the personality of the true believer shall go a flood tide of power, bringing refreshing, and cleansing and beauty and vigor everywhere within the circle of his life.

Believe in Him, Is the Secret.

St. John has a story in his gospel, in the fourth chapter, about a woman who seemed indeed a most unlikely instrument for the Master's purpose. She was a woman of no reputation, rather of bad reputation. She probably had no influence in her town. But she met Jesus at Jacob's well, and she listened to him and believed on him, and there lies the secret of what follows.

She went back to her village and commenced speaking about Jesus to those she knew. The result was startling. We are told in the simple language of the Gospel that "many believed on him because of the word of the woman." There is only one way to account for such results. Only the Holy Spirit speaking through her lips could have produced them. She had begun to drink of the water of life, of which Jesus had been speaking to her, and already the living water was flowing out to others.

The same Jesus wishes to do that with you, and far more if you will let him. Let me ask, why have we not all the same power for Christ that this woman had? Well, possibly some of us are like Nicodemus who came to Jesus by night. There is no power because of timidity. We are afraid of what people might say. And some of us may be like Lazarus was physically. We are tied up tight, bands and feet and face. We are the slaves of some sin, of some habit; there is something wrong. Now whatever it is, it is clogging up the spiritual channel which should bring supplies of living water from the great reservoir of the heart of Jesus. How shall we have power, abundant, life giving, sweetening our own lives and influencing other lives for good? The answer is easy to give but it is no easy task to live up to it. Remove the obstruction that is clogging the channel of your spiritual life. Cease from that sin that is hindering the water of life from flowing into your heart. Then there shall come new life and new power.

"They That Wait Upon the Lord."

Our spectacular opportunities for courage may be few or none at all. Our commonplace opportunity for courage starts when we awake in the morning and is is until we go to sleep at night. It has been said that "the courage of the commonplace is greater than the courage of the crisis." To go through the commonplace daily, hourly with undaunted faith and a singing, indomitable heart is the kind of courage that lifts the whole world about us. But our mere will power will not achieve this courage. Only God in Christ as our life can forever keep up the supply. "Even the youths shall faint and be weary, and the young men shall utterly fall, but they that wait for Jehovah shall renew their strength; they shall mount up with wings as eagles; they shall run, and not be weary; they shall walk, and not faint."

Christ came to reveal what righteousness really is. . . . Nothing will do except righteousness; and no other conception of righteousness will do except Christ's conception of it; his method and secret.—Matthew Arnold.

That One Thing Lacking.

Lady Augusta Gregory, the able and ardent apostle of the modern Irish movement, is fond of telling the following real Irish story:

"It was the wedding day of Pat and Bridget, and they were having a church wedding. It was a grand affair. Pat was dressed with patent leather shoes, white vest and flaming tie. Bridget shone attractively in many colors. The ceremony was over, and the happy pair walked down the aisle, out into the street, where a great crowd greeted them with delight.

Once seated within the cab, Bridget leaned over to Pat and said, in a loud whisper, 'Och, Pat, if we could only have stood on the sidewalk and watched ourselves pass, wouldn't it have been hivin?'"

RED, ROUGH HANDS MADE SOFT AND WHITE

For red, rough, chapped and bleeding hands, dry, fissured, itching, burning palms, and painful finger-ends, with shapeless nails, a one-night Cuticura treatment works wonders. Directions: Soak the hands, on retiring, in hot water and Cuticura Soap. Dry, anoint with Cuticura Ointment, and wear soft bandages or old, loose gloves during the night. These pure, sweet and gentle emollients preserve the hands, prevent redness, roughness and chapping, and impart in a single night that velvety softness and whiteness so much desired by women. For those whose occupations tend to injure the hands, Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment are wonderful.

Ivy poison quickly healed by Resinol

Ivy or oak poison, sunburn, heat rashes, insect bites, and other annoying hot weather skin-troubles are instantly relieved and quickly healed by Resinol Ointment and warm baths with Resinol Soap.

Mr. Edgar A. Norris, of Unionville, Md., writes, May 5, 1912: "Every summer I get ivy-poison. I have suffered awfully, cannot sleep and almost go wild with itching and pain. The worst places get perfectly raw. I have tried dozens of remedies that had no effect. Last summer I had a severe case, and tried Resinol Ointment. I found it the very thing. It not only is soothing and stops that awful feeling, but it heals rapidly. I was soon rid of the trouble."

Sample free: Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment are also most effective for eczema, baby rashes and chafings, bad complexions, dandruff, and falling hair. For a generous free sample of each, write to Dept. 10K, Resinol Chem. Co., Baltimore, Md.

WICKLIFFE

Mrs. Geo Garnott while going up stairs one day last week, fell and injured her hip. It is reported that she is getting along nicely.

Little Johnnie Travers, who has been quite ill at the Charity hospital for several weeks, is improving.

On Friday at the home of Mrs John L. Young, the Wickliffe Charity and Study club served a chicken dinner to a party of ladies from Cleveland. The club ladies are anxious to earn money to carry on the philanthropic work began last winter and are taking this way to add to the treasury.

Mr Edd and Frederick Claymore went to Cleveland last Saturday afternoon.

Mrs Ed Beck and daughter Pearl went to the city shopping last Saturday afternoon.

Mrs Frank Sherman and children went to Mayfield to spend Tuesday with her brother Will Ferguson.

Mrs Charles Height, Ridge road, entertained relatives from Collinwood last Wednesday.

Mr and Mrs Martin and little daughter went to Cleveland shopping Saturday.

Mrs Washburn was quite ill a few days last week but is better now.

GERMANY'S ESPIONAGE

EVERY VISITOR IS UNDER THE WATCH OF THE POLICE.

He Must Give Full Account of Himself and His Intentions—Use of Red Ink Brings Serious Consequences.

The recent conviction as a spy of the English lawyer, Mr Stewart, made it clear to everyone who read the account of the trial that German law is very different to our own. How different it requires a visit to Germany to realize. Before you have stayed in a German town for a week a policeman calls. He politely inquires your age, your nationality, and how long you intend to stay. Your answer he notes down in one of the small library of little books which he carries with him.

If you take a house in Germany you must notify the police; if you move to another you must comply with the same formality. If you hire a servant girl you must purchase a yellow blank, and report the fact. When she leaves a green form must be sent to the police stating why she is dismissed.

If you use the telephone in Germany you must be careful how you speak to the employes. At Carlsruhe a gentleman, impatient at long delay, called out: "Are you asleep, miss?" and was fined five dollars for offering "an unjustifiable insult."

Whatever you do, be careful not to use red ink when writing to the police. The president of the Social Democrat society at Hetschendorf did so, and was summoned and fined for "inciting the representatives of law to break the peace."

In all small matters you must exercise the greatest care, so as not to run the risk of insulting other people. A certain count von Friedland had a quarrel with an insurance agent named Joseph Bock.

The count presently summoned the latter, because, as he alleged, the agent stared at him whenever they met, in a manner which "revealed hate and contempt." Poor Bock was found guilty and fined $10, with the alternative of ten days' imprisonment.

A Berlin iron worker named Willeck got into trouble the other day in a manner incredible to English ideas. He was watching a fat policeman chase a riotous merrymaker, and the vision of the former's stout legs twinkling along amused him so that he burst into a fit of laughter. This was construed as an indictable offense—serious scandal—and the unhappy Willeck went to prison for a week.

The proprietor of a widely-known patent medicine took a quarter of a column in a German newspaper. The publisher was summoned and fined for "bombastic advertisement." It was considered that the advertisement was too long and that it irritated the readers.

A German soldier was recently hauled up for the serious offense of failing to salute his officer in the street. For this the punishment is two months' imprisonment. He pleaded that he was short-sighted, and at once was sentenced to an extra fortnight's confinement for failing to report his condition.—London Tit-Bits.

"His manners are bearish."

"Yes."

"He is dull."

"True."

"Then what do you find so attractive in him?"

"He has never asked me for a thing."—Newark News.

MOST IMPORTANT ELECTION IN OHIO IN 60 YEARS WILL BE TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 3, 1912

FROM CLEVELAND PRESS

ON TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 3, the people of Ohio will have the first chance they have had in over sixty years to say under what fundamental laws present and future generations are to live in this state.

On that day 42 amendments to the present Ohio constitution which was adopted in 1851 will be submitted for ratification or rejection by the state's electorate.

It isn't an overstatement of the facts to say that this will be the most important election ever held in Ohio, for the issues to be determined deal with those fundamental things which affect the conditions of life of every man, woman and child in the state.

At an ordinary election we go to the ballot box to decide whether Bill Jones or John Smith or Henry Brown is to occupy a certain office for one, two, or three years. Of course this is more or less important, but it is of relatively little consequence compared with the opportunity which the citizens will have on SEPTEMBER 3 TO MAKE THEIR CONSTITUTION A LIVING THING RESPONSIVE TO THE REQUIREMENTS OF MODERN LIFE.

Every reader of this paper is familiar with the tremendous struggle against privilege and political corruptionists which finally resulted in the calling of a recent constitutional convention, a large majority of whose members were patriotic, unselfish and progressive citizens.

Every reader of this newspaper is also familiar with the bold and unscrupulous methods resorted to by the privileged interests of the state to turn the delegates to the constitutional convention away from the progressive course which the people had ordered them to follow and which a large majority of them wanted to follow. But under the masterful leadership of Herbert Bigelow, president of the convention, backed up by other progressive delegates and a public sentiment which was unanimous among the common people of the state, THE CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION KEPT THE FAITH WHICH A LARGE MAJORITY OF ITS MEMBERS HAD PLEDGED TO THOSE WHO HAD ELECTED THEM.

The constitutional convention of 1912 was a progressive convention in the best sense of that much abused word. It adopted and offered to the people of the state for their approval 42 amendments to the constitution of 1851, every one of which, in greater or less degree, is a progressive amendment, the purpose of which is to free the people of Ohio from the shackles of political and business corruptionists.

But all these splendid victories which the people have won in the war which began years ago to modernize their fundamental law will be absolutely nullified if the work of the constitutional convention is not approved at the election on SEPTEMBER 3.

The privileged interests of Ohio, aided and abetted by the privileged interests of the entire country, are working harder to defeat the new constitution than they have worked any time since the agitation for a new constitution began. The state is being flooded with literature prepared and distributed by the public service interests in an attempt to poison the public mind and warp the public judgment.

The tactics of privilege seem to be to create dissatisfaction among one class of voters with one amendment, with another class of voters with another amendment, and so on down the whole list, hoping in this way to so disorganize and divide the progressive voters that all of the amendments will be defeated.

It is the same old game played in the same old way by the same unscrupulous gang of the people's exploiters.

There is just one way to beat this game. That is for every progressive voter in Ohio who believes that the people and not privilege should control the government of their state to go to the election place on SEPTEMBER 3 and vote YES on every amendment on the ballot.

SEEMS FOSSILIZED

SO CHARGES A UNIONVILLE MAN AGAINST JUDGE BURROWS

The Judge Makes a Speech at the Unionville Celebration and Opposes Granting Woman's Suffrage.

Dear Editor:

It was yesterday, the 15th of August, that we here in Unionville, brought forth, the day of days for our hamlet and vicinity. The weather was fine, every single thing connected with the event was auspicious.

The Pageant was a most striking affair, and had it been properly spaced, leaving safe and easy moving distances between the floats, it would have been more than a mile long. And seeming as it did, to centralize the development and growth of our section of the Western Reserve for more than a hundred years, it was an impressive spectacle. From Indian character to our elevated and refined life, all intermediate periods were brought out in changing and striking relief.

One of the floats was borne on the identical cart wheels which brought the pioneer Warner family from Connecticut to this locality, and this was drawn by a yoke of cattle, and in the cart were a number of the descendants of the family. This old cart rolled over the forest roads to Unionville 112 years ago.

There were many and very interesting mementoes of the pioneer period displayed in the antique museum on the grounds, and many other features of interest. We venture to say that those permitted to be present were favorably impressed with the occasion and the display.

But, Mr. Editor! What is the matter with Judge Burrows? He seemed to be quite unhappy. Apparently he has a grouch, seemingly located in his spleen. He was the last speaker on the program. One of those who preceded him was the grand daughter of Joshua R. Giddings, and she gave an eloquent address on the Pioneer Women of the Western Reserve, and at the close of her remarks took occasion to refer to the coming election on the constitutional amendments, and she hoped the article enfranchising women in Ohio would be adopted. This stirred the blood of the judge markedly, and he had to say that these woman reformers and the young men who parted their hair in the middle made no appeal to his convictions. The Judge seems fossilized in the old time theocratic political ideas. He seems to feel that no advance is necessary in our political affairs. He has evidently not learned that a mule, though having a splendid reputation as a kicker, makes small headway driving his heels against a stone wall.

This country is at length going to be a democracy, and it seems a misfortune that the old pioneers of a former generation should not see the mighty revolution going on socially and politically in America.

Anyway, we had a big time here in Unionville on Thursday.

Very truly,
E. C. GODDARD.

Unionville, O., Aug. 16, 1912.

HON. JOHN D. FACKLER

Will Speak At Business Men's Picnic At Willoughbeach Today.

Hon John D. Fackler, Cleveland lawyer, who will open the speaking campaign for the adoption of the progressive constitutional amendments at Willoughbeach, Thursday, August 22, is one of the foremost progressives of Ohio.

In the recent constitutional convention which drafted the amendments to be submitted at a special election on September third, Mr. Fackler, owing to his brilliance as an orator, played a prominent part. He was chairman of the Short Ballot committee and fought for the progressive program throughout the convention.

In his address at Willoughbeach he will take up the 42 amendments in detail and explain their various provisions and possibilities. The importance of this election is daily becoming more strongly emphasized throughout the state, and voters should embrace this opportunity to acquaint themselves with the proposed constitutional changes.

Mr. Fackler is one of a number of leading Progressives who are touring the state this month in behalf of the amendments. Other stumpers are Mayor Baker, of Cleveland; Mayor Brand Whitlock, of Toledo; Judge Wanamaker, of Akron; President Herbert S. Bigelow, and various prominent members of the recent convention.

CHOICE MADE

Two Boys, One From Painesville and One from Kirtland to Go to Columbus.

Earle L. Johnson, son of L. H. Johnson, manager of "Old Orchard" farm, Mentor avenue, and Morelle Upham, son of D. F. Upham, Kirtland, were chosen Saturday morning to get the free trip to the Ohio State Fair offered by the agricultural department. Raymond Gardner, Elm street, was unanimously chosen alternate. One other candidate, Harmon Morehouse of Perry, was disqualified owing to his age. Horace Bacon spoke in behalf of the Gardner lad and F. D. Marley spoke for Morelle Upham.

Funeral of Royal Webster Hathaway.

The funeral of Royal Webster Hathaway was held at the Methodist church in Hambden Tuesday, Aug. 13. The services were very impressive, and were conducted by the pastor, Rev. Mr. Kirby. After the services the remains were taken to Chardon in charge of the Masonic lodge, of which he was a member.

Mr. Hathaway was an old veteran, having served in the 41st O. V. I. until the close of the war. The reunion of his regiment was held at Bedford Glens the day of the funeral. The Seth Mason reunion was held on the same day and they attended the services in a body.

The deceased was born in Willoughby, Jan. 13, 1843, and was 69 years and 7 months of age. He was the son of Samuel Hathaway and Margaret A. Winslow. A wife, two brothers, F. N. Hathaway, of Oryan, and C. W. Hathaway and a sister, Mrs. Martha Dunkle, survive him.

There were many beautiful floral offerings, the tributes of loved ones and friends.

WILLOUGHBY.

(Schram's District.

A large number from here attended the Mayfield picnic on Wednesday.

Mrs. Bella Armour of Cleveland, is spending some time with Mrs. A. Garnett.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Foss were out autoing with friends Sunday, going through Kirtland and Painesville.

Marvin Parks of South Euclid, visited his cousins, Herbert and Elmer Leuty, recently.

Mr. and Mrs. William Kahen and family of Canada, have been spending the past two weeks with her mother, Mars. Daus.

Mrs. Wilhelmina Daus entertained several of her children and grand children on Sunday last.

OFFICIAL REPORT

OF OHIO DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE.

On the Conditions of Crops August 1, 1912—Wheat Poor—Oats and Corn Much Better—Potatoes and Pasture Good.

Wheat threshing is in progress. Estimated yield as reported by correspondents will be about 6 bushel per acre for the state, which would make the total estimated yield 6,479,461 bushels. This may be a little high, as many correspondents report some wheat sprouting in the shock on account of wet weather, the wheat not being dry enough to gather owing to the great amount of weeds. Also many acres left standing last spring cut for timothy sown with the wheat last fall, for hay and seed. The percentage estimates show a wide range. Estimate for southeast section is 10 bushels per acre, while northwest section is estimated at 2 bushels per acre. One year ago the yield was estimated at 90 per cent, compared with normal yield of 15 bushels per acre. The estimated area harvested is 53 per cent of acreage harvested in 1911.

Oats shows an increase of 7 per cent in prospect, compared with estimates of one month ago. In some sections of the state correspondents report oats badly lodged by the recent heavy rain and will be hard to harvest. This will also keep the late oats from filling well. The area sown this year is estimated at 25 per cent more than in 1911, and the yield for this year from estimates of correspondents should be 59,154,500 bushels as against 46,442,742 bushels in 9111. The estimated yield does not vary much in the four sections of the state.

Corn is reported as doing fine, but very uneven on account of so much replanting. Wet grounds are also retarding cultivation, and the weeds are growing fast. Some sections were visited by a severe hail storm the latter part of July, stripping the corn badly.

Clover hay is estimated to produce 1.27 tons per acre. There is complaint of much weeds and white top in the hay. Timothy prospect 58 per cent. of normal yield as against 60 per cent. one year ago.

Potatoes generally doing fine; prospect for 93 per cent of normal yield as against 48 per cent. one year ago when the total estimated production was 8,161,203 bushels from 111,704 acres. This year's area is estimated at 104,541 acres,541 acres. The estimated prospects are about the same in the four sections of the state.

Pastures reported good since the rains.

"I was cured of diarrhoea by one dose of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," writes M. E. Gebhardt, Oriole, Pa. There is nothing better. For sale by all dealers.

You can meet your old friends on the fair grounds, Painesville, Sept 17-20.

LAKE COUNTY ILLUSTRATED

A BEAUTIFUL PORTFOLIO SOON TO BE ISSUED BY THE HERALD.

"Lake County Illustrated," the compiling and preparation of which is now being rapidly concluded, will be one of the handsomest books of the kind ever printed. Heavy enameled paper, halftone engravings, history, biography, data, views, portraits, homes, public buildings, and a general resume of the industrial and other interests of Lake County, will be some of its salient features.

We will be glad to hear from any who are desirous of representation in this artistic work. Phone the Herald if you want a picture of your home and our photographer will respond at once.

Ned Huntington is due here from Europe next week, and there will be a Taft conference with Ned and the Rev. Howard in the limelight again.

—o—

The picnic today, Labor Day Monday, Sept 2, election Tuesday, Sept 3, and the fair Sept 17-20—all days of importance. Let everybody wake up.

—o—

Some of our male citizens who have been voting all their lives just as grandfather did should remember that the women also have grandfathers.

—o—

The Radcliffe and Barrett's jewelry store will have new fronts, but that is not all; the signs, that is the lettering, is about as rich and nice as can be done.

—o—

In the absence of Dr. Phillips on his vacation, the pulpit at the Methodist church Sunday morning was supplied by Rev Dr James B. Watson of Elyria, Ohio.

—o—

A Bull Moose county ticket is among the probabilities, and when it starts there won't be a man on the regular ticket who will dare hurrah for Taft.

—o—

It is claimed that the adoption of the license clause in the state constitution would close about 1500 saloons in Ohio. But you can't make a Prohibitionist believe that.

—o—

About the silliest arguments we hear now-a-days are those urged against woman suffrage. We wonder if it would take women a hundred years to settle the tariff question?

—o—

Judge Huntington and C M Grand will be home from their extended trip abroad some time about the last of the month. Too late for the Business Men's picnic but in time to vote on the constitutional amendments.

—o—

The committee on publicity for constitutional amendments headed by J R Williams and C E Booth is doing a good work, and there is bound to be a good vote at the polls of Lake county on Sept. 3rd.

—o—

Ralph Abramson has returned from his vacation, which he spent in Michigan and Canada. He visited Detroit, Mt Clemens, Windsor, Walpole Islands, and other points of interest taking in Cedar Point on his return trip.

—o—

If capital punishment is continued in Ohio, the law should be so amended that every judge who passes sentence of death upon the prisoner, should also be the executioner. Capital punishment is a relic of barbarism.

—o—

S. D. Barber is in charge of the Painesville Township park and keeps the place in a neat and inviting manner. Improvements are being added rapidly and if a transportation service to the park is ever obtained, it will become a popular resort.

—o—

The 920 shares of the capital stock of the Coe Manufacturing company which were offered for sale at auction at the court house on Monday morning were purchased by R. C. Moodey. The stock offered for sale was the property of the estate of the late Henry H. Coe.

—o—

Mentor Township park is one of the beauty spots of Lake county. Last Sunday over a hundred carriages and automobiles were lined up around the park and scores of people were on the beach and in the water. For natural advantages and beauty Mentor park has all the other Lake county resorts behind them.

o

The entrance way to the Lake County Fair grounds is now about completed. The ticket office is a neat little building and the iron fence enclosing the half circle in front of the office gives a very substantial appearance to this part of the grounds. The building of the iron fence was in charge of I. H. Britton.

—o—

William Gordon, democratic candidate for congress attended the Unionville centennial and the Soldiers' Reunion at Fairport last week, and at both places was called upon to speak, and whenever Gordon speaks, he makes friends. That Gordon will be the next congressman from this district is a sure thing if there is any thing certain about politics.

—o—

You don't need to take time to study all the constitutional amendments if you think it a task. Remember that a progressive convention submitted all of them and that a yes vote on all of them will be better than to lose any of the amendments. The most important is the initiative and referendum amendment. Be sure to vote yes on this amendment, and then you have the key to lock and unlock the door of all legislation of the future. If you have not time to study, be sure that you have time to vote on September 3 for the sixth amendment.

—o—

A ride from Painesville to Wickliffe shows a remarkable diversity in crop conditions. Of course crops on the upland look better as a general thing than crops on the low lands, but it is not that land is high or low that tells the whole story. One can often see a good crop on low land. The fact of the matter is that this is one of those years when ground that is underdrained shows that fact very plainly. On the Good Hold farm and Mr Heidler's farm the crops are good on both upland and low land. On both of these farms a small fortune has been spent for the laying of tile and this is one of the years when the returns are very apparent.

WICKLIFFE.

Mrs Minnie Carkin and Mrs Wm Morris went to Cleveland shopping last Wednesday all day.

Miss Alice Budd spent Friday of last week with Mrs Wm. Davidson.

Miss Grace Beck has gone away on her vacation.

Mrs. Willis Smith has returned home from a visit at Warren.

It is reported that Arthur Vile is improving after a serious operation and will be at home with his mother Mrs Warren Vile, in a few days.

Mrs Washburn went to attend her father's funeral at some distant town.

Mrs Wm Morris and Mr. and Mrs Wm Davidson attended the Latter Day Saints reunion last Saturday and Sunday at Kirtland.

Mrs. T. E. Rice and children have returned from a weeks' visit in Cleveland.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Tinker, of Chesterland, spent Sunday with Mrs. Frank Sherman. Also Mr Lewis Sherman of Cleveland.

Mrs Evelyn Jacobs of Cleveland, spent last week with her parents, Mr and Mrs Ed King, of this place.

Mrs Gus Pravo and family visited with the Pravo's the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. Hager of Nottingham, called to see their mother, Mrs Geo Garnett, last week.

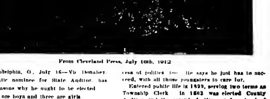
The grand aggregation of unparalleled attractions, unrivaled exhibits, spier racing, educating and entertaining features and unprecedented attendance will be at the New Lake County Fair at Painesville, O., Sept. 17, 18, 19, 20.

VIC DONAHEY HAS NINE REASONS FOR WINNING



From Cleveland Press, July 16th, 1912

New Philadelphia, O., July 16—Vic Donahey, the Democratic nominee for State Auditor, has nine good reasons why he ought to be elected.

Six of 'em are boys and three are girls.

And Donahey himself is only thirty-nine.

"Every time we have a new baby at our house, both my wife and myself get younger," says the candidate. "Not long ago a stranger knocked at our door, and when Mrs Donahey answered it, with five or six of the kids tagging her, the man tipped his hat and said to her: "Miss is your mother at home today?"

"He thought Mrs. Donahey was the youngsters' big sister."

Donahey has not only proved himself a success as the father of a family, but he has made a success of politics too. He says he just has to succeed, with all those youngsters to care for.

Entered public life in 1899, serving two terms as Township Clerk. In 1903 was elected County Auditor, and the second election ran far ahead of the State ticket, receiving the largest majority ever given a candidate of either political party in the history of the county.

Was elected County Delegate to the Constitutional Convention, and without making a personal campaign or giving a single pledge, received 768 more votes than his nearest competitor in a field of six aspirants. At present serving as a member of the New Philadelphia City Board of Education.

In the constitutional convention Donahey took his coat off and fought as hard as anybody for progressive measures.

FRANKNESS A LARGE ASSET

Old Time Air of Mystery No Longer Avails in Business and Politics.

A few very successful politicians to the contrary notwithstanding, frankness is a mighty big asset in any kind of business, and he who knows how to use it wins.

The other day a new "grease joint" opened up in our block. It wasn't much of a place to look at—just the ordinary cheap restaurant, except that it was new and clean and there was a very frank sign on the wall. It conveyed this information:

"Pay your bill and go out through the kitchen if you want to. There are no secrets in our business."

That "grease joint" is rapidly putting its two nearest competitors out of business. And thus far nobody has paid his bill and made his exit through the kitchen. Frankness bred faith in the breast of the hungry. They looked at the sign and cared to look no farther. Most of us are willing to accept on faith that which we are permitted to examine.

The air of mystery which used to cloak big business in industry and politics isn't so much of an asset any more. In these days we are poking our fingers into pretty nearly everything from the milk cans to the wheels that go round at 26 Broadway. Instead of the old superstitious awe of mystery, there is now a distrust of that which is hidden. Put up any sort of prohibitive sign and we consider it an invitation to get busy with the probe. If the sign says "wet paint," we stick our fingers in it; if it says "No admittance," we promptly bring on the battering ram to act to and find out why.

But frankness, confidence in your neighbor and the public promptly allays curiosity and begets confidence in return. The man who throws his cards face up on the table and reaches for the money can pocket it without protest. Permission to get into the kitchen and find out what we are eating and how it is prepared is all we ask. We take it for granted that whatever is in the open is right, honest and satisfactory.

And the moral of the tale applies with equal force and equal practicability to business and to personal conduct.

Useful Word Indeed.

Apparently the popular word of the moment in America (where the election is) is "bolt," says the London Chronicle. We read that some one is preparing to bolt (meaning to change sides) and some one else will probably bolt Taft (meaning throw him over). But these do not end its meanings. A glance at the dictionary shows that when you bolt you may be running away, rushing forward, or sifting something through a sieve, according to the context. Further a bolt can be an arrow, a roll of canvas, a bundle of sticks and a narrow passage between two houses. And a plant bolts when it runs to seed. A very useful word.

Cleaning Up a Mystery.

The teacher was giving a lesson in mathematics and English combined.

"A fathom," she said, "is a nautical word used in defining distance. It means six feet. Now I want some little girl to give me a sentence using the word fathom."

Instantly a hand shot up in the rear of the room.

"Well, Mary, you may give your sentence."

Mary stood up proudly.

"The reason flies can walk on the ceiling," said the observant child, "is because they have a fathom."

A Rust Preventive.

To keep iron goods of any kind, and especially those parts of machines which are made of steel or iron, from rusting, take one-third ounce of powdered camphor and melt it before the fire in one pound of good lard. To give it a dark color, add as much fine black lead as is necessary to produce the desired effect. Clean the iron work and smear it over with this preparation. After this it should be allowed to remain untouched for twenty-four hours, when the grease should be removed by wiping the ironwork with a soft cloth.

Mrs. Eve Petulant.

"What shall we have for dinner today, Adam?" asked Eve, laying aside a fig leaf on which she had embroidered a letter "A."

"Oh," Adam replied, "let's have some nice spareribs and apple sauce, for a change."

"There you go again, Adam," exclaimed Eve petulantly, "reminding me of your lost rib and that hateful apple we ate in the garden."

Electric Lights.

The cost of installing electric lights on a farm, including outbuildings, is estimated at $450. The engine needs to be operated only about eight hours every week. There is no danger from handling the live wires of such a home plant, since the voltage seldom exceeds 30, and with good wire there is little danger from fire. Many farmers have begun to install electric plants of this kind. Electric lights in the barn are particularly desirable in the winter months, when it gets dark early.

Pecan Meats.

The meats of pecan nuts may easily be removed if they are first placed in a pan and boiling water poured over them.

Allow them to remain in the water for 20 or 30 minutes. When the nuts are cracked, the meats come out without trouble and are usually whole.

The faith of the average man wouldn't move a molehill, much less a mountain.—Chicago News.

JUNGLE OUTLAW SLAIN

AMERICAN WHO HAD LAIR DEEP IN CONGO IS SHOT.

Elephant Poacher and Illicit Ivory Trader Had Defied Power of British Empire for Years.

London, England.—Hunted down by British soldiers in the depths of the jungles of Central Africa, where for years, in defiance of all authority, he had pursued the career of an elephant poacher and illicit ivory trader, James Ward Rogers, an American, is dead. He was shot down by a little force of troops which had been sent into the wilderness in pursuit with orders not to return without the outlaw, dead or alive.

News of Rogers' death came formally to the British colonial office from Capt. C. V. Fox, inspector of Mongalla province, who commanded the expedition. Although told in an official report, the story revealed is one of the most dramatic in colonial annals.

For years Rogers had carried on his lawless trade, which popular opinion credited with netting him a fortune. The remote regions along the Lado Enclave and Kongo boundaries were the scenes of his operations. Time after time British officials of the Soudan had tried in vain to trap him. It was this defiance of years which determined the government to crush the old man.

Capt. Fox's report shows that in his long operations Rogers had done more than had been dreamed of by the colonial office. He had established an organized administration over the wild, trackless country and among the natives was a virtual if uncrowned king.

Not since the explorer, Henry M. Stanley, pierced the jungles in 1871 and found Dr. Livingstone have such a tale of hardships, trials and dangers come from out of Africa.

SHOOTS WIFE, KILLS BABIES

Husband Pours Oil Over Bodies of Victims, Sets House on Fire and Then Ends Own Life.

Eastbourne, England.—The police brought to light an amazing family intrigue behind the baffling triple murder and suicide of Robert Hicks Murray, at Upperton, Eastbourne. The dead man shot his wife and three children, poured oil over their bodies, then drenching his own clothing with oil set fire to the house and shot himself. He has been identified but nothing of his past has been learned. Murray left a note and $160 in a silver vase just outside the door of the house, which he had rented under the name of Charles Richard Mackie. The note read:

"I am absolutely ruined, so am killing all who are dependent upon me. I would like to have them buried in the same grave. God forgive me."

The fire was discovered and put out before the four bodies were burned and the note gave a clue to the officers. Following it they identified the murder-suicide and learned that the other three dead are Edith Matilda Murray, his wife's one-year-old child, Stanley Murray, aged three, and Winifred Florence Murray, aged two.

Stanley and Winifred are the children of Florence Paler, sister of the dead man's wife and the suicide was their father. The sisters lived happily together and the secret of the illegitimate children's parentage was never revealed to the wife. Another sister of Miss Paler arrived here and identified the dead woman, but said she knew nothing of Murray's past, except that he once belonged to the Scott's Greys, stationed in India.

It is believed Murray's wife discovered his relations with her sister and that this is the "ruin" to which the suicide referred in the note.

GOV. MARSHALL IS NOTIFIED

Chief Executive of Indiana Hears of His Nomination for the Vice Presidency.

Indianapolis, Ind.—The news that he has been nominated for vice president of the United States was officially broken to Gov. Thomas R. Marshall by Judge Alton B. Parker on August 20. Samuel M. Ralston, Democratic candidate for governor, introduced Judge Parker as chairman of the notification committee.

All Democratic governors, state chairmen and national committeemen had been invited to attend the notification ceremonies and a large number were present. The program opened with a luncheon for the visitors at the Denison hotel at noon. At two o'clock they were taken to the state fair grounds, where the notification ceremonies took place. After delivering his speech of acceptance Governor Marshall entertained the visitors at the Country club.

210 Rebel Suspects Executed.

Mexico City, Mexico.—Two hundred and ten persons, suspected of being rebel sympathizers have been executed in Peruandiro state of Michoacan during the past 12 days. Accompanied by horrible barbarities the executions have aroused protests throughout the republic according to letters published in the El Imparcial. The victims of federal revenge were not granted trials, but were shot upon the accusation of government sympathizers and the executions were held wherever the men were caught.

Wife Begs Husband to Shoot.

Petaluma, Cal.—Mrs. E. W. Mason, wife of the secretary of an oil company, lay in the road beside their overturned automobile fatally injured and begged her husband to end her agony by shooting her. Ten minutes later death relieved her.

When Mason lost control of his car and it veered into a ditch and overturned, Mr. and Mrs. Mason were pinned under it. Mason could reach his horn and sounded it repeatedly before some farmers heard the call. His wife was dead before help came.

HIS HAT IS IN THE RING

REFORMER WAS CONVICT

PHILADELPHIA SOLON, NOW HONEST, TELLS OF PAST LIFE.

Decides to Tell of His Former Career After Being Blackmailed Long Time by Old Gang Pal.

MAYOR WOULD APPLY GOLDEN RULE

Philadelphia, Pa.—Mayor Rudolph Blankenburg of this city, in a statement just issued from Pocono Pines, leads a movement to turn back the resignation of Councilman William Burke.

"In many years of experience as a business man," the mayor telegraphed, "I have on a number of occasions forgiven those that have wronged me and I have never regretted my action.

"Our whole body of citizens should be given the opportunity now to show whether the spirit of the age and the admonition of forgiveness so beautifully expressed in the Good Book are an iridescent dream or a beautiful reality. Let the citizens join with me and extend a helping hand."

* * *

Philadelphia, Pa.—"I used to be just like one of those fellows in the Rosenthal case—gambling, sneak thieving, yegging and then bigger jobs. I served seven years in the Massachusetts penitentiary; when I got out I came to Philadelphia and tried to be an honest man, but one of my old gang pals found me out and has been blackmailing me ever since. I took the name of Burke and I was elected to the city council, but now I resign and am going somewhere else, make a clean breast of my past and see if I can live it down."

With these words Councilman William Burke, whose real name is Benjamin H. Tripp, resigned by letter. Burke has a wife and little daughter and has lived an honest life, so far as is known, since coming here from the penitentiary several years ago. He declares he is tired of the Jean Valjean life he has been living since one of his former yegg companions discovered him, and adds:

"The first thing I can recall is selling newspapers as a kid in New York. I am 43 years old and I never knew who my father and mother were. I played the crooked game in Boston for years, then I began to hit the dope, grew careless and was caught trying to sell a thousand dollar necklace which I had stolen.

"They starved me six days and nights in the 'third degree' and broke me. I came to Philadelphia in 1907 and worked as a wood carver, a trade I learned in prison. I prospered and married and when I was elected councilman, I was perfectly happy. I was elected on the reform ticket.

"For six months since I met this former pal of mine I have suffered from uncertainty for fear he would 'squeal' on me. I have lived a straight life every minute since I got out of prison. I was bound I would not turn crooked again, but I was worried about my wife and baby if I should be exposed. I know now that I made a big mistake when I tried to hide my identity in the first place."

Two Bills Fail to Repass Senate.

Washington, D. C.—The steel schedule tariff bill and the wool bill failed to repass in the senate by the two-thirds necessary to nullify the executive veto. The steel bill received only 32 votes to 39 cast against it. The wool bill received 39 votes to 36 cast against it. The one was lost by a majority of seven and the other obtained a bare majority of three.

Threaten Oil King's Men.

Tarrytown, N. Y.—Members of a black hand gang have forced John D. Rockefeller to call out special deputies from Sheriff Doyle's office to protect the oil king's workmen and property.

Tony De Marro, foreman of the Italian workmen on the Pocantico Hills estate, discharged some of his countrymen to make room for his own relatives. An attempt to burn De Marro's home followed.

The threat also extended to Fred Briggs, Rockefeller's superintendent.

660 Pounder Weds Man, 115.

New York City.—Miss Alpha Blitch, weight 660 pounds, was married in Brooklyn to Louis H. Aiken, 125 pounds, by Aldermen Jesse Moore and James Martyne, who weigh 200 pounds each. The blushing bride, who wore 24 yards of pale blue silk for a dress and a 14-inch bracelet, was supplied by the groom with a wedding ring of the size of a napkin ring.

The wedding took place in the aldermanic committee room of the borough of Brooklyn and was the result of a six-year courtship.

FOUR DIE WHEN HIT BY A TRAIN

WOMEN ARE KILLED AS ENGINE PILOT PLOWS INTO AN OUTING PARTY

TWO OTHERS ARE INJURED

Victims, Whose Bodies Are Terribly Mangled by Swift Running Passenger Locomotive, Belonged to Well Known Families

Cumberland, Md.—Four women were killed and two injured early at night when a Baltimore & Ohio passenger train struck an outing party on the Western Maryland railway extension, one mile west of Frostburg station.

The Dead.

Mrs. Carrie Schneider, 27, wife of Ezra Schneider.

Orlando Florida, who was visiting her sister, Mrs. Morris Wetmore of Frostburg.

Miss Jennie Schneider, 22.

Miss Bessie Williams, 12.

The Injured.

Miss Edna Hanley, 30.

Miss Minnie Schneider, 30.

The young folks were on an afternoon jaunt. They were walking toward Frostburg returning home on a curve with their backs toward the approaching train.

A freight train had just passed on the westbound track. Passenger Engineer Frank Cunningham saw the danger and blew the whistle, but he was speeding about 40 miles an hour and his train was on them before he could slow down. The engine pilot plowed into the party, badly mangling the bodies.

DIVORCE SELVES FROM G. O. P.

Walter F. Brown and A. L. Garford Cast Their Lots With Roosevelt and Progressive Party.

Cleveland, O.—Walter F. Brown, former member of the national Republican committee, Ohio manager for Roosevelt in the primary campaign and until two weeks ago chairman of the Republican state central committee, formally baptized himself in the Roosevelt Bull Moose party stream. At the same time A. L. Garford of Elyria, another member of the Republican state committee, who is now talked of as a Bull Moose candidate for governor, divorced himself from the Republican party and formally cast his lot with the party led in Ohio by James R. Garfield.

Dies After Six Round Bout.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Albert Palmer, 18, known more or less prominently throughout the country as "Kid" Palmer, the lightweight boxer, died in the Polyclinic hospital from the effects of injuries sustained during a six-round bout at a local theater. Palmer had been in poor condition when he entered the ring, and according to his antemortem statement he had asked to be released from his engagement, but when the promoters taunted him about showing a yellow streak he gamely went on and received the drubbing which resulted in his death.

Bolt Kills Two During Storm.

Niles, Mich.—A phenomenally heavy cloudburst confined in its devastating effects to an area within a radius of three miles of this city caused the death of two persons, injured many others, washed out seven railway bridges, destroyed miles of railroad tracks, stopped street car traffic in Niles and other towns, held up all trains of the Big Four and the Michigan Central, and did hundreds of thousands of dollars damage. Fourteen inches of rain fell in Niles and the neighborhood.

Farmer Kills Neighbor.

Erie, Pa.—Because one George Roberts refused to release Joseph Kozkowski's cattle, which he had penned up after they had gone through a broken fence on his property, Kozkowski, the police charge, killed Roberts with a shotgun he held in his hands.

Kozkowski is imprisoned at the county jail and a jury called by Coroner Hanley found that the shooting was premeditated and recommended the charge of murder be brought against the accused man.

INDICTS BECKER AND SIX OTHERS

GRAND JURY HANDS DOWN BLANKET INDICTMENT IN GOTHAM MURDER CASE.

ACTION FOLLOWS TESTIMONY

Material Witnesses Tell What They Know About Slaying of Herman Rosenthal in Front of Hotel at New York City.

New York City.—Seven of the men now under arrest for complicity in the assassination of gambler Herman Rosenthal were named in a blanket indictment returned by the grand jury before Judge Mulqueen in the court of general sessions. The men named are:

Lieut. Charles Becker, accused of having plotted to kill Rosenthal. Becker already has been indicted, but the former writ is superseded by this new one.

William Shapiro, driver of the gray automobile in which the gangsters went to the Hotel Metropole and killed Rosenthal.

Frank Cirofici, also known as "Dago Frank."

Frank Muller, known as "Whitey" Lewis.

Harry Horowitz, known as "Gyp the Blood."

Louis Rosenzweig, known as "Lefty Louie," gangman, alleged to have been in the automobile.

The four last named are the men who are alleged to have done the actual shooting. All four are known as "gunmen."

The indictment followed the giving of testimony to the grand jury by Zelig that "Jack" Rose sought out Zelig and told the East Side gang leader that Becker wanted Rosenthal killed and that Zelig then gathered four of his followers and told them: "You had better get Rosenthal, for you know how easy it will be for Becker to send you up the river."

Sam Schepps next told the grand jury that he was present when the $1,000, which he understood was borrowed by Becker from Bridgey Webber the gambler, was paid to the men who shot Rosenthal to death. Schepps was before the grand jury for half an hour and corroborated "Jack" Rose's confession in detail.

Four witnesses in behalf of Zelig told the jury that when Zelig was arrested by Detectives Steinert and White of Becker's "strong arm" squadron several weeks ago, and accused of carrying concealed weapons, Zelig turned his pockets inside out and said: "I call you to witness that I have no weapon. They are going to frame it up on me."

GEN. WILLIAM BOOTH IS DEAD

Venerable and Aged Head of the Salvation Army Expires After Long Illness in His English Home

London, Eng.—The Rev. William Booth, general and commander-in-chief of the Salvation Army, passed away at 10:13 p. m. on August 20. He was born at Nottingham in 1829.

Twelve weeks ago Gen. Booth underwent an operation for the removal of a cataract in his left eye. For two days after the operation indications justified the hope of the general's recovery. Then septic poisoning set in and from that time, with the exception of occasional rallies, the patient's health steadily declined.

The aged Evangelist died at his residence, the Rookstone, Hadleywood, some eight miles from London, where he had been confined to his bed ever since the operation.

Public interest now centers in the question of a successor to the late commander. Under the constitution of the Salvation Army the general nominates his successor. That General Booth did several years ago, placing the name in a sealed envelope which was deposited with the Salvation Army's lawyers with instructions that it should not be opened until after his death.

While nobody knows what name the envelope encloses, the general belief among the Salvation Army is that it will prove to be that of Bramwell Booth, who for 30 years has been its chief of staff.

78 Hurt When Grandstand Falls.

Indianapolis, Ind.—By the collapse of the grandstand at the Gov. Marshall notification meeting in front of the Indiana Democratic Club in Vermont street, 75 people were injured. Many received serious injuries.

It came while Alton B. Parker was delivering the notification speech to Gov. Marshall.

For a time there was much confusion, but in a few minutes the crowd had recovered its composure and the work of rescue began. After the removal of the injured who were taken into buildings nearby and later removed to hospitals and their homes, Mr. Parker continued his speech.

Small Homes Overtaxed.

Washington, D. C.—How local slums bear tax burdens escaped by millionaires, is recited in a special report made to the house by a special investigating committee. Washington's "choicer spots," the committee declares, are grossly overvalued for taxation. "Small homes are overassessed," the committee states. Millionaires whose palatial residences are undervalued include Perry Belmont, Senator Dupont, Levi Z. Leiter, W. J. Boardman, Larz Anderson, John R. McLean and former Senator Clark.

Mosquitoes Kill Aged Man.

Milwaukee, Wis.—The wet summer has caused the mosquito pest to become a thing of terror in many parts of the state. In Appleton, where a church college flourishes, the young theologues compare the pest to the plague of flies as told in the days of Moses and churches are holding special prayer services to ask heaven to rid them of the mosquitoes. At Grand Rapids, Wis., Fred Geise, 82, was found to have been so badly mosquito bitten that he could not see to find his way home and died.

LIMITED IS WRECKED

PENNSYLVANIA TRAIN LEAVES TRACK WHILE RUNNING A MILE A MINUTE.

Several Passengers Severely Injured When Five Cars Topple Over Into Corn Field.

Van Wert, Ohio.—The west-bound Pennsylvania limited, eighteen-hour New York-Chicago train, while running 60 miles an hour, was wrecked by the spreading of the rails six miles east of here.

Albert Bernard, a passenger, residing at the corner of Forty-fourth and Lake avenue, Chicago, is in a hospital suffering from a fractured skull and internal injuries. His wife also is seriously injured.

Others injured were Mrs. H. H. Brawley, Los Angeles, Cal., back injured and body bruised; H. G. Rayler, Chicago, wounded on top of head.

John H. Greaves, 160 Broadway, New York, was completely buried with road ballast while lying in his berth, but escaped with severe bruises. Five cars toppled over in a corn field, and 50 passengers escaped with slight bruises.

The fact that the cars were of steel doubtless saved the lives of many people.

POSTMASTERS TO MEET.

Convention of Ohio Division Will Be Held September 4 and 5.

Columbus, O.—The annual convention of the National League of Postmasters, Ohio division, will be held at the Chamber of Commerce, September 4 and 5. It is composed of postmasters of the third and fourth class offices. A week later postmasters of second and third class offices composing the National Association of Postmasters will meet at the same place and the convention will continue three days. There are 320 second and third class, and 1,760 third and fourth class postoffices in Ohio.

TOWNSHIP TREASURER IS SHOT

Columbus, O.—The total shortage of C. E. Stocklen, the missing treasurer of Circleville township and school accounts, amounts to $11,256.70, according to the report of Examiner Calvin F. Godfrey on the school and town accounts of Pickaway county, made public by the state accounting bureau. Stocklen's sureties will be called upon to make good the loss. Stocklen disappeared after the examiner started on his account, which covers the school and township year for 1912.

The members of the Zanesville board of review each drew $63 excess pay and also charged up the use of their rigs to the city as livery hire, getting approximately $250 for this, all of which was unlawful according to the report of State Examiner H. F. Walters. In Richland county State Examiner F. H. Doyle found that the county owed ex-Auditor H. W. Weider $552.78.

TWO CANAL BOATS SOLD.

Hamilton, O.—The steam canal boat Lady Hamilton and her consort, the City of Dayton, built two years ago at a cost of $25,000, sold at sheriff's sale for $200. Shortly after their completion the inventor, George W. C. Lamb, of Cincinnati, sued the company on his patents for $25,000, but the blow-off came on the launching of the boats when it was discovered that the Lady of Hamilton had been built too wide to go through any of the locks between here and Cincinnati, and both have been at moorage in the Hamilton docks ever since. The legislature was appealed to to widen the canal but refused.

FORTUNATE ESCAPE.

Springfield, O.—What might easily have been one of the most severe catastrophes in the history of the Pennsylvania railroad in this immediate vicinity of Ohio was miraculously avoided when the passenger train due in this city at 7:20 p. m. from Xenia, and consisting of an engine, baggage car and three day coaches, was ditched near Goes Station. Not one of the 30 or more passengers on the train was injured, and they succeeded in emerging from the derailed coaches without difficulty.

WIDOW DIES OF BURNS.

Lancaster, O.—Mrs. Ovid Black, who was seriously burned in a gas explosion in her home when she lighted a match and discovered that her husband had committed suicide, died from her injuries. Her husband had been at home alone and ended his life by inhaling gas after he had opened all of the gas jets in the house. When Mrs. Black returned home she struck a match and the explosion followed. Enveloped in flames she ran from the house.

OHIO MAN IS HONORED.

Ada, O.—Brigham Scott Young, of Ada, who was elected supreme vice chancellor of the Knights of Pythias of the world, at Denver, Colo., is the third Buckeye man to secure the honor. Howard Douglass, of Cincinnati, and Walter Richie, of Lima, also had filled that office. Mr. Young is an expert chemist, having been dean of the department of pharmacy in the Ohio Northern university at Ada for 20 years, from 1885 to 1905. He has a fine laboratory at his home.

TEAM FALLS INTO DITCH.

Lima, O.—Two horses owned by the Allen county infirmary and driven by Harry Heiner, teamster, an employe of that institution, fell into a ditch at the corner of Woodlawn and Lakewood avenues, while traveling south on Woodlawn avenue. The team was badly injured. Chief John Mack, of the fire department, and Capt. Earnst, of the police force, responded to a call for help in an automobile. The horses were lifted out by about thirty-five men who gathered to help.

THREE KILLED IN AUTO

Train Strikes Machine and Bodies of Victims Are Terribly Mangled.

Columbus, O.—C. E. Beauchamp, 27, of Chicago, was killed, together with two other men here when an automobile in which they were riding was run down by a Pan-Handle mail train on the B. & O. tracks. The others killed were Frank L. Irwin, 27, head engineer of the Ralston Steel Car Co., and Benjamin E. Kleg, 23. Beauchamp was an inspector for Albee & Co., of Detroit, and at the time of the accident the three men were on their way to examine some cars which the Ralston Co. was building for the K. & M. railroad. The train was going 55 miles an hour when it hit the auto squarely. The machine was demolished and the bodies of the victims mangled.

ELEVATOR IS BURNED.

Thousands of Bushels of Grain Go Up in Smoke at Raymond—Is Second and Loss For Benton.

Marysville, O.—Samuel Benton's grain elevator at Raymond, this county, was destroyed by fire, including several thousand bushels of oats, wheat and a ton of bran and all machinery.

The fire was caused by the explosion of a lantern in the engine room. Mr. Benton was severely burned about the hands and face in his efforts to save some of the grain. The loss is $9,000, with $6,000 insurance.

Benton's elevator at Pottersburg, this county, was destroyed by fire three weeks ago as a result of a spark from a passenger train engine on the Erie railroad.

SALESMEN START NEW CLUB.

Dayton, O.—The Ohio Confectioners' Salesman club was the outcome of a meeting held by the Ohio Confectioners' club, which met in annual session in this city. The officers chosen by the new organization are George Oswald, Toledo, president; Chas. Young, Lima, secretary and treasurer. The club has 40 members.

After a discussion of the topic a vote was taken not to discriminate against the small retail buyer. Many believed that purchasers of large quantities of sweets should be given better prices.

VETERANS OF 45TH MEET

Bellefontaine, O.—The 38th annual reunion of the 45th regiment, O. V. I., was held here, and it was decided to meet here again next year. The officers elected are: President, Charles H. Durfey, of Columbus; vice president, Samuel Altman, of Bellefontaine; secretary, Miss Rebecca Womsley, of Springfield; treasurer, R. B. Keller, of Bellefontaine. Hiram Shirk, of Harrisburg, Franklin county, unexpectedly met his sister, Mrs. William Reames, of West Liberty, wife of a veteran. He had not seen her for 35 years.

TO INSTALL CLUSTER LIGHTS.

Springfield, O.—The park board approved the draft of the contract with the Sackett Mine Supply Co. for the installation of 112 cluster lights in Snyder park, with the necessary equipment. The contract price is $6,909, and after approving the terms of the contract, the board authorized President Frank MacGregor to sign it for that body.

MAN COVERED BY FIRE.

Springfield, O.—Nicholas Boyer was terribly burned at the plant of French & Hecht, where a flaming torch ignited some naphtha. His head, shoulders and hands were covered by the burning liquid. Boyer was rushed to the hospital. His injuries, it is stated, will not prove fatal. The loss to the plant was slight.

MAN KILLED AT POTTERY.

Zanesville, O.—Isaac T. Williams, 58, was instantly killed at the Brush-McCoy pottery, at Roseville, when he was crushed to a pulp by an elevator. Williams attempted to step from a moving elevator and was caught between the floor of the elevator and the doorsill.

STRUCK BY TRACTION CAR.

Lima, O.—Struck by a speeding Lima-Fort Wayne limited traction car and instantly killed while watching a Pennsylvania freight train pass was the fate of Howard Alexander, aged 32, a section foreman. His skull was crushed and his body was badly mangled.

MEETS DEATH IN RUNAWAY.

Piqua, O.—When her horse ran away Mrs. Cynthia Wilkinson, aged 65, was thrown out of the buggy and dragged for nearly a mile. She died of her injuries.

INSTALLING BLOCK SYSTEM.

Marietta, O.—Another improvement of considerable importance is being made by the Parkersburg, Marietta Inter-Urban Co. It is having a block signal system, and it will make the car service much safer and faster. The system is one that is in use on many of the larger lines of the country, and it is proving a great success everywhere that it has been tried. A small section of the system has already been installed along the lines of the company.

WORKS SMOOTH TRICK TO ROB.

Lima, O.—Representing himself to be connected with a local telephone company, and expressing a desire to test a telephone, a slick-tongued individual with an unlimited amount of nerve, gained admission to the home of Dr. Henderson, of Lafayette, and carried away a gold watch, valued at about $30, and $10 in cash. Other similar robberies have been reported from this same community which indicate the man is a professional.

MARSHALL SAYS HE WILL ACCEPT

Governor of Indiana Formally Notified of His Nomination for the Vice Presidency.

DEMOCRACY DEFINED BY HIM

Rule of the People Not Essentially Rule by the People—He Believes Return of His Party to Power Would Right Prevailing Wrongs.

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 20.—Governor Marshall was formally notified this afternoon of his nomination for the vice presidency by the national Democratic convention. The notification committee, headed by Judge Alton Parker, was received at the state fair grounds at 2 o'clock and the chairman made a brief address.

In accepting the honor of the nomination, Governor Marshall said in part:

It will be well for the voter to clear up some hazy definitions. We have for many years been entertaining a belief founded upon no fact whatever, that Democracy and Republicanism represent different ideas of government. The Republican has looked upon the Democrat as a man opposed to the government. The Democrat has looked upon the Republican as a man opposed to the people's rule and in favor of aristocratic sway. It is time for us to remember that Democracy is not a system of government. Indeed, Democracy may find its expression in any one of numerous systems.

The rule of the people is not essentially rule by the people by their votes even when Democracy has unfolded to full manhood suffrage, the people may have a monarchical form of government. The people's rule does not depend upon the number of votes nor necessarily upon the system of government under which they vote. Good or bad government must go back to good or bad citizenship, to intelligent or ignorant, to honest or dishonest electors. I venture the assertion that if the electoral franchise were now granted to all the citizens of Russia, the Little Father would again be crowned in Peter's City.

"Classes" in America.

The historic Democratic party of America had its inspiration and its aspiration in the life and conduct of its great founder. It is time now to have a perfect concept of that Democracy, for, in recent years, we have divided ourselves into three classes and the classification has been made not by the heart throbs of men but by their social condition. We have those who are immeasurably rich and who are looking for more and we have those who are unutterably poor and who are growing poorer. Between these extremes, we have a great middle class, living well and reasonably content except for the uncertainty of not knowing whether they are to rise into the first class or sink into the third.

Many have assumed that only the unutterably poor and those sinking into that class were Democrats, and that the immeasurably rich and the climbers were Republicans. But these divisions have not been logical.

Republican "Senile Dementia."

This campaign calls upon some for justice, upon others for charity, upon all for patriotism. It does not call for the bandying of epithets nor for an appeal to the personal. We may safely leave to that senile dementia which has seized the so-called Republican party the personalities of this campaign. Its unfitness to rule the republic is disclosed by its inability to keep its temper. It was cohesive so far as its leadership was concerned while it was engaged in looting the public, but even its leaders are now disorganized while quarreling over the loot.

Though a majority of the people have been voting the Republican ticket and have been assuming thereby that the majority would rule, the disgraceful but purifying scenes which have been enacted recently in Republican conventions disclose that a large number of those who have been voting the Republican ticket are Democrats at heart. These scenes disclose further that we have been mistaken in some of our conclusions touching government in America. We have yielded a quiet assent to the proposition that a majority is all-powerful and that a minority has no rights which a majority is bound to respect. But now we know that the theory of the historic Democratic party that it is the right of a majority to rule but only within constitutional limitations and without the usurpation of a single inalienable right of a single individual, is correct.

Majority Becomes Minority.

It is only when majorities thus rule that governmental machines move without friction. The right of a majority to thus rule must always be conceded. I wonder, however, if it has dawned upon the sober second thought of this people that it is possible for a majority to be a minority and that it is equally possible for a minority to be a majority. At first blush, it would seem that the officials elected by the plurality of votes become the representatives of the majority and that as such, they rule. But I am not in error when I declare that it is not the mere number of votes which determines a majority in America, in the sense of having the power to formulate the policy, enact the legislation and control the government, and I point to the election of 1908 for proof. The protest of every man who voted for President Taft and who is now dissatisfied with the president's management of public affairs proves that for four years a minority has been the majority in America.

The social condition which we call Democracy and which finds its avenue of expression at the polls through our party, is unalterably opposed to special privilege whether granted by the law or seized by ruthless ambition. It is true the mother of all special privilege is the high protective tariff. All who voted the Democratic ticket at the last presidential election were unalterably opposed to this system of unjust taxation and a sufficient number of those who voted the Republican ticket were likewise convinced of its iniquity to make an overwhelming majority against it. Save a favored few, all were agreed that relief, to a greater or less extent, should be afforded to the people from the unjust exactions of this system. All knew that we could not educate the people of America indiscriminately, enlarge their views of life and happiness and then by the high cost of living deprive them of their pleasures without making of American life a seething caldron of discontent. Theoretically speaking, therefore, the majority of votes, having put a party in power upon a platform pledged to relieve the people of their burdens, has been ruling under constitutional limitations. But this is not so. Immediately after the election the minority became the majority in the sense that it assumed control of legislation with reference to special privilege. All the members of the Democratic party and all the protesting members of the Republican party have been in the minority when it came to counting votes where the count fixed the cost of living. It may be said that this is a mere accident of politics, a single illustration and that it will not occur again. But it is no accident. It is only one of the many illustrations. It simply discloses the utter folly of a man remaining a member of a party when the party policy ceases to voice his inner spirit. The Republican party does not recede now from its protective theory. Its return to power will mean again the rule of a minority and the theoretical idea of Democracy will continue to be the practical aristocracy of special privilege in this country.

Choice for the Voter.

The voter who cannot satisfy himself this year is indeed censorious. Eliminating the verbiage of platforms, taking their substance and viewing the candidates placed on them, the voter who believes that the cost of production at home and abroad should be equalized to the manufacturer of this country and who wants an oligarchy to rule, may vote the straight Republican ticket; the voter who believes in a similar protective theory but who prefers to an oligarchy that the president shall be the state, may vote the Progressive ticket; the voter who believes this government should be turned into a socialism, may vote the Socialistic ticket; the voter who thinks that church and state are not separate in America and that the people have a right to settle religious questions and to determine by ballot what is good and what is bad, may vote the Prohibition ticket, and all those who insist that it is not the business of the government to equalize the cost of production at home and abroad to the manufacturer until it equalizes the difference in the purchase price to the consumer at home and abroad, who believes that the only equalization justifiable in our government is the equalization of opportunity, who thinks that public office is a public trust, who does not believe that disgruntled and defeated politicians are genuine reformers, and who think that reforms are not born with sore toes, may vote the Democratic ticket.

I respectfully urge all those who are opposed to special privilege to ally themselves this year with the historic Democracy, the cornerstone of whose edifice is the Declaration of Independence and the keystone of which is the Golden Rule. At Baltimore, it proved its right to be because there it arose and by its proposed policy met the needs and wants of a people.

Results of Economic Injustice.

It is idle for a thoughtful man in America, whether millionaire or pauper, to longer play the ostrich. Safety does not consist in hiding one's head in the sands of either sentiment or hope. It is foolish for the vastly rich to keep on insisting that more and more shall be added to their riches through a specious system of special legislation ostensibly enacted to run the government, in reality enacted to loot the people. It is worse than ignorance for them to smile at the large body of intelligent Americans who regard themselves fortunate if the debit and credit accounts of life balance at the end of each year; and to assume that the mighty many, who are becoming convinced that that social system which we call Democracy is but a glittering generality, will long endure the industrial slavery being produced. The hour has come when patriotism must consist in something more than eulogies upon the flag.

Whether voting the ticket or not, men everywhere looking upon the awful injustice of this economic system are becoming socialistic in theory if not in conduct. And shall any fair-minded man say that if it redounds to the interests of the people of this country that a hundred men should control its business to the good of everyone, that there is anything fallacious in the theory that government instead of transferring business to a favored few for the benefit of all should itself discharge that business for the benefit of all? I have never been able to convince myself that either system would not cast a pall over human action and dull the motives which have heretofore moved mankind to the very loftiest endeavor and produced what I conceive to be the most perfect system of government ever devised by the brain of man since that far-off theocracy of the Jew went down beneath his demand for the pomp and splendor of earthly power. And yet, I do not hesitate to say that if it be impossible to restore this Republic to its ancient ideals, which I do not believe, and I must make the ultimate choice between the paternalism of the few and the socialism of the many, count me and my house with the throbbing heart of humanity.

Three Grades of Citizens.

The discontent in Republican ranks is Democratic discontent. How much of it has reached the point where wearied with the bad workings of a good system, it is willing to topple that system over and try something new, I cannot prophesy. But I am quite sure that whatever badges men may wear in America this year, whatever ballots they may cast and whatever battle-cries they may utter, there are but three grades of citizens. The first grade is made up of the favored few, their hangers-on and their beneficiaries, who think the eagle is upon the dollar, not as an emblem of liberty but as an emblem of power and who look upon government as an annex to their business affairs. These are they who in the past years of Republican misrule have turned the temple of constitutional freedom into a money-changers' mart and have made of the coordinate branches of government obeisant lackeys of the jingling guinea.

The second grade consists of those whose outlook upon life has been enlarged by the civilization under which we live, who have been taught by the school and the college, by the press and the magazine, who appreciate and enjoy the good things of life, whose horizon has been enlarged and whose capacity for joy and sorrow has been increased. Conditions have become unbearable to them. They hesitate to hope for reform so often has it been promised to them and so often has it been denied. They have reached the point where in the struggle for that which they believe to be right, they are willing to destroy the ideals of the Republic. How many there are of these I do not know, but I do know that special privilege in the Republic is breeding them day by day like rabbits in a warren.

Old Fashioned Democrats.

The third grade of citizens it pleases me to call old-fashioned constitutional Democrats. These are they who believe that the equality of mankind does not consist in an equality of brain and brawn but in an equality whereby every man, native and foreign-born, has an inalienable right to exercise all of his ability in getting on in the world just so he realizes that in getting on he owes it to himself, to his family and to the Republic to see to it that he gets on honestly and that he does not prevent any other man from obtaining the reward of his honesty and enterprise. These old-fashioned Democrats believe in making money, but they believe that every dollar made should be so clean that an infant may cut its teeth upon it. They hold that it is no part of government to boost one man and to boot another, and that any system of government which enables one man to take advantage of another is not a system under which a Democratic condition of life can thrive. They hold that from age to age, social and economic conditions change, but that the great principle of the equality of all men before the law can never change while time shall last, and that the honest interpretation of this great principle in statutory enactment, judicial construction and executive conduct, will take from the life of a people the mighty avarice of the few, bind up the broken hearts of the many and loose the bonds of all who are in slavery to wrong, injustice and ignorance.

If I doubted that the return of the historic Democratic party to power would fail to right the wrongs of industrial life, to wipe out the injustices of legislation and to preserve the opportunity of every man for happiness, then my voice, now weak, would be silent. If I did not believe that, in so far as human agency can, this party of ours will promote the brotherhood of mankind, I would here and now repudiate it. But believing as I do that the Republic had its origin in an aspiration which did not come from the mere brain of a mere man but sprang from the heart of humanity, believing that this age more than any which has preceded it calls for conscience and brotherhood in governmental affairs, hoping that every sacrifice of mind and body and personal good which has been made is a guaranty of the perpetuity of this, the latest and greatest experiment upon the part of a Democracy to work out its ideals in government, and trusting that the God of Washington, the founder and of Lincoln, the preserver, will still be the God of the republic and will not permit his chosen people to forever wander in the wilderness of legislative sin, I accept upon its platform the nomination of the Democratic party for vice president of the United States. And may my right hand forget her cunning and my tongue cleave to the roof of my mouth if in all my gettings I fail to get that greatest gift—wisdom and understanding to know the heart break and the need of our common humanity.

Paean to Pie.

A pie is an expression of the soul, and longings of the heart blended in flakes and fragments, a combination of the smiles of the cook, the song she sings and the grace of her white arms. These are inherent in the perfect pie. They belong to the divine affinities which Chicago can not appropriate, because it is given over to materialism, ice cream and salad, the mere formalities and shells of life. How much happier this world would be if everybody who made pies could make good ones. There have been pies we have eaten that set us alongside of angels, and there have been pies that relegated us to the company of other fellows.—Ohio State Journal.

Mustn't Let Chicks Squawk.

Sam Weiss, owner of an apartment house next door to the poultry yard of John Lefkowitz, at Cleveland, brought suit for $1,000 damages against Lefkowitz and applied for an injunction to restrain the fowls from disturbing the early morning slumbers of the apartment house tenants. Common Pleas Judge W. B. Neff granted the injunction, saying when asked how he would restrain the squawking of the ducks, the cackling of the hens and the clarion calls of the chanticleers, that the owner must "give them away, muffle them or chop their heads off."

There is nothing like versatility. New York has ball teams at the top and bottom of the ladder, playing to optimists and pessimists alike.

MANY TURNED DOWN

CHAS. L. WARRINER AMONG NUMBER WHO ARE DENIED PAROLE FROM PENITENTIARY.

Only Five Applications Out of Twenty-Eight Receive Favorable Consideration.

Columbus.—Rejecting 23 applications for parole from the penitentiary, among which was one from Charles L. Warriner, serving six years for embezzlement of approximately $600,000 from the Big Four railroad, the state board of administration held its regular meeting.

Thomas Raglin, one of the men to be paroled Jan. 1, serving 10 years from Clark county for manslaughter, committed the crime for which he was convicted during an animated discussion over the question of woman suffrage.

Others paroled were: Homer Henderson, shooting to wound, Hamilton county, two years; John Feller, blackmail, Cuyahoga county, three years; Harry Allenworth, rape, Lucas county, 15 years.

Frank Whisner, serving 18 years from Franklin county for manslaughter, will be granted a rehearing Oct. 11. Feller's and Henderson's paroles go into effect immediately and Allenworth's Oct. 15.

Buying Ohio Utility Properties.

The American Gas and Electric Co. is adding to its public utility plants in Ohio, deals having just been closed for two additional gas and electric companies in this state. The company already controls properties at Canton, Newark, Tiffin and Fremont, and has now taken over the properties at Mt. Vernon and Lancaster. The plant at Lancaster supplies electric light and power to a population of approximately 15,000, while that at Mt. Vernon covers a territory with about the same population. The president and principal owner of the Mt. Vernon company is N. L. C. Kachelmacher, formerly president of the old Columbus and Hocking Coal and Iron Co. The Mt. Vernon power station is new, having been built but a short time. In addition to furnishing current for light and power, the Mt. Vernon company operates the city street car system and an interurban line to the state institution near Mt. Vernon. It is reported that the American Gas and Electric Co. is negotiating for other properties in Ohio and if these are taken over the company will have a compact group of lighting and power companies in central Ohio.

Execution Does Not Deter Crime.

At considerable trouble and expense Secretary Charles B. Galbreath, of the Ohio Constitutional convention, has collected and prepared detailed figures to show that capital punishment is a failure as a preventive of crime. He is preparing a vigorous campaign for the adoption of the Pierce proposal to amend the constitution forbidding the taking of life for crime.

His figures seem to show that legal executions are no deterrent to crime because the state that have most legal executions also have most lynchings. Ohio suffers badly in comparison with Michigan and Wisconsin, Mr. Galbreath finds. These states did away with the death penalty many years ago.

Statistics seem to show pretty clearly that the infliction of the death penalty does not prevent lynchings. The states that lead in legal executions also lead in lynchings. This is a record of the United States for the years 1890 to 1911 inclusive.

Declares War on Rats.

Fear that the plague now menacing New Orleans and the California coast may gain foothold in the United States and thus endanger the nation, will cause Dr. Eugene F. McCampbell, secretary of the state board of health, in the August number of the state board's bulletin, to sound a warning against rats, said to be responsible for spreading of the plague.

He will ask the health officer of every community and city and village to urge a crusade for the extermination of the rodents.

Dr. McCampbell's article is not intended as a source of alarm. According to his own statement, it is meant only to effect a wise precaution against a possible health enemy.

Will Head Ohio Board.

Dr. Thomas B. Brown, former bacteriologist for the state of Delaware and later bacteriologist for the Isthmian canal commission, has been appointed the active head of the Ohio state board of health, according to an announcement made.

Liquor Tax Cleaned Up.

When a draft for $23,983.35 was issued on the treasurer of Licking county by the state auditor for liquor traffic taxes, the last county was stricken from the list of those whose tax for the six months period ending July 1 remained unpaid.

Ask For Better Service.

Charging the Columbus Railway and Light Co. and the Ohio Electric Railway Co. with violation of the city franchises under which they are operating because they do not run sufficient cars on that part of the old loop embracing Gay, Third, Rich and Scioto streets, which runs from Scioto street east on Rich to Third street, James Ross and other residents of the city filed a petition before the public service commission asking that the companies be compelled to resume adequate service over the route.

Permission to sell the Standard Light and Power Co. of Fostoria, a $82,500 property, to Field W. Swezey, representing the American Gas and Electric Co. of New York, which operates electric lighting and power systems in Canton, Newark, Tiffin, Mt. Vernon and Fremont, is asked in a petition filed with the commission.

Inability to pay for gas mains which it is constructing in the villages of Nevada and Morral, is the basis of which the Venture Gas Co. of Lima, has filed a petition asking that it may increase its capital stock from $8,600 to $14,000.

Health Board Meets.

At the meeting of the state board of health in Cincinnati the city officials of Zanesville and Canal Dover were ordered to submit within 90 days to the board plans and specifications for a new water supply and for sewage purification, respectively.

The plan for the connecting of the sewerage systems of Kennedy Heights and Pleasant Ridge was approved. This is one of the first steps toward co-operation in solving the sewerage problem of Cincinnati suburbs.

One of the most important actions of the board was the passing of a regulation providing for monthly reports of all cases of tuberculosis in this state. The report to the board will be made through more than 2,000 local boards of health and will be made compulsory. This action was taken at the instance of the State Society for the Prevention of Tuberculosis, and in the discussion on the subject the members of the board expressed themselves as being convinced that the disease is contagious and should be regulated, as is smallpox and other diseases of that class.

New Wells For Producers.

The deep sand territory in southeastern Ohio is representing a large number of new wells, some of which are developing good producing qualities. In the central and lower end of the field good producers are being found and in the extreme northern end dusters are coming in. In Coal township, Perry county, the Churtiers Oil Co. has completed Nos. 51 and 54, on the Hocking Product Co.'s property. The first is good for 90 barrels and the last for 20 barrels a day. In the New Straitsville district, Gates, Davidson and Moran's No. 4, on the Upson Coal Co.'s property, is producing 210 barrels. The Lone Star Oil Co.'s town lot well is producing 105 barrels. Northeast of Bremen, in Reading township, Perry county, the Ohio Fuel Supply Co.'s test on the Jacob Barnes farm is producing 280 barrels.

Organize to Visit New York.

Officers of organizations representing farmers, bankers, realty men, educators, grain dealers and railroads of the state met with the state board of agriculture and decided to finance the placing of a comprehensive Ohio exhibit in the American Land and Irrigation Exposition to be held Oct. 19 to Nov. 2 in Seventy-first Regiment Armory, New York.

To raise a fund of $10,000 President Jacob Dean and Secretary A. P. Sandles of the state board of agriculture were authorized to name a committee of 15.

The purpose of the exhibit is to advertise the possibilities of Ohio soil to the outside world and to turn toward Ohio part of the movement back to the farm.

To Guard Against Car Famine.

In an effort to prevent a repetition of the disastrous congestion of coal at Toledo last winter, caused by the lack of railroad carrying facilities, the state public service commission has written a letter to the president of the New York Central Lines, W. C. Brown, and to other roads asking what is being done to prevent the possibility of such a situation again.

The letter tells the head of the New York Central that two of his lines, the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern and the Michigan Central, were unable to furnish cars last winter and intimates that something should be done at once to avert a recurrence of that condition.

Express Companies Extend Deliveries.

Express companies doing business in this city have complied with the order of the public service commission in extending their delivery limits. All of the companies will continue to make deliveries with the equipment in service before the new limits become effective, with the exception of the American Express Co. Representatives of the companies claim a larger area of delivery is now being covered in this city than anywhere in the country in proportion to the population served.

Prize Snake Story.

The prize snake story comes from Lilly, south of Hamden. Of late Mrs. Daniel Cottle had been considerably worried over the disappearance of china eggs. On a visit to the hennery to make the daily gathering she was horrified at the sight of a large black snake which held full possession. Her husband killed the reptile. About six feet in length, its body was found to be knotted with peculiar protuberances. On slitting it open all of the missing china eggs were recovered from within.

Government Sues Big Four.

Through United States District Attorney Sherman T. McPherson a suit was filed by the government in the United States court here for $2,000 against the Big Four railroad. Violation of the hours of service act is charged in working a telegraph operator named H. M. Argenbright more than 16 out of 24 hours.

Permission to Issue Stock.

Permission was given the Cleveland Telephone Co., a [illegible] corporation, to issue additional shares of stock, to the amount of $200,000, in order to remove a floating indebtedness of the same amount at a meeting of the public service commission. The floating indebtedness of the company consists of notes issued by it and has been bearing interest at the rate of 6 per cent. The stock to be issued which is quoted at par pays 5 per cent dividends, so that the company will gain the 1 per cent difference.

Mayor Is Too Honest.

The sum of $1 must be returned to Mayor Byron B. Beacon, of Wellsville, according to the report of a state examiner on the financial condition of that city. That amount was overpaid when the mayor's fees were turned into the city treasury.

Receives Cash for Home.

A draft for $29,854.91 has been received by State Treasurer Creamer which is the federal government's semi-annual allowance for the Sandusky Soldiers' home.

OHIO PROGRESSIVE PARTY ISSUES CALL

COMMITTEE NAMES COLUMBUS AS PLACE TO HOLD THEIR STATE CONVENTION.

Appeals to Buckeye Citizens to Participate in Nominating Full Ticket at Capital on September 4 and 5

Cleveland, O.—Proclamation of the birth of the Ohio Progressive party, pledged to build a new and nobler commonwealth, was made August 20 by the Ohio Provisional Progressive committee when it sent out from Cleveland the call for a state convention of the progressive party to meet in Memorial hall, of Columbus, September 4 and 5. Appeal was made to all Ohio citizens, regardless of previous adherence to Republican, Socialist or Democratic parties, to participate in the nomination of a full state Progressive ticket. Belief in the national Progressive platform is the only qualification.

The summons is signed by James R. Garfield, who is chairman of the committee; E. E. Erskine, Steubenville, secretary; John J. Sullivan, Cleveland; King O. Thompson, Columbus; Carl D. Finch, Bowling Green, and John C. Swan, Marietta.

The call for the Ohio Progressive state convention, in part, is as follows:

Whereas, The Progressive party of the nation has declared:

"The conscience of the people in a time of grave national problems has called into being a new party, born of the nation's awakened sense of justice.

"This country belongs to the people who inhabit it. Its resources, its business, its institutions and its laws should be utilized, maintained, or altered in whatever manner will best promote the general interest.

"Political parties exist to secure responsible government and to execute the will of the people. From these great tasks both of the old parties have turned aside. Instead of instruments to promote the general welfare they have become the tools of corrupt interests which use them impartially to serve their selfish purposes.

"Behind the ostensible government sits enthroned an invisible government owing no allegiance and acknowledging no responsibility to the people. To destroy this invisible government, to dissolve the unholy alliance between corrupt business and corrupt politics is the first task of the statesmanship of the day.

"The deliberate betrayal of its trust by the Republican party and the fatal incapacity of the Democratic party to deal with the new issues of the new time have compelled the people to forge a new instrument of government through which to give effect to their will in laws and institutions. Unhampered by tradition, uncorrupted by power, undismayed by the magnitude of the task, the new party offers itself as the instrument of the people to sweep away old abuses, to build a new and nobler commonwealth."

Now, therefore, be it resolved by the provisional committee of the Progressive party for the state of Ohio, pursuant to all authority unanimously granted by the delegates representing the state of Ohio at the Progressive national convention held at Chicago, Ill., August 5 to Aug. 7, that all electors of Ohio without regard to previous party affiliations who believe in the principles embodied in the platform of the National Progressive party are hereby requested to meet in state convention in Memorial hall in the City of Columbus, O., on Wednesday and Thursday, the 4th and 5th days of September, 1912, for the purpose of nominating candidates to be voted for at the election to be held November 5th, 1912, as follows:

Three presidential electors-at-large, twenty-one district presidential electors, a governor, a lieutenant governor, a secretary of state, an auditor of state, a treasurer of state, an attorney general, a congressman-at-large, the members of the board of public works, a dairy and food commissioner, a commissioner of common schools, three judges of the supreme court (two for regular terms and one to fill the unexpired term of James L. Price, deceased), and a clerk of the supreme court.

The basis of representation in such convention shall be one delegate for each 500 votes and fraction of 250 or more votes cast for Theodore Roosevelt for president of the United States in 1904. In accordance therewith the delegates composing such convention are hereby apportioned among the several counties as follows:

Fight Fatal Duel Over Woman.

Wilkesbarre, Pa.—[illegible] Williams of Hazleton, Pa., died in a hospital from a bullet wound fired by Edward Hachler. Hachler is under arrest charged with murder. Both men were suitors for a woman's hand and both met at her home.

With her consent, the police say, they agreed to fight it out, the winner to take her. The duel was fought at midnight. Each man, armed with a revolver, stepped off 10 paces. They fired. Williams fell with a bullet in his brain.

Two Die in Severe Storm.

Pittsburgh, Pa.—As a result of a series of cloudbursts and electrical disturbances, two persons were drowned and scores made homeless.

William Depoe of Washington, Pa., was driving in the Wolftown road with John Williams. The rush of water, following the cloudburst, swept the rig and the men into Racoon creek. Depoe was drowned. The home of C. R. Fowler of Brownstown, near Scottdale, was swept from its foundations. Fowler and his six children were in house. Margaret was drowned.

MOTHER OF LARGE FAMILY

Tells How She Keeps Her Health—Happiness For Those Who Take Her Advice.

Scottville, Mich.—"I want to tell you how much good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Sanative Wash have done me. I live on a farm and have worked very hard. I am forty-five years old, and am the mother of thirteen children. Many people think it strange that I am not broken down with hard work and the care of my family, but I tell them of my good friend, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and that there will be no backache and bearing down pains for them if they will take it as I have. I am scarcely ever without it in the house.

"I will say also that I think there is no better medicine to be found for young girls. My eldest daughter has taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for painful periods and irregularity, and it has helped her.

"I am always ready and willing to speak a good word for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I tell every one I meet that I owe my health and happiness to your wonderful medicine."—Mrs. J. G. Johnson, Scottville, Mich., R.F.D. 3.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotics or harmful drugs, and today holds the record of being the most successful remedy for woman's ills known.

Moving Pictures Popular.

In a recent number of the Daily Consular Reports are collected memoranda from cities and towns in various distant parts of the world showing the universal quality of the popular interest which the moving pictures excite. England, Japan, Turkey, Mexico, India, Australia and the islands of the sea all have the same story to tell: wherever the cinematograph goes it finds an instant and sustained welcome.

THE FEDERAL TAX

One hundred dollars spent annually. This is the amount the crime of overcapitalization, or watered stocks, costs every American family!

This statement flows easily from the pen but it can be demonstrated by a little arithmetic.

Various prominent financial students and authorities are responsible for the statement, and their conclusions are wholly sustained by reports of the United States Commission and the published figures of the National Corporation Tax Returns, that about $30,000,000,000 of the stocks of our industrial or tariff trusts, represent only water.

On this stock, dividends of about $1,500,000,000 are being paid yearly, amounting to approximately $18 a person or nearly $100 an American family!

This $1,500,000,000 is not picked up out of the streets. Where, then, does it come from? The answer is from the pockets of the consumers. There is not a dollar of water or inflation in the capitalization of corporations which deal in commodities or in railroad or other public service corporations, that does not impose burdens upon the consumers and producers of this country.

The above figures which may be accepted as fairly conservative, in view of the fact that United States Senator LaFollette and various other students of the question assert that the amount of watered stock is more than double the amount estimated above, mean this. That an average family in this country is paying a tax of $100 a year is supporting the overcapitalization of our industries. Can there remain any doubt then, as to overcapitalization being one reason, a sister reason to high tariff, for the ever increasing cost of living?

Watered stock is not only one of the prime causes for increased prices of commodities, but it is also an important cause of the present unsatisfactory conditions of labor. To pay those dividends on watered stock, the trust magnates must either hold down wages abnormally low, or raise prices artificially high. The fact is they are doing both.

Overcapitalization therefore, is obviously one of the most important problems confronting the American people today. Politicians, for some reason, refer to it less than they should. The subject ought to be one of the foremost political issues.

Five hundred glaring illustrations of the crime of overcapitalization could be cited. They would average like this: The Chicago & Alton was capitalized at $30,000,000. When turned over to the purchasing syndicate in 1899 the railroad was capitalized at $94,000,000.

The people are not going to forever permit the Perkins and the Morgans and other financiers to strap upon their backs the burdens of these enormous overcapitalizations, which constitute the increase in the cost of living.

UNIONVILLE.

Mrs. Ehrbar and two children of Cleveland, spent last week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ashby.

Miss Marjorie Martin is spending some time with her aunt, Mrs. Smead, of Ashtabula.

Mrs. Smith of Cleveland, is visiting her sister, Mrs. D. S. Martin.

Mrs. Harriet Harmon of Ashtabula, and Mrs. Jennie Safford of Piqua, are guests at E. L. Morris's.

Miss Charlotte Rote of Cleveland, spent a few days last week with her cousin, Miss Nathalie Rote.

Miss Helen Cook of Painesville, has been spending a week with her friend, Miss Dorothy Darrow.

Mr. Raymond Flower of Chicago Junction, spent a few days last week with his friend, Mr. Giney Nash.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Harper and family of Big Prairie, are at their home here for a week.

Rev. W. C. Detling and little daughter, Dorine, are in Washington, D. C., this week.

Miss Alle Brink of Ashtabula Harbor, was the guest of her friend, Mildred Morris, on the day of the reunion.

Mr. Almon Seager of Ashtabula, helped E. L. Morris in the store on Thursday.

Thursday, Aug. 15, the day of the Unionville Fair and Reunion was the greatest event in the history of this place. The great historical parade at 10 o'clock began at the Russell farm and wended its way down along the county line road and through the town, passing over the very same route taken by Col. Alexander Harper and his band of 25 pioneers who landed at the mouth of Cunningham Creek June 28, 1878. Chas Darrow and B. Stimper led the parade, mounted on fine horses, and following came about 30 beautifully decorated floats, Co. E, Geneva Rifles, Jefferson Boy Scouts, gaily decorated pony rigs, the members of the home and visiting ball teams, and lastly, ending the most elaborate affair of the kind ever attempted in a town of this size, a large number of beautifully decorated automobiles. The size of the crowd gathered to watch this parade has been variously estimated at between 5000 and 7000 people. After the parade several fine speeches were made by prominent men and women. After dinner sports of all kinds were indulged in, and at 3 o'clock there was a ball game between the home team and Nottingham, which ended in the fourteenth inning with a score of 5 to 4 in favor of the visiting team. The greatest day in Unionville's history closed with a fine concert given by noted talent.

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Kneale of Catawba Is., are visiting at his brother's Mrs. Earl Kneale.

Four men in an automobile broke into the house of Mr. C. W. Hicholson on the middle ridge, on Thursday while the family were in Unionville, and looted the house, taking $23 in money and all the silverware and jewelry. They were seen by the overseer's wife, but she of course, suspected nothing. There is no clue.

Mr. and Mrs. Silas Pierce attended the reunion and home coming at Montville last Wednesday.

Woman Suffrage Column
By Lucy Burton Buell

Facts may be used to prove a matter with which they are in no way connected. Here is an example: A leaflet has been put out by the anti suffragists which urges temperance people to vote against woman suffrage because at an election in Denver in 1910, where the women cast nearly half of the votes, the question of closing the saloons was voted down.

At the same time other leaflets are being circulated also by the enemies of the suffrage cause, which urge people to vote against equal suffrage on the ground that it will make every county in Ohio dry—"so dry that the men will be spitting cotton and the women too." These bills are put out by the liquor interests in Ohio and are so worded that they are plainly an effort to make voters think they are put out by the suffrage advocates.

The Ohio Women Suffrage Association says of this underhanded attack:

"It is a dastardly attempt to drag woman suffrage into a question entirely distinct from it. This attempt failed in the Constitutional Convention, which refused to put women suffrage in the column with the liquor amendment. The advocates of woman suffrage have declined steadfastly to line up with any other issue now before the people. Our enemies have tried to do it for us by means of this shameless and dishonorable trick.

"We call on Union Labor to notice that there is no label attached to these bills. No printing house would dare attach a label to such work. So far as we have seen the bills put out by the forces opposed to Amendment 23, and we have seen all on file at the Cleveland anti-suffrage headquarters up to date, not one of them carries the label. Could anything be plainer than what looks like scab printing being used to spread slander against the principles advocated by the laboring classes all over the world? The Ohio Woman Suffrage Association call all men to take notice that the forces working against justice to women have adopted methods decent men will not tolerate. For this reason they dare not do it over their own name, nor will any printer affix the stamp of organized labor to their lies.

"Furthermore, nothing which does not bear the signature of this association can be taken as coming from us. We sign all we print, and put the label on it, too.
(Signed)
(Ohio Woman Suffrage Association."

DEATH PENALTY UNJUSTIFIABLE

A Voice From the Friends.

On behalf of humanity, and for the good of the state we plead for the adoption of amendment No. 2 of our state constitution, providing for the abolition of Capital Punishment.

We would set before the citizens of Ohio the importance of upholding both the truths of Christianity, and the instincts of humanity by their votes on this amendment on the third day of next month.

When "Thou Shalt Not Kill" was re-written into the Christian dispensation, it was made binding upon nations as well as upon individuals. As we come to know Christ's great love for all mankind, and how precious the souls of men are to him, we will invest human life with a sanctity not to be violated.

The State should not in cool deliberation take the life of her wicked and unfortunate subject, who in the heat of anger, the bitterness of revenge, or deep-seated malice, commits a crime SO LIKE the act of the state in the performance of capital punishment!

The law of retaliation, of life, for life, eye for eye, tooth for tooth, which is a part of the Mosaic dispensation, was designed for the government of a people slowly emerging from the barbarism of centuries of degredation and slavery, was replaced in the coming of Christ, our Savior, with the gospel of love and good will to all mankind.

Now that we are given the opportunity of putting into the organic law of our state, a wiser, more humane, and more Christian method of dealing with murderers, let us put an end to the barbarism of judicial murder, substituting therefore life imprisonment.

We fully believe that such a change in our laws will appeal to the better judgment of our citizenship, and command their loyal support; that it will result in increased respect for, and obedience to law and order, and the more certain and speedy punishment of crime, results to be devoutly desired by all good citizens.

Issued by the Representatives of Ohio Yearly Meeting of Friends, at Salem, Ohio, Eighth Month, 10th, 1912.

MENTOR.

Again we have to state that the weather has been quite cool this past week so that some of our people have had fires in grates and soft coal furnaces in order to keep the chill and dampness out of the house. There is nothing in all the world for solid comfort all the time, like a soft coal furnace—let the steam heaters and hot water folks say what they will! While the latter are shivering around most of the time a summer like this, the soft coal owners go quietly down cellar, stuff the furnace with all sorts of rubbish that has a way of accumulating, throwing a little "Pittsburg" on top, and in ten minutes the welcome warmth comes up, dampness all goes up the chimney, and life begins to seem worth living again.

Miss Alma Stoll enjoyed a birthday party last week on Monday, given by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Stoll, at their hospitable home, at which more than 30 young folks from Painesville had a good time and the evening seemed all too short.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry King and daughter Eleanor, returned Saturday evening from their outing at Silver Lake Park, having had a most satisfactory and instructive two weeks. The Chautauqua there proved much better on the whole than the one in New York, taking precedence over the latter indeed, in its "Bryan Day" the New York people having to wait until later. Mr. Bryan disappointed no one and proved himself to be what he is generally conceded to be—the greatest living orator.

Samuel Morley and few others of our "Scouts" and Y. M. C. A. young men left here on Friday for a tend days' camp-fire at "Cottage Grove," which is about eight miles east of Akron.

Several of the Mentor folks were among those who received the very last penny together with interest from the heirs of Judge Aaron Wilcox, and as one of them said in our presence, "That bank officials should voluntarily pay off such an old debt not made by themselves, and for which no law could hold them responsible, gave one a higher idea of humanity." And then we told them that we were told in confidence some years ago by a dear friend of Mr. Aaron Wilcox, that had often said that the one business of his life, the one thought and aim, was and should be to pay off every person in full who had lost money by the failure of his father's bank. "That," he said, "would be father's wish." This same son said that rather than have any stain on the name of Judge Wilcox, he would gladly end his days in the poorhouse, if need be, for said he, "There never was a more upright man in this world than my father." Those who knew about the failure at the time knew it was caused by investing in what proved to be poor securities, and never by any embezzlement or appropriation of the bank's money by those in charge. We, among others, rejoice in the paying off of all these claims and the clearing thereby of any charge that could possibly be made by strangers upon a grand old name.

Mrs. Anna Warren Shumaker has been visiting at the home of her oldest brother, Mr. Albert Warren, of Concord, for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. George Marsh have been spending a few days with relatives down in Salem, we understand.

We notice that the pleasant home of C. W. Sandberg in West Mentor, just opposite the John Newell place, is on the market for sale, and that the George Dille place at the depot is also for sale.

Dr. M. S. Clark and his wife have come here to live with their only son, the new Disciple minister. A reception was given by them to the general public one evening last week which was largely attended, not only by members of their own church but by the village folk in general.

Mr. and Mrs. Weroer Wellington, Mr. and Mrs. Hine of Cleveland, and Mr. Henry Wilson, a former Concord resident, but at present a city dweller, were here to attend the reunion of the Munson family at Mentor park on Wednesday, last, and as usual, a number of favored friends from here were invited and lent their presence there.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Methodist Meeting house here are to give a lawn social on the church grounds on Friday eveing of this week, which will be quite a unique affair in some ways and well worth the trouble to attend. Should the evening be pleasant and warm enough, ice cream is to be served out on the lawn together with wafers for five and ten cents according to whether large or small dishes of the cream are ordered, and delicious home-made candy will also be for sale. Down in the basement there will be a serve yourself lunch from 4 in the afternoon until 8, which is quite an innovation and sure to be well patronized, as all the members of this "Aid" are fine cooks. The object is sociability first, and the ornan fund second.

There have been two applications for the position of teacher of music in the Center schools, the resignation of Miss Eva Cadle, having been accepted with regret. Dame rumor says—but no matter, time will tell.

Mr. and Mrs. N. C. Frost leave the last of this week for a sojourn of several days at Petosky, Mich., and Mr. John Frost will at that time visit his niece at North Evans, New York, and other friends at and near his old home.

Mrs. Eliza Rexford has returned from spending most of the summer with her sister, whose home is in West Hickory, Pa., and is again "at home" in her own pleasant cottage at the east end of the village.

Mrs. E. C. Swain of Coreopolis, Pa., has been spending a few days with Dr. J. W. Lowe and Mrs. Lowe.

Miss Bessie Irwin has just left for some point in Michigan, where she will spend her two weeks vacation from "Hello" office with relatives.

Hon. James R. Garfield has returned from his Chicago trip, and after a few days rest at his Mentor home "Holly Croft," has gone on to Columbus on business.

Mr. and Mrs. James Smith go to Montville this week to attend the "home gathering" there.

The "Old Folks' Day" at the Methodist church on Sunday last was very well attended, rather more white-headed people being in attendance than usual. A good sermon was given by Mr. Schaffner, together with the usual fine music by the choir.

Speaking of Mr. Schaffner, it may be of interest to know that a petition signed by every member of the official board here and from the Plains, has been sent to the bishop begging the return of Mr. Schaffner to this charge at the Conference next month. Should he not be sent back there will be "something doing" and everybody will blame the presiding elder, while we are quietly given to understand that it is the bishop who settles such things, and not Elder Stroup.

Mr. and Mrs. John Oliver have been entertaining for some days past the wife of their brother, Mr. John Oliver, of Niagara Falls.

Mrs. Frank Smith returned home to Akron with her friend, Miss Evelyn Humphrey and her mother, who have been visiting Mrs. A. R. Smith and other friends here for some days.

Mrs. Clark Bradway has been down at North Girard, Pa., this past week with her mother, Mrs. McCollough, and her sister, both of whom are living at the old home there.

Rev. and Mrs. W. H. Dye have been spending a number of weeks with friends in Cumberland, this state, but have returned. Mr. Dye does not expect to be returned here as he is still unable to preach, and we are given to understand will take a complete rest for a year or two in hopes that he may wear off the attack of paralysis with which he was stricken a few weeks after he came here last fall.

Mrs. N. C. Frost entertained at dinner on Saturday last, Mrs. John Shupe of Kirtland, and her daughter Mrs. Maynard Squires, also Miss Carrie Morrison, now of Chicago, the latter remaining for a few days visit at Echo Hill farm, and with other friends here.

Mr. P. E. Siegler and family have returned here to live, and are going to occupy the cottage owned by Mrs. Laura Hodge, and until recently rented by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Higgins. Mr. Siegler is to resume work in the Knitting Mills.

Mr. Jacob Perkins of Cleveland, is the new owner of the Frank Case farm and is making quite a number of improvements, preparatory to coming here to live. Mr. and Mrs. Case will not give possession until December and Mr. Case has charge of all improvements going on this fall.

Mr. and Mrs. T. P. Cadle returned from their trip up the Lakes some days ago, and are down in Lisbon, where they will remain several weeks—probably until their new house is nearly completed and ready to move into.

Mrs. Fannie Hutton of Cleveland, is visiting her cousin, Mr. T. G. Hart, and Mrs. Hart for a short time. Miss Hutton is at home in Cleveland, but is with the "See Mr. Foster Co." in Florida, during the winter season, having spent all of last winter in St. Petersburgh and the two previous at Jackson and Miami. It is needless to say that Miss Fannie is a great lover of Florida, and that she declares she never saw a snake there (humph!)

Among the new automobile owners might be mentioned Mr. A. Q. Fenner, who appeared on the Avenue driving his new machine only last week, we hear.

Prof. R. U. McMillan has been engaged to teach the Mentor High school the ensuing year and will have charge of all other schools at the Center. The Professor comes highly recommended and hails from Canandaigua, New York state. He is a young man and married, but has no children.

Miss Littlejohn who has given such satisfaction in the Intermediate department, has resigned and accepted a better position in the Painesville schools, so that her place is now vacant.

Mrs. Agnes Woodford Higgins has gone to Elyria, where she will be the guest of Miss Lillian Sears for some days, after which she will visit friends in Youngstown and later some relatives of her husband who live in Conneaut.

The Mentor Y. P. Branch of the W. C. T. U. went to Mentor Plains Wednesday evening, where they were guests of the Branch there, and enjoyed a talk by Miss Powers, and a corn roast.

Mr. L. H. Hodges and family, of Painesville, were out here to attend the Hodges family reunion on Wednesday, where about fifty gathered at the home of Mrs. Marion Hodges and enjoyed the day. Dinner was served by the M. E. Sunday school in the church at noon, thereby getting themselves out of debt and gaining the reputation of serving the best dinner ever.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Warren of Concord, have been recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Warren and other relatives here.

Mr. and Mrs. Stiles Scott of Hudson, were called here by the Munson reunion Wednesday, and were guests of Mrs. Elizabeth Cullings Munson and her daughter, while here.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Walker, of Erie, Pa., and Mr. and Mrs. Bennott of Cleveland, were recent guests of at the Warren homestead over Sunday.

Mrs. Sophronia Gray Kowlian and her son Jay, attended the Gray family reunion which was held in Geneva one day last week.

Mrs. John Hollicky of Cleveland, spent a day or two with her parents, the past week.

F. C. Hain is on the sick list but is improving.

Miss Joy Miller of Unionville, is spending a few days with Miss Frances Tibbs.

Mrs. James Morgan attended the pioneer picnic at Mayfield Wednesday.

Mrs. J. H. Dean of Ashtabula called on relatives at Wickliffe on the Lake recently.

C. L. Roberts and daughter, Miss Eva attended the Roberts reunion at Toledo a few days ago.

The Sewing Circle held a picnic at Willoughbeach park Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hurt spent Wednesday at the pioneer picnic at Mayfield.

Miss Lucile Davis made a trip to Detroit the past week.

The Order of Moose held its annual picnic at Willoughbeach park Wednesday.

Mrs. Mary Tinker and children, of Ashtabula, are visiting relatives in town.

Married, last week, Miss Florence Gillespie and James Crobaugh, both of this place.

Mrs. Margaret McCarty and Mrs. Geo. Davit of Painesville, were calling in town Thursday.

Mrs. Battles is out of town to attend her family reunion.

Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Kennedy are spending a week or two at Vinewood.

The regiment to which Henry Goodrich belonged during the Civil war, held its reunion at his home Thursday. Fifteen members were present. A nice dinner was served and all had a good time.

Mr. Urban Hengeback has accepted a position in W. D. Kirby's store.

Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Ketchum and family are away on a weeks' vacation.

"Were all medicines as meritorious as Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy the world would be much better off and the percentage of suffering greatly decreased," writes Lindsay Scott, of Temple, Ind. For sale by all dealers.

RANDOM THOUGHTS
By Tom, Dick and Harry.

Hist! Whisper it softly. There is a rumor abroad in Painesville to the effect that in all Mentor there is not an advocate of woman suffrage. Because, as one of the P'ville suffragists told me, Mrs. Garfield does not favor it!

---

No tax on bonds may be a good thing but I do not believe it. The argument that when taxed the owners of the bonds dodge their taxes anyway, is not sound. Why not exempt mortgages and money at interest for the same reason? If a majority of sneak thieves were able to escape detection, would you favor repealing the law which makes thievery a penalty? Not much. Why would it not be a good plan to require the presentation of a tax receipt showing that all taxes had been paid on bonds before either interest or principal could be paid? You say that a law of that kind would prevent municipalities selling their bonds. How do you know that? They sold readily enough before the tax feature was repealed, and the same would probably be true if they were again made to bear their share of the bonds is [illegible] privilege, because none but those able to pay tax ever own a bond. The fact that they are able to own a bond is evidence that they are able to pay a reasonable rate of tax. The fact is that we have never really tried to tax bonds or other public securities. Beside that there may be other ways in which a city can build needed improvements without issuing bonds, and the time is coming when it will be done. In any event there is no material difference between the owner of a railroad bond and the owner of a municipal or state bond. Why should we make fish of one and flesh of the other? Also, a city has just as good a right to pay tax on improvements owned by the city as any other corporation, and if ever the time comes when cities own and operate their own public utilities, they will be taxed the same as an individual.

SYNOPSIS.

Harding Kent calls on Louise Farrish to propose marriage and finds the house in great excitement over the attempted suicide of her sister Katharine. Kent starts an investigation and finds that Hugh Crandall, suitor for Katharine, who had been forbidden the house by General Farrish, had talked with Katharine over the telephone just before she shot herself.

CHAPTER I.—(Continued.)

The name meant nothing to me and I turned to Louise for explanation. Though there were many callers at the Farrish home, I never had met a Mr. Crandall, nor had I even heard the name mentioned.

"It must have been Hugh Crandall," said Louise. "I was afraid that it was he."

Her remark puzzled me. The only Hugh Crandall I knew anything about was a prosperous young broker whom I never had met personally, though I had seen his name occasionally in connection with exchange and club affairs.

"Do you mean Hugh Crandall, the broker?" I asked.

Louise nodded, and leaning against my shoulder, told me of a chapter of her family history with which I was wholly unfamiliar. This man, it seemed, had met her sister two years before on a steamer on which they were returning from Europe. After that he had been a frequent visitor at the Farrish home. Katharine was very fond of him, and he had been in high favor both with the general and Louise. Though no formal announcement of an engagement had been made, Crandall was looked on by every one as Miss Farrish's most favored suitor. About three months ago, just prior to the time when I first met Louise, his visits to the house had suddenly ceased.

"I'm sure," Louise explained, "that Katharine cared for him very much. She and father had a bitter quarrel about him, though why I never could understand, for father had always seemed to like him. There was something strange about the way his visits ended. Father came home one day at noon looking worried. He called Katharine into the library and shut the door. I could hear Katharine pleading with him, and once or twice I heard both their voices raised as if in anger. Then my sister came out, her eyes were red as if she had been weeping. She went at once to her room and did not come down to dinner. When Mr. Crandall called that night she came down to see him, but he stayed only about ten minutes. He demanded an interview with father, and father refused to see him. He left the house in haste and never has been here since. For several days Katharine seemed much depressed, but she volunteered no confidences and I hesitated to ask her any questions. She seemed after a while wholly to have recovered her spirits, and I was convinced that she had made up her mind to let Mr. Crandall go out of her life."

"What effect did this have on the relations between your father and sister?" I asked, seeking in vain for a motive that would have caused Katharine to attempt her life.

"None whatever that I could see. Through it all, except for that one afternoon, Katharine's attitude toward father has been most lovable. If anything, it seemed to me that she was tenderer toward him afterward than before."

"Do you suppose she has been meeting Crandall surreptitiously?"

Louise quickly and indignantly drew herself away from me.

"You don't know Katharine as I do," she said reprovingly, "or you never would have said that. She is the soul of honor. If she was going to see Hugh she would have done so openly."

"But he telephoned her today," I persisted.

"That's so," admitted Louise. "And I think he must have done so day before yesterday, too. Some one called her, and she went out just as she did today. Generally we tell each other where we are going, and I thought it strange at the time that she said nothing to me."

In deep perplexity we both sat, silently pondering the mystery of Katharine's action. What could have made her do it? Was it, I wondered, because her father had learned something discreditable about her suitor and had forbidden him the house? Had Crandall been trying to persuade her to continue to see him despite her father's wishes? Was the conflict in her heart between love and duty too much for her? Louise turned to me and laid her hand gently on my arm.

"Harding," she said, "there is some deep mystery behind all this that has been growing like a black shadow across the lives of both Katharine and my father. In some way Hugh Crandall is concerned in it. I know it. I feel it. It is something more than merely the refusal of my father to permit her to marry Crandall. I have watched them both and I know. I have seen this mysterious specter hovering over my father, gradually crushing the very soul out of him. I have seen Katharine's life, too, blighted by its constant presence. Whether Katharine lives or whether she dies, I must find out what it is. I must, before it kills my father, too. You'll help me, won't you?"

There have been strange wooings and strange betrothals in love's history, but never before has any human been brought to a fuller realization of the depth of a woman's affection for him, of her confidence and trust in him, than I did at this moment when Louise put this question to me. My arms closed about her and my lips met hers in one long kiss that was a pledge—a pledge that henceforth my life, my heart, my mind, my powers, my everything were hers. All my abilities would be devoted to clearing this mystery that was stealing the joy from her years, when they should be the pleasantest. But this was no time for love dalliance. The mystery must be solved. Suicides generally left letters. Perhaps—

Hand in hand, Louise and I went into Katharine's apartments, where the room's disorder still told of the tragedy so recently enacted there. In one corner stood a little open desk. Its contents bore evidence of a recent careful sorting that hinted very plainly of premeditation, but there was no note or letter there. I looked next on the mantelpiece, hoping to find among the photographs and cotillion favors that littered it some clue which might solve the mystery, but there was nothing there, either.

My eye fell to the grate below, where a fire burned cheerily. Here again was evidence of premeditation in the ashes of burned letters and the charred corner of a photograph. A blackened bit of paper that had fallen through the grate before it burned caught my glance, and I stooped to pick it up. It was just a scrap of yellow, torn from a folded letter, with its edges burned to fragileness. Carefully Louise and I unfolded it, for it seemed the only thing in all the room that might yield some explanation. As we pored over the meaningless fragments of sentences, an exclamation of horror came from the doorway. Looking up we saw the tall form of General Farrish tottering on the sill.

Clad in a dressing jacket, his white hair in wild disorder, he pointed with accusing finger at the yellow scrap of paper in my hand. Never in mortal face have I seen such terror as I saw in his. His eyes, dilated, seemed bulging from their sockets. His countenance was white as chalk. His jaw had dropped in the paralysis of terror. From his throat came horrible mumblings as he tried to speak and could not.

Louise and I sprang to his side, but with almost maniacal strength he shook us off, and with finger still pointing to the yellow scrap I had let fall to the floor, he managed to gasp:

"That yellow letter! Where did—"

Before he could finish the sentence he fell stricken to the floor, his voice choking, his eyes glazing, paralyzed by some hidden terror—we knew not what.

CHAPTER II.

Our First Clue.

Louise and I sat at dinner together. Isn't it strange in this world of ours how the commonplace follows on the terrible, how the usual and the unusual intermingle, how the clock ticks on when the whole universe seems to be tumbling about our heads! In one of the rooms up-stairs lay Katharine, still unconscious, with a doctor and a nurse constantly at her side. The bullet had been removed, and while it had penetrated the brain some slight distance, Doctor Wilcox said there was just a chance—the barest chance—that she might recover. It might, however, be hours, he explained, before she regained consciousness—if she ever did.

In another of the rooms lay General Farrish, more dead than alive. Paralysis had deadened his limbs and tied his tongue. Only his eyes seemed alert. Most of the time since the stroke had felled him he had been slumbering heavily.

While the bustle of caring for the two stricken ones lasted there was little time for thought, and I was glad for the activity that kept Louise's mind distracted. Just at the moment when it seemed that everything had been done and there was nothing left but the anxious waiting, waiting for the worst—the butler had tiptoed in to summon us to dinner. Bravely, at first, Louise and I made pretense of eating, each trying to encourage the other, but the unforgetable events of the afternoon, the missing faces at the table and the sorrow that filled us both made food impossible. Drawing our chairs together, we discussed in whispers the baffling mystery of Katharine's attempted suicide and her father's strange terror.

On the table before us lay the scrap of yellow paper, the sight of which had so agitated General Farrish. As soon as he had been carried into his own rooms I had hastened to rescue it from the floor. I felt that, insignificant as it appeared, it must have some important connection with the events of the afternoon. Yet, as Louise and I puzzled over it, there seemed nothing sinister in the fragments of sentences that the flames had left all but indecipherable.

The paper, of a peculiarly yellowish tint, was hardly more than two square inches, the torn corner of a folded letter. On it we could make out these words:

he used se a sister t seemed inevita
and disgrace sh
by accident is make good

As we studied the bit of typewriting, word by word, we tried to trace in it some hidden meaning, some sinister warning, something or anything that would connect it with poor Katharine's mental distress and her father's poignant terror. That the letter of which this was a part had been in Katharine's possession was evident from the place where I had picked up the fragment. It was equally certain that it had been her purpose to destroy it. On the other hand, General Farrish, too, must have known of the existence of this letter, else why did he show such terror at the mere sight of a scrap of it? It must have been part of some document that had made a vivid impression on his mind. More than likely, we felt, whatever the letter was, it had played some part in the quarrel between Katharine and her father the afternoon before she dismissed Hugh Crandall.

We ran over all the words we could think of that begin "b-s," trying to fit one to the phrases following—back, bar, ban, bank, bankruptcy, basin, barrel, barren, battle—there were too many of them. We gave it up and passed on to the next phrase, "used se—" It proved equally puzzling. We could make nothing out of it, but the third line at least was definite enough for discussion.

"A sister—" said Louise. "That makes it certain that this letter did not apply in any way to father, for he never had a sister. He was an only child."

I was not so positive as she that the letter did not apply to the general. The thought came to me that perhaps even to the proud Farrish family there might have been some girl child of unblessed birth whose existence had been kept secret from Louise. Perhaps some knowledge of this sort had come to Katharine and the letter referred to it. I refrained from suggesting such a theory, for I felt it would be the height of cruelty even to hint such a thing to Louise at a time when the father was helpless to explain. Yet the following phrase, "seemed inevitable," might well fit into some theory such as this, followed as it was in the next line with the word "disgrace."

For a moment I felt that I was on the track of the solution of the mystery. Some specter from the general's past had risen to haunt his declining years, to threaten his good name, to worry him into his grave. His elder daughter had discovered it and had been unable to carry the burden of shame. Could this have been the secret that these two shared and kept Louise in ignorance of? A word from Louise all at once upset my theory.

"I wonder," she said, "if this isn't part of a letter about Hugh Crandall."

Both she and I were convinced that in some way Crandall was involved. My theory would not account for his connection with the case and I at once abandoned it, listening intently to one Louise advanced.

"There must have been some connection between his having telephoned her and what she did this afternoon. Before she shot herself she burned this letter, or most of it. Father must have known about the letter, so I am certain that it concerned Crandall."

"Has Crandall a sister?"

"I do not know," said Louise. "I know nothing about his family. It seems strange, too, when for months and months we saw so much of him. I do not recollect his ever having mentioned any of his relatives."

My brain recorded a victory for woman's intuition over man's logic. Her theory seemed infinitely better than mine. After all it was absurd to suspect a skeleton in the life of a man like General Farrish, who had been constantly under public scrutiny for many years. It was much more probable that the letter referred to some incident in the life of Crandall, something so discreditable that the general had been forced to forbid Katharine having anything to do with him. This theory would account for the quarrel between father and daughter, for Crandall's reticence about his family, for Katharine's distress, and naturally the sight of the letter that had caused all the trouble would upset the general. I began to see a plan for action.

"Louise, dear—" How quickly adversity strips off conventionality and puts us where our hearts would have us! "Louise, dear," I said, "it will probably be days before either your father or Katharine will be able to give us any assistance, yet the knowledge that everything has been cleared up, that the specter has been driven away, undoubtedly would hasten the recovery of both. So I feel that we must go ahead."

"Oh, Harding," she breathed. Her hand stole out and sought mine. "What a comfort you are to me! What would I have done this afternoon without you! You're right, dear, we must solve this awful mystery at once. We must."

"The first thing for me to do," I went on, "is to find Hugh Crandall. He can probably tell us all about this letter. Even if he can't he can say why he telephoned Katharine and where she went this afternoon. When we have learned this much we shall at least have made a good start. The next thing will be to trace the letter. If Crandall does not know about it, we will try to learn from whom it came."

"That's impossible," objected Louise. "Haven't we looked everywhere in Katharine's room for the envelope in which it came? I am positive that she burned it. Without the envelope you can never discover where it was mailed or to whom it was addressed."

"I'm not so sure about that. The post office has wonderful ways of tracing mail. One of the inspectors is a friend of mine and we will enlist his help. But first I must find Crandall. Probably he can tell us everything if he will. Do you know where he lives?"

"He has bachelor apartments somewhere along the avenue. I don't know just where. I know his place of business."

"I know that too, but it is useless to try to find him there tonight."

"Katharine used to send all her notes to one of his clubs where he received his mail—I think it was the University."

"Come into the library," said I, "we can quickly locate him."

Hatching Shad by Millions

The United States fish commission station at Bryan's Point, Md., is now in the midst of the shad hatching season and daily many thousands of the young fish are hatched in the artificial waterways at the propagating station. The eggs are being taken from the shad by agents of the station at the fishing shores at Chapman's point, Fairy Landing, Pomonkey Point and from the gillers and trap net fishermen. Launches several times each day make trips to the different shores to gather the eggs and take them to the station for hatching.

The large catch of good roe shad so far this season has enabled the station to obtain a large supply of eggs, and the total number of shad hatched out when the season closes next month is expected to be well up in the millions. The small fish are sent to this city several times each week and are shipped out on the special cars of the fish commission to streams throughout the country where conditions are favorable for the growth and increase of the fish.—Washington Star.

Deduction.

A director of one of the great transcontinental railroads was showing his three-year-old daughter the pictures in a work on natural history. Pointing to a picture of a zebra, he asked the baby to tell him what it represented. Baby answered, "Colty." Pointing to a picture of a tiger in the same way, she answered "Kitty." Then a lion, and she answered "Doggy." Elated with her seeming quick perception, he then turned to the picture of a chimpanzee and said: "Baby, what is this?"

"Papa."—Woman's Journal.

A Wise Retirement.

"So, you young jackanapes, you want to marry my daughter. You want to ask me about it, do you?"

"I did, sir, but I guess I'll go now. I see there's a [illegible]."

Social Forms and Entertainments

Entertainment for Bride-Elect.

I am to entertain a bride-elect and am puzzled as to what to do in the way of entertainment. What can you suggest?—Romona.

I wonder if you have had either a magazine, book or a "doll" shower? At the first the guests decide beforehand what subscriptions to magazines to give, each one contributing 50 cents. This assures pleasure for the whole first year. The book idea is carried out in the same way.

A Young Girl's Question.

Must I send each girl and each boy in the same family a separate invitation? I want to have a party and serve a light luncheon, but I do not want to buy expensive things. Tell me what to have; also can I hand out these invitations when I meet any of the guests?—P. L. M.

Each member of the family must have a separate invitation except husband and wife; they are always one. I judge your party is to be at night and "light luncheons" are not served, that is, under the name of "luncheons." After the theater we say "supper," during the evening we say "refreshments." Luncheon is a daytime meal. It is also hard to have inexpensive things these days, with prices soaring high as the proverbial kite. I'd have coffee and sandwiches or ice cream and cake. Invitations must go by mail or messenger, never handed to the person.

Progressive Candy Jack Straws.

I wish to entertain 12 little boys and girls at an afternoon party. Will you suggest a novel scheme with which to begin the party?—Puzzled Mother.

Provide a quarter of a pound of twisted candy sticks known as "opera" sticks in most candy shops. They come in all colors and there must be a different color for each table, four at a table. A pair of candy tongs must be in readiness for each player and a box for containing the candy "straws." The game is to see how many sticks may be withdrawn from the pile without breaking or throwing the pile into confusion. Progressions are made and the score kept. Children enjoy this entertainment and eating the sticks won is permissible after the game is over and scores settled.

From an "Anxious Girl."

Girls of seventeen wear their hair around the head in braids or in soft pompadours caught with a bow in the back, the ends turned up underneath or made in soft coils either side the ear, Dutch style. Skirts should be a bit below shoe top. Just tell a boy that you will not kiss him, that you do not approve. If necessary to take arms (and it seldom is) the girl should take the man's or he may take hers to assist her over a dangerous crossing. Eight to ten or ten-thirty are calling hours.

The Proper Thing to Do.

What is proper for a young lady to say when introduced to a man at a dance? Also what is the proper form for introducing a young man to a young lady? Please answer through your column.—Irish Mary.

All the young lady has to say is "I am very glad to meet you, Mr. Jones," and the right way to present a man to a woman is this: "Miss Young, may I present Mr. Jones, who is here on a visit," or "who is anxious to meet you." It is always nice to give some clue to the ones being introduced as to "who is who."

From a Perplexed Girl.

Your columns have been so helpful to others, I would like to have your advice. I have been going with a boy for about two or three months and like him very much and he has told other people he liked me better than any girl he ever knew. When at a "leap year" dance how many dances should I give him? Do you think it considered unladylike to wear small pearl earrings or would they make me look coarse? What should a girl say when asked to have a dance? Is it really wrong to let a boy kiss you if he is in earnest?—Perplexed B.

I hope from henceforth these columns will prove helpful to you and that you will come just as often as questions bother you. It depends upon how many dances there are, I should think you could give him every other one. Girls are wearing earrings now and I see no harm, for the ears are not pierced these days and it is only a harmless passing fad to wear them. I think it is really wrong to let a boy kiss you and perhaps you will think I am very prim to say so. If the boy really thinks a lot of you, you can explain in a satisfactory manner why you'd rather not permit familiarity and he will appreciate and understand your attitude and like you all the better.

MADAME MERRI.

Emergency Needle Cushion.

Every girl should have in her work basket an emergency needle cushion. In it there should be a needle for every colored waist or frock, threaded with the corresponding color or tint. In the event of donning the frock, and finding a hook and eye missing, or a little rent before unseen, or a few stitches in any way needed, the girl has the needle already threaded for the necessary work, and is not delayed by having to hunt for the correct color in thread, and perhaps to find none in the basket.

Health & Beauty Hints

By Katherine Morton

It is perfectly natural for a fastidious woman to worry about the looks of her hands when she is so placed that she must do hard and dirty work. The hand that shows the signs of domestic drudgery does not add to a woman's charm, while the one that looks as if it was lain in pink cotton all its life does. Yet the working hand can show a deal more character than the soft, pink-tipped, unused one, and the energetic housewife, with a minimum of daily care, can keep her hands in better shape.

Much of the beauty of the hands will depend upon the quality of the soap used for the toilet, and as to that the housekeeper's hands would respond far more quickly to her little moments of daily care if she used a fairly good soap for her housecleaning. The cheap soaps supplied for housekeeping are strong with alkali, and their constant use will ruin the best skin. To preserve and promote the whiteness and delicacy of the hand skin, a mild emollient soap containing much oil is needed, at least for the toilet. A cake of old castile soap, shaved to a powder and then boiled to a jelly, makes a very gentle and thorough cleanser for the hands. A finer soap is made of the best white curd soap and old castile, in the proportion of one-seventh of the latter to six-sevenths of the former. This can be perfumed and made further helpful with the addition of one ounce of essential oil of almonds to four and a half pounds of the soap.

The dish pan must answer for many sins, for through constant immersion in hot greasy water hands once pretty are ruined every day. When the housekeeper goes from hot water to cold, too, she does her hands a still greater injury, for the sudden change of temperature is very baleful in its effect. Rheumatism is caused in this way as well as salt rheum and a score of other hand annoyances. The skin hardens and discolors and the hands soon look weather-beaten and old. As to dish washing with the bare hands, it is sheer nonsense, and the housekeeper who "washes up" in this manner deserves pretty much all she gets. The drug store and the other shops have rubber gloves for this very purpose, dish mops are cheap and by making a little pad for the necessary holding of the dish while it is being mopped the hands can come through a dish washing spree without the least injury. Have two pans of water, one for washing and one for rinsing, and then let the dishes drip dry in one of the metal racks sold so cheaply. They will be cleaner than if wiped and the hands will get a little extra rest. Save them all you can—it is your duty.

For this dishwashing with gloves, for dusting and all other "reddling up," the hands are helped if they are greased before the gloves are donned. When putting up fruits they are saved a lot of staining if they are first anointed in this way, for the emollient used sinks into the skin and so keeps the stain from becoming deep seated.

When a party is imminent and the housekeeper feels that she must give her hands an extra beautifying so that she will look well in her short-sleeved frock, after giving her hands and arms a thorough scrubbing let her rinse them off in a bowl of fresh water containing a teaspoonful of benzoin, which bleaches the skin to some extent almost instantaneously. If the hands are browner than the arms, pay more attention to them, rubbing the benzoin water well into the skin, but seeing, too, that it is not strong enough to bite. Then go over the hands with the skin of a freshly-cut cucumber, rinse off the juice, dry the hands partly and then rub in a delicate hand lotion such as is made by six parts of rosewater to one of glycerin. The lotion will plump the skin and add to its whiteness. It will also help to keep on the powder, if that is to be used on the hands and arms.

Compact Folding Table.

For the small apartment where every inch of space must be economized, there is no piece of furniture to equal the folding table, which when closed may be placed almost flatly against a wall.

When opened this table shows a flat surface, covered with baize or morocco, on which a tea tray may be set or a four-handed game of cards played. Through its center this top is invisibly hinged and has two flat lids, one of which, when raised, discloses a shallow box containing an entire sewing equipment.

The other side is fitted with a complete writing desk set in addition to a blotter pad, next to which are sunken grooves for pens and pencils and within two upper corners wells for ink and paste.

Narrow Pleated Skirts.

According to the Dry Goods Economist, the fall lines of dresses include many models made in some form of pleated skirt. In every instance, however, they are straight and narrow. The pleats extend to the waist in some of the samples, but other styles show pleated panels or deep pleated flounces. When the pleats extend only to the knees a modified panier drapery finishes the upper skirt section.

To Wash Blankets.

When washing blankets put two large tablespoonfuls of borax and one pint bowl of soft soap into a tub of cold water. When dissolved, put in a pair of blankets [illegible]

HARD FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

It's hard enough to keep house if in perfect health, but a woman who is weak, tired and suffering all of the time with an aching back has a heavy burden to carry. Any woman in this condition has good cause to suspect kidney trouble, especially if the kidney action seems disordered at all. Doan's Kidney Pills have cured thousands of women suffering in this way. It is the best-recommended special kidney remedy.

A NEBRASKA CASE: Mrs. Mary H. Dixter, Gordon, Neb., says: "I had sharp darting pains all through my body and if I sat down my back became so lame I had to grasp something for support. Doan's Kidney Pills cured me entirely and improved my condition in every way."

ONE EXPLANATION.

The Serious Man—He has six daughters, but he won't let any of them get married.

The Joker—Maybe he doesn't want to break the set.

Matter of Justice.

Where shall justice begin, with those who have power or with those who suffer wrong? If exact and ideal justice were done, the weak would make an effort to give to the strong all that is their due, and the strong would try to put their affairs in order so that no just cause of complaint should exist anywhere. The unhappy element in the relations of the strong and the weak is that both are thinking too much about exacting justice and not enough about doing that which is just and right. "Pay what thou owest" is the cry most often heard. "Give me that which is my due, then I will pay you what I owe."—The Christian Register.

Case of Mistaken Identity.

President Taft was out for his afternoon walk in Washington one day when a flaxen-haired little girl ran out in front of him, held up her finger and exclaimed, in a shrill voice:

"I know who you are!"

The president, thinking it not at all unusual that she should possess this information, but willing to gratify her, asked:

"Well, who am I?"

"Aw," she said teasingly, "you're Humpty Dumpty."—Popular Magazine.

Wise Doctor Gives Postum to Convalescents.

A wise doctor tries to give nature its best chance by saving the little strength of the already exhausted patient, and building up wasted energy with simple but powerful nourishment.

"Five years ago," writes a doctor, "I commenced to use Postum in my own family instead of coffee." (It's a well-known fact that tea is just as injurious as coffee because it contains caffeine, the same drug found in coffee.) "I was so well pleased with the results that I had two grocers place it in stock, guaranteeing its sale.

"I then commenced to recommend it to my patients in place of coffee, as a nutritious beverage. The consequence is, every store in town is now selling it, as it has become a household necessity in many homes.

"I'm sure I prescribe Postum as often as any one remedy in the Materia Medica—in almost every case of indigestion and nervousness I treat, and with the best results.

"When I once introduce it into a family, it is quite sure to remain. I shall continue to use it and prescribe it in families where I practice.

GOOD SUPPORTER FOR PLANTS

Florida Man Contrives Standard With Wire Arms That Guides Growth of Young Trees.

For the support of plants and young trees during the period when they are getting a start in life a Florida man has designed the contrivance reproduced here. A standard with longitudinal grooves on the opposite faces of its two sections is thrust into the ground near the tree. A length of wire, bent into a coil at the center and forming two arms, is attached to the standard by rolled ends that engage the grooves. These arms can be slid up or down the standard to accommodate the height of the plant. The latter is embraced by these two arms and not only is forced to grow straight, but is given much needed support during the heavy rains and wind storms that beat so many unsupported plants and young vegetation of all kinds to the earth.

SOME LITTLE FLOWER HINTS

Care Should Be Used in Taking Up Plants to Place in Window—Get Cuttings of Favorites.

In taking up plants to put in the window, be careful about the roots. If they are maltreated in any way, be sure to cut off all the bruised parts and shorten in a corresponding way the top branches of the plant.

Newly potted plants sometimes do not do well at first. Don't expect too much of your plants until they are well established. As soon as new feeding roots are formed the plant will pick up. Maybe you have given too much water which has soured the soil. Water only when the surface of the soil feels dry to the touch.

If you have a large east window turn it into a bower of beauty. Fasten a strong shelf below the sill and nail a wire arch or grill across the top of the window. When you dig your Madeira vine select several large, healthy roots and put two or three in a six-inch pot. Place a pot at each end of the shelf. As the vines grow furnish them with string or narrow wire netting to grow on. They will soon reach the top of the window and cover the arch.

Go into the garden before Jack Frost appears and take cuttings of all your favorites. Slip a nasturtium for winter blooming. The double nasturtium roots easily and is a desirable pot plant.

PLANT IN CEMENT SIDEWALK

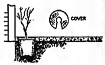
Good, Cleanly Way of Arranging Pot or Keg Out of Sight Is Shown in the Illustration.

The pot holding a plant or vine at the entrance of a residence in a crowded city is usually in the way, and when the plant is watered the walks become wet, says the Popular Mechanics. The illustration shows a good, cleanly way of arranging a pot or keg in the walk, so that it is out of sight, and the seeping water will be taken up by the earth. A cover may be made for the pot as shown.



Plant in Sidewalk.

Tree Wounds.

No artificial medium can be applied to the surface of a wound made in pruning a tree which will induce it to heal more quickly. The activity of the healing process depends upon the character and position and the time of the year when the wound is made rather than upon protective coverings.

A large number of waxes, paints and washes have been tried, and the conclusion of the whole matter may be summarized in the statement that any substance which is not corrosive or detrimental to growth, which will protect the heartwood from the attacks of rot spores, will prove a satisfactory covering for a cut surface. Among such substances may be mentioned white lead, yellow ochre, coal tar and grafting wax.

Sheep in the Orchard.

If fruit trees are a good size and there is some wasteful fruit on the ground or plenty of grass and weeds here and there, to turn a few sheep in is more likely to do the ground good than harm. There must, however, be sufficient food somewhere to keep the sheep from getting hungry enough to get after the bark or twigs.

[illegible] STRAWBERRIES

Blight Causes Spots on Leaves and Weakens Plants—Remedy for Leaf Roller.

(By W. H. CHANDLER.)

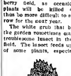
Leaf blight is a disease which causes spots on strawberry leaves. With some varieties it very seriously weakens the plants. Varieties like Aroma and Gandy very largely resist it.

Spray with Bordeaux mixture after the crop is harvested, probably after renewing has been done, and give three or four sprayings at intervals of two weeks. On badly infested beds after the crop is off, mow everything down and let it dry and burn off when there is a brisk wind, then follow with a spraying.

The strawberry leaf roller is a moth that appears in the spring, depositing eggs on the leaves. When the eggs hatch, the larvae feed upon the leaves, folding the leaves over and fastening them by means of a silken thread. They thus eat only on the inner side of this folded leaf. They sometimes seriously injure the plants, causing them to dry up. There are two broods a year. The second brood appears shortly after the strawberries have been gathered.

The surest remedy for this insect is to mow down the plants and weeds and burn the bed off shortly after the strawberries have been picked. Spraying when the berries are about one-half grown with arsenical poison will kill the insect, but it is difficult to spray strawberries as they are so soon ripe after they set. The burning off process recommended does not seem to be entirely harmless to the strawberry field, as occasionally some plants will be killed and it will thus be more difficult to secure a good row for the next year.

The white grub that bothers us in the garden sometimes may be a fairly troublesome insect in the strawberry field. The insect feeds upon the roots of some plants, especially grasses.



Leaf Showing Injury.

When the field is plowed up if they are numerous they may feed upon the strawberry root and do considerable harm.

The remedy is to grow some other crop than grass or strawberries on the land until they are starved out.

The Crown Borer is a beetle somewhat similar to the Plum Curculio. They deposit their eggs in June or early July. The eggs hatch into larvae that eat their way into the crown and there in feeding, mine out the crown more or less.

These beetles do not migrate very badly, so the best remedy is to rotate the crop, putting no strawberries on land that has been in strawberries during the previous few years, provided these insects are serious.

Filling the Orchard.

The vacant places in an orchard caused by poor stock, injury in cultivation or borers, it may be well to fill in with younger trees up to the ages of about eight years. After that time the older trees will occupy the ground so fully with their root systems that young trees set make very little growth and seldom amount to much when they arrive at a bearing age.

Burning Infested Branches.

When you have found blighted twigs and branches on pear trees cut out the infected parts promptly and burn them. Be sure to cut well below the diseased wood. Disinfect the pruning implement by dipping it frequently in a strong solution of carbolic acid.

Stable Manure in Orchard.

The value of stable manure or other fertilizer in the orchard depends almost entirely upon the conditions of the soil and climate. Some soils grow excellent fruit without any fertilizer, while others must be fed. Simply a case of science and good judgment.

Fruit Varieties.

The farmer who raises fruit for his own family should have a much larger variety than the commercial orchardist, because the latter must produce enough of each kind to ship to advantage.

HORTICULTURAL NOTES

Most small fruits form their fruit buds in the spring.

The quickest growing tree for a shelter belt is the willow.

Remember that the wood ashes are the best kind of fertilizer for the orchard, lawn or garden.

The city dealer profits by the laziness of the grower by grading and repacking his badly assorted fruit.

After the raspberries are through fruiting, the old canes are taken out. The canes made this year will produce the fruit next year. Burn the prunings.

Cantaloupes should not be grown near squash, pumpkin or cucumber vines, as the pollen will mix, giving the cantaloupe a flavor of the squash or cucumber.

Spray the apples twice with Bordeaux mixture to prevent injury from bitter rot. Put arsenate of lead in it to destroy late-hatched insects, such as the fall web worm.

Spraying with kerosene emulsion is one of the best remedies for the rose leaf hopper. Make the first application as the pest first appears and repeat as often as is necessary.

Strawberry plants that have been grown all summer in pots and set this month will bear next spring. Use an abundance of manure in preparing the ground to insure a good crop.

GREAT VALUE OF THE BORDEAUX MIXTURE

Cheap and convenient mixing platform for making Bordeaux mixture.

Farmers, gardeners and fruit growers can not fence out the many forms of insects and fungi which live upon their crops and which are as anxious for a harvest as is the grower. It is a fight between the grower and the pest and the latter has generally had the best of the battle. The farmer has not been properly equipped. He has often had invisible foes—foes which he did not understand, hence could not assail them and the general result has been that the insect or the fungus obtained an ample supply of nourishment and the grower has taken what was left, but, thanks to science, he need suffer in ignorance no longer.

Power in Knowledge.

A study of the investigations and experiments which have placed in the hands of the intelligent grower effective methods of warfare is as interesting as it is important; it reveals an educational movement which stands unparalleled in the effect it has had in broadening the horizon of the agriculturist. It has forced him to see that there is more in his business than following the rule-of-thumb process so long in vogue. It has emphasized the power of knowledge and it has demonstrated and is daily impressing the fact upon all who take the trouble to see, that it requires more brains than brawn to succeed in an occupation at which formerly even the most ignorant could be at least fairly successful. The ignorant are going to the wall and the student—the "book farmer" if you please—is pushing them along and filling their places when they are gone.

Bordeaux Mixture Perfected.

For the purpose of answering briefly our many inquiries about Bordeaux mixture and its use, it will be sufficient to say that in 1886 a great many men conducted experiments to test the value of the compounds of copper, very few other substances being used, and among them was A. Millardet, professor in the Academy of Science, Bordeaux, France, and to him may justly be given credit for discovering the value and use of the preparation which was destined to prove superior to all fungicides that have been used to this day, and which is now so well known under the name of Bordeaux mixture, and readily made on any farm.

Equipment for mixing Bordeaux mixture in a small way. No. 1, lime slacking box. No. 2, stock solution barrel for lime. No. 3, stock solution barrel for sulphate of copper. No. 4, barrel spray pump. No. 5, bucket for dipping and measuring stock solutions. Two such buckets would be highly desirable.

The composition of the "Standard" or 3-6 per cent Bordeaux mixture is as follows:

| | |
|---|---|
| Copper sulphate | 6 pounds |
| Quicklime | 4 pounds |
| Water | 22 gallons |

This formula was at first extensively used, but it was found that a more dilute mixture would answer the purpose equally as well, so it was practically abandoned for the mixture which may now by termed the "Normal" or 1.6 per cent Bordeaux mixture and the following is the composition:

| | |
|---|---|
| Copper sulphate | 6 pounds |
| Quicklime | 4 pounds |
| Water | 45 gallons |

To Make Bordeaux Mixture.

The "Normal" or 1.6 per cent Bordeaux mixture is made by dissolving 6 pounds of sulphate of copper in 32 gallons of water, while in another vessel 4 pounds of lime is slacked in 13 gallons of water; the two liquids are then slowly mixed and the preparation is ready for use.

It is interesting as well as important to know that while Bordeaux mixture is our most valuable fungicide it also possesses a marked insecticidal value, as flea-beetles appear to be most easily overcome or driven away by this preparation.

No farm or garden, no matter how small, can be considered fully equipped without a supply of Bordeaux mixture and suitable apparatus for applying it.—Illinois Farmers' Institute.

EXCELLENT FEED FOR DAIRY COWS

Dried Sugar Beet Pulp Is Almost as Valuable as Original Beets—How It Is Prepared.

The dried sugar beet pulp is a most excellent feed, and, like silage and roots, more valuable than a chemical analysis seems to indicate. The pulp is almost as valuable, pound for pound, as the original beets from which it comes. The pulp is soaked in water a few hours before feeding. One peck of pulp when soaked will make a good bucket of thick slop. The usual ration for a cow is one peck of the soaked pulp mixed with two quarts of corn chop and two quarts of wheat bran, fed morning and evening. After this is eaten the cows are given a forkful of mixed hay, with straw at noon. The cows fed this ration give a large quantity of good, rich, well-flavored milk and fatten up fit for the market with four months' feeding. Cows that will come fresh in the early spring should be allowed to go dry at least four weeks before calving. Dry cows can be kept in good, thrifty condition on chaffed cornstalks and oat straw, with one quart of corn chop to a bushel of chaff. Those giving milk should get a bucket of warm slop twice a day to each, made by mixing one pint of corn chop, one pint of linseed meal and one quart of wheat bran, in addition to mixed feed.

Keep the stables clean, well lighted and ventilated. All stock, cows especially, should be carded and brushed down every morning. Stock cattle and young stock are less liable to have skin diseases if the hide is thoroughly cleansed and kept free from scurf or dandruff. A little crude petroleum rubbed over bare spots will soften the skin and promote the growth of hair. This oil is excellent for cuts and sores. First wash the sore with warm water and castile soap, wipe dry with clean cloth and then rub in the oil. Crude petroleum is better for this purpose than the refined oil as it has more body and greater healing properties. The oil may be had from any of the large paint stores for 12 cents per gallon.

GOOD TRAP FOR RINGING HOGS

An excellent and yet inexpensive trap for ringing hogs may be constructed by following the instructions herewith and observing the illustration, which is quite clear:

The frame is constructed with 2x4-inch scantlings (1) (1) at the corners lapped and bolted. The lever C when pulled forward partially closes the opening and holds the hog firmly.

Prevention of Clover Weeds.

In some parts of Germany and Austria the clover weeds, particularly clover dodder, are being energetically controlled. The seed-breeding associations, or seed-control stations, now "approve" of the clover seed after a commission, at the request of the owner, has inspected the field before it is mown. If the dodder or other weeds are not present the seed is approved, enabling the grower to secure higher prices; if the field is damaged by patches of dodder approval is refused, and the seed has to be thoroughly cleaned and sold under a cheaper grade mark.

Galloway Cattle.

Galloway cattle are being raised in Alaska, their hides being considered equal to bearskin for beauty and service.

Good Poultry.

The demand for good poultry and eggs is growing every year and will continue to grow.

CHILO'S FACE ALL RED SPOTS

532 N. 5th St., Terre Haute, Ind.—"My little nephew, a boy of four years, had a breaking out on his face. It was little red spots at first, then he would rub and scratch and water blisters would form, and wherever the water would run another would come until his face was covered with them. He would cry and fret. His mother got some medicine, but it did not do any good. He would scream and cry and say it hurt. We hardly knew him, his little face was all red spots and blisters. So I begged him to let me put some Cuticura Ointment on them. The next morning I made a strong soap suds with Cuticura Soap and washed his face in the warm suds. The little blisters burst by pressing the cloth on them. After I had his face washed, I put the Cuticura Ointment on and in a short time his little face was all red and dry. I kept using the Cuticura Soap and putting on the Cuticura Ointment and his face got as well and it did not leave a scar. He was entirely cured in about one week and a half." (Signed) Mrs. Arthur Haworth, Jan. 10, 1912.

Instinctive.

"So you took your wife to the baseball game?"

"Yes," replied Mr. Meekton.

"Did she enjoy it?"

"Only part of it. She thought they wasted a great deal of time running around the lot, but she thought the arguments with the umpire were quite interesting."—Washington Star.

Really Had Best of It.

John Burroughs is well known as one of the foremost of nature writers in this country. Some time ago he visited his brother, Eden Burroughs, who lives in the Catskills, at a place called Hobart. The two brothers went fox hunting together. The honor of the hunt came to Eden, who shot the only fox. It so happened that fox skins were worth five dollars at that time, and the successful Nimrod took much pride in telling how he got the better of the sage of Slabsides. Later in boasting to a few friends about it in the presence of his brother, John, he was interrupted by, "You have bragged about that fox hunt long enough. You shot the fox, sold the skin and got five dollars. I wrote a little account of the hunt, and got $75 from the magazine which published it. So there you are!"

Mother's Linguistic Attainment.

The mother of a little boy in Kansas City, Kan., recites negro dialect stories charmingly. Her small son is quite proud of her accomplishment and frequently boasts of it. One day recently, when some of his playmates were vaunting the achievements of their several mothers, the little boy braggingly remarked:

"My mother is smarter than any of yours, she can talk two languages."

"What are they?" demanded his companions.

"White and colored."

Doctor Endorses Children's Remedy.

Dr. D. B. Rothrock, New Berlin, Pa., writes that he has used Kopp's Baby's Friend with excellent results. He considers it the best remedy for children. Invaluable in Teething Troubles, Wind Colic and Diarrhoea. 3 sizes, 10c., 25c., 50c. at druggists or sent direct. Kopp's Baby's Friend Co., York, Pa. Sample by mail on request.

Ideals.

"What is your idea of a perfect husband?"

"One with about a million, who would lose no time in making me a merry widow."

The Paxton Toilet Co. of Boston, Mass., will send a large trial box of Paxtine Antiseptic, a delightful cleansing and germicidal toilet preparation, to any woman free, upon request.

There are lots of funny things to be seen in this world, and among them is a fat woman sitting on a little piano stool.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic, 25c a bottle.

Even a homely man is apt to boast of how the women run after him.

Legs raw with itching, burning eczema

PITTSBURG, PA., May 23, 1912.—"A friend of mine had big red blotches form all over his legs, body and arms. It was pronounced a very bad case of eczema. After two months' treatment he was suffering untold tortures and would awake at night and find himself scratching, with hands all over blood. His legs were like a piece of raw meat, itching and burning. For two months he slept scarcely any, but would get up and walk the floor. He says he simply felt as if he were burning up. After the case had lasted six months he began the use of Resinol Soap and Ointment. He was cured, and his skin was as clear as crystal." (Signed) W. D. BUCHANAN, 903 Daisy St.

We Lead You To Fortune and Happy Life in California

Messrs. J. S. & W. S. Kuhn, the Pittsburgh bankers, are doing in the Sacramento Valley what the U. S. Government is doing elsewhere for the people.

There is ten times more net profit per acre in California irrigated land than in the East and with less labor.

Let us take you where there is comfort and happiness besides profit, climate equal to that of Southern Italy, no frosts nor snow, no thunderstorms nor sunstrokes.

Let us take you where big money is now being made, markets are near, demand for products great and income is sure.

Let us take you where railroad and river transportation is near, where there are denominational churches and graded schools.

Now is the time to buy this land—get in with the winners, the great Panama Canal will soon be ready and you can share in its triumphs; farms are selling rapidly, and we strongly urge you to purchase as soon as possible.

You can buy this land on very easy terms—$15.00 an acre now and the balance in ten yearly payments.

Give us an opportunity to take up all details with you—write us now.

Let us send you our fine illustrated printed matter telling all about it. Write for it at once—it gives you absolute proofs.

PROFIT AND LOSS

Fence Corners Properly Farmed Would Feed Millions Now Hungry.

How can one black cow, fed on green grass give white milk? The Bible does not relate all miracles. How can a citizen become progressive and keep in touch with the world that moves. The man who is willing to spend a dollar where it will return to him more than one hundred cents worth of benefit is keeping step with common sense and marching to the music of good investment. The man or woman who travels and goes away from home once in a while often finds a bargain counter.

Last year, at the Ohio State Fair, a farmer purchased one hog that paid his expenses to Columbus several times over, besides improving the breed of hogs in his neighborhood. A city man who owned a farm, while in the great Agricultural Hall at the State Fair in 1910 discovered a variety of corn that added several bushels to his yield per acre in 1911. He made more than the legal rate of interest on the money which he spent by coming to Ohio's big Exposition.

Some farmers farm because they have to, while others farm because farming pays. Some business men are in business because they can't get out, others are in business because they are making money. Few of us work for our health. Many a patriot is a friend of the dear people at their expense. The Exposition helps every branch of business and tends to add to the profits of human endeavor. The State Fair is the guide board pointing to higer ideals and better methods. The Exposition is the storehouse of what has been accomplished in all the centuries. Dull indeed is he who would neglect an opportunity to see the finished product of all the ages. The time taken to see the State Fair is well spent. The money required is a small amount and well invested, with large dividends certain. Many things are done which do not pay big profit, but seeing and studying the Ohio Exposition will pay more than 100 per cent. The date is the last week in August. It will pay to borrow the money, if that be necessary, to come. For catalog and information address

AN OPEN LETTER

Mr. Voter:

Next Tuesday, Sept. 3, is the time to vote upon the Constitutional Amendments. That is the day when the voters of Ohio can, more than any other day possibly in their whole lives, help to to shape the laws of the state.

It is your duty to vote. Read the amendments carefully so that you can vote as your best judgment may dictate.

Don't get scared by the fellows who claim the amendments will hurt business. The average voter, that is the great majority of of the voters, expect to earn all they get by hard work and are willing to do that, but there are a few men who always have and who hope they may in the future get their money easy. They are a handicap to you and to your children having what is justly your due. They hold the lives of those who toil in light regard. These fellows are the men who are now claiming that the amendments will hurt business. It is nothing new, for whenever in the past, the people of a state have attempted to establish justice, these same fellows, or men of the same class, have set up the cry—"Don't hurt business!" They are a lot of cowards who are not willing to bear the burdens in the great struggle for existence.

Mr. Voter, don't let these selfish squealers scare you by saying that these amendments are Socialistic propositions. Take the amendments and read them and see for yourself if there is anything therein that sounds to you like socialism. Is it socialism to protect human life? Is it socialism to protect womanhood and motherhood? Is it socialism to give the people of a city the right to own their public utilities? Is it socialism to provide the way for better roads? Is it socialism for the people of Ohio (who must foot the bills), to reserve to themselves the right to say something about the laws when representatives fail to represent the will of the people? If these things are Socialistic, the chances are you are not afraid of socialism. Are the people of Ohio, most of whom have been to public school, going to get scared when some one hollers "Socialism!"

Our advice to our readers is this: Read the amendments and vote YES on everyone that your honest judgment tells you is right. If a majority of the amendments seem right, you are safe in voting YES on the others. The majority of men in the constitutional convention, by giving the people a chance to secure the initiative and referendum showed their confidence in the people's ability to decide questions of their own welfare. If we get something we don't like, we can use the initiative and referendum (if necessary) to change to something better.

Our last word to the voters is this: Do your duty and rely upon your own judgment. For ourselves we believe a brighter and better day is about to dawn upon all the good people of the state of Ohio. We are not scared.

GRAND SUCCESS

BIG CROWD AT BUSINESS MEN'S ANNUAL PICNIC

The Western Reserve Band Association Outing At the Same Time and Place, Brought Out the People

Thursday morning, August 22, was one of those ideal summer mornings that invite every one out of doors. This had much to do with the large attendance at the Business Men's picnic. Another feature of this year's outing that was a great factor in bringing together a record-breaking crowd, was the mass band concerts promised by Prof. Wm. Parsons. The delightful weather of the morning did not hold good during the afternoon and evening, but the massed band concerts came up to and even surpassed the expectations of those who attended the picnic because of this feature of the occasion.

A very conservative estimate of the attendance is placed at six thousand. There may not have been more than five thousand people on the ground at any one time, but as many hundreds were there in the evening who did not attend during the daytime, it is safe to say that over six thousand attended the picnic. This was a record-breaking crowd for the Business Men's picnic and it was also a record-breaking crowd for Willoughbeach, popular resort though it may be.

The ball games were watched by great crowds and in the morning the South Siders put it all over the North Siders by a score of 6 to 2, or something like that. In the afternoon Callender was so effective for the Nurseryites that the A. O. H. team could do nothing with him and they lost by a score of about 18 to 0.

The other contests were carried out as per arrangements and resulted in much good natured rivalry and the usual amount of amusement. E. M. Browster and family of Perry won the first prize for the largest family on the grounds. There were ten members of this family present. Sam Speare and family of eight members, Willoughby, and Ed Nighman and family of seven members, Perry, won second and third prizes respectively.

The success of the picnic this year when it was held nearer home than has been the custom in the past, will result in holding these annual outings in some nearby popular summer resort near home, possibly the new Township park may be selected for next year's outing.

The officers of the C., P. & E. and the managers of Willoughbeach did everything possible to make the meeting there this year a success and this fact also will go a long ways in favor of outings at this particular place in the future.

For full particulars, premium list, and program of the New Lake County Fair, write to Geo. A. Bates, secretary, Painesville, O.

The big opening exhibition day of the New Lake County Fair at Painesville, O., is Wednesday, Sept. 18, with the best program of the exhibition. Attractions and big parade, also speeches by parties of nation-wide reputation. It's the first Lake County Fair in 18 years, and no one should miss it.

Make the Old Farm Pay.

What's the use of trying to fit square pins in round holes? Sometimes that is the reason we do not get the largest returns from our farms. We are growing the wrong crop or using the wrong method or the wrong rotation, or sometimes it is simply the wrong variety. It may be we are just planting the crop at the wrong time or putting in too much or not enough seed. If we are, we are simply wasting our energy and splintering the pin.

The Ohio Experiment Station has been studying varieties and rotations and methods and time and rate of seeding, etc., for more than a quarter of a century and the results of its experiments will help us fit the pin.

See the big Station Exhibit at the County Fair and study the results of the Experiments illustrated.

Almost Lost His Life.

S. A. Stid, of Mason, Mich., will never forget his terrible exposure to a merciless storm. "It gave me a dreadful cold," he writes, "that caused severe pains in my chest, so it was hard for me to breathe. A neighbor gave me several doses of Dr. King's New Discovery which brought great relief. The doctor said I was on the verge of pneumonia, but to continue with the Discovery. I did so and two bottles completely cured me." Use only this quick, safe, reliable medicine for coughs, colds, or any throat or lung trouble. Price 50c and $1. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by Oehring's Pharmacy.

Everybody is talking about the new Lake County Fair at Painesville, O., Sept. 17-20, and about everyone is planning to go.

"SEARCH ME."

As Reprinted from the Atlanta Constitution, November 8, 1902.

The people by the thousand were crowded about
And the President spoke, with the intent to give out
His position on trusts—and the things that he said
Caused every old codger to doddle his head
And remark:
"Well, what does he stand? D'ye see?
And I said:
"Search me!"

The newspaper fellows were writing like smoke,
Shorthanding every darn'd word that he spoke,
But when all the pothooks and curves were unspun
I heard each a-asking the next other one
"Where did he land? Could you see?"
And he said:
"Search me."

The folks read the papers all anxious to see
How dead right on trusts our Teddy must be,
But when they had scanned all thorough and clean
Each turned to his neighbor with questioning mien
And remarked:
"Well, where in this d—d trust business is he?"
But t'other un said:
"Search me."

BIG SUM PAID

OVER $55,000 PAID TO FORMER DEPOSITORS OF OLD BANK.

Many Comparatively Poor People Made Happy by Payment of Money Long Considered Lost.

Many stories are being told of the good that comes from the payment of the last twenty per cent., with interest, due depositors of the Lake County Bank. One man who had something over one hundred dollars due him, drew over sixty dollars in interest, this interest money bought and paid for the winter's coal and other necessary supplies, and the one hundred dollars and over was put away with the man's small savings for a rainy day.

The work of paying the former depositors is still in progress at the Cleveland Trust company's bank in this city.

Saturday noon it was estimated that over $55,000 had been paid to those who had money on deposit. Most of the individual claims have been paid and the remaining $28,000 yet to be paid belongs mostly to estates which have to be traced and settled before payment can be made.

JOSEPH CHAPMAN.

In His Death Painesville Loses One of its Foremost Citizens

All who knew Joseph Chapman loved and respected him. Even in his advanced years he stood out in this community as the embodiment of intellectual strength and the possessor of many virtues.

We can not do better than to repeat the sentiments expressed by the Telegraph-Republican:

With the passing of Joseph Chapman Painesville and Lake county loses one of its foremost citizens and a resident of whom the community was justly proud. Mr. Chapman, who was a man of unusual executive ability, always gave to this section his best efforts and was always identified with all movements which stood for the betterment of the city. Mr. Chapman was a prominent Mason, a lifelong member of the Methodist church, and for over a score of years at the head of one of the largest industries in Lake county, the Fairport Warehouse & Elevator Company."

The deceased was 81 years of age. He is survived by six children: The Misses Edith P. Chapman, and May G. Chapman of this city; Joseph and Edward Chapman of Minneapolis; and Charles and Oliver Chapman of Waterloo, Ia.

The funeral services for the deceased was held from the Chapman home on the park on Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Our Loss.

Miss Nettie Hamley, our Perry correspondent for the past two years, will soon enter college and as a consequence, The Herald will lose the assistance of this bright young lady.

Miss Hamley is a graduate of Perry High school, and it was while in school, editing a school paper, that she showed ability as a writer. Her kindly ways and simple, plain style of expression, have always been appreciated by the editors of The Herald, and we take pleasure in expressing our gratitude and extending our best wishes to this young lady in her new field of labor.

Comments upon the weather are about the least interesting and about the most commonplace of all things written for newspapers, but a few weeks ago Miss Hamley wrote a paragraph about the weather that contains a most commendable sentiment. Here it is:

"As rare as the sunshine this summer is a contented farmer. You remember last year it was too dry; the ever present topic of conversation was the drouth. Now comes the farmers' discontented query: "Will this rain never stop? What will become of the crops?" It is well to judge the future by the past—the crops turned out all O. K. last year, and what happened previously can happen again; so if people can keep sunny within, in spite of the rain without, all will be well.

Beware of the fellow who tells you "When in doubt vote No." Question that fellow and you will find that there are one or more amendments to the constitution that he has an interest in seeing defeated.

The buildings at the Lake County Fair grounds will be photographed this week, and from the photographs will be made half-tone cuts which will appear in the new publication "Lake County Illustrated."

Police Judge E. G. Huntington and Manager C. M. Grauel of the Painesville Telephone Co., arrived home from their three months' tour of Europe Wednesday morning. Both of these globe trotters are in the best of health.

There are nine turrets and as many flagpoles on the agricultural building at the fair grounds. Above the highest central turret will float an elegant U. S. flag, and on the eight poles above the other eight turrets will float bright colored pennants on which will be the names of the eight townships of the county.

The Progressive electors of Lake county will meet in mass convention at the court house, Painesville, Ohio, on Saturday, Aug. 31, 1912, at 1:30 o'clock p. m., to elect 8 delegates and 8 alternates to the state convention of the Progressive party at Columbus, Sept. 4th and 5th. So reads a notice signed by B. F. Crofoot, secretary of Lake county Progressive committee.

Little Robert Lockwood, the three-year-old son of Conductor Vaughn Lockwood of the C., P. & E. railroad who lives just east of Willoughby, was drowned in the creek near Ward's woods, east of that village at 7 o'clock Monday morning. The body was not recovered until noon of the same day. Undertaker Davis took charge of the remains.

Sidney J. Chandler passed away Monday at the home of Lloyd Richmond on Jackson street. The deceased was born in Chardon on Sept. 9, 1827. Mr. Chandler was a well known Geauga county farmer and he died after an illness of over a year. The funeral services were held at Chardon on Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Death was due to heart disease.

Mr. Malin of Lake, Mr. Lampson of Ashtabula, and Judge Smith of Geauga, were the three delegates to the Constitutional Convention in whom the people of North-Eastern Ohio had and still have the utmost confidence. Nearly every amendment to be submitted received the indorsement of these three delegates. They heard the friends and enemies of the measures talk and then voted "YES." Let us all do the same thing.

—o—

There are a number of people who get excited over the initiative and referendum—seem to be afraid of it. They seem to think that a great change is to be brought about. They have doubts of the advisability of the people—all the people—having something to say about the affairs of government. They talk as if a few of the people—a select few—were wiser than all the people. The fact is we have the initiative and referendum in changing our constitution. Does it hurt you, Mr. Voter, to change the constitution in that way?

Dare Devil Devlin, the one-legged globe cyclist, from Waco, Texas, spoke here upon socialism Tuesday night to a fair sized audience. He was interrupted by a number of his auditors, and there seems to be a difference of opinion as to who came out first best, Mr. Devlin or his hectors. However that may be, of one thing there is no doubt, and that is that not one of the hectors would dare to face an audience and speak connectedly upon the subject of Socialism or any other subject. Hectoring a public speaker is a good deal like guerrilla warfare.

The Lake County Teachers' Institute is being held this week here in Painesville. The instructors are W. E. Wenner, superintendent of the Ashtabula Harbor schools, Mrs. Harriet Gilbert, Painesville High school, and Miss Emily A. Wheeler, Lorain Primary schools. An address by Attorney Martin A. Tuttle was a feature Tuesday afternoon. S. D. Shankland, principal of the Andrews Institute, and S. A. Harbourt, state inspector of agriculture, will also be during the week. Nearly every teacher in Lake county is attending the meeting and many take part in the discussions of questions before the institute.

Woman Suffrage Column

By Lucy Burton Buell

When a man is elected governor of a state it usually means that he is considered a man of judgment and one who will be wise in matters affecting the state. Here is what the governors of five equal suffrage states say:

I am glad that Ohio is contemplating adopting a constitution which will give equal suffrage to women. It has been a great success in Colorado.

JOHN F. SHAFROTH, Governor.

"Am gratified to learn through press reports that Constitutional Convention will submit woman suffrage to vote of people in Ohio, and feel certain that the Buckeye state will follow her progressive sister commonwealths in the enfranchisement of her women. All Idaho wishes your cause success as experience here has justified its wisdom.

JAMES HAWLEY, Governor."

In Wyoming for many years women have had the right to vote and hold office. I have watched the operation of the law conferring these rights upon women with a great deal of interest, and I have been unable to see any disadvantage. I say God speed to you in your efforts. I wish I were in a position to help you.

"JOSEPH M. CAREY, Governor."

During the short time that woman suffrage has been in effect in Washington, a profound interest has been manifested among the women in the study of civic questions and the promotion of legislation and projects designated to advance the best interest of the people of the state. They are taking their responsibility seriously and providing a powerful agency of progress.

"M. E. HAY, Governor."

"I can not do better than to say that since the adoption of the Equal Suffrage Amendment in the state of California, three important city elections have been held. One of these city elections, that of Los Angeles, was the most exciting and the most bitterly contested ever held in this state, and it was believed, fraught with the gravest consequences to that community. In these elections the first test of equal suffrage with us, the women of California acquitted themselves with firmness, courage, ability, and with the very highest intelligence. If the [illegible] intelligence. If these elections are a fair indication of the practical working of equal suffrage, California will never regret the adoption of the amendment.

"HIRAM W. JOHNSON, Governor."

Will you not take the testimony of such men—men who have a public record open to the world—rather than what some obscure person who is unknown to you, says about woman suffrage?

cause it is an act of justice [illegible]

But arguments are not needed—because it is an act of justice, vote for amendment 23.

LUCY BURTON BUELL.

SAD ACCIDENT

SUPERINTENDENT W. N. COLLISTER KILLED THURSDAY NIGHT.

Many Expressions of the Keenest Sorrow Heard from All Who Knew This Popular City Official.

It was hard for many to believe that W. N. Collister, the popular superintendent of the water and light department of Painesville city, was dead, when from one to another the word was passed last Friday morning. He had been at the Business Men's picnic, well and happy, with a smile and pleasant word to everybody. His death and the cause of it seemed like the work of a cruel fate. It was a great shock to the entire community. It was a sad blow to the family and personal friends.

Mr. Collister returned from the picnic on the 10 o'clock car, and it is believed that in attempting to adjust an arc lamp that was out of order, in some way he received an electrical shock which caused his death. The accident happened at the corner of Jackson and Courtland streets.

Mr. Collister was at the time of his death 52 years of age. He had been connected with the city in an official capacity for over 20 years and was most highly esteemed by all who knew him. He is survived by a wife and two children, Stanley and Edna.

At 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon the funeral services were held at the Collister home on Prospect street. The services were conducted by Rev. M. H. Bradley. Those who bore the remains of the former city official to their last resting place were: Messrs. E. L. Williams, N. T. Breed, E. L. Hoose, H. R. Collacott, M. E. Crofoot and W. S. Smith. Interment was made at Evergreen cemetery.

THE RIGHT SPIRIT

Statement Made by Officers of Mentor Knitting Mills Most Commendable.

Years ago Mr. Bryan made a statement in regard to making industrial readjustments, commencing at the bottom. Today there are many employers of labor who are considering the great labor problems in the spirit of what is due "the men at the bottom."

The statement given out by the Mentor Knitting Mills embodies the advanced thought of those who would "live and let live."

"We have gradually advanced all day work in our mills," said an official, "and we aim now to advance the pieceworkers proportionately. We have plenty of work the year around and we want to pay such wages that every employe will earn an income commensurate with the times in which we are living. The advance has been made voluntarily by us, without even a request from our employes."

Everybody everywhere take a hike to the Painesville Fair, you have tried the rest, now go to the best.

WILLOUGHBY.

Miss Edna Van Kuren entertained friends from Cleveland Sunday.

Mrs. Homer Johnson went to Conneaut last week to meet her husband, whose boat was in that harbor.

Mr. and Mrs. William Gillespie have moved into James A. McMahon's house on River street for a month or two.

FIRES ON RUSSIAN STEPPES

Dreadful Conflagrations That Sweep the Plains, Driving Peasants to Seek Refuge in Water.

Midsummer in Russia has been ushered in by a great epidemic of fires on the steppes.

The intense dryness of the season has spread these fires over a huge area. One of the most dreadful fires that the Russian steppes have ever seen raged a few days ago in the province of Turgai, on the other side of the Ural mountains, and to the northeast of the Caspian. On these steppes vast seas of grass stretch to the horizon, raised only by shrubs of the wild cherry and dwarf almond on the hillsides or by clumps of wormwood when the soil is clayey. Herds of cattle and horses graze on the plains.

It was early in the morning when mighty clouds of smoke suddenly rose up from the steppe, a sure sign to the inhabitants that a fire was in progress. So appalling was the speed with which the fire rolled over the dry and yellow grass that the peasants had quickly to concert measures for saving just their own lives from destruction. Feverish activity prevailed in all the villages until the tongues of flame which came on nearer and nearer with uncanny swiftness appeared on the horizon.

Swept forward by the rushing wind sparks from the conflagration kindled in advance another fire which in a short time enveloped 30,000 acres of grazing ground. Swifter and swifter before the wind dashed on the wall of fiery waves. Enormous pillars of flame shot up into the air. The suction was so strong that slabs of turf and burning branches were hurled up into the air and thrown far away.

Men and cattle were hard put to it to save themselves. Their [illegible] danger was of being scorched by the fiery breath which swept on ahead of the furnace. Women and children who sank helpless to the ground were dragged along by the other fugitives, for only hasty flight was [illegible] of any avail. But even this would not have saved them had not a lake lain in their path into which they all rushed, wading in as far as they could without drowning.

Imagine then hundreds of persons standing in the waters up to their shoulders while all round them masses of flame [illegible] along the banks and sent out flickering tongues over the water in their direction [illegible] in their thirst for victims.

Some of the inhabitants of the villages on the steppes directly they saw the fire [illegible] to work to burn large areas [illegible] on these oases they collected all their cattle and household goods. At last a heavy shower came and extinguished the prairie fire. Many perished in the flames or were stifled by the smoke; fire in one village [illegible] in another and so on. Besides this there was great destruction of live stock large and small.

The Smoking Habit

According to statistics there are consumed in the United States every day 21,718,445 cigars and 23,7[illegible] cigarettes without including those rolled by the smokers themselves. These figures are large. Taken alone they seem to confirm the fears of those who go about dreading the ravages of the cigarette scourge. But measured against the population of the country they are seen to be small. They show a per capita consumption of less than a cigarette a day for the male voting population alone and considerably less than a cigar a day.—Tobacco Leaf.

Self-Sacrificing Women

Rev. Harold M. Ryder, pastor of the Methodist church at Bay Shore, L. I., was taken to the Seney hospital in Brooklyn the other day and the surgeon decided that an operation was necessary. It was performed and a speedy recovery was expected. But the patient began to sink and a transfusion of blood was decided upon. It is said to the honor of the women that 25 nurses on the staff of the hospital offered to open their veins to save the life of the patient. A healthy girl of sixteen years of age was selected and she faced the ordeal and it took a week to restore her vitality. But her heroism failed its purpose, for soon after the transfusion he died.—Christian Herald.

EXPLAINS POSTAL LAW

HITCHCOCK MAKES STATEMENT COVERING SUNDAY ACT.

Says Newspapers and Hotel Guests Will Be Able to Get Mail on Seventh Day of Week.

Washington, D. C.—Striving to check the flood of protests against the new regulations against the delivery of all except special delivery mail on Sundays, even to holders of postoffice boxes, Postmaster General Hitchcock issued this explanatory statement:

"Mail received up to midnight on Saturday for lock boxes will be distributed to the boxes and will be available to box holders on Sunday, as usual. There is at present no street delivery of mail by letters carriers on Sunday and therefore the law makes no changes in this regard. In short, the only mail that will be affected under a reasonable construction of the new law is that received at the postoffices on Sunday and hitherto sorted on that day for distribution to lock boxes.

"As the purpose of the law which was clearly enacted in the interest of the employes, is to reduce, as far as possible, the amount of Sunday labor, the work of distributing Sunday mail to lock boxes will be limited to certain classes of mail that cannot be held until Monday morning without serious inconvenience to the addresses. This mail will include that for newspapers and for hotel guests. The latter is peculiarly transient in character and should not be delayed. This mail, like the special delivery mail, will be sorted out at the offices to dispatch on the railway mail trains in order to simplify the work of distribution in the postoffices on Sundays. Under the new method its distribution to the boxes on Sunday will be hastened rather than delayed. To [illegible] the new law as liberal a construction as possible postmasters will be instructed, on application, to have their employes [illegible] in urgent cases on Sunday letters of special importance. This does not require the closing of postoffices on Sundays, which would be quite impossible."

RICH OWN GAMBLING PLACES

Wealthy Residents of New York Rent to Gamesters According to Waldo's Report

New York City.—For the first time in the history of the police department a list of the owners of property rented for use as gambling houses has just been made public by Commissioner Waldo. It reveals the names of many well known men. Verified copies of the list are to be turned over to the district attorney's office for use in [illegible] proceedings which are to be instituted as the first step in a determined war for the extermination of all forms of organized vice. Nearly 400 places are mentioned in the gambling list, which with the statistics as to the raids made upon them, cover 100 typewritten pages.

The William Astor estate appears in Waldo's list as the owner of two alleged gambling houses which were raided in August and September of last year. The names of Congressman Jefferson N. Levy of New York is recorded as the owner of a gambling resort known as the New England Dramatic and Pleasure Club, four times raided. Among the names of owners is that of Sailors' Snug Harbor, a wealthy charitable institution on Staten Island, the Lorillard estate, that of the Lorillard family of millionaire tobacco manufacturers, and J. Edgar Leaycraft and Edgar C. Leaycraft of the real estate firm of J. Edgar Leaycraft & Co.

LAWYERS SETTLE COLOR LINE

Decide to Keep Already Elected Negroes in Association but No More Will Be Admitted

Milwaukee, Wis.—Attorney General George W. Wickersham and his associates in the department of justice forced a peaceful solution of the troublesome question of negro membership in the American Bar Association and settled once for all the question of the color line in the association. Here is the story in brief of the solution.

Wickersham protested against the enforced resignation of Assistant Attorney General William H. Lewis and two other negro members of the association. When the northerners demanded the dropping of the agitation against Lewis and the southerners demanded their expulsion Attorney General Wickersham, representing the northern department of justice, Solicitor General Bullitt of Kentucky and former Secretary of War Jacob Dickinson of Tennessee, representing the south, arranged the compromise by which Lewis and the negro associates are recognized as legally elected members of the association, but no more negroes can be admitted.

Tank Steamer Burns

Santa Barbara, Cal.—The tank steamer [illegible], carrying oil, was burned to the water's edge off Gaviota at night.

The steamer was taking on oil at Gaviota when a boiler blew up. Fire quickly developed the vessel.

The crew, seeing there was no hope of saving the steamer, turned her oceanward and all hands landed safely on shore.

The last seen of the ship was all ablaze and almost burned to the water's edge.

Smokes First Cigar at 107

Danville, Ill.—William Henry Harbaugh has just celebrated his 107th birthday anniversary and is still a hale and hearty man. He came to Illinois and to Danville in 1833 and conducted the first blacksmith shop in the town. At the age of 75 years he retired from active work but when he rounded out a century he went to the blacksmith shop of his son and, just to show the boys that he was still able to do manual labor, shod a horse. On August 27 he smoked his first cigar and appeared to like it.

MONEY AIDED 1904 CAMPAIGN

Standard Oil Magnate Says $100,000 Went to Republican National Committee and $25,000 Was Paid to Penrose for State Committee

MAIN POINTS IN ARCHBOLD'S TESTIMONY

Paid Cornelius N. Bliss $100,000 for national Republican committee in 1904 with understanding it would be acceptable to Roosevelt and that he knew of it.

Paid Senator Penrose $25,000 for Pennsylvania campaign.

Asked for $150,000 more by Bliss but refused to pay it.

Cortelyou sent Bliss to Archbold for second donation, saying it was "inadvisable" for Cortelyou to come in person.

Outrageous attacks on the Standard by Roosevelt dated from refusal of second contribution.

Archbold and H. H. Rogers visited Roosevelt at White House later and were told by Roosevelt that there had been some criticism of campaign contributions but it couldn't be avoided.

Rogers, Tilford and Barstow of trust board died during 1909 worried to death.

William Flinn of Pittsburgh sought Archbold's aid to gain seat in senate after death of Senator Quay.

Didn't hear anything about the Standard's money being refunded and never got it back.

* * *

Washington, D. C.—John D. Archbold told the senate committee investigating campaign funds that the Standard Oil Co.'s $125,000 contribution to the Republican war chest of 1904 was made upon assurances from Cornelius N. Bliss that the contribution was acceptable to Colonel Roosevelt and that further contributions would be acceptable.

Archbold appeared on the stand before the subcommittee of the senate investigating campaign contributions, to explain the controversy between Colonel Roosevelt and Senator Penrose over the question.

Mr. Archbold explained that $100,000 went to the Republican national committee and that $25,000 was given to Senator Penrose for the Republican state committee.

TEDDY REITERATES DENIAL

Oyster Bay, N. Y.—Col. Roosevelt sat on the porch at Sagamore Hill for an hour and a half and dictated a statement in reply to the testimony of John D. Archbold before the senate investigating committee.

He reiterated his declaration that he knew nothing of a contribution by Mr. Archbold or the Standard Oil Co. to the Republican campaign of 1904, declared that he did not "for one moment believe that Mr. Archbold's testimony is truthful," and charged Mr. Archbold with a "wicked assault on a dead man."

He added that during many calls which Mr. Archbold made upon him while he was president to urge him not to prosecute the Standard Oil Co., Mr. Archbold never referred to any contribution to his campaign fund and concluded with the suggestion that the senate committee should make both Mr. Archbold and Senator Penrose testify at once concerning their relations while Mr. Penrose was member of the industrial commission.

Bride Arrested at the Altar

Perth Amboy, N. J.—Mrs. Mary Pfeiffer King was arrested at the altar and cast off by her wealthy husband of a moment, Pa. King, when he learned that his bride was charged with forgery.

Just as the minister pronounced King and Miss Pfeiffer man and wife, officers stepped into the church and placed the woman under arrest on complaint of Charles K. Seaman, a banker, who accused the woman of obtaining $100 on a forged order. She said the money was used for her trousseau.

Bread Outlasts Mould or Decay.

Washington, D. C.—The war department has discovered a method of baking bread by which it will last longer than the wheat that is dug out of the tombs of the Pharaohs. A two-pound loaf of this bread baked at the local arsenal was served at the war department in the office of Gen. Wood and was pronounced good.

The secret of the invention is the crust. The bread is baked all around with a thick brown envelope so there is no chance for the entry of germs of mould or decay.

ON TRAIL OF BED BUG

UNCLE SAM'S SANITARY DETECTIVES ARE ON THE JOB

Government Will Show No More Partiality and Pest Will Meet Fate of Fly and Mosquito.

Washington, D. C.—A lonely microbe, disheartened and ready to die because the public health service is rapidly putting all his ilk where they can do humanity no harm, peeked over the edge of Assistant Surgeon General Rucker's desk and heard the doctor humming a ditty that went like this:

A fly and a flea, a mosquito and a louse
All lived together in a very dirty house.
The flea spread the plague and the skeeter spread the chills.
All worked together to make the undertaker's bills.
The fly spread typhoid and the louse spread typhus, too.
Oh! 'twas in that house was a mighty sickly crew.
Along came a man and he cleaned up the house.
He screened out the skeeter and swatted the louse.
The fly and the flea he cracked on the wall.
Now the people in that house are never sick at all.

"Well," piped up the microbe, "that's all very well as far as it goes, but it strikes me you've been a bit partial in this thing. How about the bed bug? Where does he get off?"

"He's going to get off pretty quick," returned the doctor. "So far the bed bug has been able to prove an alibi, but I've put the sanitary detective on his trail and I'll get him yet."

Whereupon the microbe, seeing the jig was up, committed suicide by jumping in the ink well.

LIGHTNING IS FATAL TO SEVEN

Bolts From Sky Blot Out Lives and Injure Others In and Near St. Louis.

St. Louis, Mo.—Seven persons were killed and one seriously injured near St. Louis by lightning bolts. Mrs. Elizabeth Hansdorff, 26, of St. Louis was killed at Prairie Du Pont, Ill., four miles from St. Louis while on a fishing trip. She was preparing lunch and the bolt struck the steel knife in her hand. Her daughter, 9, was sitting in her lap but was unhurt.

Orlie Meadows, small son of Mrs. Lulu Meadows of East St. Louis, and Edward Mies of East St. Louis, were instantly killed while sitting under a tree in a public park in East St. Louis. Charles Jounghold, a laborer, sitting with them, was so seriously injured he will probably die.

Lightning struck the residence of Jefferson Rule, near Desoto, Mo., killing Mr. Rule, his wife, son and daughter.

MANY BURNED AND BRUISED

Women and Children Are Hurt When Elevated Train Bound for Coney Island Catches Fire.

New York City.—Women and children to the number of more than a dozen were either burned or seriously bruised when a West End elevated train bound for Coney Island burst into an Eighteenth avenue and East 86th street place.

A trolley pole on the car dragged the heavy charged feed wire drive from its fastenings and threw it across the cars, forming a short circuit and setting the train on fire.

Three Die as Boat Upsets

Youngstown, O.—Three people were drowned in Lake Glacier in Mill Creek park when Dominic Dallas, who was guiding the boat, allowed it to float too close to the edge of the dam where the boat upset and the five occupants were thrown out.

The drowned: Dominic Dallas, 30; Laura Oliver, nine; Cora Ellis, 12. A hero, who disappeared immediately after the accident, took a running leap from off a steep bank and swam out, saving Myrtle Oliver, ten, and Laura Oliver, 12.

25 Hurt When Stand Falls.

New York City.—Twenty-five persons were injured and 1,500 thrown into a panic which threatened to have serious consequences when a section of the grandstand of the East New York ball park collapsed during the game. More than a hundred persons were hurled 20 to 30 feet to the ground, among them a number of women, but ambulances, hurriedly summoned, took all the injured to hospitals or to their homes. Some of the women most seriously injured were trampled on by the crowd.

NATIONAL SOLONS QUIT THEIR WORK

FILE OUT OF WASHINGTON AS SIXTY-SECOND CONGRESS COMES TO AN END.

DEFICIENCY BILL AGREED TO ### Measure as Reported by Conferees of House Is Adopted by Senate and Signed by President—Penrose Resolution Goes Through.

Washington, D. C.—With members tired and peevish and less than a majority in attendance in each house of congress, the second session of the Sixty-second congress was ended at 4:30 p. m. August 26. The next session will open in December, unless some great crisis should arise that would justify President Taft in calling a special session during the fall. Tired out from their all-night vigil and angered by the action of the senate in delaying adjournment, only about 50 members of the house gathered on the last day out of the total of 390 to take part in the closing work and these were in fighting mood. Ignoring the chaplain's prayer for peace, Representative Focht, Republican of Pennsylvania, got the floor on personal privilege to reply to Representative Burnett's criticism of an immigration bill advocated by Focht. There was blood in Focht's eye when he characterized some of the statements by Burnett as "false" and "maliciously false." Speaker Clark issued several warnings that more temperate language must be used until Garrett of Tennessee moved finally to have the whole matter stricken from the congressional record. By agreement no action was taken on the immigration bill and Representative Carlin, Democrat of Virginia, made a demand for the passage by the house of the senate resolution for an extra month's pay for employes in the face of opposing Democratic caucus action. After causing cold chills by a threat to demand a quorum to suspend the rules, he was restrained by Underwood and Fitzgerald, held the floor until adjournment.

Last Day in Senate

The end came in the senate amid profound peace. All the fight with which a number of senators bristled previously disappeared during the day and it was a comparatively easy matter for those whose duty it always is to "fix things" to obtain an agreement to stop the filibustering and permit congress to get away. Realizing the impossibility of dodging a vote on the Penrose investigating resolution those who secretly opposed it made the best of a bad situation and let it come to a vote. It was dismissed briefly, opposed by Bailey once more on constitutional grounds and then adopted by a viva voce vote.

With that portion of the filibuster over Chairman Warren of the appropriations committee turned his attention to the general deficiency, the last of the great supply bills. The group of half a dozen senators who had threatened to stay here until the snow flies before they would yield to the house and re-enact the state claims the senate had inserted in this bill thought better of it after they had talked with their colleagues. Each of the group sang his own song telling how just these claims were and how he yielded only because those whose items had been agreed upon ought not to suffer because a few could not obtain fair treatment. One by one they withdrew their opposition and that filibuster was over. The deficiency bill as reported by the conferees was adopted, the house had its way and the last snag was removed from the pathway of final adjournment.

President Signs Bill.

The president, smiling and happy, sat in his room signing belated bills and resolutions. The moment after he put his signature to the big appropriation bill the committees of the two houses awaited upon him to inform him that congress was ready to adjourn unless he had some other communication to make. As a matter of fact the resolution to adjourn at 4:30 was agreed to before the president was notified. That made no difference to the president, for it was with every evidence of joy and satisfaction that he informed the committee he most certainly had nothing to communicate. Whereupon the president, accompanied by his staff, was whirled away to the union station to the special car attached to the federal express, which took him to Beverly.

The acting vice president was solemnly thanked by the senate for his services. The gavel then tapped out the life of this session.

Many important appointments made by President Taft in the last few months were left unconfirmed. Among the more important are those of Judge Richard E. Sloan of Arizona, Maj. Gen. W. W. Witherspoon, Brig. Gen. John McClernand and Judge Clinton W. Howard of Washington state.

Tried and Fined Over Phone.

Washington C. H., O.—Arrested, tried and fined over the telephone, such was the experience of Dr. J. L. Pollitt of Erie, Pa., here. The local police received a message to arrest Dr. Pollitt, who had exceeded the speed limit in Hillsboro and made a getaway. He was arrested here and taken before Mayor Smith, who called up the mayor of Hillsboro. Dr. Pollitt was placed at the phone, pleaded guilty to speeding, was fined $14.90, which he turned over to Mayor Smith to be forwarded to Hillsboro.

Burns to Death in Barn.

Sharon, Pa.—One man burned to death, half a dozen barns destroyed and property damage estimated at thousands of dollars resulted from one of the most severe storms of this season in Mercer county, when lightning struck the barn belonging to Alvin Wagner in Delaware township. The barn was set afire and Wagner rushed into the blazing structure to rescue a horse. While trying to lead the animal out, the barn collapsed, burying both under tons of burning hay and timbers.

TWO PERSONS KILLED

HEAD-ON COLLISION ON C., H. & D. COSTS TWO LIVES NEAR TROY.

Engineer and Fireman on Passenger Train Jump and Are Found Near Track Fatally Wounded.

Dayton, O.—Two persons were fatally injured and a number of others badly shaken when southbound Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton Passenger Train No. 10 collided head-on with two freight engines south of Troy. Failure of the freight engines, which were running as an extra, to stop at the switch at Tippecanoe City, where they were ordered to await the passenger train, is said to have been the cause of the wreck.

The passenger was running at a high rate of speed when Engineer A. Klein saw the headlight of the first freight engine. He and his fireman, Clarence Maycock, jumped. They were found lying near the track and are said to be fatally injured.

The force of the collision was such that the tender of the leading freight engine catapulted through the air, landing atop of the passenger engine. Several of the coaches were demolished. All were derailed.

TWO BOYS ARE HURT

One by Being Hit by Taxi and the Other by Falling From Auto.

Columbus, O.—Leo Bernhard, 17, and Kimball Oyler, 18, both of this city, were fatally injured in automobile accidents which occurred within an hour of each other. Young Bernhard was riding a bicycle in the outskirts of the city and was struck by a taxicab. His neck was broken.

Kimball Oyler was riding in the rear seat of an automobile which collided with another machine and was thrown to the ground, fracturing his skull. None of the other people in the automobiles was injured. Both boys were taken to hospitals where their injuries were pronounced fatal.

SALE OF PAPER PLANT.

Dayton, O.—What promised to develop into almost interminable litigation, the contested sale of the Friend Paper Mills, at West Carrollton—was happily ended when President J. H. Friend agreed to an adjustment whereby N. J. Catrow, chairman of the Creditors' Committee, secures the big plant, his bid having been $900,000. Mr. Catrow had put up the necessary deposit upon Mr. Friend's failure to do so until it was too late.

The firm will be reorganized and financial backing will be secured from Cleveland and New York banks, the Hayden-Miller Co., of the former city and the Rhoades Co., of New York, arranging financial assistance, and will take over the $800,000 indebtedness of the company.

NEW DIRECTORS FOR COMPANY.

Dayton, O.—Differences that recently developed among the directors and stockholders of the Gem City Insurance Co. were adjusted, when, under the direction of State Insurance Director F. H. Moore, a new board of directors was unanimously chosen. The members of the old board tendered their resignations to Commissioner Moore about two weeks ago. The company's finances are not impaired. Dr. Gilbert T. Brown and Gustav Becker were re-elected.

TWO WOMEN INJURED.

Zanesville, O.—When an auto containing Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Barnett, Mr. and Mrs. William Barnett and child, and the driver, all of Zanesville, tried to pass another auto in a narrow road at New Concord, the Barnett machine went too near the bank of a creek and turned turtle, landing in the water. When the crash came all the occupants jumped. The two Mesdames Barnett were injured, Mrs. William Barnett perhaps fatally. The machine was wrecked.

DAYTON PRISONERS MUTINY.

Dayton, O.—Twenty-four prisoners in the county jail mutinied and were locked in solitary confinement by Sheriff Huffman after they had overpowered the jailer. The men, who had made a number of attempts to escape within the past month, refused to clean the walls of the prison.

COMPANY G VICTORIOUS.

Ada, O.—Company G of the Second Infantry, O. N. G., arrived in high spirits from Findlay, after participating in a celebration sham battle there. It won the target-shooting contest for the McCook trophy of the Second Regiment, this being its third successive victory.

CHILD KILLED BY AUTO.

Bellefontaine, O.—While Miss Beatrice Baughman was entertaining friends with an auto ride the heavy car she was driving struck and almost instantly killed Elbert, 3-year-old son of Olen Johnson, a realty dealer. The boy was playing in the street in front of the Johnson home at West Mansfield, this county, when struck. The mother saw her boy killed. Miss Baughman is prostrated because of the accident and is said to be in a serious condition.

COLORED BOY IS DROWNED.

Cedarville, O.—Arthur McKinney, a 12-year-old colored boy, was drowned while fishing at Cedarville. The lad with several of his companions, were fishing in the creek when the accident occurred. It seems that young McKinney had caught and strung one fish and was just stringing another when he leaned over too far, lost his balance and fell. No one saw the accident until the boys upon returning found the boy's fishing pole. Hugh Marshall brought the body to the surface.

DARROW IS BUCKEYE

Clarence Darrow, the Famous Labor Advocate, Recently Acquited of Charges of Bribery, Was Born In Kinsman, Ohio.

FIRE AT GROVE CITY

Discovered By Telephone Operator and Help Is Summoned From Columbus.

Grove City, O.—Fire which caused a loss estimated at nearly $25,000, destroyed Kegg's grocery, the Ohio Electric waiting room, Citizens' telephone exchange, the township office and Odd Fellows' hall in Grove City. The blaze started at 11:30 o'clock in the waiting room and 15 minutes later help was solicited from Columbus.

Chief Lauer sent a chemical company under Capt. Payne to the village. The fire was discovered by Miss Herschel Borton, Citizen telephone girl, who was working above the waiting room.

M. E. YOUNG PEOPLE

Sabina, O.—The fourth annual convention of the Young People's union, including the Sunday school and Christian Endeavor, was interesting during the two days' session. The sessions were addressed by Rev. Dr. [illegible] Hubbell, secretary of the board of young people's work; Rev. Dr. E. D. Peck, pastor of Grace M. E. church, Columbus, O., and Mr. C. W. Shinn, general secretary of the Ohio Sunday-school association.

SHOT BY FATHER.

Gallipolis, O.—Gilbert, the 5-year-old son of George F. Boster, a farmer residing six miles south of here, was accidentally shot and killed by his father. The accident occurred while Mr. Boster was cleaning an old-fashioned gun. The boy was sitting directly in front of his father and when the gun was discharged received the full charge just above the heart. He died instantly.

CONTRACTORS FILE SUIT.

Hamilton, O.—The Garver Contracting Co. of this city, brought suit against the city of Middletown, claiming $7,856 for extra work on their contract to build sewers in that city. The company says the extra work was ordered done by the director of public service of Middletown and that the council refused to allow the extra compensation.

SNAKE HIDES IN DRAWER.

Hamden, O.—In removing a garment from a bureau drawer in her home at Addison, Gallia county, Mrs. Nelson White was bitten on the hand by a copperhead snake, which had taken up quarters there. The woman was alone at the time, but neighbors, who heard her cries for help, responded and killed the snake. Mrs. White, it is said, will recover.

LOSES JOB; TAKES HIS LIFE.

Wapakoneta, O.—Jacob Honey, aged 56, committed suicide. His body was found hanging to a limb of a cherry tree by his son. The loss of his position as janitor of one of the city public schools, in which capacity he served for 15 years, is said to be the cause.

STRUCK BY LIGHTNING.

Portsmouth, O.—Luther Middaugh, 11, of New Boston, two miles east of Portsmouth, was instantly killed by a bolt of lightning at the race track. Five other boys were rendered unconscious. The bolt of lightning split, one fork striking the grandstand, the other the judges' stand.

DROWNS WHILE FISHING.

Xenia, O.—While fishing from a high bank on Massie's creek, Arthur Kinney, aged 12, fell into the creek and was drowned before aid could reach him.

ACID PROVES FATAL.

Dayton, O.—Naomi Field, aged 16, residing at 450 Quitman street, who drank carbolic acid, died at the Miami Valley Hospital. The girl recently lost her position, and her self-destruction is attributed to the despondency over this fact. Her father was found dead in his shop over the residence last winter, having been asphyxiated. It has never been determined whether his death was accidental or due to suicide.

WERE PINNED UNDER MACHINE.

Marietta, O.—When his automobile turned turtle near New Matamoras, Harry Smith, a wealthy oil producer, his wife and baby were pinned beneath the car, for more than an hour, and Mrs. Smith sustained serious burns about the face and body. He was also slightly burned and one knee was dislocated, but the baby escaped unhurt. Mr. and Mrs. Smith are now at the home of a farmer nearby, unable to be moved.

When Labor Slept

by Harry Irving Green

It chanced that once upon a time remote,
The weary giant, known as Labor, smote
His thigh a sounding whack and cried, "I'm blest,
But I have toiled enough and now I'll rest.
I'll let the world wag onward as it may,
While I go home and have my holiday."
So, Labor laid aside his tools and crept
Deep in his cavern, where he promptly slept.

An hour went by, an hour without a sound,
The shops were stilled, no more their wheels went 'round,
The mills were fastened close with bolt and lock,
The steamship idly rubbed against her dock,
The engine moveless slept, the anvil stood
As silent as a gravestone in a wood.
While Mankind, startled by the awful still,
Together whispered, awed, "Is Labor ill?"

And as the moments passed o'er town and farm,
And all was still, there 'rose a great alarm,
Went forth the giant Commerce, loud to shout,
Deep into Labor's cavern, "Friend, come out,
You're needed by us—needed in a trice.
Please come at once! We'll pay you any price.
You've slept an hour already—all your fill.
Come forth at once. The world is standing still."

And Labor, wakened by the other's cries,
Stretched forth his brawny arms and rubbed his eyes,
And mused a bit, then with good-natured smile,
Said, "Yes, I'll come, but make it worth my while.
One day each year you'll give me privilege free,
One day each year you'll consecrate to me,
While one day I will consecrate to play,
And (chuckling, said), we'll call it Labor Day."

EQUAL OPPORTUNITY

The ultimate aim of the labor movement is to establish a condition of society, first, that will insure to each head of a family equal and ample opportunity to secure a livelihood, which will be sufficient to provide his family with the same necessities and luxuries of life enjoyed by any other citizen; second, that will enable him to give his children an education in whatever direction they may decide to follow, equal to that received by the children of every other member of society.

To enlarge the opportunity to secure employment, the trade unions are advocating and establishing a shorter workday for its members. To insure equal education, the trade unions are endeavoring to secure the enactment of compulsory education laws and child labor laws in every state, territory and province in America, thus withdrawing the children from the factories, mines and workshops.

The trade unions assert that all benefits accruing from the inauguration of labor-saving devices or cheap forms of distribution should be enjoyed equally by all the people, instead of being diverted to the benefit of the few.

The labor movement holds that all people are entitled to partake equally of the joy of living; that a condition that permits part of our people to live in affluence, while another part is compelled to work long hours for meager wages, should be abolished; that a condition that furnishes work to only a fraction of the people and leaves another fraction without employment, and helpless for long periods, should be eliminated from our civilization.

Many claim that efforts along that direction are an iridescent dream and cannot be realized for years to come. In my opinion it will come. It is now approaching. It will come with the full awakening of the consciousness of our people, a consciousness which is rapidly growing in strength and power, and is now in abeyance, awaiting that psychological moment when the great vibrating will of all the people has been crystallized into an active and intelligent force that will sweep aside all obstacles that resist its purpose to mete out justice to all mankind and establish among all the peoples of the earth—the Brotherhood of Man.

Frank Morrison

A Trophy of Victory.

The annual holiday of labor is not a bit of driftwood picked up by accident. It is one of the trophies of battle and victory. Its message is of labor's rights and struggles and triumphs, not of labor's play spells or of gifts received from any source.

The only demand the 250,000 shopmen in the Federation of Federations are making is for recognition of the federation as the only contract making organization in the railroad industry between the shopmen and the companies.

Before or After.

"I thought that in the 15 years of my practice of medicine," said a physician, "I had answered almost every possible foolish question, but a new one was sprung on me recently. A young man came in with an inflamed eye, for which I prescribed liniment—to be dropped into the eye three times a day. He left the surgery, but returned in a few minutes, poked his head in the doorway, and asked: 'Shall I drop this in the eye before meals, or after?'"

LESSON OF LABOR DAY

An Annual Holiday That Is More Than Just a Play Time

The first Monday in September brings an annual reminder of the fact that one of the holidays which are now practically nation wide is so new and so vital that it is growing visibly and rapidly in prestige and usefulness. Labor day was an experiment so recently that men still young remember its beginnings; now it is one of the firmly established and much-valued rest and recreation days of the year.

But the day is more than that. It is a holiday which is not a mere play day. Nor is it only a celebration of some great event of the past. It looks ahead quite as much as it looks backward. It is filled with the spirit of advancing, confident, buoyant life. It is even a militant day, with a strong suggestion of willingness and ability to battle for rights denied or principles assailed.

It is well for the country that Labor day is so thoroughly alive. It is a good thing for American people that such a holiday comes around every fall to remind all classes and conditions of men and women of the vital and fundamental part which the labor of the hands plays and must always play in the progress of the world and the very existence of mankind. It is too easy to forget, at times, that everything rests on hard physical toil and that without it all of the boasted flowering of civilization would be impossible.

Labor day is broad enough, in its name and in the break which it makes in the regular grind of trade and industry and in all of the productive activities of the country to cover all kinds of work, but it is the especial property of manual labor and more particularly of manual labor so organized, so awake and so strong that it can speak as a vast body of men trained to act together and work for the same ends.

That is to say, the annual holiday of labor is taken as a right, not as a gift. It is a demonstration of strength ready for use, not a day of recreation and fun without a serious thought.

But the stronger labor becomes the less danger there is of needless and destructive labor wars. With power comes responsibility, and the more there is that has been won the more there is, also, to hazard in strife. The labor organizations which are most thoroughly developed and united are the ones which get along best with employers and are most reasonable and businesslike in the negotiations which they carry on. The strong and successful do not lightly risk the fruits of their past triumphs and the same qualities that made them succeed keep them safe and sound.

Labor day is filled with such lessons. It is stimulating, thought-compelling and instructive as a holiday, and there are few days in the year which do more to make Americans give attention to the large problems of their country and the times.

Hunters Born, Not Made.

A hunter is born, not made. Unless a man has the love of the chase bred in his blood he's not going to get any blue ribbons pinned on him for sportsmanship. Some men take to the trail as naturally as a duck heads it to the puddle after cracking the egg-shell. Then there are others who never seem to learn the game—they think they like to hunt but when you get them into the tall and unlimbered, they prove to be misfits who are eternally doing the wrong thing at the inopportune time.—National Sportsman.

INFANTILE PARALYSIS

TO BE OBJECT OF ATTACK BY THE OHIO STATE BOARD OF HEALTH.

Disease So Fatal To Babies Will Be Fought and a Strong Effort Made To Stamp It Out.

Columbus.—Fears that infantile paralysis, a disease deadly to babies and also seriously contagious, may gain headway in Ohio, have led the state board of health to formulate special plans to arrest it. Special inspectors employed by the board have discovered more than 30 cases of the disease throughout the state, and have found that instead of being curbed, it is gaining ground. The disease is one that either kills its victim or leaves him a cripple for life. Local health authorities in places where the disease has been found, will be asked to co-operate with the state board in a general movement to stamp it out.

The state board is still pushing its crusade against rats, as a precaution against the spread of the bubonic plague in Ohio, should that disease, which is now threatening the seaport towns, ever gain a foothold in the United States.

Road Contracts Let By State.

Nearly $85,000 worth of contracts, for which bids were solicited by the state highway department, went begging. Not a bid was received for contracts that amounted to more than $20,000, and they will have to be advertised a second time. Contracts amounting to upwards of $75,000 were let, however. They were:

Crogham Construction Co., of Fremont, O., Port Clinton road in Erie county, estimated at $19,438, let for $11,889.

E. C. Wortman, Hamden, O., Allensville extension, Vinton county, estimated at $12,317, let for $12,299.

James L. Garver, Hamilton, O., Circleville Washington road, Pickaway county, estimated at $12,694, let for $11,961.

John Acton, Vaughnsville, O., Rimer road, Putnam county, $6,061.

Edward T. Hoffman, Castalia, O., Monroeville and Bloomington road, Erie county, $4,195.

The contracts include two for a kind of concrete pavement, something of a departure in road construction which State Highway Commissioner James R. Marker desires to test. The tests are being made now in the belief that the $50,000,000 bond issue for a system of intercounty roads will carry, and the department will then be face to face with the big problem of how the money can best be used.

Underwriters Elect Delegates.

The Columbus Association of Life Underwriters has elected seven delegates and alternates to attend the convention of the national association to be held at Memphis, Tenn., September 17, 18 and 19. Local delegates will be H. H. Steiner, Fritz Lichtenberg, W. A. Coultright, Albert Speaks, B. L. Lewis, E. L. Paine and C. C. Hills. Alternates chosen are M. D. Donham, S. B. E. Siese, B. D. Clement, R. W. Hoyer, Lou H. Brown and E. P. Tice. The delegation from this city will go to Cincinnati, where it will join the delegations from a number of other cities on a special train from that city to Memphis. The program arranged for the national convention includes addresses by Robert Lynn Cox, counsel and general manager of the Association of Life Insurance Presidents, Dr. Oscar L. Dowling, president of the Louisiana State Board of Health, Edward A. Woods, manager of the Equitable Life Assurance Society of New York at Pittsburg, and Isaac M. Hamilton, former president of the American Life Convention and president of the Federal Life Insurance Co. of Chicago.

Ohio Incorporations.

The following articles of incorporation were approved and filed by the secretary of State:

The Hyde Park Amusement Co., Cincinnati, moving pictures and vaudeville, $40,000; W. B. Stratton, Karl H. Williams, Archer E. Cragg, Philip E. Williams, H. C. Hyndman, M. D.

The Danbury Fruit Co., Danbury. Increase $3,000 to $10,000.

The Paint and Glass Co., Akron, manufacturing and dealing, $10,000; L. P. Hoffmaster, H. H. Smith, Oliver E. Jones, L. W. Hoffmaster, T. Thompson.

The Muskingum River Coal Co., Columbus, mining and dealing in coal, $25,000; Everett A. Patterson, L. Benton Tussing, S. F. L. Denn, J. H. Elden, E. C. Kiesinger.

The Wright Brothers' Dry Cleaning Co., Canton. Increase $10,000 to $30,000.

The Kno Darn Hosiery and Manufacturing Co., Dayton, manufacture and sale hosiery and novelties, $15,000; Arthur C. Stole, Charles E. Comer, Lyde B. Stole, Charles W. Folkerth, Clarence H. Folkerth.

Inspection Is Necessary.

At a meeting of the steam boiler inspectors which was held in Columbus, Atty. Gen. Hogan gave an opinion that under Section 1058 of Ohio Code all steam heating boilers carrying less than 15 pounds pressure must be inspected unless each boiler are equipped with safety appliances approved by the board of boiler rules. The matter of small boilers was discussed, and it was decided that the ones which carry 60 pounds pressure must be inspected also. Charles Wirmel, of Cincinnati, is the chief inspector.

Public Service Hearings.

The American Gas and Electric Co. asked the Ohio Public Service Commission for approval of its purchase of the Fostoria Electric Light Co. for a cash price of $82,500. The company is operated at present by a partnership of five men.

The commission heard the application of the Cleveland Railway Co. for authority to issue $2,015,000 of common stock, to provide money for additions to power houses, new stations and other equipment.

Will Attend Tax Conference.

Columbus men will be leaders in the sixth national conference on state and local taxation, which will be held September 3, 4 and 5 in Des Moines under auspices of the National Tax association. Allen Ripley Foote, of this city, is president of this association, and Foster Copeland is treasurer. The governor of each state of the union has appointed three delegates and the president of each university and college has appointed a representative. In addition the convention will be made up of secretaries, auditors and treasurers of states, railroad and public utility commissioners, state superintendents of insurance and banking, county and city tax officials. Among the subjects considered will be present and pending state taxation laws, taxation of public service corporations, rates for special classes of property and the inheritance tax.

Commission Decides 'Phone Point.

When one telephone company operating between two points, is able and willing to handle all the business between them, it can not be forced to establish connections with a rival company which is represented at only one of the points.

This was the ruling handed down by the state public service commission when the case of the Hamilton Home Telephone Co., operating in Hamilton and Butler counties, against the Cincinnati and Suburban Bell Telephone Co., which is represented at those localities and also at Cincinnati, was dismissed.

The Home Co. at present is practically excluded from Cincinnati, and the action was brought to force the Bell Co. to furnish connections with the Queen City at Hamilton.

To Pension Mothers.

Widowed mothers of children under 14 years of age will be pensioned, if the legislature accepts the report and recommendations of the codifying commission appointed by Gov. Harmon to revise the laws relating to the welfare of children. The commission is composed of Judges Daniel Babst, of Crestline and Arthur D. Baldwin, of Canton.

The report proposes that widowed mothers who have one child under 14 years of age, and who are disabled, shall receive $15 a month and $7 a month for each additional child under the age of 14 years. It also recommends that 60 cents a day be paid to the wife of a man who is in the workhouse, instead of 40 cents, the amount allowed now.

Must Give New Bond.

I. N. Rex, former chief clerk in the penitentiary, charged with embezzling about $600 from that institution, was rearrested at the request of Mrs. Jas. C. Nicholson, who desired to be released from his bond. The request of Mrs. Nicholson is said to indicate that Attorney James C. Nicholson, her husband, has withdrawn as counsel for the defense, he having been associated with Attorney Frank Dore of Tiffin, the home of Rex. After spending several hours in jail, Rex was released, a local surety company going on his $7,000 bond until his mother, who also resides in Tiffin, can arrive in Columbus.

Would Sell Common Stock.

Asking permission to sell 2,315 shares of common stock representing approximately one-fourth of its authorized capitalization of $50,000 in order to pay debts which have accrued through construction and improvements, officials of the Pomeroy and Middleport Telephone Co. filed a petition with the public utilities commission. The par value of the stock is $5 and it is quoted at $1.

Fireman Suing Insurance Companies.

William L. Yinger, a Norfolk and Western railroad fireman has brought suit against five accident insurance companies for sums aggregating $4,373.73, amounts alleged to be due on policies which he held. Mr. Yinger lost his left foot in a railroad accident at Waverly, October 28, 1911. He asks $150 from the American Casualty Co., $332.23 from the Pittsburg Casualty, $600 from the United States, $1,500 from the Continental Casualty and $1,790 from the Travelers' Insurance Co.

May Make Large Issue.

The Ohio public service commission has given to the Big Four railroad permission to issue general mortgage bonds in the sum of $1,578,000 to pay for improvements and extensions and retire certain bonds that have matured. The bonds must not be sold for less than 92 per cent of par value. The commission also has authorized the Cincinnati Northern road to issue $144,000 of first mortgage bonds to pay for improvements. These bonds are not to be sold for less than 90.

Social Forms and Entertainments

From a Young Girl

I have been reading your column quite awhile and now I come to you for help. I am a girl fifteen years old and would like you to tell me how should I treat a boy who likes me much, and I don't care anything for him.

Is it proper for a girl to kiss a young boy that is older than she, after he has been off for three years? Do you think I write well?—From an Interested Reader.

You have a difficult task, but if the boy has any sense at all, after you have declined his invitations several times he will see that you do not care for his attention. I do not think you need kiss the young man even if he has been absent a long time. He is not a relative, and has no reason to claim kisses. Your writing may be greatly improved by careful practice; it is not good for one of your age.

Written Wedding Invitations

In writing a wedding invitation to the few guests who are to witness a ceremony to be performed at home, is the same form observed as those engraved, or are informal notes sent?—Perplexed.

Do not try to copy the formal style but write an individual note to each guest. One of the prettiest home weddings I know of was where the bride wrote little missives something like this: "Dick and I are to be married on Saturday at noon, and it will add greatly to our happiness if you witness the ceremony. Hoping to have you with us, cordially yours, etc."

The Proper Thing to Do

This may seem a most trivial and even foolish state of mind to be in, but I believe you will be kind enough to aid me. For many long years I was barred from all social pleasures by a series of illnesses. Now that I am well and can again enter society, I find I am too self-conscious to enjoy a single moment. I do not know what to say or how to act. What shall I do? Can you give me any set phrases to learn or repeat on all occasions? Anything you suggest I will be grateful for.—Will.

In the first place, endeavor to forget yourself. This will only be accomplished by degrees, for you have been so accustomed to thinking of yourself and your surroundings. If possible, become engaged in some active work for others. When you enter a room do not let the thought come "what do they think of me," but "what can I see or do or say to make the other fellow comfortable and happy?" You will find this habit will grow, too, and you will soon be perfectly at ease.

The Proper Calling Cards

Please inform me which is the proper way for a wife to have her calling cards printed. Should the husband's initials be used, his full Christian name (if a long one), or the wife's Christian name? Should the name be printed or written?—Nell.

A visiting card should bear the husband's full name or his first name and middle initial and they should be written if you cannot afford to have them engraved, not printed.

From a Fall Hostess.

I want to give a party in the fall and want to invite some boys and girls from the country. As it will not be a house party do I have to invite them to stay with me—especially the boys. Hoping to see this in print at your very earliest convenience.—An Interested Reader.

It is not necessary for you to ask the boys to be house guests; they should look out for themselves at a hotel. Of course girls could not go to a public place unchaperoned.

MADAME MERRI.

Dancing Frocks.

Dancing gowns will come in for a great share of attention this summer and while young girls will revel in those elegant simplicities of exquisite laces and old world taffetas which are so cleverly blended into the artistic modes for evening wear young matrons will lean toward the clever color harmonies of chiffons and embroideries which veil the more brilliant silks and satins of their foundation.

The range of colorings is greater than ever and the gradient hues of one particular color provides variety in plenty. It is possible to go through the whole gamut of one particular favorite hue and yet have frocks individual enough for a score of festive occasions.

Then, after exhausting the possibilities of a really inexhaustible range there are all the combinations of color harmonies to be considered.

Jeweled Ornaments.

The favorite jewelry ornament and the one that is above all beautiful is undoubtedly the pearl necklace, either long or short. The low cut corsage favors the return of this prettiest of fashions and makes the old world liking for the narrow black velvet choker apparent once more. The black velvet and the pearls agree, the velvet enhances the beauty of the pearls and at the same time throwing into relief the whiteness of the throat.

Health & Beauty Hints

By Katherine Morton

Invitations for October weddings are beginning to fly, and so also are letters to beauty specialists. They are mostly from engaged girls, and bridesmaids pretty pleas for "balms," or pastes or advice. Two of the future brides complain of being "worn out" and pale and nervous—that is, two who write to me, and here are patients for that cheapest of medicine and that most rewarding of beauty moves—common sense.

Being engaged is in itself a thrilling experience, trying to the nerves, temper and more muscles, if the girl does much running around, and if she stays at home and is entirely occupied with the subject of Jack or John and her own happiness, she is apt to get not only pale, but extremely below par in physical fitness. Love is the most consuming emotion of which the human heart is capable, and too much occupation with the subject is far from sensible now when two people expect to join their destinies so soon for all time. Therefore as a first specific toward the relief of that "tired feeling," and as a cure for indifferent complexions, I would advise the bride-to-be to have more long walks with her "young man" and fewer indoor conferences. Fresh air is the skin's greatest reviver and the exercise freshens the blood, tones up muscles and brings joy to the heart, but since young people always want to drink cold things summer afternoons and nights, I must warn the bride who wants a flawless complexion on her wedding day to steer clear of the ice cream sodas taken so often during the rambles with the beloved one and with girl friends.

Buttermilk, as I have said many times, used internally and externally is very beautifying to the skin, and sometimes an entire buttermilk diet is needed for toning up the stomach after purging or a bilious attack. Molasses of the thick, dark kind is considered to have a distinct beauty value when eaten with coarse bread and so are the fresh fruits, particularly oranges, grapefruit, grapes and pineapple. A daily salad of fresh green stuff aids the digestion and so is a help in the banishing of pimples and the sallowness due to coarse eating or neglect of the bowels.

Weddings coming in October entail a good deal more anxiety about the whiteness of the skin than do those of the springtime, for vacations have just ended and many girls return to town disfigured to the alarming point with sunburn and freckles. For the dispersal of these blights massage is needed, but it must follow a hot face bath or a good face steam and be done with a bleaching cream. The cream containing cucumber, lettuce or iris are all whitening in their effect, but much of the success with their use comes with the massage. The rubbing gets down to the seat of things, the pores opening and allowing the unguent used to penetrate below the first layer of skin.

A cucumber milk, which is almost a specific for redness, roughness and sunburn, and which is very helpful in the banishment of freckles, is made in this manner:

| | |
|---|---|
| Oil of sweet almonds | 4 ounces |
| Fresh cucumber juice | 10 ounces |
| Essence of cucumbers | 3 ounces |
| White castile soap, powdered | ¼ ounce |
| Tincture of Benzoin | 2-3 dram |

The cucumber juice is obtained by boiling the vegetables in a very little water. Slice them thin, skin and all, and let them cook slowly till soft and mushy, strain twice through cloth. The essence is made by putting an ounce and a half of the cucumber juice into the same quantity of high proof alcohol. Put the essence and the soap in quite a large bottle, as the mixture requires much shaking. After a few hours the soap will be dissolved, when it is time to add the cucumber juice; shake the bottle till these ingredients are thoroughly mixed, then pour out into a crockery bowl and add the oil and benzoin, stirring constantly until there is a creamy liquid. Put the emulsion into small bottles, cork tightly and keep in the dark. Always shake the bottle before using the emulsion.

This milk can be employed instead of the cream for the massage and at the same time it will act as an excellent cleanser.

The New Hat Tilt

If you wish to be fashionable, mesdames, wear your hat on a gentle slope touching the right eyebrow and centrive if you can not to look rakish, but quite seriously demure. If [illegible] like, and if the gods of your hairdresser have seen fit to provide you with hair in twists and coils at the back you may reveal the fact, you may even have puffs [illegible] at the side and take the public into your confidence about it. But out of doors you must conceal the fact that there is any hair on top or wandering in waves or kiss curls over your forehead. Not a strand of hair should show in front, which is all very well so long as the hat is on, but if we follow the fashion pretty sights we shall all look as soon as our hats are removed. [illegible] can foresee a revival of the great [illegible] hat difficulty.

Comfortable Style

The transparent guimpe with long sleeves furnishes a very comfortable way out of wearing long gloves with the short sleeved frock of silk or heavy linen.

Most often, perhaps, it is in chiffon or net or other sheer stuff echoing the color of the frock, but one sees it, too, in sheer white or cream lingerie material associated with a jumper blouse of darker coloring.

BLUEJAY LIVES IN WOODS

Hawks, Owls and Other Birds Are Teased and Tormented by These Noisy Birds.

The bluejay likes best to live in thick woods, but it often comes into open fields, orchards and near dwellings in search of food. When it discovers you it assumes a proud and angry air of conceit and defiance.

The bluejay's upper parts are purplish blue. The lower parts are purplish-gray. The wings and tail are bright blue with black bars. The tail feathers are tipped with white. It has a crested head.

The bluejay builds its nest about twenty feet above ground. It is made of twigs and fine roots. From four to six eggs are laid. They are of a greenish drab color flecked with brown.

Doubtless the bluejay helped to name itself as its common utterance is a long drawn "jay, jay, jay." This cry, with a bright blue color, has given it its name.

While the jay sings no song it is able to imitate the calls of other birds, by which means it often attracts them. It likes to tease and torment the owl and especially the little sparrow hawk. This is done by imitating the cry of a wounded bird, which draws the hawk near. Then several jays will dart at the hawk squealing and frolicking about in great glee. Sometimes the play ends in a tragedy for the hawk pounces upon one of them to the dismay of the others. Jays may be caged and tamed like crows and some writers say they can be taught to utter words.—"Bird Studies," by Hermon C. De Groat.

PUTTING HIM WISE.

He—I'll kiss you if I had the sand.
She—There's sand all about us. Help yourself.

The Cannibals Need Food.

An officer of the French colonial army brought a letter from the chief of a group of missionaries in the southern islands of the Pacific not long ago, which winds up as follows: "I regret to tell you that our little company can do little against the cannibalism of these poor wretches. Moreover, famine is ravaging the country, for the harvest has been destroyed. Therefore the dispatch of more missionaries has become urgent."—La Petite Republique.

THE WAY OUT

Change of Food Brought Success and Happiness.

An ambitious but delicate girl, after failing to go through school on account of nervousness and hysteria, found in Grape-Nuts the only thing that seemed to build her up and furnish her the peace of health.

"From infancy," she says, "I have not been strong. Being ambitious to learn at any cost I finally got to the High School, but soon had to abandon my studies on account of nervous prostration and hysteria.

"My food did not agree with me, I grew thin and despondent. I could not enjoy the simplest social affair for I suffered constantly from nervousness in spite of all sorts of medicines.

"This wretched condition continued until I was twenty-five, when I became interested in the letters of those who had cases like mine and who were getting well by eating Grape-Nuts.

"I had little faith but procured a box and after the first dish I experienced a peculiar satisfied feeling that I had never gained from any ordinary food. I slept and rested better that night and in a few days began to grow stronger.

"I had a new feeling and peace and restfulness. In a few weeks, to my great joy, the headaches and nervousness left me and life became bright and hopeful. I resumed my studies and later taught ten months with ease—of course using Grape-Nuts every day. It is now four years since I began to use Grape-Nuts, I am the mistress of a happy home, and the old weakness has never returned." Name given by the Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

THE WOOLEN TRUST.

In the light of the President's veto of the wool bill, which veto gives woolen trust the privilege to plunder the consumer while at the same time paying its workers starvation wages, a page from the hearings in connection with the Lawrence strike inquiry makes interesting reading. The witness is Miss Sanger, a trained nurse, (page 236, Hearings on House Resolution 409 and [illegible])

The Testimony

Mr. Pou: Miss Sanger, were you instrumental in taking a number of the strikers' children away from Lawrence during the strike?

Miss Sanger: Yes sir.

Mr. Pou: Did you talk with those children about their manner of living?

Miss Sanger: Yes sir. [illegible] that the children [illegible] of them in my party seldom ate meat, and their physical condition was the most horrible I have ever seen. In the first place four of the smallest children had chickenpox and they had not received any medical attention. They were walking about among the the other children apparently without noticing the chickenpox or diphtheria; one child had diphtheria. Of the 119 children only four of them had underwear and it was bitterly cold. (We had to run all the way from the station to Labor Temple after we got to New York to keep from freezing.

Mr. Foster: You say only four had underclothing; what was the condition of their outer clothing?

Miss Sanger: It was simply in rags. Their coats were worn to shreds.

Mr. Foster: Were the children [illegible]?

Miss Sanger: Yes sir, and I want to say that when they had to pay it would have brought tears to to your eyes to see them grab for the meat with their bare hands.

Mr. Foster: Did any of them have on woolen clothing of any sort?

Miss Sanger: No sir.

Mr. Foster: And yet they all worked in the woolen mills?

Miss Sanger: Yes sir.

In his veto message Mr. Taft had much to say about "the woolen industry," and "foreign labor." He makes no mention of those poor victims of the woolen trust's greed.

TARIFFS AND PROSPERITY

There are some interesting statements in William Gordon's letter published in Sunday's Plain Dealer. It is quite evident that Mr. Gordon, our candidate for congress, does not believe that people can be made prosperous by increasing taxation.

Editor Plain Dealer—Sir: Your reason for publishing the letter from W. B. Woolsey in today's issue of your paper undoubtedly that it voices the action of many unthinking people who are ignorant of our country's history. One of the "gems of thought" in Mr. Woolsey's letter is this: "A high tariff always brought good times, a low tariff always brought idleness, hunger and destitution."

Passing the economic absurdity of this statement, what are the facts of recorded history? We have had three disastrous panics and periods of depression in this country since the civil war, in 1873, 1893 and 1907, all under the highest tariffs known in this or any other country. I know that [illegible] that the [illegible] of 1893 was [illegible] by a tariff [illegible] of 1894, but [illegible] has been abandon[illegible] people.

[illegible] the Wilson Gorman law [illegible] tariff for revenue only [illegible] by Mr. Woolsey [illegible] four years ago [illegible] and should have vetoed it [illegible] he did not [illegible] the tariff for revenue platform [illegible] Cleveland was elected [illegible] tariff makes or is responsible for prosperity, why have all [illegible] their platforms this year [illegible] and why [illegible] correspondent [illegible] is too high? If [illegible] made rich by increasing taxation, why is it that no party [illegible] the tariff?"

[illegible] the testimony of Roosevelt [illegible] that the profits from [illegible] the pay envelope [illegible] indeed get [illegible] then are the [illegible] people help [illegible] the cost of living?

Cleveland. WILLIAM GORDON

ARE WE COMING TO THIS?

The English religious weeklies are [illegible] alarm over what they [illegible] "new anarchy." It is the revolt of the labor classes against conditions, and of the upper classes against [illegible] remedy these conditions. Labor refuses to be bound by agreements and wealth is in rebellion against law. The British Weekly in an article on the subject calls it a struggle between the haves and the have-nots. Last year, says the Weekly, some 700,000 people died. Of these 600,000 left nothing; 32,000 left 149,000,000, and 5000 left $$216,000,000. The rich have much to lose in the way of possession and privilege, the overwhelming majority having nothing to lose at all.

The one great fight in this country is to drive special privilege from our government. There will be other things to settle after that is accomplished, but let us establish Governor Marshall's idea, that it is no part of government to boost one man and boot another. With that idea established it is just possible that other questions will settle themselves.

[illegible] funds from protected [illegible] and laboring people that [illegible] full dinner pails [illegible] conditions in this [illegible] have in England [illegible] While the [illegible] is a good time to [illegible] government.

THE RIGHT KIND OF A FUND.

The New York World says: "The [illegible] William J. [illegible] to the democratic national [illegible] said to be the largest [illegible] contribution yet received. If [illegible] democracy might be [illegible] of the record. A great deal of money is needed for the legitimate uses of a campaign, but it is clean money when it comes in sums of moderate size from many people interested in the triumph of a political theory or principle. It is dirty money when it comes from an insurance company without knowledge or consent of its policy holders; or from a Harriman expecting to 'edit' a president's message; or from 'the Morgan interests' which are so friendly to us;' from a corporation that is trying to buy privilege, or even from a harmless millionaire who merely seeks to make his country ridiculous as an ambassador abroad. No fear that the people will not support a people's campaign sufficiently for proper purposes. No greater and no other support is necessary."

WELL SAID.

About the best thing said so far upon the political questions of the day was said by Governor Marshall in accepting the nomination for vice president. Here is one paragraph from his speech:

"There are those who believe that the equality of mankind does not consist in an equality of brain and brawn, but in an equality whereby every man, native and foreign born, has an inalienable right to exercise all of his ability in getting on in the world just so he realizes that in getting on he owes it to himself, to his family and to the republic to see to it that he gets it honestly, and that he does not prevent any other man from obtaining the reward of his honesty and enterprise. These old-fashioned democrats believe in making money, but they believe every dollar made should be so clean that an infant may cut its teeth upon it. And they hold that it is no part of government to boost one man and boot another."

NEXT TUESDAY.

On next Tuesday, Sept 3rd, the people of Ohio will vote on the constitutional amendments submitted by the convention. There are a number of these amendments, but one stands out above and beyond all the others. It is the one providing for the initiative and referendum. If this amendment is adopted—and it ought to be adopted by an overwhelming majority—the people can use it to secure anything they want. It puts the government in the hands of the people and they can proceed at their leisure to perfect their constitution and their laws. The amendment providing for the initiative and referendum is the all-important amendment—everyone should support it.

The decline of the apple crop of the United States in recent years is attributed to neglect by Thomas C. Wilson, secretary of the Missouri state board of agriculture. At the meeting last week in St. Louis of the Apple Growers congress, which he founded ten years ago and of which he is now secretary, he observed that too many apple growers plant their trees and then trust to Providence. The gist of his advice to the congress was to "spray your apples."

The happy holidays of the season will be at the new Lake County Fair, Painesville, O., Sept. 17, 18, 19, 20.

MADISON.

John Austin spent Friday night in Willoughby at the home of Mr. and Mrs. P. D. Ketcham. His granddaughter, Helen, returned with him to remain for a few days.

Miss Myrtle Graves and H. G. St. John spent Sunday in Cleveland.

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Waters and Mr. and Mrs. Scott took an auto trip to Detroit the last of the week, returning Sunday morning.

Mr. Balch, accompanied by the following ladies, Mrs. Yeager and her friend, Miss Shipman of Guernsey county, Mrs. Nettie Strong of Ashtabula, and Mrs. H. G. St. John, started Wednesday morning for an auto trip to Buffalo, Niagara Falls, and Chautauqua, returning Saturday evening.

Asa Stratton, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Leide, Mr. and Mrs. Willis Sunderland started Sunday morning via auto for Niagara Falls.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Murray of Girard, Pa., called on friends in town Sunday.

Mr. T. F. Foley and family spent Sunday with Cleveland friends camping at the lake.

Mrs. Gertrude Hull, who has been spending several weeks with her sister, Mrs. Nellie Ensign, returned to her home in Kansas City Wednesday.

Mr. A. S. Hickok of Toledo was in town over Sunday, the guest of Geneva and Madison friends. Mr. Hickok and son Clarence, who have been spending some time here and at Geneva-on-the-Lake, accompanied him home.

The many friends of Dr. and Mrs. S. H. Good sincerely regret the doctor's health is such that he is compelled to dispose of his practice here. Dr. and Mrs. Good will be greatly missed in Madison. They will make their home in Ashtabula for the present, but will probably go to Florida for the winter, where it is hoped he will regain his usual health. Dr. Tuttle of Orwell, who has purchased the doctor's home and practice, comes highly recommended. He will take possession about Sept. 1.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry McLean will move from the Bliss house on River street to the Sherwood house on East Main.

Mrs. Chas. Morley, of Geneva, was a visitor at the home of her father, John Austin, Monday.

Quite a number of Madison people attended the Jefferson fair the past week.

Remember that the exhibition at the new Lake County Fair at Painesville, Sept. 17, 18, 19, 20 includes many features not usually found on a fairground.

RANDOM THOUGHTS

By Tom, Dick and Harry.

"The little group of local attorneys who are giving their time unselfishly to explain the constitutional amendments, deserve a word of praise. The meetings being held throughout the county are doing much to educate those who hardly know an amendment from a religious tract—Editorial in Saturday's Telegraph-Republican.

After reading the above we can understand why some people still believe in the Divine Right of kings, and why some people profess to believe a few, a select few, know more than all the people. If calling names is fair play, we'll bet the editors of the T-R wouldn't know know a religious tract if they saw one. We'll bet they never heard of the Magna Charta or of the Ordinance of 1787.

Another member of the triumvirate of Tom, Dick and Harry, thinks that the editors of the T-R have a mighty poor opinion of the intelligence of the readers of that newspaper, or else an exalted opinion of their own. Verily we know good amendments as well as we do church tracts, and take it from us, we're proficient in both.

One of the finest things that has come to my attention in years was the settlement recently made with the creditors of the old Lake County Bank. Such things go far toward restoring any loss in our faith in humanity.

Representative government is now being dinned into the public by the privileged classes, and if one wanted the best possible evidence that what we do not want is representative government as now administered by the aforesaid classes, is to read the amendments which they are opposing and then read what they and their pap-sucking newspapers say about them. Annanias may have had a fine reputation as a falsifier, but he never saw the time he could compete with those fellows.

Mayor Baker in his address here last week gave as one reason he favored the ballot for women was because of the good it would do the women. Ever think of it in just that way? When they have the ballot they will of necessity study political economy, thereby broadening their minds. The next generation should show a better race of men from [illegible] had mothers of broader intellect.

TACTICS OF THE ENEMY

The privileged interests made a futile effort to prevent the constitutional convention from submitting the initiative and referendum to the voters.

They could not tell the people that they ought not to trust themselves. Much less could they afford to be frank, and say that they opposed the initiative and referendum because, by the initiative and referendum, the people could put an end to political corruption and corporation graft. They were therefore driven to a dishonorable attack. They collected money from public-service corporations and sent boiler plate to the country editors in an attempt to make the farmers think that the initiative and referendum was being promoted for the purpose of securing the single tax upon land values.

This argument was nothing short of an insult to the intelligence of Ohio farmers. Henry George and his followers were the first in this country to urge the adoption of the Australian ballot. There is no more reason for opposing the initiative and referendum because a few of those who believe in it are single taxers than there is to abolish the Australian ballot because Henry George favored it.

But this argument was all the interests could think of. It was their last desparate attempt to prevent the inevitable. But the farmer members were not to be moved by such claptrap. So when these interests saw that their attack had failed and that the initiative and referendum could not be defeated in the convention, they planned one final move. It was a cheap little lobbyist trick, but did not work.

To Destroy Ants.

Ants that frequent gardens or houses may be destroyed by taking flour of brimstone one-half pound and potash four ounces and set them in an iron or earthen pan over the fire until dissolved and united; afterwards beat them to a powder and infuse a little of the powder in water, and wherever you sprinkle it the ants will fly to the place.

He Won't Limp Now.

No more limping for Tom Moore of Cochran, Ga. "I had a bad sore on my instep that nothing seemed to help till I used Bucklen's Arnica Salve," he writes, "but this wonderful healer soon cured me." Heals old, running sores, ulcers, boils, burns, cuts, bruises, eczema or piles. Try it. Only 25 cents at Gehring's Pharmacy.

The Initiative and the Referendum

Judge E. B. King, of Sandusky, Ohio, Constitutional Convention delegate from Erie county, was one of the able leaders of the so-called conservative group in the convention. What he has to say on the subject of the Initiative and Referendum has the merit of an unbiased opinion. Of No. 6, the Initiative and Referendum amendment, now pending before the people, and to be voted upon September 3rd, Judge King says:

"The I. and R. amendment gives to the people the right to petition the General Assembly for the passage of a particular law which they may desire. It gives to the General Assembly perfect freedom of action to pass the law requested, or amend and pass it, or defeat it. It does not impair nor take from the legislative branch of the government any of its independence to legislate according to its judgment. The Constitutions of Ohio since 1802 have permitted the people to petition and to instruct the General Assembly as to their wants. It did not contain a provision that if the legislative body ignored or denied the petition or instructions, that there was any remedy. This amendment simply provides a remedy. It is different from any other proposition of the kind thus far adopted in any state, and in my judgment is a great improvement over any thus far proposed or adopted, because it does not permit the initiating of laws without first appealing to the General Assembly to pass them. It deserves to be adopted."

MENTOR.

If Venus is to blame for the unusual downfall of water, and the many and terribly severe electric storms of the summer (as some persons would have us believe), then the old girl is up to all sorts of mischief, just as all of Eve's daughters have always been from the beginning. If there is any deviltry afoot, some woman is said to be at the bottom of it, and usually that is the case, too! At any rate there has been a greater fall of rain during August than ever in the history of Ohio, and more severe thunder storms. That of last night was no exception, and lightning played havoc as usual, but everybody feels thankful there was no wind to add to the terrors of the situation.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Carroll of Painesville and son Bruce, were guests of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Payson Carroll for several days last week and were accompanied out here by Miss Gertrude Wallace of New York City, who is Mrs. Carroll's sister, and here for a visit.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Parchall Jr. of Cleveland, spent the Sabbath with their aunt, Mrs. George Bush, and the Sawyer family, cousins.

Mrs. Likens, the dear old lady of over 80, who fell and broke her right hip some months ago, is still alive and apparently getting better all the time, so that she really expects to get up and around again. Such grit deserves something better than crutches for the rest of her life, truly.

Mr. Wood, who now owns the property on Hart street, so long owned by Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert, has named the same "Parkwood," and being a travelling man, gets around home once in a while to enjoy a few days' rest here in our quiet village. Mrs. Wood is a sister of Col. Parker, and comes of a good old family, one of the pioneer families of the Reserve.

Dame Rumor is taking liberties with some of our young Mentor ladies and if what she says is true we are to lose no less than three some time this fall, one of them to become the wife of a former minister here, one to go to Painesville to live and another to Willoughby.

Mrs. Ray Horn, nee, Miss May Yager, is visiting friends in Elkhart, Ind.

Mr. W. P. Murray is building the prettiest and most artistic shelter house at stop 38½ that there is along the C., P. & E. route. It has tiny windows and red tiled roof, etc. This is a new stop, made necessary by the removal of the old stop 38 to a point farther west in order to accommodate the new West Mentor electric package depot. Of course no limited cars will stop except at the regular places, no matter how much one may wave and wish.

Several of the gentlemen of our village are making plans to take in the State fair at Columbus this week.

Mrs. Jack Northcutt has been enjoying a visit from her sister, Mrs. Hill and her husband, whose home is now in Bellevlew, they having lived a number of years in Mentor when Mr. Hill had charge of the Nickel Plate depot here.

Miss Ruth Blair of Cleveland, has been spending a few days with Col. Spaulding and his wife at the East End.

Many of the old friends of the Cudney families were pained to learn of the death of Will, the eldest son of Mr. John Cudney, who died here some years ago. The family lived on Knowles street, and Will died in Chardon a few days ago, his body being brought back here for burial in the Mentor cemetery. For a number of years he has been living in the city, and what took him to Chardon or what was the cause of his death, we have as yet been unable to learn.

No encouraging word comes back from New Castle, concerning Mrs. Jane Lawrence, whose daughter, Mrs. Robert Case, is still by her side, and whose condition from heart complications seems very serious indeed. Mrs. Lawrence had made many friends during the visits made here, all of whom are anxiously hoping for better news about her health.

Miss Bessie Irwin is taking her vacation from the morning hours in our telephone office, is in Michigan for the two weeks rest, and her place is being filled by Mrs. Frank Sandberg, whose service is always exceedingly acceptable to the patrons of the line.

Mr. T. D. Morley met with quite an accident one day last week, which has given him an enforced vacation and a pair of crutches to boot. While hauling a load of grain up the Martindale hill there was some loosening of some part of the load and Mr. Morley's foot was caught and came very near being crushed. As it was he has a badly hurt heel and it will be some time before he can walk with any degree of comfort.

Mr. and Mrs. T. G. Hart have been having a visit from their grandson Mr. Paul Hart, of Sandusky, whose mother many of our readers may remember as Miss Kittie Baxter, one of the many lovely girls of Mentor.

Miss Florence Glenn is now visiting her school friend, Miss Dorothea Sanborn, at their temporary home at Silver Lake, where the two girls are having a fine time.

Mr. and Mrs. John Harrington of Glennville have been recent guests at the home of their brother, Mr. Emery S. Harrington, at the East End of our village.

Mrs. Will Hart has been having a visit from her mother, Mrs. C. Reynolds, of Huntington, O.

School is to begin at the Center on the third of September. The selection of a teacher of music has not been entirely settled as yet, neither has the intermediate department been provided with a teacher, great pains being taken by the board of education to fill both of these important positions with the very best teachers possible. Everything will probably be settled by another week.

Mrs. Charles Radcliffe returned from her visit with relatives in Andover and remained over Sunday again with her husband's sister, Mrs. W. H. Johnson, before taking the steamer for Detroit, a day or so later.

Mr. Schaffner has been spending this past week with the Y. M. C. A. campers down at Columbus, and enjoyed himself very much indeed.

Miss Elizabeth Pease returns this week to her home in Brooklyn, N. Y., having spent altogether too small a portion of her vacation here in Mentor with her school mates the Whiting girls, and having been kept over in Willoughby by relatives and friends there. Miss Pease is a trained nurse, a beautiful woman, whom many of our ladies wished to know better.

A concert is to be given in the Methodist church Saturday evening by a trio of young men, Oberlin students, calling themselves the "Manhoff Trio," the tickets for which are 25 cents and are being peddled by some of the Sunday schoolchildren. These young singers come very well recommended, and those who are backing their concert declare they are well worth a quarter to hear.

News has just come to us via telephone of the death of our dear Mentor boy, Bert Moore, the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. [illegible] Moore, which occurred in the city a day or so ago, of hydrophobia. We are not in receipt of any further particulars, but understand [illegible] hope to learn all the particulars of this terrible death [illegible] was bitten by a mad dog and [illegible] about [illegible] The family are well known in the county and the [illegible] loved by every body.

We [illegible] of [illegible] the township [illegible] at township park matter. All of them ask for the park, one mention the John Olver property on the avenue [illegible] the [illegible] good [illegible] bought large enough to accommodate the union school building, that is bound to come to Mentor sooner or later, also the town hall which is badly needed, the trustees now having to meet over some store to transact business and having to break the law and close school in the Special District, whenever that building is needed for voting purposes, and also a Y. M. C. A. building, which is also bound to come in order to accommodate our fast growing association. No other property has been mentioned we understand, this being the only thing desirable that is within reach of our people. The price of $10,000 has been given our township officers, for the 21 acres, but $12,000 is asked by the Cleveland agents. To buy this would increase the amount of tax by less than half a mill.

Mrs. John Nott has returned from her trip to the Pacific coast, where she spent some time with her sister, Mrs. Fred Henning, nee Miss Ada Roberts, of Mentor, at her home in Seattle. Mrs. Nott was met in Chicago by her husband, the family journeying home together from there.

Dr. Lowe is house physician at the Painesville hospital during the month of August, we understand.

Miss Nellie Rexford has been spending the past week in Cleveland, a part of her much needed vacation.

Mr. Charles Losey has been visiting for a few days over in Concord with the family of his brother, Mr. Albert Warren.

Mrs. Col. Parker had the joy of a visit over Sunday from her two sons, Mr. and Mrs. John Foss of Buffalo and Mr. Earl Foss of Cleveland, thereby having her children all together once again.

Mr. and Mrs. [illegible] have been having a short visit from their friend Mrs. Pepper of [illegible].

Mrs. H. [illegible] is visiting with relatives down in Akron. Last week Mrs. Schaffner had her father with her, Mr. McLean of Union City, Pa., and also a visit from her brother.

Dr. Clark, the father of the Disciple minister, who with his wife has come to Mentor to live, expresses himself as well pleased with the village people and as having made many friends already. This past week he was in Youngstown serving in the capacity of pension examiner, though not doing active duty as a doctor any longer.

Mrs. Frank Hughes of Painesville, was out here a portion of last week with her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Lynch, on Center St.

Mrs. John Chambers, accompanied by her youngest daughter, Helen, has returned from visiting a short time with relatives in Michigan.

Mrs. Heyward of Willoghby was in our village last week. She was accompanied by her daughter Zella, and came out on business connected with the selling of her property here to some Willoughby parties. It may be remembered that the Heywards lived here for a number of years before the death of their uncle, Mr. Otis Haskell, whose home at the Center they inherited.

Miss Louise Damon has completed her visit here with her grandfather Mr. Samuel Whiting, and her aunts, the Morley ladies and Mrs. Church, and leaves the last of the week for her home in Omaha, having had a most delightful vacation, and hoping to come again sometime.

Mr. and Mrs. T. P. Cadle have returned from Lisbon for a short time, the new house being just at that stage when its oversight seemed necessary.

A vast amount of ill-health is due to impaired digestion. When the stomach fails to perform its functions properly the whole system becomes deranged. A few doses of Chamberlain's Tablets is all you need. They will strengthen your digestion, invigorate your liver, and regulate your bowels, entirely doing away with that miserable feeling due to faulty digestion. Try it. Many others have been permanently cured—why not you? For sale by all dealers.

There will be a mammoth exposition of the cream of this country's products at the new Lake County Fair, Sept. 17-20.

UNIONVILLE.

Miss Beatrice Detling visited friends in Saybrook over Sunday.

Miss Dorothy Darrow was a guest of her friend, Miss Helen Cook, of Painesville last week.

Mrs. J. P. Goddard and daughter Nathalie, who have been spending the summer with her mother, Mrs. E. G. Warner, returned to Buffalo Monday.

Mr. Frank Miller and friend, Mr. [illegible], of Cleveland, spent Sunday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Miller.

The following people were among the [illegible] from here who attended Jefferson fair last week: Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hamilton, Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Kelsey, Mrs. Brown, Mr. F. H. Groken, Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Goddard and Mrs. L. L. Morris and children Milford and Vincent and Ed Sites and family, who have a stand there.

Mr. and Mrs. Levi Armstrong met with quite an accident when returning from the fair Thursday. As they reached the foot of the hill west of the fair grounds, Homer Kelsey, another resident of Unionville, was [illegible] the hill [illegible] automobile [illegible] lost control of the machine, and [illegible] to back down hill. When Mr. Armstrong saw that a collision was inevitable, he jumped, but Mrs. Armstrong remained in the carriage. She was thrown some distance in the air and fell back into the rig again. She was bruised quite severely, and the horse was injured so that it had to be shot. Mr. Kelsey offered a small sum in settlement but Mr. Armstrong refused it.

The thunder storms the first of the week did a great deal of damage in this vicinity. Nearly all the electric lights were burned out Sunday evening, and Monday evening three fires could be seen at one time here, two in Geneva, and one in Trumbull.

Mr. Wright, an Anti-Saloon League worker, spoke very interestingly at the Congregational church Sunday, of the temperance conditions of the present time.

"Were all medicines as meritorious as Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy the world would be much better off and the percentage of suffering greatly decreased," writes Lindsay Scott, of Temple, Ind. For sale by all dealers.

Looking Far Into the Future.

Italy has added to her agricultural area by draining the great Fucino marshes and thus providing a living for hundreds of thousands of her poverty-stricken population. It will probably be hundreds of years before America is so thickly populated that additional area will of necessity have to be acquired for farming, but when the time arrives there will be engineers able and willing to drain the great lakes.

SYNOPSIS.

Harding Kent calls on Louise Farrish to propose marriage and finds the house in great excitement over the attempted suicide of her sister Katharine. Kent starts an investigation and finds that Hugh Crandall, suitor for Katharine, who had been forbidden the house by General Farrish, had talked with Katharine over the telephone just before she shot herself. A torn piece of yellow paper is found, at sight of which General Farrish is stricken with paralysis.

CHAPTER II—(Continued.)

I stopped in the hall to examine the telephone book, hoping it might give his home address, but it contained only the office of his firm. However, I had no difficulty in finding in the library the volume I sought—the club directory—and turning to his name I saw that he was a member of both the University and the Harvard.

As I was a member of the University myself I had no difficulty in getting Crandall's address over the telephone. Loath as I was to leave Louise alone, I felt that prompt action was demanded, so I took my departure at once.

"If I find Crandall I will bring him back with me so that you may hear all he has to say. Whether or not I succeed, I will return within an hour. My friend, the post office inspector, lives somewhere out in Jersey, but I will see him the first thing in the morning."

The grateful look Louise gave me as I left imbued me with a new and wholly delightful sense of responsibility. The ten minutes it took me to reach Crandall's rooms were filled with that incoherent bliss that comes to every man who realizes for the first time what it means to have a woman's confidence entirely his.

Crandall lived in one of those remodeled mansions so common in that part of Fifth avenue from which the families have fled before the advance of trade. The basement and first floor were given over to shops and the upper floors to bachelor apartments. I had no difficulty in finding among the door plates the name I sought, but repeated ringing brought no response. Determined not to leave until I had learned his whereabouts I gave the janitor's bell a vigorous push.

"Where can I find Mr. Crandall?" I asked as soon as he appeared.

His manner made it evident that he considered my question an impertinence, but I had met Fifth avenue janitors before.

"I am a lawyer," I persisted. "I must see Mr. Crandall tonight on an important matter."

"You won't," he replied, almost gleefully it seemed to me.

"Why not?" I demanded sharply. "What do you mean?"

My manner was not without its effect.

"He's gone away," the man explained a little more respectfully.

"Gone!" I exclaimed. Here was a new mystery, or perhaps the explanation of the first one. It may have been his departure that had depressed Katharine so.

"Where has he gone? When did he go? How long will he be away?" I volleyed.

Exasperatingly he delayed his reply. At last it seemed to occur to him that I was not making these inquiries purely for his amusement. Somewhat more politely than at first, he answered: "Only an hour or two ago—about three o'clock it was—he came rushing down into my room with his keys in his hand. 'Mike,' says he, 'I'm going away tonight. I may be gone a week and I may be gone a month. I don't know how long. Here are my keys and don't let nobody into my rooms while I'm away, on any pretext whatever.' And wid that he was into a taxicab and off before I could be saying my thanks for the bill he left in my hand."

Crandall suddenly gone, Katharine dying by her own hand, General Farrish stricken, all within two hours. I knew now there must be some connection between these events. More than ever I was anxious to find Crandall, yet I felt that the janitor had told me all he knew. I could see in the young broker's departure guilty knowledge of the shadow descending on the Farrish home. Surely his flight was confession.

There was nothing to be gained by further questioning of the janitor. From the manner of Crandall's departure it would be useless to look for him at either of the clubs to which he belonged. I might try to trace him through the taxicab which he had probably called from the University Club near by, but that could wait until later. Just now I felt it my duty to hasten back to Louise and tell her of this new development.

As I turned from the door a newsboy with an armful of evening "extras" thrust one at me impatiently. I waved him away.

"All about the suicide," he bawled as he darted off after another passer by.

Quickly I pursued him and fairly snatched one of his papers from him. Had the reporters after all, learned of the tragedy in the Farrish home? Doctor Wilcox and I had discussed the matter of notifying the police and the coroner. We both felt that it would be wiser not to communicate with them, for such a course would inevitably bring publicity.

There was enough agony in the Farrish home without having this sorrowful secret blazoned in a curious world in three-inch type, without having a horde of reporters and camera men constantly surrounding the house. Besides, if Katharine recovered, sooner or later she would be sure to learn what the papers had said. The knowledge that her foolish crime against herself had been thus sensationally proclaimed would be a blow from which the sensitive girl—hitherto jealously shielded—would never recover. If she should not recover—Doctor Wilcox and I were trusting to chance to find a way of explaining her death. The servants—all of them trustworthy and long in service—had been cautioned not to talk to anyone about the afternoon's events. The doctor's aides and nurses, of course, had been silent. This is part of their business. How, then, had the papers obtained the news so quickly? I could think of but one possible way. More than likely some telephone girl who had heard Louise calling Doctor Wilcox had given it to the press. Even in the half-darkness of the middle of the block where I stood I could read the word "S-U-I-C-I-D-E" stretched across the page in letters of red. I hastened to the corner where the double globes shed down a brilliant light, anxious yet dreading to read what the paper said. At the first glance I breathed a sigh of relief. The article was not about Katharine Farrish. I had not thought of the possibility of there having been another suicide that day, but there it was.

Mystery in Self-Murder of Aged Lawyer

Ordinarily I pay little attention to stories of crime. But the afternoon had given me a new and bitter appreciation of the meaning of suicide. Standing there under the light of a Fifth avenue corner I read the hastily written article word by word.

Andrew Elser, the article explained, had lived for many years in a West Twenty-third street boarding house. Little was known about him there except that he was a lawyer. Several years ago he had given up his down town office. Most of his income was derived from his fees as custodian of an orphan boy's estate. About four o'clock in the afternoon the landlady had heard a noise in his room like that of a body falling. On entering she had found him lifeless on the floor. She had called a policeman, who sent for an ambulance. The ambulance doctor found that Mr. Elser had taken poison.

It struck me as a peculiar coincidence that two persons so far apart in the social scale as Katharine Farrish and Andrew Elser should have chosen the same hour of the same day to seek death. Was there something in astrology after all? Had the stars decreed that both should die? Had some conjunction of the planets, some evil aspect in the Zodiac driven both of them, the young heiress in the bloom of joyous youth and the aged lawyer in his decrepit poverty—relentlessly, helplessly, to self-destruction?

So deep was the impression made on me by the coincidence that I took the paper with me and read the account of Elser's suicide to Louise. Even as I read it aloud, this inexplicable thought came to me with startling force:

Suppose that these two suicides at the same hour were more than a mere coincidence. Was it possible that the same shadow had fallen on both these lives? Had the same mystery driven them to a death-pact?

It seemed absurd. It was unlikely that Katharine Farrish had ever heard of Andrew Elser. If the family had known him Louise would have mentioned it. And yet—why had these two persons sought to die on the same hour of the same day? The question would not let me sleep that night.

CHAPTER III.

The Second Clue.

"I can't do it, Harding. You are asking an impossibility."

I was sitting in Inspector Davis' room in the post-office building. The first thing in the morning I had gone there to enlist his aid in clearing up the mystery that hung over the Farrish home. With the confidence based on a friendship that had its beginnings in boyhood association I felt sure he would do all he could to help me. I wanted, if possible, to learn through him whence had come the yellow letter.

Miller Davis, though only a year older than I, already had become one of the government's most trusted secret agents. His rise in the service had been phenomenally rapid. The robbery of the post office where he was employed had given him his start. A little later, with the merest thread to follow, he had run to earth a skillful band of stamp counterfeiters, and three of its members were now serving long terms. Only a year ago, when all the other inspectors had failed to find the flaw in the registry service that permitted a red-striped sack with two hundred thousand dollars' worth of registered mail to disappear, Davis, putting his keen, analytical mind on the case, within a week had discovered the flaw in the system and only a few days later had arrested the ex-convict who had profited by it.

With the natural interest of an old friend I had followed his career and was familiar with most of his brilliant achievements. Even though the scrap which was puzzling me had no envelope and bore no postmark, so confident was I in his far-reaching powers I would hardly have been amazed if he had told me all about it as soon as I showed it to him. Imagine, then, my disappointment at his absolute refusal to take up the matter at all.

"Don't you see how important it is?" I cried. "This little scrap is the key to the whole mystery."

He was sitting with his back to the light—a trick most business men have these days so that they can see your face in full light, while you have difficulty in reading theirs—yet from his tone I felt that he was inwardly amused at my anxiety.

"I'm afraid you overrate my detective ability and my powers as a post office inspector," he said. "While I am inclined to agree with you that this bit of paper may have some bearing on the case, there is nothing to show from what post-office it came, through whose hands it passed, or by whom it was received. It may not have come through the mail at all. More than likely some messenger brought it. Before I could

"All About the Suicide," He Bawled.

I would win out. That's the secret, old chap, of my success, of everybody's success. Don't tackle things you can't do, then you never fail."

Davis' refusal was a greater blow to me than I cared to admit. Louise and I in our final conference the night before had decided that there were three undertake an investigation I would have to know, first, that it had come through the mail; second, that there was some evidence that the mails were being used for an unlawful purpose; and third, I would want to be certain before I began the investigation, that steps that would take us far into the light.

"Beg Your Pardon for Disturbing You, Inspector."

First, I was to try at once to find Hugh Crandall. I was to ask him to explain the rupture with Katharine, the attitude of General Farrish toward him, his knowledge of the yellow letter, and why he had called Katharine on the telephone the afternoon before.

Second, failing to find Crandall, I was to make some pretext for visiting his rooms. His sudden departure and his cautioning the janitor to admit no one had a suspicious look. While neither Louise nor I had discussed what might be there to explain the mystery, I was thinking that in all probability I would find a bundle of letters from Katharine, some of which might furnish a clue.

Third, I was to ask Inspector Davis to help me trace the yellow letter.

I had anticipated little difficulty in ascertaining Crandall's whereabouts. A broker of standing does not vanish overnight without informing his business partners. Before coming to the inspector I had telephoned to Crandall's office. Great was my amazement to learn from one of his partners that they were as much puzzled as I over his sudden going away. They had merely received a telegram saying that he had been called out of town unexpectedly and did not know when he would return. The telegram had been sent from an office near his rooms. [illegible] There was no business [illegible] would take him away [illegible]sed that it was some [illegible] matter.

[illegible]ted for a moment with [illegible]r boyhood days I was [illegible] step I should take next [illegible] of learning Crandall's [illegible]ad gaining access to his [illegible] seem so simple as they [illegible] before. A clerk entered [illegible]r Davis, and I rose to [illegible]

[illegible]," he said. "It's only a [illegible]lice headquarters. His [illegible]obably take only a min[illegible]

[illegible]ed my sent Detective [illegible]ered into the room. He [illegible]l police sleuth, thick of [illegible], ready to suspect the [illegible] to see the obvious. In [illegible] speech, in manner of [illegible]d the inspector were al[illegible]posites. One was a griz[illegible]ed man of fifty whom [illegible]siest criminal could not [illegible] for anything but what [illegible] other, young-looking for [illegible] years, might have been [illegible]en for a college tutor or [illegible]rter. It amused me to [illegible] deference the men from [illegible] approached him.

[illegible]ardon for disturbing you [illegible]e said, nervously twist[illegible] but I've got a little mat[illegible] chief wanted me to pu[illegible] up to you."

He turned toward me with a suspicious glance, but Davis hastened to assure him that he could speak freely before me.

"It's this," he explained, "the old man wants to know about."

As he spoke he drew something from his inner pocket and laid it on the inspector's desk. As my eyes followed his hand I gave a sudden start. With difficulty I restrained an expression of amazement. The object about which he had come to inquire was a torn yellow envelope.

Height of Diplomacy

It was at the British embassy at Washington. A distinguished Englishman was delivering a lecture, and in his audience were many big diplomats and high society people. Just as the lecturer spread on the ambient atmosphere his most gorgeous verbal picture, a large German tried to sit down quietly in a chair. He did sit down, achieving a transfer from the chair to the floor with a great clatter, which peeved the lecturer and annoyed the guests, who were all anxious to get the talk over and organize a stampede for the punch bowl. Everybody in the room turned around and glared in the direction from which the noise had come. But that German was too smart for them. Having hurled himself against the floor he stayed there, breathing a fine mixture of wax and meal which had been rubbed in preparatory to the dancing that was to come later.

After the lecture was over, Mr. Bryce, the British ambassador, found and shook hands with the astute German, remarking:

"Your fall and subsequent recumbent position were the most exquisite piece of diplomacy I ever saw in Washington."—Popular Magazine.

How Rome Was Saved.

"How are you on ancient history?" inquired the Wood street man.

"Fine," declared the sage of Smithfield street. "Ask me anything you want to know."

"I was trying to recall the facts about those geese that cackled and thus save Rome."

"I remember the episode. You see, Rome was a very rich city in ancient days, filled with gold and precious stones. Some invaders had gathered in hopes of getting big loot."

"I see."

"But when they heard the geese cackling, they thought they'd better grab the geese and let the gold go. The cost of living was just as high then as it is now."

"I comprehend."

"They made off with the geese and thus Rome was saved."—Pittsburgh Post.

PROFITABLE GREENHOUSE FOR THE FARM

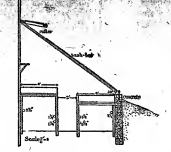

Fig 1—Lean-to Greenhouse.

During the winter months the general farmer is supposed to be a man of leisure. This, however, does not prove to be true in many actual cases. Nevertheless, the average farmer has considerable spare time in winter which might be pleasantly and profitably employed in caring for a small greenhouse. This sort of work would also be attractive to the boys and girls on the farm.

The results would well repay the cost of construction and maintenance of such a house. In the average farming community there is almost no way of getting lettuce, radishes or flowering plants during the winter months, writes Prof. E. A. White in the Orange Judd and Farmer. Many of the rural dwellers would be glad to have these if they could be obtained at a reasonable figure, therefore, a home greenhouse might be made the source of considerable revenue. Besides these sales, every farmer would feel repaid by the products which should come to his own table.

Then early lettuce plants, cauliflower, cabbages or tomatoes could be grown for sale or the home garden, and pansies, asters and other annuals for giving a touch of attractiveness about the farmhouse.

Planning the Greenhouse.

The greenhouse need not necessarily be an expensive affair. It may be simply a sash house with a portable roof. These houses are, however, less satisfactory than the more substantial permanent roof, and the additional cost of permanent roof should not be very much greater.

The cheapest construction and probably the most convenient type of house is the so-called "lean-to" house. This may be built on the south side of the living house, barn, or other outbuilding, provided the pitch of the roof of the building is not such that the snow will slide from it during the winter thus breaking the glass. The boiler might be located in the basement and be used also for heating the house, or for heat or power to the barn.

Fig. 1 represents a structure of this kind which could be built at a comparatively low cost. The south wall should first be constructed. Ordinary field stone may be used. These should be laid in cement, and the wall should be at least 8 inches in thickness. Stone is a rapid conductor of heat; therefore concrete would be more satisfactory, using one part cement, three parts sand to five parts broken stone. Near the top of the wall a half-inch bolt about 8 inches in length should be firmly embedded in the stone wall or cement to hold the sill firmly to the wall.

The wall should be built 3 feet below the grade line to insure its firm foundation. The angle of the roof should not be less than 28 degrees, in order that it may not hold the snow, and that the water after a rain may quickly drain off and not drip into the house. A narrow ventilator should connect the top with the back wall. The sash bars had best be purchased from some firm making a business of furnishing them, for they require special sawing, which makes them expensive for an ordinary sawmill to produce. These vary in thickness, but the ordinary sash bar is 1⅜ inches by 2¾ inches.

Arranging the Benches.

The benches may be built of wood or iron. The iron would be more durable, but more expensive. They should be arranged as shown in drawing. If made of wood the supports are usually of 2 by 4-inch material and the bottoms and sides of 1-inch boards. Hemlock or cypress make the most durable benches. For the sides and bottoms a cheap grade of cypress known as "pecky" cypress is now frequently used.

The only difficulty in growing plants in the lean-to house is the fact that they get light from only one direction, therefore, they frequently spindle and become one-sided.

The even-span house gives probably the best satisfaction, and for a small farm greenhouse may be quite cheaply constructed. This may be built with side walls, as shown in Fig. 2, using 4 by 4-inch material for the side posts and covering this first on the outside by rough sheathing, then a layer of building paper, finishing with match boards or patent siding. Gutters are seldom used on greenhouses, because of their tendency to decay. Therefore the ground should be carefully graded, so all water from the roof may be readily carried away from the building. The side posts may be made of iron piping; these should be embedded in cement which will make a more durable structure. These side walls should be 5 feet above grade, and 3 feet below grade for a greenhouse from 15 to 25 feet wide.

For the best growth of the plants the benches are not placed against the side walls, but a 2-foot walk extends around the house. The other walks need not be over 18 inches in width.

Ventilators should be placed on both sides of the ridge and on both sides of the house below the eave plate. For houses over 20 feet wide columns of 1¼-inch pipe are used to support purlins of similar material under the roof. These columns should be placed about 10 feet apart lengthwise of the house.

The best heat for the farm greenhouse is hot water. This gives a uniform temperature, and does not require the constant care steam does. For the flow pipes 2½-inch pipe should be used, and for the return 1¼ or 1½-inch pipe is required. These should be placed as shown in Fig. 2.

The cost of such a house will vary in different localities and with the size of the house, but the average price with the heating system established will be approximately 50 cents per square foot of ground surface.

SMALL SILO FOUND USEFUL BY FARMERS

Feeding of Silage Is Profitable Only When Top Is Kept From Molding.

Silage is finding so many uses that smaller farms find the building of a silo profitable. The feeding of silage is practicable only when enough is fed to keep the top from molding. A few inches must be removed each day. By the use of a high and narrow silo, a small stock of animals may be made to eat a large amount of silage without molding. Formerly silage was used almost entirely for dairy cows; but now the fattening steers, the sheep, the horses, and to some extent, the hogs and the poultry, are fed silage with perfect success. An instance is in mind of the successful feeding of silage to all the horses of a large farm during the last and hayless winter. By putting all these animals on silage, with such other feeds as will balance the ration, a very small farm may find the building of a silo a most profitable thing. It insures against short pasture, and it is the best way to utilize the best of all crops—corn.

Weight of Average Egg.

Eggs vary greatly in size and weight, but the average egg weighs about two ounces, or eight eggs weigh a pound.

Early Celery.

The expense of lumbering for blanching early celery is a barrier to some people engaging in the culture of this crop. But they fail to realize that the same boards may be used six to ten times in one season and with good care that they will last fifteen years. In other words the same boards may be used 100 or more times. At $30 for 1,000 feet, two boards, 12 feet long, will cost 96 cents and, planting four inches apart in the row, they will blanch 48 plants at one time, or 288 in one year, and 4,320 in fifteen years. At this rate, which is conservative, a penny's worth of lumber will blanch 45 plants, which at three cents apiece are worth $1.35. The cost of lumber, therefore, should not deter any one from engaging in the business.

Ration for Sow.

After farrowing, when the digestive system of the sow has reached a normal condition, her ration should be gradually increased until she is getting all she can eat.

Sparrow Sets House Ablaze.

An English sparrow was the cause of three houses catching fire at Lawrenceburg, Ind., recently, and had it not been for the prompt work of the neighbors and friends all would have been destroyed. The sparrow was building a nest under the eaves of the home of Mrs. Mary Webber, and it picked up a long cotton string from a pile of rubbish that had just been burned. With the burning string in its beak, the sparrow flew to the roof of Mrs. Sophia Shaler's house, then to Otto McCright's house and then to the roof of Emanuel Wuest's home, where it dropped the burning string. A fire started in the shingles of each building. Each was extinguished by neighbors before much damage was done.

Barber Shops in China.

Since the Chinese revolution a great many Chinese have had their cues cut off, and this has led to the opening of a large number of barber shops throughout the far east wherever Chinese are located, says an exchange. Several progressive business men of Singapore, anticipating this, imported a large number of American barber chairs, and they are now unable to get supplies quickly enough. It has also been learned that the Chinese insist on having American hair clippers, and refuse all other makes offered them.

It would seem that American manufacturers of barbers' supplies should experience a large increase in their Oriental trade.

Too Much of a Good Thing.

"I was very happy," said the professor, "when, after years of wooing, she finally said 'Yes.'"

"But why did you break the engagement so soon after?" asked his friend.

"Man, it was she that dissolved it."

"Really?" said his friend. "How did that happen?"

"It was due to my accursed absent-mindedness. When, a few days later, I called at her home, I again asked her to marry me."

The Natural Inference.

While out motoring the other day, I ran across an old friend of mine. "Was he much hurt?"

LOST TREASURES OF AMERICA

Gold and Jewels Still Waiting to be Found by Some Modern Adventurer.

BY

BUFFINGTON PHILLIPS

(Copyright, by the Ridgway Co.)

THE greatest treasure in the United States, a vast sum that awaits some one's finding, is one concerning which I have sought the exact truth for the several years that I have followed this fad of collecting treasure-trove data. The publication of the story or stories about it may bring to light the men who can say definitely what is what. However any man who cares to set out after it in a business-like manner may turn himself into a multi-millionaire between Christmas and Fourth of July.

This much is certain: somewhere on the upper reaches of the Missouri river lie four large barges, lost in 1866, loaded to their utmost capacity with gold estimated in amount from $7,000,000 to $25,000,000.

Just at the close of the civil war some rumors of the finding of gold in the Black Hills of Dakota and Montana drifted into the towns on the border of civilization in the northwest. It seems odd to think that fifty years ago that region was a frontier, but there are hundreds of old Indians now living on the reservations who then were fighting braves and fifty years ago they had never seen a white man's face.

In the spring of 1866 some old prospectors in the back drift from California found gold in one of the tributaries of the Missouri, said now to be the north fork of the Cheyenne. Why it is no more certain will appear. Others of their ilk "smelled" the discovery and a band of no more than forty drew into the region, making a wonderful strike, the richest that has ever been made on America soil according to all accounts. The strike was made in what is now called Deadmen's Gulch, named to suit the story, but called in the old records Federation, Desperation and Starvation Gulches.

The gold was alluvial, washed down from the northern ledges, now being worked by the rich Caledonia Quartz Mine Company near Deadwood. The gravel banks and flats were inexpressibly rich with it and all summer the forty men toiled feverishly, extracting as much as they could before the winter should descend upon them, shut off their fish, game and vegetable food supply and drive them to civilization, where the knowledge of the vast wealth of the Black Hills and the remainder of the auriferous region would become public property.

When the ground froze and they could work no longer they cut timber and made four large barges of shallow draft and on them loaded the gold in provision boxes, and mule and deer skins made into rawhide sacks. Even then they were compelled to leave some of it behind because the barges would not carry it.

The hostile Indians who had not dared attack so large a party in the mining camp with its excellent defenses and those who were apparently on friendly terms with the miners now took a hand in the game. After the hardy forty had reached the Missouri and had negotiated a portion of its distance they tied up one night, not long before Christmas. They were attacked by a large band of Indians who massacred every living soul, sank the barges and took all their belongings except the gold, of which they did not know the value. Some accounts hold the Blackfeet responsible, others the Ogalala.

How the news ever got to the world I cannot say, save as the Indians told of it and friends of the dead men traced them into the country from which they never came out. Gradually the story took form and it set the prospectors wild. They ranged the region from the Bad Lands to the Big Horn river for twenty-seven years and then came the great discovery in the Black Hills.

The gold left behind at the point of embarkation was finally found. Old workings which showed the vast quantities taken out by the forty prospectors were discovered and for a few years a torrent of alluvial gold poured out of the Black Hills. Then the whole thing settled down to the staid and regular quartz proposition.

The Kansas City Star some years ago printed a circumstantial story stating that a young Indian student at Haskell had told a professor that his father was one of the braves in the massacre, knew where the barges were sunk and was still living on the reservation. It may be that the river has changed its course and left the barges under a thin layer of gravel, easily accessible on dry land. The way to find the treasure is to trace down the stories, locate some of the old Indians and induce them to locate the spot and point it out from memory. It should not be difficult.

In 1759 there was lost in the Bay of Islands, at the mouth of the St. Lawrence river, the good ship Primrose with a store of gold and silver and jewels aboard her. The exact amount of her treasure is unknown, but it must be vast.

Full of wild romance is the story of the "Devil Duval's Horde" on the top of the Rocks of Perce on the Gaspe peninsula, only about twenty-four hours ride by train from New York City. Certain British laws must be repealed before it can be recovered, however. It is in one of the out-of-way places of the world and very little is known by the general public about it. The superstitious French fishermen, unchanged in a hundred and fifty years, still await the return of the fierce pilot to claim his own.

The Rock of Perce, named for the adjacent fishing village, is one of the true natural wonders of our continent. When some convulsion of nature rent the coast this rock was split from the nearby mountain and left standing, a grim monument to the caprice of the gods of sea and land. Several hundred feet high, with a comparatively flat top, its sides are beetling and one side is about two hundred feet higher than the other. Once it was pierced by three arches through any one of which a small ship might sail, but now one of these has collapsed, leaving only the two huge galleries.

Captain Duval was a French privateer who returned only a small portion of his loot from English and other ships to the French authorities and after the declaration of peace he became an out-and-out pirate. He protected the French fishermen and was generous with them. They, in their turn protected him as the English peasant protected Dick Turpin.

At last he was hard pressed by the English and having in his service a Micmac Indian who knew a secret trail to the supposedly inaccessible Rock of Perce he collected all his caches of treasure in the maritime provinces and brought them to Perce. The Indian carried a line to the top of the rock and hauled up a block and fall. Then two prisoners were hauled up, and next Duval himself. Boats containing the great treasure chests stood by below.

The tradition is that they were a day and a moonlight night getting it all up. Then the Indian was sent down and Duval himself was lowered away. His rapier was dripping with blood and when he reached the boat he stood up, and with a harquebus shot at the tackle till it was cut clean, too high up the rocks for any one to reach. "Devil Duval" sailed away and never returned.

For years the winds battered and the sun and rains rotted the ropes on the walls of the rock till at last they disappeared. So many lives were lost in attempts to scale the rocks and recover the treasure that a law was passed forbidding any one to make the attempt without the necessary legalized concession from the governor of the province of Quebec. Only the wild sea-birds, making their nests in the top of the rock, know the story of the two prisoners and the chests of treasure on the bleak heights. But an airship could learn it.

Carleton Island, in the St. Lawrence river, was an outfitting place for Tory raiding parties and an arsenal was established there. A pay chest was sent to the post with a large sum of money. The chest disappeared and its loss was reported to General Haldimand at Montreal. In 1879, Colonel Horr of Cape St. Vincent, received a visit from a stranger, who requested the use of a boat and being granted it, he rowed to Carleton Island and returned in a short time with a heavy iron chest covered with clinging wet clay. Colonel Horr, thinking nothing wrong, helped the man row to the steamboat landing and he was never heard from again. In a few days William Majo, one of the owners of the island, sent a boy into the pine thicket for stray ing horses and there the lad found the flat-stone-lined hole where the chest had rested.

There are two extensive areas of buried treasure in the thickly populated parts of the United States. One, the lesser, is on the general lines of Sherman's march to the sea. North and south of it plantation after plantation, town after town, have their stories of treasures ranging from a few hundreds of dollars to hundreds of thousands which were buried for fear the Union army would get them. Many were never recovered because of the failure of the owners to locate the burial places. The surest way to lose a treasure is to bury it, it seems. The earth in some mysterious way spreads a mantle of oblivion which can not be pierced by the memory of man and takes back to her bosom the treasure that was wrested from her.

The other area is in the east; beginning at about Camden, N. J., and extending north to Albany and thence to Portland, Maine. In that field lived the rich Royalist and Tory families.

The sudden turning of the tide found the Tories in possession of a great quantity of gold coin, gold and silver plate and jewels, and fearing they would lose these, they buried them and then fled. Comparatively little of it was ever exhumed and the area is dotted thickly with localities where a search would be highly profitable. Of them I can mention a few only.

At Sound Beach, Conn., lives Mrs. Jane Louden, 101 years of age. Her husband, knowing that on the home farm a wealthy Tory family had buried gold, hunted until he found several pots containing several thousand dollars each. A neighbor also acquired sudden wealth which he did not explain. Every one knew there was a great joint family cache somewhere near.

It was known for many years that on Lord Edmeston's estate near West Edmeston, N. Y., his personal representative Perdifer Carr had buried a treasure. The property known as the Burdick Farm, having been bought by Henry F. Burdick in 1850, was the site. In 1904 a tenant named Cheeseborough plowed into a case of china and glass breaking half of it before he realized what the obstruction was. By reason of design and quality the remainder, however, was worth a small fortune to dealers in antiques. It was the Edmeston ware. The law suit that followed for possession made the case famous. Where is the remainder of the treasure?

Joel Coryell, sexton at Romulus, N. Y., digging a grave on what was a Tory estate in 1776 found a large quantity of money in an old pot. The grave belonged to Thomas Mann, but Coryell kept the gold.

Walter Butler, the notorious Mohawk Valley Tory, returned to the valley at the end of the war with a force of Tories and Indians to dig up the treasure he had buried and those that had been buried by other wealthy Tories who had told him where to recover it in their behalf. When he had finished his work and was returning, the pursuing Colonials under Colonel Marinus Willet, overtook the treasure squad beyond Johnson's Hall on the bank of the West Canada in northern Herkimer county.

The treasure was too heavy for the fleeing party so it was dumped in the shallows and horses were ridden through the water to make it muddy. Butler was killed, the raiders driven away and the spoils await present-day seekers.

While there is some doubt as to authenticity there is said to be a $12,000,000 cache of Spanish doubloons buried by Captain Kidd, on Esopus island in the Hudson river, not far from New York City, while at the very gate of New York is a forgotten treasure of many hundreds of thousands. This famous treasure was lost when the British frigate Hesarar, a pay ship sent in for the British soldiers during the revolutionary war, went down in the East river. It will be easy to look up the old Admiralty records and get the full information that may lead to the finding of the treasure.

The facts pertaining to Klopper Smith's horde are as follows: "Der Klopper" was a very brutal and much feared knight of the road on the west shores of the Hudson from Nyack to the Catskills and he robbed the wealthy Dutch in an unmerciful manner. He had no opportunities for spending his ill-gotten wealth and hoarded it somewhere. At last he was captured and before his execution at Newburg confided to a keeper who had been kind to him that he had sacks of gold and silver and jewels buried in a spot on Storm King Mountain just north of Cornwall on the Hudson, some thirty-five miles north of New York City. No search has ever been made.

In the heyday of Mississippi river steamboat traffic a great deal of sunken treasure accumulated in the Ohio, Cumberland, Tennessee, Missouri, Red and Arkansas rivers. A pay boat on its way to Grant's army at Vicksburg with more than two million dollars aboard was fired by some of her crew who meant to rob her. The paymaster's men defended the money till the boat sank. James B. Eads, who built the Eads bridge at St. Louis and the Eads jetties at the mouth of the Mississippi invented an apparatus by use of which he could reach some of the treasure wrecks in shallow water and recovered several million dollars. All of it could be reached with comparative ease now.

Just above Pine Bluff, Arkansas, a steamboat said to have been the Carlyle J. Harrison, with several hundred thousand dollars in gold to pay for cotton, was sunk in 1869. None of it has ever been recovered.

There is a fascinating story about an old barge that is buried in the Missouri sand-flats near Fort Rice, North Dakota. With it is buried silver worth more than half a million dollars. At the time when the unsuccessful prospectors were toiling, empty handed, back from the gold fields of California, a little band of men struck a rich find near what is now Virginia City, Montana.

The built a rude camp and, with the poor implements that they had, worked feverishly for many months until they had taken out all that their packs could carry across the miles of uncivilized country they must cross to the navigable rivers of the upper Missouri. Toiling across the mountains always in danger of massacre, facing starvation and privations, breaking roads in the frozen flats and blazing trails through the forests they finally reached the river near Painted Woods and there built a rude barge and loaded it to the water's edge with the rich silver ore.

Traveling by night in constant fear of Indian outbreaks they wended slowly down the partly frozen river, knowing that soon they would reach the frontier town and safety. It was in '64 and the few scattered settlements had been deserted. No Indians had been seen for days and, taking courage, they traveled faster and with less caution. When they were near Fort Rice they were attacked by the Indians and all of the little band were killed with the exception of one man, Pierre Laselle.

Ignorant of the wealth aboard the Redskin sunk the boat and Pierre Laselle escaped to Fort Rice leaving behind him no trace of the expedition; the secret of the hardships and toil and wealth were with the river and with him. He told no one anything about it for some time, not until he had enlisted in the army and maneuvered so as to get back to be near his treasure. Then he took an old Quaker named Richard Pope into his confidence and at the urgent request of the Quaker his son was also told the secret.

Three months later the little party well armed and well provisioned went quietly to the spot that Laselle remembered so well only to find that the river course had changed and a bar of sand had formed over the barge. Not dismayed, however, they dug until they found the prow of the old scow and on the very eve of success they too were attacked by the Indians and Laselle was killed. Pope and his son, too badly frightened to work again within the year, went back with the secret to the town and while there young Pope died.

After many years the old Quaker took another man named Emerson and with the drawings that Laselle and he had made they went back to the place of trove and found that the sand bar had grown and that the river ran many hundreds of feet away from the spot where the fortune lay buried in glistening sands. Where Pope said the old diggings would be found a young cottonwood tree was flourishing. They spent weeks digging for many feet around the place but found nothing. Some mistake had evidently been made in following out the former instructions, but the barge was there, because Pope and Laselle found it on their first visit. Pope is dead but Emerson is still alive and has the old drawings, letters and records. Maybe he can be induced to part with it, and maybe not, but somewhere in the flats near Fort Rice is a snug little fortune awaiting some finder.

Behind the city of St. Augustine, in some likely spot, another rich treasure is located. When it was a rich Spanish town, a favorite putting in port for the heavily laden Spanish galleons that were coming through the Straits of Florida to avoid sailing the waters made dangerous by Peter the Terrible and Sir Henry Morgan, its wealth attracted the attention of the free-booters and word of their preparations to attack and loot the city was carried to the captain-general.

For weeks the city was in a state of great perturbation and when some English ships, probably privateers, appeared off the coast the public treasure, the church treasure and the valuables of the wealthy citizens were assembled, removed inland and hidden. For months the state of suspense continued until the Spanish Admiral Quintana appeared with his fleet. Then the St. Augustiniens thought they could safely bring back their wealth. To their horror the three prominent men entrusted with the secreting of it, either could not find it or pretended they could not. One fled to Spain before the anger of his fellow citizens and his flight cost the lives of the other two. They were assassinated as soon as the flight became known.

The archives of the Spanish admiralty have full record of the affair and the true key to the treasure trove can best be found by searching the family papers of the man who fled. He never returned, but without doubt he left the valuable information to his heirs.

Where it will one await the finder in wilder and more uncertain spots is far more interesting ground than the localities where thousands lie under the very noses of the townspeople, or where the plow passes every year over the buried trove. All through the west are rich mines which have been found and lost.

ADMIRE AND USE TELEPHONE

Figures Show That Americans Most Greatly Appreciate This Modern Aid to Business.

There are few aids to efficiency so useful as the telephone, and it is something we may be proud of that in this country alone 67 per cent. of all the instruments and 61½ per cent. of all the wire used in telephonic service in the world are employed. Practically two-thirds of the telephone business of the world is therefore concentrated in the United States. This represents an investment of $1,729,000,000, which is certainly a great sum, in view of the fact that last year was only the thirty-fifth since Professor Bell invented the telephone.

Statistics recently filed show that in Stockholm there are 12.9 telephones per 100 population; a figure excelled by no American city except Los Angeles, where there are 24 instruments per 100 population. Copenhagen and Christiana also have good service, and it is well patronized; but London, Paris, Vienna and St. Petersburg are far down in the list of telephone-using cities.

The relative use of the three great methods of communication—first-class mail, telegraph and telephone—in the United States in 1909 was 40.9, 0.4 and 58.7 per cent. respectively, while in Europe during the same year the percentages were 74.4, 1.7 and 23.9 respectively. The total numbers of messages sent by all three methods in the two divisions were practically the same—about 21,000,000,000.—Engineering Record.

The Messiah of Toil

Doctrine of Equality, a Common Fatherhood, a Common Brotherhood, Is on the Way.

THE promised Messiah came to a sin-weary and toil-worn world. There was joy on high and there was joy on earth. The wise men of the east saw the new-born star of the west, and came to see the wonder. The carpenter's son grew up unknown to his people. Consecrated for his work, his miracles and works no more than his personality and words gained for him a hearing and a following. His people were sore oppressed by bondage, political and spiritual. Singly he fought the latter and gained for us as for them, freedom. It cost him his life but he rose again on the third day and he and his teachings as centered in his personality have survived the storms of succeeding ages and today strike a deeper root than ever in the institutions, religious, political and industrial, of the people of the west.

Sin and toil were the two fruits of the fall. Without spiritual freedom no true happiness may be possible. We must seek that first, then the other will be given us. And the means of it has been given us. The bondage of unrequited toil is being loosened. Long enough has it held the great mass of humanity in shackles. Generations after generations of bondmen have populated this earth, their best life crushed by excessive toil, supporting at times a luxury justifiable, at times a luxury as meaningless as their own wretchedness. Greece and Rome shone, but behind the glitter and behind that of all ancient and medieval times we see a dark background of slavery and serfdom. As a political entity the slave is no more, but so long as the amount of human labor needed to provide living for all is such that the many must toil so long will systems be devised to make them do so.

Institutions Founded on Equality.

This has been difficult here. Our political institutions are founded on the Messiah's doctrine of equality, a common fatherhood, a common brotherhood. Human labor has become expensive, we have been looking for substitutes. Science, unwilling at first, has been called in. The powers of nature have been harnessed, tools and machines vastly improved so as to make individual labor more productive and much has been realized. Man as a producer of the physical necessaries of life is today twice if not ten times more powerful than was his ancestor working one hundred years ago. Investigations prove it and the evidences we see on every hand.

This has been the history of modern industry and this its mission, to emancipate the toiler. The vast problems involving distribution of benefits have not been solved, but are being solved. A very large amount is already widely distributed. The Christmas star shines forth on a world of life which, if more complex, is yet essentially more rich than any preceding. The west, the first to see the true meaning of the Messiah's mission, is the first step to reap the benefits from a social organization whose ideal is universal love. The course of this influence widening will extend ever westward until the circle of the lands is complete. Even now the wise men of the east, seeing the new star, have accepted its guidance, while deep from the lives of the millions doubly freed rise the strains of the Nativity hymn.

Prayer.

Prayer is the atmosphere in which the Christian lives, the key which opens the door of heaven; the wire which connects us with the great white throne, the gate through which we enter into the presence chamber of the Eternal, the highway on which we meet the king in his beauty, the pillar of cloud by day and of fire by night which lead us through the wilderness of this world to the bright Canaan beyond; the valley in which still waters flow, and Easter lilies bloom and in which he, whose name is wonderful, revealed himself, the golden stairway by which the angels convey the longings of our hearts up to our Heavenly Father.—Henry Alexander Lavely.

Reward of Faith.

The reward of faith will be in proportion to the tests which it has successfully endured. The promises of God were enlarged to Abraham after he went from his country and his kindred, not knowing whither he went. They were enlarged again after he had offered Isaac upon the altar. So will it be with every one. As the field of promise enlarges, so will be the reward of the believer when he shall experience in the future the blessed results of his faith in the promises fulfilled to him.

He Suffers With Us.

Twofold is the experience in which we need compassion and fellowship: in the time of [illegible] and in the time of [illegible]. These are the two great [illegible] of life: the loneliness of the height and the loneliness of the deep in which the heart needs [illegible] more than being remembered and watched. God is not a God far away. He descends, he comes to our side, he battles for and suffers with his own.—George Adam [illegible].

Eternal Truth.

"Truth is not at the mercy of human tradition. Though every page of history should fade; though the Bible should be lost, though Jesus should be forgotten, the light that shone upon these pages, the light that shone in him would still shine. Truth is eternal; it is forever present and we may see it now even more clearly than in the ancient time."—A Modern Preacher.

"When the million applaud you, seriously ask what harm you have done; when they censure you, what good."

AUTOMOBILE HAS A WING

French Motor Car Is Driven in the Same Manner as an Aeroplane.

A successful trial run was made recently from Paris to London, about 320 miles, by a motor car driven by a revolving wing, the Paris Figaro states.

The vehicle, which was designed by M. Bertrand de Lesseps, and is called the "wingedcar," has the appearance of an ordinary motor car, save that in front it is shaped like the prow of a ship. From the extremity of the prow extends a shaft to which is attached the propeller—or revolving wing—invented by M. Filippi.

The wing is small, strong and thick and revolves within a protecting cage. The engine is of 40 horsepower and rotates the wing by shaft and chain transmission.

There is no other mechanism, the wheels of the car being free, except for footbrakes. By the side of the driver is a single lever which controls the clutch and the forward and reverse movement of the wing. The wing can be reversed at a moment's notice, thereby forming an additional brake. In the trial runs a speed of 62 miles an hour was obtained with 2,100 revolutions of the wing a minute. One curious feature was that the car made no dust.

HANDS CRACKED AND BLED

St. Clair, Mo.—"My trouble began about fifteen years ago. It was what some claimed eczema. The form the disease worked under was a breaking out with watery blisters on my hands which would then dry and scale, and then would follow the trouble of cracking and bleeding, also itching and hurting. My hands were disfigured at the time and sore. The trouble was very annoying and disturbed my sleep. This last February it was ever so much worse than before. I did not do all my work on account of the condition of my hands. I could not put them in water without making them worse. I tried a lot of home remedies, also salves and liniments that claimed to be a cure for the trouble, but I did not obtain a cure.

"At last I saw the advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I sent for a sample. I thought they would cure, so I sent for a fifty-cent box of Cuticura Ointment and some Cuticura Soap. A doctor advised me to keep ahead with the Cuticura Soap and Ointment and they cured me completely. No trace of the trouble remains." (Signed) Mrs. Mary Taylor, Mar. 29, 1912.

CRITICAL TIME OF WOMAN'S LIFE

From 40 to 50 Years of Age. How It May Be Passed in Safety.

Odd, Va.:—"I am enjoying better health than I have for 20 years, and I believe I can safely say now that I am a well woman. I was reared on a farm and had all kinds of heavy work to do which caused the troubles that came on me later. For five years during the Change of Life I was not able to lift a pail of water. I had hemorrhages which would last for weeks and I was not able to sit up in bed. I suffered a great deal with my back and was so nervous I could scarcely sleep at night, and I did not do any housework for three years.

"Now I can do as much work as any woman of my age in the county, thanks to the benefit I have received from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I recommend your remedies to all suffering women."—Mrs. MARTHA L. HOLLOWAY, Odd, Va.

No other medicine for woman's ills has received such wide-spread and unqualified endorsement. We know of no other medicine which has such a record of success as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. For more than 30 years it has been the standard remedy for woman's ills.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

School Days are Happy Days

IF YOU START THE CHILDREN RIGHT

Vacation Days are nearly over—only one week more and girls will be trodding merrily along to school.

BOYS' NEW FALL SUITS

The kind that look well. The famous "Hercules" Suits. All wool, shower proof; and Bartell pockets in coats. Trousers full lined, made wite double reinforced seams.

School Shoes

Children can't study unless their minds are free from care. Bad humor and indolence comes from discomfort of some kind—more often because the helpless child is made to wear illfitting shoes.

Bring the children to us, no matter what the age, we have shoes to fit every little foot, and we fit them carefully, too. Try us. The child will be happier and brighter for it.

The New Lake County Fair

Painesville, Ohio

September 17, 18, 19 and 20

Is the BIG FAIR this year. Something doing every minute—free daily exhibits by Ohio Experiment Station with lectures, and free daily exhibit by Ohio Commission for the blind, with demonstrations by the blind, are among the special attractions. Best specimens of imported and native stock, fine agricultural exhibit, household aids, modern farm machinery, free daily concerts by skilled musicians, the most instructive, enjoyable, elevating, extraordinary entertainment for both old and young. New 60 acre fair grounds, modern buildings, Maple Grove Picnic ground. All Cleveland, Painesville and Ashtabula regular, limited and special cars passing through cities and towns from Cleveland to Ashtabula stop at main entrance on Mentor Avenue. A special feature will be the reunion and Home Coming week for all former residents of Lake county and their friends. Over $9,000.00 in premiums and purses, nine big races, three each afternoon, competition open to the world. Biggest exhibition, attractions and parade upon the opening exhibition day, Wednesday, Sept. 18, when the exhibition begins and everything is freshest and finest.

The largest premium list in northern Ohio. Send to the Secretary for a copy. Prepare your exhibits and arrange to attend. Admission 25 cents.

Gave Name to All.

"The Bridge of the Seas" is the striking name which Pindar gives to the narrow isthmus which separates the Gulf of Corinth from the Aegean sea. It is one of the most interesting strips of soil on the five continents. It is the isthmus of all the world; for from its Greek name Isthmia, every other isthmus has been named.

Advantage of Electricity.

Electricity can not be frozen, neither can it be adulterated. It works equally well on hot or cold days.

Change in Doll Industry.
